ATHLETIC RIVALRY IN UNSETTLED WEST

Young Clergyman of United Church Doubles as Baseball Player.

So keen is athletic rivalry in newer sections of the West that the tenderfoot preacher is made into a baseball player almost before he knows it. A young man was commissioned last year by the United Church to preach to the people of an Alberta community. On his first pastoral round he played catch with a young farmer. The next week, stopping to speak to a young man he did not know, he was informed that he was to play against the neighboring village. After this first game, which he considered a miserable showing on his part, he was promoted from left field to third base and stayed all season with the team.

The annual baseball picnic proved the setting for an attempt to "get the preacher's goat." In the seventh inning he found the rival communities trying to drown each other's tumult as he came to bat. A three-bagger, preceded by silent and fervent prayer, saved his reputation. He realized that the time had come to do some pinch hitting for the Church, so at the refreshment booth that day he suggested a baseball Sunday, with a sermon entitled, "The Baseball of Life" and with every member of the team promising to attend.

When the day came the church resembled a Toronto street car at rush hours. Team play, right decisions and sacrifice hitting proved good headings for arguments in the discourse.

LESS FLAPPERISH

Women Are Equal to Men, States Dean of Victoria College, Toronto.

Miss M. E. T. Addison, B.A., for twenty-three years dean of women at Victoria College, Toronto, says that women are now recognized by universities not as inferior to but as equal to men as students. In the future, she adds, they will be considered "equal and different" and their education will be along different lines, but with equally high standards. From her guidance of over a thousand young girls in obtaining higher education, Miss Addison has experience which lends authority to her opinion that university women will as a result of the impending changes be "more feminine" than in recent years. In fact, she notices that they are less "flapperish" than two years ago.

W.M.S. MEMBERS WORK AT QUILTING

Spend Day in Church Basement Sewing—Hear Address.

WOOLER, March 6.—On Tuesday at 10.30 a.m. the members of the Women's Missionary Society met in the basement of the United Church. A quilt was quilted and several pieces of underwear were made up for children.

At noon lunch was served to fifty ladies and four gentlemen by Mrs. Henry Curry and her group. After the sewing was finished the meeting opened, with the President, Mrs. S. L. Terrill, in the chair, and Mrs. W. J. Lawson, Secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting.

Mrs. Alden Arthur was appointed delegate to the branch meeting to be held in Trenton. Mrs. John Alley was elected as an alternative.

Arrangements were made for the Easter morning service. Mrs. R. Neal will address the meeting.

A very inspiring blackboard talk on the study of India was ably given by Mrs. Wm. Orvis. This closed a very profitable day in working, studying and giving.

GOOD PROGRAMME LADIES' AID MEETING

Many Instrumental and Vocal Numbers—Hostess Served Lunch.

HASTINGS, March 6.—The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. Cruikshank. After the opening exercises the business was discussed and a programme given. A solo, "Tis Springtime," was given by Georgina Beavis; Mrs. M. L. Hinton gave a reading, "Neighbors"; Mrs. G. Faux sang a solo, and Misses Gladys Stevenson and Evelyn Beavis played a piano duett.

A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

OBITUARY.

JOHN JIBB.

ROSENEATH, March 6.—After an illness extending several months the death occurred of Mr. John Jibb at his home, Macklin's Settlement, Haldimand Township. Mr. Jibb, who was a man of 46 years, was very highly respected by a large number of friends and acquaintances, who deeply regret to learn of his death.

He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, an aged mother and one brother, Mr. William Jibb, Fenella.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. Interment in the Macklin's Cemetery.

MRS. ANNIE PRITCHARD.

MARMORA, March 6.—A large congregation assembled at the United Church on Wednesday afternoon for the funeral service of the late Mrs. Annie Pritchard, testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held. The service, which was taken by the Rev. F. J. Horwood, was of a very touching character. The pastor gave an impressive address, in which he touched upon the symbolism of flowers. There were a large number of beautiful floral emblems, including one from the United Church Sunday School and another from the Cheerful Workers' Class.

The remains were later borne to Mount Nebo Cemetery, Springbrook, for interment. The pallbearers were Frank Grant, Ralph Neal, Gerald Potts, Horace Leonard, Gerald Smith and Gordon McWilliams.

In token of respect, the Public School closed for the afternoon.

SINGS THROUGH TUBE

Diphtheria Patient in Alberta Hospital Has Unique Way of Singing.

In a home mission hospital among foreigners on the prairie at Lamont, Alberta, one patient has learned to sing under novel difficulties. Annie is a Russian girl, five years old, the child of parents too poor to pay for her maintenance in hospital. At first she was so ill with diphtheria that an operation had to be performed introducing into her throat a tube through which she could breathe. She improved quickly, but, whenever the tube was removed, seemed to suffer a smothering contraction, due partly to fear. As soon as she could use her voice the chaplain, Rev. C. W. W. Ross, taught her to sing, "Jesus Loves Me," and she was able to sing it bravely by keeping her finger over the end of the tube. Only by the charity of Sanada's United Church has she had the chance to grow well. In cases such as hers, charity is not a word of smug piety, but rather one suggesting practical service. This sort of charity is Canadianization of the better sort.

NEW CANADIANS.

The arrangement by which the Ontario Government is bringing out 300 English boys who will eventually become farmers here offers every prospect of success.

By an agreement between the Ontario Government and the Overseas Settlement Board, these youngsters are to be brought to this Province passage free, and will be located at Vimy Ridge Farm, near Guelph, where they will be given preliminary instructions from the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College before being placed in foster homes.

The Ontario Government is assuming responsibility for these boys, none of whom are "home" boys, and every chance will be given them to make good in this country.

The scheme promises to develop into a worthwhile plan, particularly as the boys are to be taken care of by the Government until they have had a chance to establish themselves.

The weakness of many other immigration systems is that the newcomers have been too quickly thrown upon their own responsibility.

THE PROPER COURSE.

Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General of Ontario, in ordering an inquest to be held in the case of the death of twelve-year-old John Dwyer has taken the proper course.

The circumstances surrounding the passing of this unfortunate little fellow demanded an inquiry.

If the machinery provided by the law for probing into deaths under suspicious circumstances is ever of any value, it certainly should be in a case of this kind

The Examiner is sure that the action of Hon. Mr. Nickle is thoroughly in accord with public opinion in this district, which has steadily called for an inquiry since the conditions in the Dwyer household were stated in this paper.

THE PETERBORO EXHIBITION.

The enthusiasm in evidence at the annual banquet of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition was a cheerful augury for the continued success of the big Fair.

In this loyalty to the organization is to be found one of the secrets of the growth and advancement of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition.

The members have become so thoroughly embued with enthusiasm in the undertaking that they willingly make personal sacrifices in the common good.

Every director believes in the Exhibition as a worth-while institution that is doing much for the whole district, and every director feels it his personal duty to work for success in season and out.

With such a wonderful spirit of loyalty, it is no wonder that the Exhibition has quickly developed into a week's Fair, with a prize list and programme of attractions pretentious enough to put the big annual event high up in the list of Canadian exhibitions.

Last night's affair was merely a demonstration of some of the reasons for the great success of Peterboro's Fair.

THE NEW CENSORSHIP.

Many Canadians will be inclined to look with misgiving upon the sudden censorship mania that is developing in the Customs Department.

If there is to be a check upon what the people of this country are to read, then the censorship should be more reliable and less haphazard than is possible if it is to be exercised under political direction.

The barring of one United States magazine because of an article reflecting unfavourably upon King Edward has been followed by the shutting out of an illustrated New York paper because its pictures showed a little too much of the female form divine.

If this action is to be followed to its logical end, the Customs Department is going to be kept very busy, for many of the motion picture magazines, publications dealing with physical culture and other similar magazines are of the type more useful to the student of anatomy than to the general public.

Undoubtedly there are being offered for sale generally in this country publications that serve no useful purpose and could easily be spared, but in instituting an indiscriminate censorship Canada threatens to make herself a laughing stock.

The people of this country should not be treated as children too immature to exercise any judgment as to what they should read.

KEEP HIM FOR CANADA.

The announcement that Dr. Beaumont S. Cornell of this town has accepted appointment under the foundation established by the late James B. Duke, the tobacco magnate, to carry on the researches in pernicious anaemia which have brought him into some prominence in recent years, must prove gratifying to those who have followed the career of this young Canadian investigator from the time that he began work in a miniature and most humble laboratory on the Kingston road not far from Brockville.

The point to be emphasized is that when the executors of the Duke estate administering many millions of dollars and undertaking one of the most important projects in modern medicine sought a man to carry on the work in pernicious anaemia directed by Mr. Duke, who fell a victim to that dread disease, they were obliged to come to Canada, and to Brockville, to find him. The position was not of Dr. Cornell's seeking; it sought him. And it is tribute to the value of his labors as an investigator and to the training which he received in a Canadian medical school that, of all the men who are engaged in similar researches in different parts of the world, the choice should fall upon him. It is fresh evidence of the ability of this country to develop scientists who can hold their own with the best that the remainder of the world can produce, and it is a reason for very hearty congratulations being extended to Dr. Cornell upon the reward which his earnest and painstaking researches, as yet in their infancy, have earned.

The hope cannot be restrained that Dr. Cornell will see fit to continue his researches in some Canadian centre of medicine, preferably either Montreal or Toronto, where splendid laboratory facilities exist. Under the terms of his contract he is given power to choose the site of his labors. He may work wherever he thinks there is to be found the best chance of success. Should that success be gained and should he be able to isolate the cause of pernicious anaemia (a development which would be hailed as one of the greatest medical discoveries of all time) it would be satisfying if the credit could come entirely to Canada, as has been the case with Dr. Banting's discoveries in connection with diabetes. Should it be made in a laboratory in the United States or elsewhere, that country would not fail to monopolize the credit and to forget that the man who brought it about was born in that centre of Leeds culture, the village of Athens, and received his professional training in the Provincial University. If at all possible, Dr. Cornell, of a third generation of Canadian physicians, should be kept for Canada.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

PLAYING THE MARKET.

It goes almost without saying that at this office and that of the Wall Street Journal every conceivable scheme for beating the stock market is received. These plans are usually sincere, and practically all of them, however mathematically defective their creators may be, are based on the theory of chances. It is a sound theory, or life insurance companies would not be able to do business. The odds against holding any particular hand at auction bridge are staggering, but nevertheless calculable. The number of times a coin will turn up heads or tails will be exactly equal, if you care about spending a lifetime tossing it to obtain that needless information. But the betting on any particular toss, after the lifetime has been so spent, is exactly even money. Treated as a pure gamble, and eliminating special information, however often the stock market may have fluctuated one way or the other, the chances for a given result are unaffected by the record of history. This would be treating the market movement as pure chance. Practically all these systems do exactly that, and they all fail.

Systems for beating the bank at Monte Carlo ignore the bank's limit. None of them has ever been workable. Such systems applied to the stock market, based upon the movement of the averages, are clearly unworkable so far as individual stocks are concerned if the theory of chances is all that guides. The operator would need to buy or sell an equal amount of twenty industrial stocks and twenty railroad stocks. He could not even make a selection. He would have at least an even chance of picking the exception that did not prove his rule, but broke his bank account. It is true that the averages are an invaluable guide to the general tendency of the market, and that only under exceptional circumstances will an individual stock advance long or far against the general current of the market movement. This is particularly true of any stock which is widely distributed, like Steel common. It might be strong for a day or two while the rest of the market was weak. But over any movement long enough to make the commissions and the market turn negligible, it would almost inevitably take the general trend.

System-makers, who regard the stock market as a purely gambling proposition, will always lose their money, and the sooner they lose it the better.

BISHOP DEFENDS MODERN STYLES

Bob and Jazz Preferable To the Bangs and Bustles.

TELLS CONFERENCE.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., March 6 (United Press). — The piety of jazz has been established. Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Chicago, presiding at the Methodist Episcopal Conference here, says the ways of modern youth are not signs of moral degeneration.

Comparing the modern daughter with their mothers as girls, Bishop Hughes said, "The women who wore bangs and bustles have no right to criticize this generation, for they didn't look bright. You pious old Methodist ministers, when young, used to sing "Pharaoh's Daughter." I much prefer the modern banana song. When women wore bustles they looked like perpendicular camels. Bobbed hair is no worse than the old banged hair."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

STANWOOD, March 6. — To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner:—We wish to make some corrections in an item in your paper on Feb. 24, and state the facts, for some of the statements are certainly exaggerated, and the young people of the community are very indignant. With reference to the way these dances are carried on the item says: "Here at Stanwood there is a vacant house that the rising generation leased for the winter for the purpose of holding dances two or three times a week." Such is not the case at all.

On the first occasion two of the young men of Stanwood leased the house for one evening, just to have a social dance for the young folks. There was nothing wrong and everything went off well. About two weeks after (not two days) another couple of young men of Stanwood leased the same house for one evening for the same purpose, and at this everything was all right.

A short time after the house was leased for one night by one or two young men outside the neighborhood of Stanwood for a dance, and also a second time the same parties outside the neighborhood leased the house.

Exactly what went on on this occasion we are not prepared to say, as the night was bad and not many of the Stanwood young people were present, but we understand there was one man who came a little the worse of liquor but he went away before half the evening was over.

He said that he had opened the house to accommodate the young folks at Stanwood, but if he were asked for it again by these last parties he was going to double the rent, so that they would not ask for it.

The statement that the house at Healey Falls was leased is also wrong. There is a vacant house there that was used for social gatherings, on two occasions by some of the local young men, but was not leased.

There was certainly no necessity for calling the police.

We would suggest that your reporter be sure that his items are correct before sending them to your paper and not take a one sided version of any incident. We understand the informant's sons were not slighted and were present at some of the dances.

In this case especially the impression given by the above item is wrong and is not fair to the young people of Stanwood as they are most anxious to keep their social life up to a high standard.

We are sure the citizens of Cobourg must feel flattered that they are brought into the limelight in such a way as in the reprinted item.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, we are respectfully yours.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Mar. 5—The foreign demand for grain in the local market was again dull today.

Another reduction of ten cents per barrel in prices for spring wheat was recorded today making a net decline of 50c per barrel since last Monday. There continues to be a steady inquiry from foreign buyers for supplies and as the prices bid in some cases were in line with millers' views a moderate amount of business was done, but there was no important change in the condition of the domestic trade, the demand being somewhat restricted. Car lots of first patents were quoted at $8.40, seconds at $7.90, and strong bakers at $7.50 to $7.70 per barrel.

Winter wheat grades were reduced a further ten to 15c per barrel and even at the lower level dealers stated that buyers were not disposed to operate with the result that the market was dull and car lots of choice grades were quoted at 6.10 to 6.20 per barrel.

An easy feeling continues to prevail in the market for potatoes owing to the more liberal arrivals and the increased offerings for which there is only a moderate demand and the volume of business was small with sales of odd cars of New Brunswick Green Mountains at 2.90 to $9 per bag, and Quebec varieties at $2.60 to $2.65 per 90 lbs. ex-track.

The strength that has prevailed in the trade for butter of late still continued today and prices for Townships No. 1 Pasteurized Creamery scored a further advance of 1-2 per pound on account of a shortage of supplies. Sales of this commodity were made at 47c per pound which is the highest figure that has been realized for Canadian Creamery on this move. There was no change in prices for other grades but the undertone was firm with a steady demand for small lots of overseas make Receipts today were seven packages.

The condition of the cheese market showed no change.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Mar. 5 (Canadian Press) — Wheat prices developed notable strength in the late dealings today despite weakness at the start. Prospects of a liberal reduction of the United States visible supply total on Monday, together with uncertainty over the official report on farm resources next week, helped to lift wheat values. Wheat closing quotations were unsettled, ranging from 7-8c net decline to 1 7-8c advance, with May (new) $1.60 1-2 to $1.60 5-8 and July $1.40 to $1.40 1-8. Corn finished 1-2 to 1 1-8c down, oats 1-8 to 3-8c gain and provisions unchanged to two cents lower.

EGG PRICES

Fellowship of Prayer

SATURDAY—
The Light of Experience

Read Jn. 9:24-34. Text: 9:25. One thing I know, that whereas I was blind, now I see.

Meditation—An ounce of real experience is worth a pound of pompous words. This man was lost when it came to explaining why, but there is finality in his report of his experience. Many a Christian could not give an adequate theological argument for his faith in the Son of God; but he knows how helpless he has been to change the infirmities of his own will and temper, but when he has given his heart to Christ in love and faith, the old man has been made new and he was free. When we have experienced liberty through faith in Him, he can use us to set others free also.

A multitude filled a great church on the Pacific Coast. The text of the day had been expounded by the preacher. A white haired, blind singer came to the platform just as the setting sun sent its gleam through a little window in the gable—which fell upon the face of the singer as he sang—"Once I was blind but now I can see, the Light of the World is Jesus."

Prayer—O Thou who gives liberally and upbraids us not when we falter through lack of wisdom or infirmity of will, grant us an abundant experience of Thy liberating power. We ask not that Thou shouldst always give adequate explanation of Thy mercies. We need not know why or how; but we would know that our Redeemer lives and has redeemed us. In this knowledge and experience we will rejoice and be glad. Amen.

Adultery Not a Crime in South African Union, Says Attorney.

WRIT SUSTAINED.

NEW YORK, N.Y., March 5. — (Canadian Press.)—Countess Cathcart won her suit to remain in this country to-day when Federal Judge Bondy sustained a writ of habeas corpus after District Attorney Buckner had entered in the records that adultery does not constitute a crime under the laws of the Union of South Africa.

The Countess had been refused entry into the United States, by the immigration authorities on the grounds of moral turpitude after her admission that she had accompanied the Earl of Craven to South Africa from England, while both were married.

CHAIRS PRESENTED

Choir of Downeyville Church Makes Presentation to Member.

DOWNEYVILLE, March 6.—A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Herlihey Monday when the members of St. Luke's choir gathered to bid farewell to Mrs. Cavanagh (nee Pearl Herlihey) and to show their appreciation of her services in the choir. They gave her two beautiful chairs, and Mr. Joseph Morrissey read the following address:

"Dear Mrs. Cavanagh:

"We, the members of the choir, have gathered here this evening, having heard of your coming departure for Ennismore, to bid you God-speed and wish you farewell. It is with a feeling of regret to those you leave behind to see the friend who always stood by us in sorrow and trouble, in grief or in gladness leave our community. Truly each year may bring many changes and losses, but the greatest loss we can sustain is the loss of our friends. We could not let this opportunity pass without showing in some small way our regard for you, so we ask you to accept these chairs, not for their value, but as a token of our esteem and respect. Please accept them, and with them our many good wishes and congratulations. May you have every happiness in your new home and always remember that a hearty welcome is ever awaiting you in the choir and your old community.

"Signed on behalf of Rev. Father Galvin and members of the choir."

Mrs. Cavanagh, though taken by surprise, replied thanking the members for their gift and hoped they would all come to see her in her new home. Speeches were made by Rev. Father Galvin, who regretted losing Mrs. Cavanagh from the choir, where she had been a valued member since he came to the parish, and he did not know where he could get an alto singer to take her place, and not only as a member of the choir, but also as a parish worker she had been always ready and willing to help. He hoped Mr. and Mrs. Cavanagh would decide to move to Emily to reside in the near future.

Daniel Costello also said he regretted losing Mrs. Cavanagh, as also did other members.

Afterwards a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and a few pleasant hours was spent in music and singing. All sang "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow" and left for their homes, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Cavanagh many years of happiness.

Personals.

Mr. Patrick Herlihey has returned home after spending some time the guest of his sister, Mrs. Thos. Murray, in Peterboro.

You are Worried About his Health

WHEN you are nervous, sleepless and out of sorts you know what to do. Experience has, perhaps, proven to you that under these circumstances you can depend on Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

But your husband does not think that he is ill and hopes to be all right in a few days. Unfortunately nervous ills do not right themselves.

Why not use the treatment which has already proven good in your case? There has yet to be discovered a medicine which so certainly restores exhausted nerves as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

If you are nervous, irritable, tired and sleepless you can depend on it to overcome the cause of these symptoms. It is not like ordinary medicines because it benefits by the upbuilding, reconstructive method.

Gradually and naturally it builds up new, rich blood and nourishes the depleted nerves back to health and vigor. For this reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most satisfactory treatment any man or woman can obtain to restore the nerves and bring back the vigor and energy which is essential to a full and happy life.

Where is the Car that Equals it?

Before buying an automobile in the $1500—$2000 field ask yourself these questions:

1 Is it as comfortable and smart in appearance as the New Oakland Six?

2 Does it boast such advanced mechanical features as Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, Full Pressure Oiling, Harmonic Balancer?

3 Has it mechanical four-wheel brakes?

4 Can it duplicate Oakland's speed, power, acceleration, flexibility and year-in-year-out dependability?

Because no car in the field can answer these questions satisfactorily—because no other car combines these features at anywhere near Oakland prices—this is the car for you.

1,750,000 GERMANS GIVEN DOLES TARIFFS TO BLAME SAYS BANKER

WALTER LEAF'S ADDRESS IN PARIS.

PARIS, March 6 (Canadian Press).—Walter Leaf, chairman of the Westminster Bank of London and president of the International Chamber of Commerce, drew a gloomy picture of the economic conditions of Europe in his report to the Council of the Chamber here Friday.

"Tariffs and trade barriers have so hampered foreign trade as to produce stagnation in industry with unemployment," Mr. Leaf said. "The whole standard of living has been lowered by artificial restrictions on human efficacy."

Figures he cited showed Germany to be in the worst plight of all European countries. He said that in January 1,750,000 German workmen were receiving doles, failures were multiplying with great rapidity, railroad earnings were decreasing and showed a deficit for December, making recourse to the reserve from previous months necessary in order to meet reparations payments.

France is more active than Germany, Mr. Leaf reported but her apparent economic prosperity does not give evidence of stability. The depreciation of the franc has increased the cost of raw materials bought abroad by 75 per cent, while the prices of goods sold for export have increased only 15 per cent.

England's Struggle.

England has before her the prospect of a desperate industrial struggle next May growing out of coal question, while the export trade remains depressed and shipping languishes. On the other hand, England through her return to the gold standard has recovered her position as the central money market of the world. Unemployment is diminishing slowly in consequence of the Government subvention to the coal industry, which has increased the output of the collieries.

Mr. Leaf presented Italy's situation in brighter colors. The budget for the last fiscal year showed a surplus of nearly half a million lire.

The settlement of Italy's foreign debts, Mr. Leaf believes, went far to clear up her financial and economic situation, opening up the international loan market to her and making it possible to borrow the capital required for productive enterprises.

Belgium's debt settlement together with new taxes levied to balance the budget and the stabilization of exchange, resulted in stabilization of the cost of living in that country.

Budgets Sounder.

In most European countries finance is in better shape than industry, the report said. France is now the only country whose budget shows a deficit.

"I cannot refrain," Mr. Leaf said, "From expressing the deep concern with which every nation looks on the financial discussion now proceeding in France. Unless the question is faced with courage and patriotism, the results may be such as to bring about disaster that will not be confined to France."

Mr. Leaf's conclusion was that a European trade league is necessary to secure open markets.

SAMPLES OF ORE FROM RED LAKE RUSHED BY AIR

Prospectors Make Trip By Planes in Less Than Two Hours.

EIGHT DAY MUSH.

Hudson Blossoms From Former "Flag Stop" to Real Station.

HUDSON, Ont., March 6 (Canadian Press).—This little town, but a short time ago a "flag stop," but now a "full stop" for all continental trains, is now a place of international character. Prospects from Eastern Canada, the United States, and from the West of the Dominion are here. Many are veterans in the game, having taken part in the great gold rushes of years gone by, and now by the scores are planning to enter the new gold field—at the Red Lake district—and one that promises to rival finds in Northern Ontario areas.

The entry of the new find, unlike the rushes of old, will be made in a great many cases by airplane. Today the howl of the husky — the music-maker of the northland—vies with the whirr of the plane engines as they are tuned for the flight. The inaugural trip, made by three planes on Thursday, was a success. Prospectors who had made the trip "in" by dog team, which took about eight days over treacherous slush ice and heavy banks of snow, returned on Friday to Hudson from Red Lake, a distance of 140 miles, in 1 hour and 40 minutes. Others who made the trip to the little mining camp covered the distance in 1 hour and 30 minutes.

Radio and Air Mail.

Many modern features will help in the hunt for the precious metal. The prospectors, who in other days would have been cut-off from the outside world, will have the advantage of radio, and also an air mail service, which will be inaugurated shortly. Already 1,000 letters are awaiting the gold seekers here.

While many will make the trip via the air route, there are still others who will travel the long journey by dog train. Everywhere in the town can be seen fine types of the northern freight dog, ready to make their contribution to the fortunes of their owners. Every daily train brings in an added contingent of prospectors, with their belongings. Each day heavy freight trains drop off their consignments for the north and the railway company has been forced to establish increased yardage for the ever increasing business.

Planes Carry Ore.

Jack V. Elliot, air pilot, Hamilton, Ont., brought out many fine specimens of ore from one of the veins, while several prospectors making the return journey with Mr. Elliot, told of the rich finds, and exhibited their samples to an interested group of new arrivals, guides and trappers.

Hudson, a little trading post of yore, to-day represents a thriving community, and by spring, when the real rush commences, will have reached the status of a town, busy handling what promises to be one of the greatest gold-finding expeditions in the history of the Dominion.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

CAMPBELLFORD, March 5—These days a man may advertise for a position with indifferent success but if it's a wife that he wants the results are more encouraging. It surely pays to advertise if a person is contemplating a plunge into the turbid sea of matrimony. No fairly eligible widower or bachelor desirous of changing his estate has any occasion to worry, recent ocal events have disclosed the fact that there are plenty of maids and widows in Ontario of the same way of thinking as himself.

A Campbellford man who lost his helpmeet, observed the regulation period of mourning and at the end of that time his grief had cooled sufficiently to permit him to think of acquiring another spouse to comfort his declining years. His method of courtship may not have been strictly orthodox but it certainly achieved the purpose he had in mind. This Lothario inserted an advertisement in a Toronto daily paper, modestly describing his matrimonial qualifications and asking for replies from those who meant business. Trifers and the giddy-minded were politely requested not to put in their oars. The identity and the place of residence of the advertiser were kept a secret, those who sent replies being requested to address them to a box in the newspaper office.

Then came the deluge. Every mail brought the Campbellford swain in a bundle of letters in which the writers described their personal charms their worldly estates and their ambitions to make a happy home for some lonely widower. There were lettres from women of all ages, stations, towns, villages and cities, single women, married women and women in all imaginable conditions of servitude. When what appeared to be the last letter came, the advertiser filed it away with 84 other communications of a like tenor and then decided upon a plan of action.

His first step was to secure the services of an amanuensis, a young man who holds a clerical position in town. The most attractive replies were dealt with first and, as the advertiser was not used to travelling himself and as nothing short of a personal interview would satisfy him, he sent the necessary railway fare to first one and then another of his fair correspondents inviting them to come to this town, guaranteeing their expenses while here Several of these invitations were accepted and there is a candidate in town at the present time but the advertiser is apparently still halting between (or among) 85 opinions.

There was at least one humorous incident in connection with this affair. There is at present residing in Toronto a personable widow, eligible in every way to grace the position to which she aspires, who formerly lived in Campbellford, a near neighbor of the advertiser, but with whom she had not been on speaking terms for years. That widow has wept at the gravesides of three husbands but undaunted by this experience she is anxious to contract another alliance. She unwittingly answered the advertisement of her former neighbor, not imagining to whom she was laying bare her ambitions but it is needless to say that this is one letter that remains unanswered.

PLATINUM FOUND ALONG THOMPSON

Prospector Reports Valuable Deposit in British Columbia.

VANCOUVER, B.C. March 6 (Canadian Press).—Platinum deposits, overlooked in the earlier days when their value was not known to prespectors, are to be found in valuable quantities along the Fraser and Thompson Rivers, in the interior of British Columbia, according to Albert Stone, veteran miner. Stone has returned from two weeks' prospecting along the Thompson River, east of Lytton, at the junction with the Fraser, with three pounds of platinum ore which he says is worth $70 an ounce in the crude state.

VERA'S VICTORY EMPHASIZED BY ABSENT CRAVEN

Countess of Cathcart May Remain Six Months in the U.S.A.

EARL IN BERMUDA.

"Moral Turpitude" Settled to Satisfaction of Vera and Judge Bundy.

NEW YORK, March 6 (Canadian Press).—Reversal of a ruling under which hundreds of foreigners have been turned away from the United States, yesterday gave Countess Cathcart free entry into the country. Federal Judge Bondy, who effected the reversal, ruled that moral turpitude constituted only acts in violation of the laws of the country where they occurred and added that alien manufacturers and sellers of liquor might as well be barred on the grounds of moral turpitude as persons charged with adultery.

Under the ruling yesterday the Countess may remain in this country six months, with the same status as that of all foreign visitors.

Immigration officials had endeavored to have her barred because of her admission of adultery with the Earl of Craven, with whom she eloped to South Africa before her divorce in England.

Not Crime in Africa

This constituted no violation of the laws of the Union of South Africa, District Attorney Buckner notified the court.

"I think that it is settled that the act, to become ground for exclusion, must be a crime under the laws of the place where it was committed" Judge Bondy said in his decision.

A single "D" placed on the application of the countess for entry began the case which was terminated yesterday, after being before federal authorities since February 9.

She placed this letter, signifying "divorced," on the application and, when asked about the divorce admitted that her husband, Earl Cathcart, had divorced her because of the escapade with the Earl of Craven who since has been reunited with his wife.

Vera's Vicissitudes.

After being held 24 hours on the Carmania, the countess was transferred to Ellis Island, where a special immigration board ruled that she could not enter.

Following this decision the Earl of Craven went to Montreal, Que., when a writ for his arrest for deportation was issued. The decision was denounced on the floor of Congress, but the Department of Labor asserted that it was powerless to act otherwise.

Attorneys for the countess then obtained a writ of habeas corpus for a hearing in the federal court, but before this came up for hearing it was postponed because of a permit from the Department of Labor allowing her to enter the country and remain for ten days, under bond of $500.

This permit expired Wednesday night. A special representative of the Department of Labor at the hearing Friday announced that the Government would take no further action.

GENESIS STORY OF ADAM'S FALL TEST OF FAITH

Dutch Reformed Church Synod Demands Acceptance By Minister.

A HERESY TRIAL.

Literal Interpretation Fundamental—True Revealed Word of God.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Mar. 6 (Canadian Press)—The chapter of Genesis referring to Adam and Eve, the Serpent and the Tree of Knowledge must be interpreted literally, says the report of the commission of the General Synod of the Dutch reformed Church which has been trying Rev. J. H. Geelkerken for heresy. The report stipulates that the clergyman to retain his status with synod must sign an undertaking accepting this conclusion, but it is considered highly improbable that Dr. Geelkerken will consent.

A deputation from the synod is holding conferences with him, and until he announces his final decision, judgment in the case cannot be pronounced.

Some time ago Dr. Geelkerken preached a sermon which the synod believed cast doubt on the Genesis story of Eve and the Serpent, he was brought to trial late in January to answer charges of heresy, it being pointed out that his sermon had permitted the deduction that he no longer stood on the fundamental doctrine that the whole Scriptures must be unreservedly accepted as the true revealed word of God.

Twelve professors of theology and fifty elders assembled to judge the case, which for months had stirred nation-wide interest with sharply divided opinions, indicating that within the Reformed Church a modernist trend of ideas had gained a foothold.

MOTORIST KILLED BY STREET CARS

Automobile Caught Between Cars—Driver Thrown Out on Head.

TORONTO, March 6 (Canadian Press).—Caught between two street cars last night, Roderick C. Grant, aged 32, married, was so badly injured that he died in the General Hospital. Death was due to a bad fracture of the skull and broken ribs.

Eye-witnesses of the tragedy say that Grant, driving his motor car, attempted to pass in front of a street car but the wheels of his automobile skidded on the icy road, with the result that the vehicle was thrown across the tracks in front of another street car The impact hurled Grant from the motor car and he alighted on his head.

8,000 Mill Workers in Passaic, N.J., Involved—Relief Stores Open.

TENSION RELAXES.

PASSAIC, N.J., March 6 (Canadian Press).—An announcement of Governor Moore in Jersey City that he would be willing to act as arbitrator between textile strikers and mill owners met with no action on Friday by either side. The day was unmarred by disorders between the police and strikers.

There was evidence that feeling among the strikers against the police was not running so high and that the police were less inclined to break up strikers' gatherings.

Albert Weisbord announced that the third relief store will be opened to-day to supply strikers and their families with fuel and groceries.

Weisbord's assertion that the Paterson Silk Workers would soon go out on a sympathetic strike was denied by Fred Hoelscher, secretary-treasurer of the Association of Silk Workers of Paterson. He called the prediction "bosh," and other silk workers' leaders agreed that there would be no sympathy strike.

Plans One Big Union.

Albert Weisbord, A. B. and LI. B., graduate of two United States Universities, yesterday told of his plans for trying to extend the New Jersey textile strike throughout the east in that industry. He said his ultimate aim is one big union of all labor organizations

Comparatively unknown until a few weeks ago, he has organized the Passaic strike until it involves 8,000 workers. Eventually, he said, he hopes to bring more of the 1,000,000 textile workers of the country into the conflict, for one big union of all trade unions in the country, "an industrial democracy."

Meanwhile, mill operators here and at Clifton were considering a complete shut-down to avoid possible disorders. This would throw out of work an additional 4,000 workers who have remained at the looms.

FARMER FREED FOR KILLING OF THIEF

Verdict of Sef Defence By Coroner's Jury.

WELLAND, Ont., March 6 (Canadian Press).—That Joseph Palmer, prominent Waintfleet, Ont., farmer, shot Oliver Gilson, in self-defence, and after he had been seriously wounded, by being shot by Gilson, was the verdict returned at the inquest into Gilson's death at Wainfleet Friday afternoon Gilson was alleged to have been one of a party of chicken thieves who were attempting to rob Palmer's poultry house when the shooting occurred.

Giving evidence under the protection of the Canada Evidence Act, Edward Smith, who is held on a charge of vagrancy, admitted that he was with Gilson on the night that the latter was killed. They had raided another chicken house before coming to Palmer's. He testified that Gilson had fired twice at Palmer, who was seriously wounded, before the latter returned the fire which resulted in Gilson's death.

The coroner's jury suggested an amendment to the Criminal Code, giving property owners greater rights in defence of their property, and recommended the licensing of all dealers in poultry.

The Gilson shooting was the climax to a series of chicken thefts and petty burglary cases which had occurred in Welland County during the past year. The County Council has petitioned the Provincial Government for more active protection from the Provincial police.

"The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted"

BY S. GERTRUDE DE WENTWORTH-JAMES

SYNOPSIS

John Mannering, candidate for re-election as District Attorney, has declared his intention to prosecute his own son, Bob, for manslaughter, the boy having been in a car which crashed into another, killing a woman. The wife and mother, Eileen, is incensed at her husband. She loves and admires him, but her affection for the boy is even stronger. Jerome Wallace, a former suitor, is a candidate against Mannering and he tells Eileen if he is elected he can help Bob.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued from last week.

Wallace had promised to procure Bob's freedom if he were elected, and John would continue to be as adamant if he won, but crushed, his spirit broken, if he lost. It was only with an effort that Eileen restrained herself from fairly groaning aloud as the problem lay plain before her. Was ever wife and mother torn from a happy and sheltered life to face a more grievous dilemma?

Then suddenly her face filled with relief. There was still a way from her point of view. An easy way could John's stubbornness be overcome and he brought to a reasonable view of the duties and true responsibilities of parenthood. She had once been repulsed, but why repine? Had not persistence turned defeat into victory for many another woman when hope seemed

She shifted her position in the car. It was the slightest sort of movement, but with the change the reverse she had exhibited towards her husband that morning, seemed to fade and a subtle warmth to creep into her manner towards him.

It was not lost upon John. Hardly had she moved before he smikle at her. It was a propitiatory smile, bringing an eagerness to his tired, haggard face which was almost pathetic.

"You must be dreadfully tired, dear," he said gently. "You never slept a wink last night."

"No, nor did you either, John," she agreed sympathetically.

He reached own and procured a cushion.

"Let me put this behind your back, Eileen. It will make you more comfortable."

She allowed him to adjust in and sank ack upon it with a pleased sigh.

"That is better, thank you, John." Then, after a moment's hesitation, "I could almost say I am perfectly comfortable were it not for Bob."

"I know, dear, it is hard, awfully hard for you to bear."

"But think of Bob, John," she cried, with a feeling which she was st pains to promptly suppress. "How can I be happy with him in such a place, amongst such surroundings?"

There was tenderness and anxiety in his face as he regarded her with never a word.

"He's so pale, John. You must have noticed that," she went on. "It's no wonder shut up in that horrible place."

"It is a hard experience for the boy," he agreed, with a sigh.

"Hard? It's positively fearful, John," she shivered. "What can he do with himself but sit there and think and think? To remain there day after day amidst such depressing surroundings is bound to have a bad effect upon him. It cannot help but leave its mark upon him in some way, and John, might it not—is there not real danger that it will—affect his mind?"

"No," he said, with the assurance born of exact knowledge. "Thousands of men pass years—for that matter, many are confined for life—without the slightest deterioration of their mental faculties."

"But Bob is different," she persisted, promptly shifting her ground. "He has been carefully reared he is used to all the luxuries of life. Tnink of the hardship it must be to him to adjust himself to the conditions in such a place?"

"I am sure the food served is detestable."

"It is plain fare, but thoroughly wholesome, Eileen, you can rest assured of that."

"But are you sure that it agrees with him, John? Remember, dear, I've always had to be extremely watchful of his diet."

He stared ahead with anxious and unseeing eyes as if lost in thought.

"Perhaps he is thinner," he mused, as if talking to himself, and then to her. "Did you think he was thinner did he seem thinner to you, Eileen?"

Impulsively she recahed forth to touch his hand, her eyes alight with hope.

"John, you do care—you do care deeply, don't you?"

"How can you doubt it, Eileen?" he groaned, giving way to his feelings before her kindness. "God knows it sometimes feels to me as if it must break my heart."

"Not your heart, dear, not your heart, if you play fair with Bob—with me."

He gazed at her, anguish plain in his face, as if he wished to be certain of her meaning.

"Play fair with Bob, with you, Eileen?"

"I mean exactly that," she said, her soul in her eyes. "When are you going to use your ability, your professional skill—yes, your office—every bit of influence you can bring to bear, anything, to get you son out of that awful jail?"

"Poor little sweetheart, that great big mother's heart of yours makes you forget. You would be the last to ask me to make use of my official influence to ——"

"Don't mistake me, John. Why mince matters. I'd have you use anything and honor you for doing anything to help Bob. How much longer are you going to keep this sort of thing up?"

He took a deep breath and when he spoke it was quietly, but with intense resolution.

"Just so long as I am District Attorney, just so long as I am in office, Eileen, I must do my duty as I see it." Then, as if to temper his attitude, he stretched forth his hand to touch hers. "Can't you understand, darling? Surely you must realize my position?" he pleaded.

But without a word in response she drew back in her corner of the car and, withdrawing her hand, allowed his to fall unheeded upon the cushion. Again she had tried to bring her husband to her way of thinking without success. Never a thought for herself had she had, only for Bob, their son. Yet John, her husband, had refused her. With bitterness there came a remembrance of Wallace's words: "Who could help you more than your husband? Apparently, anybody. At least he, a man to whom she had hardly given a thought in twenty years, was afflicted by no such scruples as those which bound her husband.

If Eileen had been reserved in her attitude towards her husband before, she was cold now. At the door of her home she allowed John to drive away with never a word. Straight for her own room she made, refusing lunch, nor did she appear to greet her husband at dinner. A prey to disappointment, yes but more and more giving thought to Wallace's pledge of assistance. In the face of her husband's unbending purpose, in despair of being able to help Bob in any other way, Wallace s offer seemed her final hope.

And yet such was Eileen's nature, that loyalty could not be forgotten nor those long years of mutual affection and common aims and aspirations discarded, howsoever vital the object, without a struggle. Alone in her room, hours passed, leaving her in a turmoil of doubt. Without a storm arose as the darkness fell. In her mood Eileen found a sorry comfort standing by a window and gazing forth into the gloom while the wind howled about the eaves of the house and the rain shelled against the pains before her like the spendthrift of some mighty sea.

Suddenly a flash of lightning turned the universe a weird blue and the thunder reverberated overhead as if a monstrous truck was passing over the arched bridge of the firmament. Eileen leaped back, but only to step forward and, gluing her eyes to a pane, stare forth into the night at some object without which had claimed her attention.

Eileen threw open the window before her.

"Marjorie, she called, "is that you?

"Come out of the rain, child come in here this minute, insisted Eileen, turning and hastening from the room.

Hardly a moment elapsed before she was back, bringing Marjorie Patterson, rain drenched and chilled.

"Come right over here by the fireplace, dear. I ll have these logs going in an instant. Now give me that wet coat so that I can get rid of it for you. Whatever possessed you to expose yourself in this way on such a night? Do you want to catch yourself your death of cold?"

In spite of the flames which were leaping up from the logs, Marjorie shivered, and when she spoke it was with chattering teeth.

"Bob and I h-h-had a tryst there at the w-w-wall every night."

Very forlorn and pitiful did the girl lookas she crouched there. If she were Diane, huntress of men, her arrows were badly blunted at the moment. Eileen was filled with tenderness as she regarded her.

"You met there each night?"

Marjorie nodded vigorously and there was a sorry pride in her broken tones.

"Always, for m-months, he never forgot. All I had to do was to oo-hoo and Bob would c-come."

"Sweet, sweet, how sweet," sighed Eileen in the midst of her own woes, finding comfort in the other's affection for her son.

Again a shiver shook Marjorie, but, despite her chattering teeth, she gazed sentimentally into the flames and went on.

"Every n-night—at n-nine—we m-met. It was our hour—j-just l-like in a beautiful story I once read. There were lovers in it—l-lovely l-lovers."

"You darlings," whispered Eileen as if to herself.

"They had troubles, too. B-but they were always faithful—f-faithful unto death," continued Marjorie dreamily, only to be shaken suddenly by a great sob. "E-even if Bob c-can't keep tryst with me now I can come—I shall always c-come—until I die."

In a great wave of tenderness Eileen drew the girl towards her, but as her fingers touched the other's damp shoulders her mother's heart was awakened and she drew back.

"Why, darling, you are all wet, drenched to the skin, I'm afraid."

"I don't care." In Marjorie's eyes burned the fire which uplifts martyrs. "It d-doesn't make a bit of difference so long as I keep f-faith."

"I understand, dear. I realize how you feel, but you must give some thought to your health. It is not necessary that you risk your life like that."

Marjorie looked up and there was surprise and even wonder in her big eyes.

"But if you l-love a person, if you really love them, you don't care what sacrifice you m-make for them, d-do you?"

Eileen's eyes rested upon the girl, but in an instant there was a far-away look in them as if she had completely forgotten Marjorie's presence in the verity of her words. There was anguish, doubt and hesitation in her face and she closed her eyes as if under the stress of intense feeling. But when she opened them there was the certainty of one who has reached a decision and sees her way clear before her, in them, as well as resolution—the great resolution of a mother determined to go to any lengths for the sake of her child.

"You are right," she said, and there could be no doubt but that she was speaking to herself. "If you love a person, you do not care what sacrifices you make for his sake."

CHAPTER IX

There was a festive air about the Wallace apartment and many evidences that Jerome Wallace was entertaining. A simple affair, quite informal. From the table spread before the fireplace Wallace and his guests had dined well, even sumptuously.

Now, in the easy comfort of his lounging robes, Wallace lay back in his chair and considered the world with that contentment which only a well lined stomach can give. Yet the very interesting bit of the world upon which his smiling gaze rested was of a sort which sometimes plays havoc with conscience. It was a woman. A sloe-eyed woman, rouged of cheek, penciled of eye, and with a luxuriant charm of figure, but thinly veiled by the gown she wore. A student of mankind, Wallace evidently investigating every strata of society at first hand to fit himself for the office of District Attorney.

However that may be, he did not find his studies unduly onerous, for it was a pleased smile he gave her, with something even proprietary in it. A persuasive smile, too, for as if drawn by its power Greta hitched her chair closer to his and, thrusting her arm about his neck, returned this smile with interest. To be more exact, with usury, because it was a provocative, languishing look which she gave him and one with a boldness which took no more account of another guests's presence than if he had been a piece of furniture.

Alas, true genius is often slighted in a careless world. He so cavalierly disregarded was none other than that master mind of politics, Slick Jennings. But, no matter, a good man cannot be downed, and this fellow Jennings was a man of parts. Behold him now in social guise, his hat tilted a bit more rakishly, his cigar slanted at a greater angle and a jovial smile playing over his ruddy, fat face. Ah, who could resist his winning ways as absorbed in his own affairs he was quite oblivious to the fact that he was regarded much in the light of a footstool in a harem.

See, even as might some alchemist gaze upon a precious elixir, he raised a bottle and viewed its ruddy contents with loving eyes. With care he drew from it, adding a dash of this, a drop of that, with the skill of practice. Into the shaker it went, and as he deftly agitated it his happy countenance brought memories of mirrors, of shining mahogany, glistening glasses and polished foot rails. Shaken sufficiently, he carefully divided the contents into three thin glasses, and one he raised to view it, as might some artist who had completed a canvas and knew it to be good.

Now he turned and, approaching Greta, graciously presented the glass as if she were a goddess and he Hebe, grown fat and masculine.

"There's a cocktail that will put whiskers on you," said Slick proudly.

It was plain that Greta had no desire for whiskers. She received the glass coldly, but, deigning to taste it, made a terrible face.

"Bah! Who ever told you you could make a cocktail? What are you trying to do—poison me?" she spluttered.

Filled with righteous indignation, Slick fastened a reproving eye upon Greta. Here was but a poor return for artistic effort.

"That's good stuff," he protested. "I mixed it right, and it's smoother than eel skin an' mellerer than an apple. I bought that stuff myself."

"You mixed it," retorted Greta icily. "I'll say you did, and it tasted worse than any rotten apples to me. And say, listen, who ever told you you were any judge of whisky was cuckoo."

"The h—ll you say," he began.

But she broke in coolly.

"Listen, Slick. Can that rough stuff; back to the gas house for you. If you want to get anything off your chest get them to connect you up with the mains. I'm not interested." Then she yawned.

"Say," he thundered, indicating Greta with a scornful finger, "if by any chance you do happen to get in as District Attorney here's a chapter of your life that will have to be cut out."

With blazing eyes Greta leaped for him and no doubt would have added bodily injury to insult so far as Slick was concerned had it not been for the entrance of the Japanese servant, who, moving to Wallace's side, leaned down and whispered a message in his ear.

Ever suspicious, Greta forgot her feud with Slick to turn upon Wallace, fairly brimming with curiosity.

"What's the big idea, sweetheart—what's going on?" she demanded eagerly.

But Wallace seemedinstantly another man. With that inscrutable smile upon his face he sat there heedless of Greta, but thinking, thinking deeply.

"I thought she would come, I thought that would bring her," he mused softly, and there was a note of exultation in his tones.

Low as was his voice, his words did not escape Greta's keen ears. Ablaze with jealousy, she was upon him in a flash, her manner angry and insistent.

"She—who is she?"

With a gesture of indifference Wallace waved her aside and arose to his feet. "Clear that table," he told the Japanese, and, indicating Slick's laboratory, "get those bottles out of here."

"Listen. What's the big idea?" began Greta indignantly.

"Take her out of here, Slick," ordered Wallace coolly.

Slick regarded the wrathful Greta much as if he had been instructed to remove an irritated wildcat. Despite her insults, he seemed loath to lay hands upon her.

"Where?" he inquired tentatively.

"Anywhere, so long as you get her out of here. The next room will do."

Slick chewed vigorously upon his cigar, even as a cow might ruminate upon its cud. Then he ventured a polite bow and a courteous gesture towards the next room.

Greta never budged.

"Come on, kid; let's you an' me beat it," he said, essaying the mien and tone of a gentleman inviting a lady upon an excursion of pleasure.

"Don't kid me, you fat clam!"

Diplomatically speaking, Slick was at the end of his tether, so figuratively he spat upon his hands.

"Hey, you get the ——" he had begun in loud tones, when Wallace hastily interrupted.

"It's only Mrs. Mannering," he whispered.

Calmed by this concession, Greta followed Slick into the next room, and, the Japanese servant having by this time cleared away all the evidences of the festivities, Wallace indicated that Eileen was to be admitted.

A moment later she appeared in the doorway, but only to pause upon the threshold and to peer irresolutely about, her face unutterably anxious and weary.

As if filled with surprise at her coming, Wallace leaped to his feet and hastened towards her with outstretched hand.

"Why, Eileen, I am honored indeed."

But, obsessed by the single thought which had brought her, she never heeded his hand and, careless of his greeting, plunged almost breathlessly into the business which had brought her.

"This morning, Mr. Wallace, you told me that if you were elected District Attorney you would see that my son was freed. Did you mean it?"

Again Wallace seemed filled with surprise.

She shook her head impatiently.

"You said that—didn't you?"

He hesitated, appearing to consider his words well before he uttered them, but when he spoke it was with emphasis.

"Of course, I said it, and I meant it, too, Eileen."

She took a deep breath, as from relief.

"What could be done, then, to cause my husband to lose the election?" she demanded bluntly.

From Wallace's face he seemed to disbelieve his own ears. He was amazed, almost shocked, at the idea. But, managing to recover himself with marvelous speed, his manner grew even careless.

"If Mannering were to compromise himself, if he were to get mixed up in some sort of scandal ——"

"That is impossible," she interrupted quickly.

He shrugged his shoulders, shot a quick calculating glance at her and then smiled, as if what he were about to suggest was equally absurd.

"Well, in politics a man's wife can get him into lots of hot water. The next best thing would be for you to do it, Eileen."

"I!" she cried, surprised indignation written in every line of her face.

"Oh, I know it's ridiculous," chuckled Wallace, much amused even at the thought. "I had no idea you would want to go through with it."

"But I do," she burst forth only to swiftly change her mind. "No, no I couldn't do it," she groaned.

PRESENTATION TO CLUB SECRETARY

Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Brown Receive Gifts at Bethany.

BETHANY, March 6.—On Monday evening about one hunded of the Athletic Association boys, and including their friends, met in the Town Hall, to bid farewell to their secretary, P. C. Brown, and his wife, upon the eve of their departure for their new field of labor at Grafton. Music, games and a social good time was enjoyed, under the management of Messrs. Will Hanna and R. W. Price. Then Mr. and Mrs. Brown were called to the platform where the following address was read:

Mr. and Mrs. Perry C. Brown:

On this, the eve of your departure to a new field of labor, we as members of the Bethany Athletic Association and friends desire to express to you our appreciation of your services as secretary of this Association but more especially do we wish to assure you of our high esteem for you as a good sport, a friend and comrade.

Your unfailing courtesy and constant good humor have made for you a warm place in our hearts and though you go to a new locality, make new friends, and new interests enter into your life, yet may our cordial relationship ever be cherished in our memories.

As a token of our esteem and a memento of the happy years spent together we ask you to accept this watch and to you Mrs. Brown these butter spreaders. As you look upon these may they recall to mind the happy moments of your life in Bethany, and instil kind thoughts of those you leave behind.

We wish you success in your new sphere and may prosperity, happiness and health attend you and Mrs. Brown throughout the coming year.

Signed on behalf of the Bethany Athletic Association, Walter Price, president; J. J. Hamilton, treasurer.

The Junior club, the Wildcats, also made a presentation to Mr. Brown who has been manager and friend. The following address was read by the secretary:

Mr. P. C. Brown:

On this, the eve of your departure from among us, and also the severing of the ties that has bound you to us through these years, as manger of the Wildcats, we cannot let the opportunity pass without expressing our appreciation for services rendered our club. Both in baseball and in hockey you have been an example to us of what a true sport, a true friend, and a real pal means and we also express our regret that you must go, but in going we know what is our loss here will be somebody else's gain.

As a small token of esteem and regard in which we hold you we ask you to accept this set of military brushes and when you look upon them and use them our last wish is that you will occasionally think of the "Wildcats" of Bethany.

We wish you every success in your new field of labor and may health and happiness attend you both.

Signed on behalf of the Wildcats, Kenneth Thorndyke, captain; Vincent Jackson, secretary.

Mr. Brown made a suitable reply to both addresses on behalf of himself and Mrs. Brown. After the presentation refreshments were served by the committee in charge and the gathering broke up about eleven o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown left for Grafton on Tuesday morning and were accompanied by Mr. A. W. Brown, who is helping them to settle in their new home.

Mr. A. H. Monk and family have moved into the house left vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Brown.

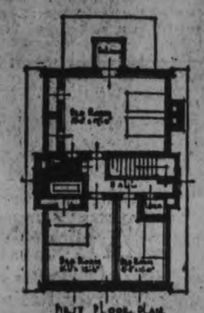
Ground Floor Plan



First Floor Plan

The illustrations show a compact and, at the same time, thoughtfully planned house,—the living room and dining room well lighted and with floor and wall space quite sufficient for furniture and pictures for rooms of such sizes. Kitchen with its service entrances to the dining room and basement side entrances well arranged—a very important factor. The bedrooms each entered directly from the hall and provided with cupboard accommodation. The direct connection between the main bed room and bath room as well as from the hall should be noted.

No waste hall space—just floor area suffiient for service to the various rooms. The vestibule is tiled with 6 in. Dutch tile and the bathroom dado and floors of same material in delft blue and white. Birch floors are laid throughout, those in the ground floor rooms being stained walnut color. Walls of rooms and halls throughout are finished in sand stucco for water color finish, the plastering being applied direct to composition board plaster base, instead of the ordinary wood lath.

The mantels, doors and trim, of simple Colonial design are of pine for paint finish. Heating is with hot water, the radiators being placed under the windows, and plumbing with all standard fixtures, built in. Storage for house use, as well as a properly fitted up laundry, is provided in the basement, together with coal storage and boiler room.

The exterior shows a homelike, yet dignified design—the entrance sufficiently marked with a hooded doorway, the door itself being partly glazed and with simple panelling.

The walls—finished with clap-boarding over composition board—have been painted a deep cream, and the wood shutters in Lincoln green. The windows throughout are casement, the sash being subdivided into small lights—giving a proper scale to the general design. Roofing material is slate surface multi-colored shingles, giving a very pleasing help to the general color scheme.

This house could be built on a lot with fifty feet frontage, with a depth of not less than one hundred and ten feet more ground than this, of course, would add very much to the possibilities for a well planned garden, with tennis court, flower and truck gardens and drying area and garage yard.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address Mr. Gratton D. Thompson, 65 McGill College Avenue, Montreal, Que. Copyright, 1926, MacLean Building Reports Limited.

Never Sags Because It Cannot

A BEDSPRING is restful only so long as it retains its smooth resiliency. Once the fabric stretches, sags and bags, comfort goes. A WAY Sagless Spring never sags. It cannot. It has exclusive, patented features that give it extraordinary strength and permanent resiliency. Heavy strain and long usage are provided for in its special construction.

That is why the WAY Sagless Spring can be guaranteed for 25 years against stretching, sagging or breaking. This guarantee—assuring a life-time of bed comfort—makes the "WAY" the most economical bedspring obtainable.

It is a noiseless, sanitary, healthful spring. Easy on the bedding, too, for there are no open hooks or sharp corners to tear it. The uniform fabric does not roll the occupants to the centre of the bed. The patented, six-strand side bands are assurance against sagging toward the edges. A WAY Sagless Spring is always comfortable, always restful.

Three Things Determine Whether the Price You Pay for Your Automobile is High or Low—

Check Value for Value

Check the value in the car you buy on the basis of the advertised f.o.b. price. Chevrolet quality, power, appearance, easy riding, dependability and economy provide the reasons why over 2,000,000 people have bought Chevrolet cars.

Investigate the Cash Delivered Price

The purchaser of any automobile pays for freight, tax and handling charges. Chevrolet's low delivered price includes these charges—there is no padding.

Check Time Financing Charges

The financing charges when buying a Chevrolet on time are the lowest in the world. And these minimum charges include financing and fire and theft insurance. No other charges—no side notes to be signed.

Because of Chevrolet's low cash delivered price and the lowest of financing charges, you obtain the greatest value at the lowest cost, whether you pay cash or buy your CHEVROLET on the GMAC Time Payment Plan.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago where the theater is. The stub is traced to THOMAS FOGARTY, a political boss, who says he gave it to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Chicago and later is attacked by two men but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy accuses her of marrying for money.

Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes. They identify him by his police picture as IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness kindles hatred in her and she breaks their engagement.

LIEUTENANT O'DAY, a police friend of Jimmy's, invites the latter to his house. There he tells him that he knew Henry Rand as a boy, in the town of Durbin, New York. Henry Rand, he said, had had a boyhood love affair which resulted in his elopement with a girl named MARIE REAL.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII.

"Yes," repeated O'Day, "there was hell to pay when Harry and Marie came back." He fell silent, chewing on the end of his cigar.

"Go on." Jimmy had turned quite pale. He lit another cigaret and puffed at it nervously.

"The whole town was up in the air," resumed O'Day. "I can still see them now, the way everybody buzzed about the affair and hung around to see what had happened. They were mighty curious to know whether the kids had got married. Whether they had or hadn't, it was something to talk about."

"And had they?"

"Of course not. They had tried to. Marie could lie about her age an' get away with it, but Harry Rand looked too much like the kid he was.

"They held the kids for a while at the town lockup, waitin' for their parents to come after them. When Thaddeus Rand and old Angelo Real get there, Angelo listens for a minute to their story an' then he turns to Thaddeus and demands that Harry marry Marie.

"'My girl will have a bad name,' he says. 'There's nothin' else to do.'

"Thaddeus Rand doesn't say a word. He just looks at Angelo, his face white as a sheet. Finally he says, 'I thought that's what you were after,' an' turns to Harry. 'You come home with me,' he says.

"Neither of 'em—Thaddeus or Angelo—understood. The kids hadn't done anything wrong. They were just nuts about each other, so they made up their minds to defy their parents an' get married. They couldn't, an' that's all there was to it.

"But all Angelo could think of was that his daughter had run away with this boy an' they'd been gone for a day an' a half. So in his ignorant way he thought the only way to save his daughter from bein' the laughin' stock of the town was for her to marry Harry Rand.

'An' Thaddeus—he thought it was just a scheme of old Angelo's to marry into the Rand family. That was proud old Thaddeus all over.

"He marches Harry home to the store, still silent an' white-faced. When he gets him there he goes over an' picks up a shinny stick—he used to sell 'em—an' he says to Harry, 'I told you not to have anything more to do with this girl.'

"Harry doesn't say a word. He just stands there. Then Thaddeus says, 'What happened.'

"'Nothin,' says Harry.

"'You're lyin,' says Thaddeus. 'What happened?'

"'Nothin,' says Harry, an' my brother, who saw it all from a corner of the drug store where he was hidin,' says he looked the old man right in the eye. Real proud, you understand.

"Well, Thaddeus stood there for a while, firin' questions at your father, an' then he accused him of bein' a disgrace to the name of Rand. He went crazy mad, because Harry wouldn't say he was sorry or anything, an' he swung that shinny stick he was holdin' an' gave Harry the most unmerciful beatin' a boy ever had.

"Harry just stood there lookin' at him. He didn't say a word, an' he didn't try to get out of the way. He just stood there an' took it."

"God!" Jimmy breathed.

"It was terrible, Rand. Finally Harry, just fell to the floor, an' my brother, sick at the stomach at the awful sight, ran out an' grabbed the stick out of Thaddeus Rand's hand.

"Thaddeus takes a look at your father lyin' there on the floor an' he says to him, 'Get out of my house an' don't come back.' Then he walked out of the back of the store.

"My brother had to pick Harry up. He had fainted. An' for several days after that he couldn't walk. The blow that had knocked him to the floor was a crack on the knee that was terrible. It was enough to cripple him for life."

"I know," said Jimmy. "My father's left leg was stiff. He limped when he walked. But he never did tell us how he got it."

"Well, it must have been that awful beatin.' My brother took him home to our house, where we had the doctor for him. He was with us for four days, with never a word from his father. Then he left town, after thankin' my mother, an' not a one of us ever saw him again."

O'Day sighed heavily. "It was a rotten shame," he growled. "But nobody could blame Harry. The lad had spirit. He couldn't go back after what Thaddeus had said. The old man simply didn't understand him."

"And Angelo Real? What did he do?"

"Oh, Angelo was all right. He had one of these hot tempers that flared up quick an' died down just as sudden. He forgave Marie right away. He even went around to tell Thaddeus that he didn't mean what he had said about the kids marryin'. Thaddeus didn't speak to him."

"And my grandfather—what became of him?"

"Well, now comes the strange part of the story. I think at last he came to realize what he had done an' he was sorry for it, although he'd never admit it to a soul.

"The whole town turned against him. You see everybody was in sympathy with the son. He hung around his store, pale an' silent. Everybody knew he was waitin' for Harry to come back, or maybe for a letter from him. But none ever came to the postoffice. The postmaster had his eyes open—you can be sure of that.

"Thaddeus must have remained in Durbin for another six months. Finally it got too much for him. He could feel the town's hostility on every side of him. People refused to come to his store. They wouldn't speak to him when they saw him on the street. If you've ever lived in a small town, Rand you'll know what a terrible thing it is to be boycotted like that.

"Finally he found a man who was willin' to buy his drug store. He opened up a little to him an' told him what a fool he had been—that he had learned a great lesson. He said he was convinced that his unreasonin' anger had lost his son to him forever. 'Everybody s against me, he says, 'an' I don't blame them. I'm goin' away where nobody knows me. I'm not fit to bear the name of Rand any more.

"You see, remorse finally got him. As soon as he had sold his business he left town. But first he went around to call on old Angelo Real.

"'I m sorry,' he says to Angelo, 'for what I said to you. I hope you'll forgive me.'

"So Angelo shook hands with him. Thaddeus Rand left town that night an,' just like your father, he dropped completely out of sight, as far as the folks in Durbin were concerned."

"And that's all?" Jimmy's face was still very white.

"That's all, lad. Nobody ever heard a word from either one of them. Your father was proud, too."

"Yes, he was . . . poor dad." Jimmy stood up. "And Marie Real? What became of her?"

"Oh, Marie. You see, old Angelo had ambitions for her to become an opera singer. He spent money on her voice, an' she did have a pretty good one. She graduated from high school an' then she went away to take vocal lessons somewhere. I think she did go on the stage, or become a concert singer or something. Nobody got to know very much about it, because Angelo moved away shortly after she graduated from high school."

Jimmy glanced at his watch. "Good Lord, I didn't know it was so late. It's after eleven. We've been talking here for three hours. I'm sorry, keeping you like this."

"Why? You know I'm a night owl anyway."

"Well, thank you. You've told me more about my father than I knew myself. I think I can understand why he was always silent about his boyhood days. . . . The recollection of them must have been bitter."

"Good night, lad."

Jimmy stepped out of O'Day's house and into a cold, wind-driven rain. He had only a short time to wait for a street car, which carried him to a stop just two blocks from his rooming house.

Twice on the walk home from the car he stopped nervously and looked back. He could have sworn that he had heard someone following him. He had the same senastion of being watched that he had experienced the night he was attacked on the very corner he was now passing.

He listened, but all he heard was the howling of the wind. The thought of the anonymous warnings he had received again flashed through his mind. There was the last one, especially, that had threatened his life unless he left town within three days. . .

But as he mounted the steps of the porch he put it all down to his imagination. He went up the stairs to his room. A light was burning he could see it shining from the crack under the door, and he thought it strange.

He opened the door. There, sitting very comfortably in the easiest chair, his legs draped over the arm, was Barry Colvin.

Jimmy started, then he recognized him. "Barry, you gave me a fright."

Barry laughed. "Your nerves are getting bad, Jim. I've been here all evening. Had a heck of a time persuading your landlady to let me in. Finally had to show her one of your letters. She seemed pretty suspicious."

"What's on your mind, Barry? Why did you come? Anything wrong at home?"

"News from the front, Jim." Then his tone getting more serious, "here's something that's just come to light. It belonged to your father."

He fumbled in his pocket. "Have you ever seen it before, Jim?"

Still Enjoying Life at 84

Thanks To That Wonderful Remedy

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. F. H. Miller, 1843-11th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C., writes:—"Five years ago my husband suffered terribly with severe attacks of palpitation of the heart and smothering spells, and two doctors stated that he could not possibly live six months.

A friend recommended Milburn's H. and N. Pills, with the result that my husband is still enjoying life at the age of 84 years.

He has improved so wonderfully that he can now climb the stairs without having those awful pains in his heart."

KING'S WHARF NEWS

KING'S WHARF, March 5.—Mr. Geo. Kennedy of Dunsford was through here and bought a number of fat cattle, which he shipped to Toronto on Monday. Mr. Harold McConnell of Omemee also bought a number of stockers and feeders here.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel O'Neill and son, Fergus, left on Thursday for their new home in Lindsay, where they intend to reside in future. Mr. O'Neill held a very successful sale last week of his farm stock and implements and sold his farm to Mr. Thos. Sullivan. Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill have been life-long residents of this place.

The many friends here of Mrs. T. Herlihey will regret to learn of her accident in Peterboro, where she fell down stairs and sustained very serious injuries. Mrs. Herlihey was a life-long resident of this locality and moved to Peterboro the Saturday previous to her accident. She is at present in a very serious condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Miss Gertrude O'Neill spent the week-end the guest of friends in Peterboro.

Mrs. Gordon Rusk of Omemee is at present spending a few days in this locality.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Begley, on Thursday, a baby girl.

The many friends of Mr. Richard Murtha will regret to learn he is seriously ill in the Ross Memorial Hospital in Lindsay.

Mrs. Sheehan of Douro has returned home after spending some weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Dennis Begley.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herlihey spent the week-end as guests of friends in Ennismore.

Climaxing 18 Years of Fine Motor Car Building

John N. Willys

Presents his Latest and Greatest Creation

the "new 70" WILLYS-KNIGHT 6

The New Willys-Knight "70" is a master-work of engineering genius.

To the world renowned advantages of the Knight sleeve-valve engine—(smoothness, long-life, simplicity, economy)—have been added revolutionary achievements in six cylinder engineering. The result is the New Willys-Knight "70"—a car that in speed, power and pick-up outperforms anything that was ever built of its size or type or class.

And as a crowning achievement this new creation is available to a welcoming public at the price of the ordinary poppet-valve six.

World-Wide Recognition of Superiority

Makers of the finest, fastest and costliest cars of Europe have long since endorsed the outstanding superiority of the Knight sleeve-valve engine. A study of the equipages of Royalty, and of the winning racing cars of Europe demonstrates this beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Unparalleled Efficiency

The New Willys-Knight "70" has developed the Knight sleeve-valve engine to a point heretofore unknown. It has attained a degree of efficiency impossible in a poppet-valve motor. Efficiency attainable in none but the Knight type of motor—the only type of engine that actually improves with use. No carbon to remove. No valves to grind. Better and smoother at 50,000 miles than at the beginning. And, bear in mind that the engineering advancements achieved in the New Willys-Knight "70" are by no means confined to its marvelous motor.

A Remarkably Beautiful Body

Its coachwork has never before been duplicated for style and smartness in any automobile of this type. Long, stream-line effect with moderate actual length. The interior has been designed with such scientific exactness that while compact to the last degree, it is positively alone in its extra roominess and comfort.

A Triumph in Chassis Construction

We believe the chassis of the Willys-Knight "70" to be the strongest and most perfectly balanced understructure ever built into an automobile of this class. Its low centre of gravity provides maximum road stability. At all speeds there is a complete absence of all road shocks. As a result of its advanced engineering there is absolutely no wandering, no shimmying, no wheel-fight. Eight Timken roller bearings insure exceptionally easy steering.

All the Newest Features

The most recent engineering developments making for comfort and convenience are incorporated in the New "70". A special feature provides instant starting in zero temperatures. Such items as four wheel brakes, air purifier, gasoline filter, thermostat, heater are of course included as standard equipment.

See the New "70" Willys-Knight Six, the model "66" Willys-Knight Six and the Overland Six Cylinder and Four Cylinder models. These are the greatest cars and the greatest values Willys-Overland have ever produced.

SUGGESTIONS FOR

market. As an instance of progress in hog grading has been established in the past five years with the result that there will soon be little distance between the Danish and Canadian bacon article. Canadian Cheddar cheese is at the top of the British market and while Canadian butter has never enjoyed pre-eminence it has risen to a much higher level than it ocupied a few years ago. It is the same courage and love of grumbling which was the mainstay of the pioneers that is winning for present day Canadians, a distinguished place in the industrial field, said the speaker.

Mr. Archibald declared that Peterboro County was favored by having in Mr. Peck a good friend of agriculture. He declared that one of the greatest needs in the interests of the Canadian farmer was co-operation in the marketing of p. duce.

"Farmers who have been individualistic in the working of their land, and the harvesting of the crop, find it difficult to continue financially but it is the only means by which the supply may adequately meet the demand."

Government development schemes, he said, would go far to make life on the farm more worth living. It is the creation of a world market which shows the true value of a product, and a healthy export trade is an index of that market. The mere fact that other countries have found less expensive production methods is an indication that there is a field for further research.

New Problems Develop.

"Every time there is a new phase of industry developed," he said, "there crop up new problems which must be solved. At first the western wheat growers were not afflicted with rust. The wheat ranches were widely separated. But as wheat growing became more intensive rusts and other plagues grew in number and virulence. The same applies to the fruit growing industry. There is no tariff wall high enough to keep a wheat rust spore confined to a United States wheat farm. When production begins on a greatly increased basis the problem of dealing with deterients comes up automatically."

Mr. Archibald claimed that the experimental department was doing an extensive work in dealing with those problems. He said that there was close co-operation between all the branches and that no state in the Union to the south has greater educational facilities along agricultural lines than has the province of Ontario. There are experimental farms scattered all over the Dominion—all of which are centralized and administered at Ottawa. There are 25 branch farms and 10 branch laboratories, all of which are engaged in the work of reducing the great annual loss from plant and animal diseases. They are also endeavoring to adapt productions to the localities and to this end have established numerous illustrating stations.

Mr. Archibald stressed the fact that the Department of Agriculture was allowed but a small portion of the budget in comparison with the benefits which the country derived from the industry as a result of its work. This was strikingly shown when he said that the department costs were but 2 per cent of the budget while agriculture constituted one third of the total national wealth. The cost per capita for experimental farm work was 15 cents per year.

On the other hand he said, Marquis wheat, a development of the experimental farm is stated to possess an earning power over its nearest competitor of $10,000,000, and the three nearest competitors were all created by the experimental farm for use in Western territory. Proper methods of summer fallow in order to conserve moisture and kill weeds have also been the subject of much study with regard to peculiar soil and climatic conditions.

In horticultural work great strides have been made in the development of new varieties of small fruits, while in one orchard of the farm 3,500 new varieties of apples have been produced. All of these endeavors, stated the speaker, were calculated to make the life of every farmer just a little more worth while and helping Canada to move farther up the plane toward export trade predominance. Many of the farmers, he said, were still cold and slow in their adoption of the ideas circulated through the medium of the experimental farm, but he believed that in time this lassitude would be overcome.

Considering the function of autumn exhibitions, the speaker declared that the small Fair merited support and should be fostered, as it was a potential feeder for the big Fair. He stated that the Peterboro show had made tremendous strides, but suggested that much could still be done to improve conditions. It was at this point that he made the suggestions regarding the change of dates to permit of the smaller Fairs being held first, and a new basis for classification. He intimated that the changes could not be introduced rapidly, but left them as thoughts to be considered at future meetings. He stated that there were few provisions made for grade cattle, but as a matter of fact the grade cow population probably outnumbered the thoroughbred stock, and if it was representative of the community there should be greater space allowed for entries in that class. The bacon hog shares equally with the lard variety, but as a matter of fact the former is commercially much more important. "If we are going to trim Denmark we must develop the bacon hog and see that it is encouraged by a re-adjustment of prize list classification.

"No bovine beast should be allowed on the grounds which has not passed a tubercular test. If this measure is adopted all the exhibitors are protected and you are setting a standard. The tendency must always be upward. The advanced registry of bulls is a great step in the right direction. There should be a closer linking with school fairs and poultry shows and all other like institutions."

J. J. Duffus.

Mr. Duffus, president of the Provincial Plowmen's Association, opened his remarks with a glowing encomium for the Peterboro hockey team. His only regret was that he could not have attended the game, he said. He was grateful to the County Council on behalf of the plowmen for the spontaneous generosity with which they and the citizens of Peterboro had given their support. He congratulated the Fair Board on the progress during the past few years. He was of the opinion that the most valuable work had been done in unifying the rural and urban sections.

"Co-operation will put anything over," he said, "and pulling together for the common good is the only way that we can make Canada the land of our vision."

Mr. Duffus then presented an account of the activities of the association which he represented. Fifteen years ago, he stated, any plowing meets held were under the control of the Agricultural Society or the work was performed by means of county or township matches. Prior to that time plowing had become a lost art, but under proper supervision a great impetus was given to the proper preparation of the soil.

"Plowing alone will not give good crops," he said, "but it is the foundation on which a good crop grows."

The Ontario Association was formed at Richmond Hill; at the first meet there was one tractor and 27 teams. Three years ago there were 187 entries; two years ago, 193, while last year that number was increased to 268, and the attendance was 60,000. J. Lockie Wilson, he said, predicted an attendance of 100,000 at the Welland match this year.

"Every agency giving a greater production to the soil is increasing the general wealth of the country," said Mr. Duffus. "Wherever a good ploughman is seen, there is a good farmer, and usually a man who is a highly respected and influential citizen."

"The plough has played an important part in the development of civilization. As long as men eat they must grow grain, and as long as they grow grain they must have plows. Both the Exhibition and the Plowmen's Association are working toward a similar end, the advancement of agriculture. When we once put our hand to the plow we should never turn back, and it remains solely with ourselves as to how the field will look when the last furrow is turned."

Thomas McIndoo, who proposed the toast to the legislative bodies, presented a brief sketch of the progress which had been made since Confederation. "The hopes and aspirations of Canadian founders were not dashed to the ground," he stated. "Since that time sons of Canada have blazed trails in other lands, and the products of Canadian field and forest have touched many alien shores. As the representatives of the various constituencies take their seats we would have them remember that the people love their province and their Dominion. They are loyal to Britain and to British precepts."

E. A. Peck, M.P.

Mr. Peck, M.P., said that he was glad to be able to leave Ottawa and to find himself in his serene and peaceful surroundings. After a brief word regarding the structure of the Federal body, the speaker declared that after the brief respite granted by the adjournment, he believed that the members would return to their seats on the 15th of March with the idea of doing something in an effort to solve the big problems which weighed upon the country.

Of the many departments which make up government, Mr. Peck declared that that of Agriculture was the most important, because the welfare of the whole Dominion was wrapped up in the farm industry. Mr. Peck paid a tribtue to the work performed by experimental farms, and said that the sum allotted for that purpose was but a fraction of the value derived because of its existence. Mr. Peck lauded the work of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, and hoped that he would be able to take a greater part in its development than he had done formerly.

C. A. Maguire.

Commissioner Maguire stated that, like Mr. Peck, he represented a body which had weighty responsibilities. The Hydro also had railways which were not on a paying basis. He confessed ignorance of agriculture and its needs, saying that Mr. Duffus had said "all that there was to be said anyway." The speaker declared that he had been greatly impressed with the reception he had been accorded, and declared that he could see in the Exhibition Board the nucleus of an organization which might in time rival that of the Canadian National Exhibition. Mr. Maguire said that Peterboro had a wonderful hockey team. "If the Exhibition has as much pep as your hockey players, the C.N.E. will have to watch its step. I take time occasionally from my onerous duties to go and see a hockey match—in fact I saw every game this winter."

Mr. Maguire was delighted to see the manner in which farmers were adopting the rural extension plans proposed by Hydro. If the governments had the vision of Hydro they would continue the development of the St. Lawrence and the province would move forward industrially as it should have done years ago.

The speaker complimented the directorate upon the advancement which had been made in former years. He said, "If I am living I will be here at Fair time next year."

C. E. Moore, speaking on rural and urban co-operation, said that Hydro power was a good thing, but in his opinion the rural customers were not getting a square deal. The rates were too high. Mr. Moore thought that this was a splendid place where the city might co-operate in reducing power cost for the country consumer.

Vincent Eastwood moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Archibald and declared that it had been very valuable in presenting new facts and ideas.

Reg. Turner, commenting on Mr. Maguire's reference to pep in relation to the Peterboro Exhibition, explained carefully that the word pep originated from a combination of the capital letters in the slogan, Peterboro Exhibition Progresses.

RECEPTION FOR NEW ORGANIST

Cecil Lapp Welcomed To Park Street Church By Choir.

On Thursday evening, March 4, the choir and members of the Park Street Baptist Church met to receive in an informal way their new organist, Cecil Lapp.

At 8.15 the guests, numbering around forty, were served a splendid supper by the Ladies' Aid of the Church.

A good program of games and contests followed, conducted by Mrs. N. R. McLeod. Mr. Harrison, A.T.C.L., favored the gathering with two splendid selections on the piano.

During the evening A. Thompson and Miss E. Pilling presented a handsome club bag to B. G. Robinson, the former organist, as a token of their esteem of his services.

J. Maybee, on behalf of the choir committee, welcomed Mr. Lapp to his position in the church in a most capable manner. Mr. Lapp in his reply expressed his pleasure at having been accepted and asked for co-operation on behalf of the choir.

The rest of the evening was passed in quiet enjoyment, when a vote of thanks was given to the ladies for the supper.

Calomel Acts Upon the Liver

Takes away all previous days waste

To feel your best day in and out, to eat well, work well, sleep well, digest well, you must keep your liver active or the system will immediately become filled with poison causing a multitude of troubles as indigestion, headaches, gas on stomach, constipation, kidney pains, foul breath, biliousness, rheumatism, etc. One Tanol Calomel tablet taken before meals or two at bedtime, then the next morning jump from your bed, take a glass of water, and away goes all the previous days wastes and poisons. Be sure you get Tamol Calomel as it is much better than ordinary calomel; no salts or seidlitz are needed to remove from system. Get a few from F. C. Webber, druggist, Charlotte St., Peterborough, and you will be surprised how effective they are.

The Wolf That Talks Like a Friend

He preys on Widows and Children

Have you Safeguarded your Family Against Him?

THERE are many in Mrs. Olmstead's position—left with a lump sum, barely sufficient for her needs. The wolf that talks like a friend soon seeks her out. Lacking business experience or sound advice, she rapidly finds herself in possession of worthless stock certificates. The life insurance and the savings of years disappear over night.

The Mutual Life of Canada has a plan that completely thwarts the schemes of the wolf that talks like a friend. Monthly income insurance is the modern, proven method of providing for such as Mrs. Olmstead and the children. Instead of life insurance being paid in bulk, a monthly cheque is sent the dependents either over a term of years or during their entire lifetime. Mrs. Olmstead is not left with the responsibility of administering money for which she has had no experience. The money cannot get into the hands of the wolf that talks like a friend.

This monthly income plan of the Mutual Life is the more prudent form of protective insurance. It prevents extravagance and eventual dissipation of the funds. The income is regular and of a fixed amount. It will tend to keep the family together and the home intact. It cannot be seized for debt. It will encourage thrift on the part of your dependents and lead them to the budget system of planning expenditures.

It will pay you to investigate the monthly income policy of the Mutual Life. Our nearest representative will be glad to explain the details and give you an expert analysis of your insurance position

Glass Bottom Buckets Used To Scan Lake Bottom.

LEAMINGTON, Ont., Mar. 6 (Canadian Press) — Glass bottom buckets were used today by searchers for James Phipp, his wife and their three children, who have been missing since Monday when they started in their automobile from Pelee Island over the Lake Erie ice toward Leamington. Buckets were used to scan the lake bottom at several spots where it is possible the Phipps car broke through the ice.

ECLIPSE FASHIONS
Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Bayne

The Overskirt Figures in Afternoon Modes

A note of chic simplicity is a feature of this satin frock, which has its graceful overskirt curved to form a deep V in the front and back. Long full sleeves of contrasting-color satin are trimmed with bands of embroidery, and gathered into tight little bands at the wrists. The diagram shows just how the dress is put together, and pattern No. 1268 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years (or 34, 36 and 38 inches bust only). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 5¼ yards 36-inch, or 3 yards 54-inch material, with 1¾ yards trimming-braid for the sleeves. Price 20 cents.

Every woman's desire is to achieve that smart different appearance which draws favorable comment from the observing public. The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are originated in the heart of the style centers and will help you to acquire that much desired air of individuality. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Playing with Hearts

By Juanita Hamel

Now let's see! There's Jack and George and John and Harry and Bob—oh dear! I like them all and I'm sure that all like me; for each has proposed to me, and I simply can't make up my mind which I like the best. Jack dances divinely and George has lots of money and John is so dear and dependable and Harry is the most wonderful looking thing and Bob—he's a bit wild, I know, but he's just the most fascinating thing! Sometimes I like one and sometimes another and I never, never can tell which I like most.

Dear Dan Cupid, won't you please help me? It's such a hard thing for me to decide! What! I don't love any of them? No, I guess you're right—I don't. But they are all such dears and I hate to hurt their feelings, so what shall I do? Well—all right, I'll wait; for you will tell me when the right one comes along, so I'll just play hearts for awhile until then. But be sure to tell me.

The Home Kitchen

SOME HEALTHFUL AND NUTRITIOUS DESSERTS.

Nutritious desserts, hot or cold, if properly prepared and measured by calories, may constitute a large proportion of the food value of the meal. These are especially advised for nursery and semi-invalid diets.

Gluten Pudding.

This pudding serves six people. Blend three tablespoonfuls of a gluten flour with a little taken from a pint of milk. Add gradually a pint of hot milk and cook well, then add the remaining cold milk with an egg beaten into it. Add a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, a dessertspoonful of butter, a little cinnamon and sweeten to taste. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake for a half hour. Serve with whipped cream or fruit juice.

Blanc Mange.

Soak a quarter cupful of Irish moss in cold water for twenty minutes, drain and pick over carefully. Put it into a double boiler with a cupful and three-quarters of rich milk for about twenty minutes, or until a little thickens quickly when tried on a cold plate. Add a half saltspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of orange flower flavoring and turn into wet moulds to set. Unmould and serve with sugar and cream.

Bread Pudding.

Cut stale bread into small cubes, enough to make three cupfuls. Butter a pudding dish and scatter a layer of the bread, dot thickly with butter, sprinkle with sugar, add a grating of nutmeg and sprinkle with a quarter cupful of raisins. Put on another layer of the bread and repeat the seasonings and the raisins. Top with bread, dot thickly with butter and add a little nutmeg. Beat two eggs and add to a cupful of milk and turn over, then add a cupful of light cream. Let stand for ten minutes, then add a little more milk if the bread has taken up most of the liquid. Bake thirty to thirty-five minutes. Serve a hard sauce with the pudding. Hard sauce—Cream three tablespoonfuls of butter. When creamy add gradually nine tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, then the unbeaten white of a fresh egg and a half teaspoonful of cream. A few drops of vanilla may be added or a grating of nutmeg. Heap in a small dish and set to chill. This recipe serves four people.

Orange Jelly.

Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatine powder in a half cupful of cold water for half an hour, then turn over it two cupfuls of boiling water. Add a cupful of strained orange juice. Mix well and strain through a damp cloth stretched over a strainer. Turn into wet moulds and set to harden. Unmould and serve with whipped cream.

Grape Sherbet.

This amount serves five people. Blend together one and a half cup fuls of grape juice and a pint of water. Add three cupfuls of sugar. Stir until dissolved. Put into a freezer and partially freeze. Open the freezer and add two stiffly beaten egg whites mixed with two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Close the freezer and freeze almost hard. Remove the dasher, drain the water from the freezer and pack lightly to stand until ready to serve.

The Woman's Day

Written by a Woman for Women.

Touching brightly on woman's every major interest in life from books and babies to politics and psycho analysis.

(By Allene Sumner)

TEASPOONS O' NEWS.

John Larkin is dead. Thousands of women will mourn his loss. He probably is responsible for more Brussels rugs and golden oak furniture in farm and urban middle-class homes than any man in America. The oft-ridiculed "Larkin soap club plan" whereby a club member who bought one dollars' worth of soap and coffee and cold cream a month could select at the end of ten months a chair or rug or some tidbit for the home, boasts a membership of hundreds of thousands of women throughout this nation.

THE MUSIC WORLD

Does music mean pictures to you? Many people who heard in New York the American premiere of Stravinsky's "Les Noces" declare that it vividly painted the episodes of a peasant Russian wedding as accurately as would the stage itself. Movement one, the bride's preparation for the wedding; movement two, the groom's donning of bridal array; movement three, the wedding itself; movement four, the wedding feast and dance.

'PON MY WORD!

The w.k. English humor functions again. A London dispatch tells us that smart London society takes American "petting parties" very seriously and literally. Invitations are sent out. The hostess furnishes only divans, dim lights, fags, cocktails, and an infinite amount of self-effacement. Londoners assume that American "petting parties" demand special costume of pajamas, sandals, and kimonas, but the dispatch says "we have not yet come ot this." How well Anglo-Saxons understand one another's language and its shades of meaning!

FASHION

With fashion magazines shrieking of shorter 'n shorter skirts, evening gowns as worn by Society with a capital seem to get longer and longer. As a guest at a reception a week or so ago I saw scores and scores of gorgeous evening gowns that swept the floor. The bouffant robe de style or picture dress in pastel and hectic shades was much in evidence. And quite the most talked-about dress of the ball was a white satin heavily banded in black velvet at hem, neckline, and shoulders that, short in front, dwindled to the floor behind.

FOODS FOR PATIENTS.

Maybe these suggestions will help vary the sickroom tray. Eggnog, custard, orangeade, cream of celery soup, grape juice, junket, coddled eggs, omelet, asparagus soup, gelatins, and meat broths.

To make an eggnog, have 1 beaten egg, yolk and white beaten separately, 1 to 2 tablespoons sugar, 3-4 cup milk, nutmeg. Add the sugar to the beaten yolk, then add the white, the milk, and beat until thoroughly mixed. Chill.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES.

First year, cotton; second, paper; third, leather; fifth, wooden; seventh, woolen; tenth, tin; twelfth, silk and linen; fifteenth, crystal; twentieth, china; twenty-fifth, silver; thirtieth, pearl; fortieth, ruby; fiftieth, golden; seventy-fifth, diamond.

TODAY'S LAUGH.

Once upon a time I found these tid-bits of advise in a woman's magazine. Wonder what the average housewife thinks of their value?

"Potatoes fried in the best creamery butter will be found far better-flavored than those friend in lard."

"The children will much prefer ice cream for dessert than stewed prunes or even nourishing apple pie!"

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

FASHION NOTES.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, March 6.—(United Press).—Shops and department stores are showing an array of gold bracelet-necklces. These are merely large size bracelets which are worn about the neck as are chokers. They are not flexible but are firm gold bands of medium thickness which clasp at one side of the neck. Sometimes three bracelet necklaces are worn at a time but this is only when narrower types are chosen. More often one sees the single band of less than a half-inch thickness. Dull gold or old greenish gold is more popular than bright gold and since one can buy a necklace of this band type for around $3, they are not solid gold.

Cuff-link clasps on shoes are the latest thing in the shoe world. The strap which extends over the instep is held together at the center of the instep with a cuff-link ornament. The straps have buttonholes through which the links extend. These same cuff link effects are being used as front closing for high-necked collars and on cuffs.

Parisians women are wearing their girdles next to the body, according to a returning buyer. It is suggested that a girdle worn this way hugs the body and since most models are minus boning they are comfortable. A New York corsetierre suggests that one wear a sheer voile undervest beneath the corset or girdle since voile has little bulk and does not slip as does silk.

Black is again becoming a popular evening color with women or society. Black chifofn is the favored material being used both in beaded and plain effects. Mrs. Vincent Astor is one of the younger matrons who is wearing much black for evening this season.

Cape-ensembles will play a prominent part in fashions this Spring. Recent models from Paris use reversible material which is plain on one side and checked or striped on the opposite side. The plain material then forms the ensemble with plaid being used for trimmings or vice versa. Several smart models use plaid capes with plain dress portions.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

APPETIZING FOREIGN SOUPS.

Soupmaking varies in different lands, method of making, materials used and the flavorings are unlike, even the manner and time of service differ. In Japan, for instance, they eat soup for breakfast. In China, before and after dinner and in other countries in other ways foreign to our ways of thinking. Some of the recipes are interesting to try and we may add them to our list of things too good to do without.

Bavarian Lentil Soup.

Soak a pint of lentils overnight. Drain and add two quarts of stock. Put in a soup kettle with a small slice of ham, soup greens and a few sweet herbs. Cook until the lentils are very soft, then put through a puree sieve. Return the puree to the kettle and thicken with a little white roux, boil up, and it is ready to serve. This makes a smooth, rich soup.

French Onion Soup.

Peel and chop four large onions. Melt half a cupful of chicken fat and simmer the onions in it to cook. Do not brown them. Stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour and when blended add three cupfuls of hot water and three of milk. Simmer twenty minutes, then add pepper, salt and a little sugar. Make several slices of toast and place in the tureen. Beat the yolks of two eggs with half a cupful of Parmesan cheese and spread the toast with the mixture. Pour the hot soup into the tureen, cover it closely for five minutes, then serve.

Scotch Cock-a-Leekie.

Simmer a young fowl that has been carefully dressed and cleaned in three quarts of water. Add washed and cut up soup greens, salt and pepper. When the fowl is done and tender lift it and strain the soup. Return the soup to the saucepan and cut six large leeks in inch lengths and add them with four tablespoonfuls of well-washed rice. Cook for a half hour. Meantime dice half of the chicken and add it with a tablespoonful of minced parsley. Add more seasoning if needed.

UTTERLY DISCOURAGED

This Was the Condition of a P. E. I. Woman Before Taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

"My illness began," says Mrs. M. J. Ahern, R.R. No. 2, Alberton, P.E.I., "when my husband went over seas and I was left with the care of a farm and stock, with no help but that of a young boy. My health broke down and for the first time in my life I became uttterly discouraged. I lost my appetite, had no strength and was ready to have a crying spell any moment of the day, as the work loomed up ahead of me. A friend happened to speak one day of the good Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done her and urged me to try them. I had not energy enough, or perhaps confidence enough, to try them, but she would not be denied and sent me three boxes, and by the time I had taken them I knew they were helping me and was anxious for more. I continued taking the pills for nearly six months and by that time I had safely passed a critical period in my life, and regained my usual good health. To all overworked, nerve-racked women—and there are a great many of them—I still say, and at all times, take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I know you will regain your energy."

There are many troubles due to weak, watery blood easily overcome by a fair use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The whole mission of this medicine is to purify and enrich the blood, and when that is done all the varied symptoms of anaemia disappear and good health returns. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any druggist or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

One of the most versatile of the young women of England's aristocracy is the Hon. Elsie Mackay, who has been elected on the advisory committee of the British Air League. Miss Mackay, who is the daughter of Lord Incheape, the shipping and banking magnate, has been a licensed aviatrix since 1922. At one time she won success as an actress under the stage name of Poppy Wyndham. She also displayed her genuis and skill by designing the interior decoration of many of the ships belonging to the big company controlled by her father.

by A GIRL of TODAY

SOME ADVICE.

I started right in to do what Mamie had told me and for two or three minutes I was very busy checking hats and entirely too nervous to look about or listen to what anyone said. At last I heard someone say:

"Hello, cutie, when did you blow in? I'm sure I've never seen you here before, but I might have known you'd be here, for Ziegfeld has nothing on Sterns when it comes to picking beautiful girls."

I tried to smile but my lips were frozen.

Then I looked at Mamie wonderingly. How could she have kept so sweet and full of good humor when all day she was target for the tawdry compliments that any man might see fit to give her! I was learning very rapidly that most men seem to think that with a compliment or two while showing an inclination to be a good splender, any man may make a conquest of a working girl. I found out that night that man never looks upon woman impersonally. She is never just a human being like himself. She is either his mother, his wife, his sister, a prospective romance or flirtation or the woman who does not count.

It had never occurred to me before that girls in business life had to put up with such things. Consequently I made a little sound of fear, as another would-be flatterer tried to touch my hand as I held it out for his hat.

Mamie came forward, saying under her breath:

"Just act as though you didn't see it. It's nothing, my dear, after you get used to it."

"Do you have much of this sort of thing to put up with?" I asked as there came a lull. I was making up my mind that it would not be as easy to get rid of these men as it had been to get rid of Chuck.

"Well, you have to stand it up to a certain point," broke in Mamie. "You can't make a man grouchy, for if you do he'll make a fuss to the management and you'll lose your job. But for your own sake you can't give him too much encouragement. You'll soon learn to have an answer ready that will make any man keep his distance without making him mad; that is, if you stay. But, I don't think you'll stick. Somehow you don't seem to fit in."

"I'm sure you don't seem to fit in," said a loud voice. "Sterns tells me, little one, that you've been playing in hard luck. Never let it be said that I neglected beauty in distress," and turning his hat over, another customer dropped a bill in it and passed it to me.

For a moment I was thunderstruck. I didn't know what to do. I looked at Mamie in distress and like the brick she was she answered my S. O. S.

MY BOOK OF VERSES

The following verses were written by Eunice Barnes, aged 10, who is a pupil at May's School:

The Stream

With the bright and sunny waters
Of a streamlet cool and clear,
Comes the songs of merry birds,
In the Springtime of the year.

First slowly moving round the bend,
Then faster as it nears the end,
Through the forest bright and gay;
Thus the little streamlet passes on its way.

Faster, faster as it goes,
Just to meet the ocean's billows
As the cloud boats come sailing by;
They vanish like mist into the sky.

Bubbling through the forest,
Winding down the hill;
Slower, slower does it run,
Till it now stands still.

The Old Clock

My Grandfather has a dear old clock
Which keeps on saying Tick, Tock;
Tick, Tock;
At night when I go to bed to sleep so sound,
In the morn I've slept the clock 'round.

At One's and Two's and Three's
The cuckoo does come out.
It says Cuckoo-oo; Cuckoo-oo, so much
It nearly make you shout.

The Kettle

The kettle sings a song for me.
The kettle sings a song for you.
His song is of the coming tea—
Whoo-oo, whoo-oo, whoo-oo.

He sings from morning until night
His singing keeps you gay and bright,
And on the pillow rest your head.
The kettle still sings—
Whoo-oo, whoo-oo, whoo-oo.

The kettle holds water for me,
The kettle holds water for you
The kettle holds water for everyone,
That we might have our tea—
(Sung in distance east of the sun)

ADVENTURES of the TWINS
by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 4—THE MARCH HARE TAKES AN APPLE

"Who's next in your big book?" asked Mister Rubadub.

The March Hare looked at his book through his big spectacles and said, "Grubby Groundhog—he's next. He really should be almost the first person to go to the Land-Where-Spring-Is-Coming. And here he is, still fast asleep in his house between the fence and the potato-patch!"

"I know a story about him," said Nick. "If he comes out of his hole and sees his shadow on the second of February, he goes back in again and stays for six weeks longer."

"Stuff and nonsense and air-sauce!" said the March Hare. "He's too thin now to have any shadow. Or at least he'd have to stand up twice to make one. Why he hasn't had a bite to eat since twelve o'clock on the last day of October. And he's as hungry as three hunters."

At this last dreadful word, the March Hare shivered, but he went on to say quickly that he was going to get old Grubby out of his hole at once, if not sooner.

"You see, he has four doors to his house, and if he knows we're going to get him to be spring-cleaned, he's likely to sneak out another way—his wife too," he explained. "And he would be a disgrace to any community if he went the way he is. The Fairy Queen would discharge me at once—Rubadub too, if she saw him."

Off went the Twins and the March Hare to Grubby Groundhog's house between the fence and the potato patch. That is—his doorway—his front doorway was there.

Before he left, the March Hare had put a big shiny red apple into his pocket.

"Come on out, Grubby," he called. "Oh, Grubby! Grubby Groundhog, come on out. Come out and see who's here. I've got a surprise for you."

But all the answer he got was a long loud snore and a grunt.

"Dear me! I just have my trouble for my pains," said the March Hare. "Come, children, we'll have to break in like burglars and get this fellow. You have your magic shoes, so come right along. Help me to roll this big stone away from the door, Nick."

Nick helped the March Hare to roll the stone away and they all tiptoed inside, down a long crooked hall, to another hall, then along that to a tiny room.

And there in a bed of moss and leaves and bits of feathers and even strips of dried corn husks, lay Mister Groundhog—or as some of his special friends called him, Mister Woodchuck.

"Give me your knife, Nick," whispered the March Hare.

So Nick reached in his pocket and gave the hare his nice little sharp knife with two blades.

But the hare only needed one blade, for what he wanted was to cut the nice big red apple in two.

When he had done this he carefully laid the two pieces of apple under Grubby's nose.

And when the groundhog took his next deep breath to get ready for his next loud snore, he smelt—apples!

And everyone knows that apples to a groundhog are like, well—like ice cream soda to a little boy. In about one-third of a minute his nose started to wiggle.

TRENT RIVER NEWS.

TRENT RIVER, March 6.—March came in like the proverbial lion. Snow fell continously all day, making the roads difficult to travel.

The Guild of St. John's church, Havelock, arrived in a sleigh load on Monday evening and were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Cook. During the evening Mrs. Clarke, who has been an active member of the society for years, was presented with a handsome pair of silver plated candlesticks. The evening was spent in games and music. The hostess served a delicious lunch and the guests departed about midnight.

Miss Mabel Tyler is employed in the Canada Fishing Tackle factory at Havelock.

Mrs. Tom Sedgwick is improving from her recent illness.

Mr. George Brooks arrived from Hastings last week and with Mrs. Brooks are occupying the rooms over the cheese factory.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

SUNDAY, MARCH 7 AND MONDAY, MARCH 8

Sunday's astrological forecast is for a lively and pleasant day, in which religious and spiritual affairs will not be lost sight of. But those in the employment of others should be careful.

Those whose birthday it is should have a lively, prosperous and pleasant year, but they should be careful not to neglect their employment. A child born on this day should be accomplished, agreeable and may succeed best in undertakings on its own account.

Monday's horoscope holds conflicting figures. While the day may mark the breaking up of a thwarting condition, yet little progress will be made in the new situation. Defer signing all important papers.

Those whose birthday it is may find some stubborn obstacle removed during the year, yet its progress with new adventures will be slow. They are urged to sign all important papers with the utmost precaution. A child born on this day may be variable and possibly visionary, but should have some very substantia qualities.

PLAY WELL RECEIVED.

Murray Street Church Class Presents "The Joggsville Convention."

A capacity audience greeted the members of the "Others" class of the Murray Street Baptist Church in their presentation of the play, "The Joggsville Convention," in the Sunday School Hall last night.

The manner in which the various artists performed the different roles entrusted to them showed that they had spent considerable time in rehearsing their parts.

The manner in which the play was put over and the exceptionally good acting reflected great credit on the director, Mrs. (Dr.) Morgan, who in addition to directing, took part in the play herself.

The cast was as follows:

Mrs. Cush—Mrs. H. Frise
Mrs Granite—Miss H. Stenton.
Hannah Buskin—Mrs. D. Loomis.
Mrs. Bilker—Mrs. T. Pierson.
Mrs. Rose—Mrs. L. Smith.
Mrs Amy—Miss A. Johnson.
Mrs. Boker—Miss N. Curtis.
Mrs. Jones-Joggs—Miss M. Eastwood.
Mrs. Manford Strong—Miss C. Doughty.
Miss Anne Jane Jode—Mrs. Geo. Post.
Mrs. Weakly (pres.)—Miss E Garbutt.
Mrs. Stoate—Mrs. Flett.
Susie Sweet—Mrs. R. E. Lansing.
Patience Parks—Miss E. Hardwick.
Mrs. Bulk—Mrs. W. W. Richman.
Mrs. Useless—Mrs. (Dr.) Morgan.
Mrs. McVittie—Mrs. Earl Kidd.
Others—Mrs. H. Foster and Miss E. Webber.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

One of my correspondents sends the following quotation from a newspaper article and asks me to comment on it:

"Sunlight pouring down on the hatless head means a constant bombardment by these actinic rays that penetrate the skull, affect the brain, and in tropical countries actually produce death, eventually.

"Here in the milder countries the constant exposure of the head to sunlight is damaging in the extreme.

"Sunlight is good for all parts t body except the head; in which the brain resides. That needs protection."

I have great respect for the "actinic rays," the chemical rays. They are the ones which develop the photographer's plate, sunburn the skin, and do lot of ther stri ing things. They are powerful rays, but I do not believe their "bombardment" of the head is anywhere near as danger us as this article would indicate.

In Summer weather the heat rays are so powerful that the brain may be seriously effected by them if the head is unprotected. In my old hospital days I used to see any number of cases of sunstroke, but I am confident it was the heat and not the chemical rays which did the harm.

It must be borne in mind that the actinic rays are just about as active in cold weather as in the hot days of Summer. If they were to be feared in the heated season, they would be almost as much to be dreaded all the year around.

I can hardly understand why an occasional man makes a fad of going without a hat. I have two or three friends who do this habitually. One is called "Sunshine" because his face beams like the sun he never hides from. College boys are apt to go without their hats. If some of them are as poor as I was it is for economy's sake!

Some folks go without hats because they think the sunlight will stimulate the growth of the hair. About all it does to the hair is to fade it.

Baldness is due, in most instances at least, to poor circulation. The heart does not send the blood in forceful stream to the most distant parts of the body. The hands and feet are cold and the blood vessels of the scalp are supplied in a stingy manner.

Hats do not make or promote baldness unless they are too heavy and too tight. In both of these cases the blood vessels are pressed upon and the feeble blood current is cut off almost entirely.

You may wear a hat in safety if your dealer will permit you to select a light one of ample size. Having purchased it, don't pull it down on your head as if you were a pickpocket under pursuit.

Don't be afraid of the kind old sun. Unless he is on a rampage of heat, his rays will not harm you.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

MRS. H. E. Q.—What causes aching feet and swollen ankles?

A.—Arch troubles, due to over exertion, such as long standing might be responsible. See your doctor and have him advise you.

D. V. Q.—Will —— applied to the face for the removal of blackheads prove injurious to the skin.

A.—Since I am not familiar with the preparation I cannot advise you about it. Proper attention to the diet and keeping the intestinal tract clear should bring about satisfactory results. For full particulars send a self addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

J. W. N. Q.—Would you advise injections of iron and arsenic for a patient suffering from a slight ulceration of the stomach and general weakness.

A.—If your doctor has advised these injections be guided by his judgment. It is never wise to take any drug or medicine for any purpose whatsoever unless they have been specifically prescribed.

MISS F. W. Q.—What would you suggest to improve the growth of the nails. 2—What is good for frostbitten toes?

A.—If the general health is good, the nails and hair will take care of themselves without other aid. Improve your health. (2)—For full particulars on this subject send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

QUINCY ADAMS SHAW—COPPER MAGNATE.

No tale that has flowed trippingly from the fountain pen of modern fictionists can surpass the romance of the actual history of the Calumet and Hecla. The accidental discovery of the copper-bearing conglomerate by E. J. Hurlbert, his tragic death, the struggles of Quincy Adams Shaw and Alexander Agassiz, the founders of the mine, has proved epochal. The theme is worthy of Balzac.

It is more than a mine. It may well be called a dynasty, for the ownership of the stock is handed down from sire to son. When the children have been good they are rewarded with a share or two of Calumet and Hecla stock and the nest egg eventually hatches into a million dollars.

There is no copper stock in the world which attracts more attention, yet it has never been active on the Boston Stock Exchange, because its value is too high for it to be a mobile issue on the stock market.

Hurlbert, a geologist and explorer in the employ of the Huron mine prior to 1856, according to most authentic accounts, while prospecting on the Keeweenaw peninsula, accidentally struck his foot against an outcropping, and upon examining the strange conglomerate, uncovered the rich copper lod which later developed into the famous mine.

He quietly acquired several sections of land from a company which had received a grant from the State in the building of the Soo Canal. Then he hurried to Boston, where he secured backing from Shaw and Agassiz.

Shaw in Boston and Agassiz in Michigan, both determined young fellows, had a hard fight to raise sufficient funds to develop the properties. More than $1,200,000 had been invested before they reached a dividend-paying basis.

In the struggle to keep afloat Hurlbert went under. Broken in spirit, bitter over losing out, he later died in Rome, Italy.

The first dividend in the Hecla was paid in December, 1869, and the first in the Calumet in August, 1870, both $5 a share. The consolidation of the mines followed in 1871, taking in three small adjacent properties.

An Accident Uncovered the Lode.

Back in the early days, when the stock was selling for $1 a share, Quincy Adams Shaw contrived to become the heaviest stockholder. He long bore the distinction of paying the largest amount of taxes to the city of Boston. The rate of dividends increased until the amount paid to Shaw alone was over $1,000,000 a year.

To indicate the rate of increase, in 1907 Maj. Henry L. Higginson, also a son-in-law of Prof. Agassiz and one of the strongest backers of the famous mine, picked up a few shares, for when he paid $1,000 each.

Born in Boston in 1822 and a Harvard graduate. Shaw early married the daughter of Prof. Louis Agassiz and thus allied a goodly part of Back Bay, proceeded to make Calumet and Hecla a "family affair." In his youth he made a gallant fight against heavy odds to make the Calumet and Hecla a mine and succeeded beyond his most extravagant dreams.

Shaw died in 1908.

Menus for the Family

Children under school age should not be permitted to eat the corned beef of the boiled dinner. They may have the vegetables that accompany the meat and some of the endive very finely minced and dressed with lemon juice and oil. They may also have a small portion of the dessert.

Steamed Orange Pudding.

Two tablespoons butter, 1 cup stale bread crumbs from soft part of loaf, 1 cup milk, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 orange, 3 eggs, 1-8 teaspoon salt.

Melt butter without changing color or bubbling. Add bread crumbs and milk and cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Add sugar and salt and yolks of eggs beaten until thick and lemon colored. Add grated rind and juice of orange and mix thoroughly. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry on a platter with a wire whisk. Fold into first mixture and turn into a buttered mold. Steam forty-five minutes and serve with the following sauce:

Orange Sauce.

One lemon, 1-2 cup orange juice, 1-3 cup sugar, 1 egg.

Grate rind of lemon and squeeze out juice. Mix juice and grated rind with orange juice and sugar. Add yolk of egg and cook over hot water. Beat with a fork or small whisk while cooking. As soon as mixture thickens remove from heat and fold in white of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Chill before serving.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES.

By Blanche Silver

THE LITTLE MOUSIE WHO WOULDN'T TAKE ADVICE

"Well," squeaked Freddy Mousie, as he peeked out from his Winter quarters under the barn and saw the sun shining brightly. "Me for the broad fields today. Spring is here and it's lovely and warm."

"Not me," grunted his neighbor, Mrs. Brown Mousie. "I don't believe in taking the first few warm days as a sign of Spring. You better be content a wee bit longer. I saw the black birds all down in the chicken yard getting their breakfast this morning. My grandmother used to say, when the blackbirds fly down to the ground to feed in a flock, you can rest assured we'll have another cold spell. Better hold on a wee bit longer, Freddy."

But Freddy Mousie was rather set in his way, and when he was sure Mrs. Brown Mousie was away from the barn, he packed up his family and moved out to the fields.

"Good morning, Mr. Freddy Mousie," chirped Daddy Black Bird when he saw Freddy Mousie moving into the burrow under a log in the field. "Don't you think it's risky business to move out into the fields too early?"

"You'd Better Run Back."

"Oh, I guess we're not too early, squeaked Freddy Mousie. "You see we have been living in the barn all Winter and I want to be one of the first to move out. It's such a lovely warm day.

"You're right about this day,' chuckled Daddy Black Bird. "But there's something tells me, we're in for at least one more cold spell and I don't think it's very far off. Of course, I don't know, but my friends all think so. We have all come down to the ground to pick. You'd better run back to the barn with your little family. The cold weather is not all over."

"Maybe, we better," said Mama Mousie. "We could go back for a little while longer. Maybe Daddy Black Bird knows what he's talking about."

"Maybe he does and maybe he doesn't," snapped Freddy Mousie. "He just wants the good things himself. No, I'm here and I'm going to stay. You'll find out I'm right."

Mama Mousie said no more. She helped Freddy Mousie all she could and when the house was all ready, she, with the help of her two oldest boys, made several trips back to the barn after food.

"Won't do any harm," she told Freddy Mousie. "We'll have it in case we need it."

After supper the Mousie family went to bed and had a lovely sleep, but when morning came, Freddy Mousie began to shiver.

He jumped out of bed and ran to open the little doorway. The entrance to their little burrow was filled with snow. The whole meadow was covered with a white blanket of snow and Freddy Mousie and his little family were held prisoners in their own home.

"Never mind," shivered Mama Mousie. "We'll know the next time the black birds come to the ground to feed in the Spring that the cold weather isn't all over."

Freddie Mousie was ashamed to think he hadn't listened to his friends' advice, but he made up his mind that the next year he would not move out into the meadows quite so early.

FORGED SHARES CAUSE TROUBLE

Hold Up Financial Negotiations Between France and Russia.

PARIS, March 6 (Canadian Press).—A bombshell has been thrown into the placid atmosphere of Franco-Russian financial negotiations in the shape of an accusation against a Commissare at the Soviet Embassy in Paris of forging, and with the aid of a band of Soviet agents, placing on the French market many millions of francs' worth of spurious shares in the Lena gold fields.

A meeting of the Bankers' Syndicate was called and the syndicate advised immediate cessation of dealings in these shares, but in the meantime complaints have poured in and up to the present it is alleged that at least 20,000,000 francs' worth of bogus stock shares have been foisted on French purchasers.

HARDSHIPS FOR PROSPECTORS IN GOLD FIELD TRIP

Lack of Shelter on Road From Hudson to Red Lake Main Difficulty.

PROVISIONS DEAR.

Prospector Returns From the Camp With Tales of Hardship.

HUDSON, Ont. March 6 (Canadian Press).—The hardships encountered by prospectors in the rush to the mining camps of other days are being duplicated, in part at least, by men who have taken the trail to the new Red Lake gold strike in Northern Ontario.

Lack of shelter on the route to the district, 140 miles from here, and the sky-rocketting of provision prices in the mining camp itself, indicate the handicaps that must be met.

George F. Summers, Haileybury, Ont, prospector and mining man, came in to Hudson from Red Lake yesterday after a months' work on surveys for mining companies. He said that at Sands Lake, the half way point between Hudson and Red Lake, he spent the night in a cabin that housed at the same time 40 other men and their dogs. Of this number 16 were coming out and 24 going into the district.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

M. Y.—You should have a very nice personality, even though you are apt to talk too much at times. You have a strong, active creative nature that is sometimes inclined to domineer over those about you, and you have unusual understanding and sympathy for the needs of others. You may not achieve much in the material way but you belong to that class of people of whom much is expected and whose failure to live up to expectations is not easily forgiven. You have a fine artistic perception and great quickness of memory along any line that appeals to your mentality. You are quite restless and have a habit of asking unnecessary questions that is somewhat irritating. In your great desire to help others, you are apt at times to overdo yourself. You are a very fine home-maker, and like to have beautiful things around you. Remember that an innate restlessness and anxiety in yourself are at the root of much of your trouble. Dress in pale, delicate shades, and give more attention to the details of your toilet.

You were born on Thursday. Your colors are flame, in all its varied hues.

B. A.—You are quite well satisfied with yourself and have a good deal of poise, but you will be misunderstood because of your habit of staying too much by yourself. You should fight against this tendency to morbid brooding that overcomes you at times. You will never succeed in any enterprise that you try to swing alone. You will always be obliged, if you wish for happiness and success, to associate yourself carefully with others and do not at any time try to control the affairs of those about you. You will never take the right method and will end only in estranging friends from you. You will always do better in affairs requiring mental faculties. You are inclined to be jealous and to take offence at imaginery slights and were not born with any too much patience in your makeup. You should cultivate this virtue and also try to conquer that tendency toward capriciousness which affects your relations with those about you. Do not work too hard and injure your health.

You weer born on Wednesday. Your colors are steel and purple.

Bee.—You are naturally of a nervous, vivacious, anxious nature, but circumstances and environment seal you about with an atmosphere of reserve and retirement. You are too much interested in the mystic and occult phases of life for your own good. You have an elegance of speech that is often marred by the use of personalities. With your anxious, restless mind and your inclination toward morbid introspection, you are inclined to look on the dark side of life. You think always of the evil that may result from not doing a thing, rather than the benefit that may be derived from doing it. This instinctive dread of evil resulting from negligence on your part drives you on to continuous action of mind and body, making you somewhat inconstant. You appropriate the best out of a new fad, then drop it. You have a fondness for fine needlework and a dislike of housework. Your mind is balanced between the sentimentally ideal and the grossly worldly. You should strive to control your temper, which is violent at times, and listen carefully to the reasoning of others who may have more experience than you. You were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is pink.

F. J. P.—This child should never be deceived, for when once her confidence is lost, it will be impossible to regain it. She must be made a companion of, and put on her honor even in ittie things. She should be kept busy with tasks which she will enjoy, as the mind is so active it should be occupied all the time. She must be praised and told frequently of her parents' love for her, for the hand of love must guide this child, even though it is a firm hand at times. She must never feel the touch of indifference or coldness. She should have many companions and playmates, and she will have the faculty of choosing fine natures for friends. She should be taught loyalty, not to listen to a word against her friends and not to change companions frequently. Give her regular meals and do not allow her to use tea or coffee. Dress her well but simply, and with bright colors. Having an inborn tendency to hurry, she should be taught to do things carefully. Never punish this child when you are angry, and then only when you are positive she is in the wrong. She should have plenty of sleep and pleasant surroundings, should be taught self-control and should be given a good education, after which allow her to choose her own career. She belongs to a type that is habitually successful when not misdirected in early life. By nature, she is quite charming and affectionate, without a great deal of initiative or efficiency, and with a tendency to worry. Success will come to her through keeping right at whatever she is interested in plugging away at her lessons and her music, because she should have quit, an inclination toward music, although an individual manner of playing may be habitual to her. She should have teachers who will understand that her temperament is not subject to red tape and precise rules, because the maintenance of her individuality is absolutely necessary to the success that will come to her if she is trained properly and never treated harshly.

She was born on Wednesday. Gold, white and violet are her colors. The day you ask about is past.

E. V. P.—You have a strong body, capable of much endurance. You must always remember that in union there is strength. Success will not come to you if you try to stand alone, and any attempt on your part to interfere with the affairs of others will only end in failure. Do not fail to enlist the assistance of others in any undertaking. You have a strong will power and can exert a great influence over others, which should always be exerted for good. You like fine clothes and good things to eat, and are fond, too, of praise and flattery. You have the bad habit of putting things off and are apt to scold and nag about trifles. You like pleasure and have a great aversion to rules and regulations. A quick temper, a scolding habit and a tendency to sarcasm are your bugbears. Self control in small matters should be constantly sought by you. If you can understand your own nature and conquer your faults, you are capable of much. Be more careful of the feelings of others and less tender of oyur own. Marry a man born in June, July, December or January. January and July are your lucky months, and Tuesday your lucky day. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are blue and cream. December 4th, 1926, is a day for quiet meditation and lack of action. December 11th is a day for original thought and for taking advantage of every opportunity. December 18th is a day for exercising patience and December 25th is a day for avoiding any new enterprise. All these days are Saturdays.

M. R. P.—You have a naturally strong inclination toward things connected with science or business, and should do well in anything along this line. Combined with a destiny that points to material achievement is a nature that inclines to change and uncertainty. This element of fickle unrest will not make for your happiness or success unless you set about early in life to control it. You have a good deal of natural dignity and are much more interested in your own affairs than those of others. You work energetically at a task for a while and then subside into a fit of laziness. Stick-to-itiveness should be your motto. You are proud and conservative and have great respect for successful persons. Failures do not get much sympathy from you. You like music of a weird nature and are attracted to moving water. You are apt to be careless about money matters and are easily confused in busy thoroughfares. Things borrowed by you are rarely returned to their owners in reasonable time, but you do not like to be reminded of this. Worry, anger and impatience will give you odious stomach trouble. Marry a man born in February, May, August or March.

Your colors are opal shades and tans. You were born on Saturday.

M. E. P.—You have a rather conflicting personality. A peace-loving, gentle star was in the ascendant at your birth, and your nature should be one of repose and comfort, confidence and trust, with a strong inclination toward marriage. But circumstances of your life cause you to have a tendency toward reserve, and you have constantly to fight against shyness and a certain morbidity in your makeup. You are of the type that may live for a certain number of years enclosed in one personality, then throw off old habits and emerge to a different world. It is really worth while trying, if you have the courage and perseverance to attempt it. You should cultivate frankness and outspokenness in speech, forget yourself entirely and think always of others, cultivate some hobby or work that will take up your attention absolutely, and resolve that you will cultivate to the utmost every gift you possess, rather than hiding your light under a bushel. You will not attain your highest happiness until you have practically made yourself over, and at all times, you must put others first. You must forget worry, anger and jealousy.

Be careful whom you marry. You are apt to make a wrong choice. Marry a man born in April, August or November. June and February are your lucky months and Thursday your good day. You were born on Sunday. Your colors are orange and grey.

FEDERAL FARM CREDITS BILL AND OLD AGE PENSIONS LEGISLATION READY WHEN PARLIAMENT MEETS

Rural Loans Scheme Changed From Plan Rejected By Senate in 1925.

PENSIONS SCHEME.

Provinces Must Approve and Bear Share of the Financing.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Rural credit legislation and a bill for old age pensions are reported to be well in hand by the Government. The old age pensions bill will probably be ready when Parliament re-assembles on March 15.

The rural credits measure is expected to differ widely from the proposal of last year. Then, the scheme was to make an advance of $10,000,000 to enable the provinces to make long term loans to farmers. The measure passed the House, but was defeated in the Senate.

The idea this year, it is reported, is rather to follow the Federal Land Bank system of the United States with such modifications as are necessary to meet Canadian conditions.

Details of the scheme will not be known till the bill is submitted to the House. According to current gossip, however, the proposal is to form a Dominion farm laon board with general direction and provincial boards in each of the provinces. Both Dominion and Provincial governments would be financially interester. A scheme suggested is the formation of local associations for the granting of loans, and, to the capital stock of these associations, the Federal government, the Provincial government and the borrower would subscribe.

Pensions Scheme.

The old age pensions scheme is also reported to call for financial co-operations on the part of the provinces. The bill is stated to follow, in its main lines, the report of the special committee of the House which reported two sessions ago.

The committee recommended:

(1) Old age pensions for deserving indigent persons of 70 and upwards.

(2) Applicants for pensions must be British subjects of at least fifteen years' naturalization and 25 years' residence.

(3) That the maximum rates of pensions be twenty dollars a month which would be lessened by private income or partial ability to farm.

Provinces Must Consent.

Dominion and Provincial governments would share the cost on a fifty-fifty basis, according to report. An estimate made fixes the total cost of the scheme if applied throughout the Dominion at around $24,000,000 a year or $12,000,000 for the Dominion and $12,000,000 for the provinces. It is possible, however, that some of the provinces would not care to come in under the scheme. Subsequent to the hearings of the special committee, the provinces were sounded out and several raised objections. The proposal, it is stated, is to bring the scheme into effect only in such provinces as are willing to share the financing.

Recommended Them To Scores Of Sufferers

Manitoba Man Used Dodd's Kidney Pills For Aching Back and Bladder Trouble.

Mrs. G. I. England Received Great Relief and is Now Very Enthusiastic About Dodd's Kidney Pills.

DESFORD, Man., Mar. 5—(Special).—"I was troubled with my kidneys," states Mr. G. F. England, a well known resident of this place. "I used to suffer with an aching back and can assure you I found your Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me great relief. I have taken them for ten years and have recommended them to scores of sufferers."

It is noticeable that people who have used Dodd's Kidney Pills are always enthusiastic in recommending them to others. That is how Dodd's Kidney Pills have made and maintained their reputation.

Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They act directly on the kidneys strengthening them and putting them in shape to strain all the impurities out of the system. Dodd's Kidney Pills will enrich your blood and feed your nerves, and every dose you take will give you a new store of health and energy.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY NOTES

Enthusiasm Seen in the Work of Every Committee—1,000 in a Month Campaign Ready to Launch.

The enthusiasm of the directors is growing as the different steps toward organization for the year are taken, and they feel that it cannot help but be infections, and result in piling up the greatest membership yet seen in Peterboro. Every committee chairman is active, and taking care of his end of the work, so that when the big campaign for the "1,000 in a month" is launched, everything will be running smoothly. Preliminaries are completed, a most surprising list of premiums has been secured, and it is felt that the opportunity need only be presented to the garden and flower lovers of the city to secure their membership and co-operation. This year more particularly than any previous season, the officers of the society need the backing of every member. The society is highly honored by being privileged to entertain the Canadian Gladiolus Society this coming August, who will hold their annual convention and mammoth show in Peterboro, at the invitation of the local Horticultural Society. It is hoped that every individual member will feel a personal responsibility in this connection, and be ready to help in every way they can. This important visiting society is not coming as the guest of the directors and a few selected assistants only, but has accepted the invitation of the society as a whole, and every member is a part of the whole with a voice and a vote the equal of any. One way for all hands to help this year will be in doing his or her part in making Peterboro "The City Beautiful" as the slogan intimates, and also by remembering the second part of that slogan, "Gladiolus year," when planning their garden for spring.

Following are the committees who have the work in hand:

Finance Committee: Dr. Middleton (chairman), Reg. Turner, D. C. Grant, R. Harstone, Chas. Ackerman and J. J. H. Wallace.

Premiums, Parks and Beds Committee: D. C. Grant (chairman), R. M. Glover and Gordon J. Fallen.

Publicity Committee: J. H. Callander (chairman) and Harry Theobald.

Membership Committee: A. J. Madill (chairman), T. H. Dearborn, A. Mowat and V. R. Henry.

Membership Committee: Chas. Lacheur (chairman), J. E. Smith, J. Fred Reid, D. G. Melton, Geo. Evans, Lloyd Hamilton, Allan Brown, Victor Hamilton.

Every member is a working member, and is almost sure to have some option lists and membership tickets in his pocket. If you meet one and he does not ask you to join, ask him for your ticket. Beat him to it if you can.

RANEY DENIES HAVING REDUCED THE TAXATION ON DISTILLERIES

Declare Legislation Had Been Passed by the Conservative Government.

QUIET SESSION.

TORONTO, March 6 (Canadian Press).—Friday's session of the Ontario Legislature was both quiet and brief, and Government leaders disposed of many questions on the order paper, thereby divulging information on a variety of public matters. In addition, members introduced a few more private bills.

Statements by Hon. J. R. Cooke, Minister without portfolio, in his address Thursday evening, brought forth some protest from W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, but Premier Ferguson declared he fully concurred in the statements of his Minister.

Mr. Raney quoted Mr. Cooke as saying that he (Mr. Raney) had reduced taxation on distilleries while Attorney-General, and thus assisted them in their business. Mr. Raney contended that the legislation mentioned was enacted before he became a Minister. Premier Ferguson declared that Mr. Raney had given an enthusiastic ear to the plea of the distilers and had enabled them to progress by reducing their business assessment. Mr Raney asked the Premier if he thought that kind of a statement "was fair."

"I think no other construction could be put on it," the Premier replied.

"I am sorry the Prime Minister of this province would associate himself with such a statement," Mr. Raney said, and the matter ended there.

A bill to give villages the same rights as towns of granting amounts for work done outside the municipality was introduced by E. R. Wigle, Conservative, Huron Centre.

District Apartments.

George Oakley (Conservative, Riverdale) introduced a bill to give the city of Toronto power to prohibit erection of apartment buildings on certain streets, and bills to make other adjustments of municipal by-laws. A bill of similar local interest was introduced by F. C. McBrien (Conservative, South-West Toronto).

When members' questions were answered, it was stated that the Government had consulted George Oakley, a member of the Legislature, and one of the largest dealers in stone in Canada, on the feasibility of using Canadian stone in the Government's new Administration Building in Queen's Park. Mr. Oakley's firm had received the contract for the building. The Government had not requested the resignation of Mr. Oakley as member for Riverdale.

Premier Ferguson stated that the Government had purchased gasoline to the value of $16,268 for the Government-owned aeroplanes.

Oxford Road Work.

The following expenditures were made on roads in Oxford County, the Minister of Highways stated: 1923, $949,979; 1924, $236,538; 1925, $151,782.

Hon. George S. Henry also stated that 276 townships had taken advantage of Government grants by doing away with statute labor.

W. E. N. Sinclair raised objections on an answer to one of his questions, having been told that 100 persons or private firms had paid gasoline tax direct to the Government. The Premier said the names could not be given because it would expose private business. He would let Mr. Sinclair see the list, however, and Mr. Sinclair said that would be satisfactory.

ERECT MILL AT MINE.

Central Manitoba Co. Plans Operations.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 6.—Anticipating an annual gold production of $2,000,000 on their holdings, the Central Manitoba Mines Company will erect a 250-stamp mill, to be ready for operation by the summer of 1927.

In making this announcement, officials of the company indicated that exploration to date had shown very satisfactory results and plans are being laid for doubling the capacity of the mill if necessary.

With a break-up this spring further underground surveys will be made on the property.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Manager of Standard Bank Was Found Dead in His Apartment.

SUDBURY, March 6.— (Canadian Press.)— That Thomas A. Gale, manager of the Standard Bank here who was found dead in his apartment her on Thursday afternoon with a revolver beside him, committed suicide, was the finding of the coroner's jury at the inquest held into his death this afternoon. No reason for the act could be suggested except that the severe head injuries which Mr. Gale suffered three weeks ago when he fell to the ice while curling may have affected him. An inspector of the Standard Bank testified that no irregularities had been found in Mr. Gale's accounts at the bank.

CHARGE OF ARSON.

Joseph Charbaneau Arrested on Suspicion By Authorities.

OTTAWA, March 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Charged with arson, Joseph Charbonneau, butcher, was arrested here yesterday. Fire which broke out in his store on Feb. 7 and 8 are alleged to have aroused the suspicion of the authorities.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

RICKARD SPEAKS.

When Mr. Rickard speaks, he says something. Recently he named Chick Suggs as the best bantamweight in the country. In the Rickard rating he was No. 1.

Since Charley Phil Rosenberg is the champion, the opinion as expressed by the well known Mr. Rickard, created quite a flurry among ring followers.

When Abe Goldstein was bantam champion he steadfastly passed up an engagement with Suggs. Since losing his title, Abe isn't so particular. When he asked Rickard for an engagement at the Garden in New York, Tex named Suggs, Goldstein accepted.

I saw that bout and Suggs certainly made good the nice things that Rickard had previously said about him. He gave the former champion a most artistic lacing.

Suggs weighed 118 pounds for Goldstein and looked strong. It seems, however, he prefers the featherweight class as he has repeatedly challenged Kid Kaplan.

But Suggs is no super fighter as recent events have proved. He had better stick to his class the bantamweight.

PRAISE FOR SUGGS.

Three days after polishing off Goldstein at Madison Square Garden, Suggs hooked up with Babe Herman at Boston.

In Herman he picked a tough bird, regarded by many as superior to even Champion Kaplan. In his last fight Herman had knocked out the hard hitting Johnny Datto in Cleveland.

While Herman was the favorite to win over Suggs, the experts believed he would be hard pressed. In winning about as he pleased, Herman provided the first pugilistic upset of 1926.

While I still have a high regard for Suggs, despite the trouncing he received from Herman, it looks very much as if he had been overmatched.

Few fighters in the space of three days can meet two of the best men in the bantam and featherweight class. That is what Suggs tried to do and it proved too great a task.

Suggs a colored boy has been touted by eastern experts as the best bantam since the days of George Dixon. The defeat by Herman came as a great surprise.

STICK TO CLASS.

On the same program as Suggs at Madison Square Garden, was Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, who met Jack Delaney.

It was the Gotham debut of Risko. Undoubtedly he was a trifle nervous, working for the first time before a packed house of 20,000 critical New Yorkers.

Risko isn't one of those fighters who makes a good first impression. You must see him a number of times before you really appreciate his fighting ability.

There is nothing flashy about him and he lacks poise but he can fight, as Gene Tunney and Jack Delaney are now aware. Incidentally, Risko, even in good shape, is the type of athlete who looks to 10 to 15 pounds overweight.

"Where did you get the butcher boy, Tex?" yelled the fans as Risko in the first round floundered about the ring after the elusive Delaney. "Rock him to sleep, Jack, and let us go home."

Before the fifty round, the crowd that had been ridiculing Risko, was cheering him. At the finish he was fresher than Delaney, after having been the aggressor in every round.

Risko knows nothing about the Charleston and no one will ever marvel at his ring footwork but the young man can fight and has the courage to do it.

CABINET OF ARISTIDE BRIAND RESIGNS FOLLOWING VOTE OF NO CONFIDENCE BY CHAMBER

Defeat By 274 To 221 Received By Veteran French Premier.

ON FINANCE BILL.

Expected That He Will Form New Government Shortly.

PARIS, March 6 (Canadian Press).—The cabinet of Aristide Briand has fallen. Like five other ministries in less than two years, it was wrecked on the shoals of the Government's plan to bring about the financial rehabilitation of France. In the Chamber of Deputies early this morning the Government made the tax on sales provision of its financial bill a question of confidence in the Government. It was defeated by a vote of 274 to 221 and immediately afterwards M. Briand tendered his resignation and that of the other members of the Cabinet to President Doumergue. During an acrimonious debate in the Chamber in a night-long session, M. Briand several times made fervent pleas to members that they come to the aid of the Government and pass the necessary measures to enable it to tide over the financial crisis.

Briand Outspoken.

At one time Premier Briand was outspoken in his declaration that the Chamber was not showing a sense of its responsibilities in failing to vote money urgently needed by the Government.

M. Briand will leave for a Swiss city this evening. He declared that he would take no part in the official work of the League as he felt himself no longer qualified to make engagements on behalf of France.

Shortly after the vote of lack of confidence was given, M. Briand went to the Elysee Palace and presented the Cabinet's resignation, which President Doumergue accepted. M. Briand has been in office since November 27 last. He has held the premiership of France eight times. During his last incumbency he has had to steer the ship of state through stormy waters several times on matters related to the financial and Syrian situations.

M. Briand's cabinet was more or less a concentration ministry. In Briand's general plans of leadership the Radical Left cartel worked fairly well in unison with him, but it would have nothing to do with his and M. Doumer's financial projects.

Socialists, Communists and the Conservative minority voted against the Government on the question of confidence.

President Doumergue left during the morning for Lyons, declaring he would allow the deputies the weekend to think over the consequences of their vote. It was announced that he would begin consultations on his return from Lyons tomorrow for the formation of a new ministry.

Unprecedented Circumstances.

The unprecedented circumstances under which the crisis opens has nonplussed the most inveterate prognosticators and there is some talk of the necessity of M. Briand remaining at the head of the Government or at least at the Foreign Office. There are some timid suggestions that Joseph Caillaux's star is rising, while the more pessimistically inclined observers, look for the dissolution of the Chamber and new elections within three months or for the convocation of a national assembly for the revision of the constitution.

Franc Drops

LONDON, March 6 (Canadian Press).—The French franc dropped four points to 134 1-2 to the pound sterling on the London exchange market following the resignation in Paris this morning of the Briand Cabinet. Other rates were scarcely affected.

DIX RACING DRIVER IN LATEST PICTURE

"The Lucky Devil" Punchy Automobile Story

Richard Dix is an automobile racing driver in his latest Paramount picture, "The Lucky Devil," which opens on Monday at the Capitol.

That's the stuff!

"The Lucky Devil," directed for the screen by Frank Tuttle, who made "Too Many Kisses" and "Miss Bluebeard," is an original screen story by Byron Morgan, author of all the Wally Reid auto successes. Esther Ralston is Dix's leading woman.

Dix, as Randy Farman, who demonstrates auto camping outfits in a store wins at a charity bazaar a specially built roadster, around which has revolved a sensational breach of promise suit between the wealthy Rudolphe Franklyne, and a notorious show girl, Zola Amber.

Then follows a series of thrill-filled laugh scenes when Randy starts out on his long dreamed of cross country trip. At a tourist camp he meets and falls in love with Doris McDee (Miss Ralston), journeying with her mother in a battered flivver. The mother, suspicious of young men who travel in ten thousand dollar roadsters, identifies Randy's beloved car as the one in the famous Franklyne-Amber case, and takes her daughter and departs, leaving a broken-hearted Randy to pursue in a frantic effort to overtake the girl and explain everything.

From here on the laughs and thrills build up to unbelievable heights, the scenes including a bout between the star and "Gunboat" Smith (himself) and winding up with an automobile race that'll pull you out of your seat.

"BOBBED HAIR" IS FILM SENSATION

Marie Prevost to Be Seen Here as Heroine of Mystery Comedy

"Bobbed Hair," the Warner Bros. Classic of the screen, which is coming to the Regent Theatre next Monday for a three days' engagement, has an all star cast that includes Marie Prevost, who plays the leading role of Connemara Moore; Kenneth Harlan, who enacts her successful suitor, and Reed Howes and John Roche, the two dissatisfied swains.

Louise Fazenda has a role which combines comedy with drama, and Emily Fitzroy is a strict maiden aunt. The remainder of the cast includes Tom Ricketts, Francis J. McDonald, Helene and Dolores Costello, Pat Hartigan, Walter Long and Otto Hoffman. Alan Crosland, noted director of "Three Weeks," "Enemies of Women" and "Under the Red Robe," directed the production and Lewis Milestone wrote the scenario. Byron Haskins was the photographer.

The story deals with a headstrong but beautifufl girl who is forced by her aunt's will to decide upon her future husband by her twenty-first birthday. She has two men eager to marry her, one begging her to bob her hair, and the other pleading that she leave it uncut. Promising that her decision about her hair shall mean her decision between them, she prepares for a masquerade party. However, she finds she cannot make up her mind, and runs away with a strange man who passes in an automobile. Their ride leads to a series of dramatic and thrilling adventures, but when the exciting night is over Connemara has made up her mind—and marries the handsome stranger.

DOUG MacLEAN IS MAN OF MANY HOME TOWNS.

By Russell J. Birdwell.
NEA Service Writer.

The comedian was born in Philadelphia; spent his youth in Washington, D.C., and was educated in Chicago.

Douglas MacLean is the son of the Rev. C. C. MacLean, D.D., who served as pastor of large congregations in these three cities. The elder MacLean's prominence in church affairs established the family name to such an extent that his son today can claim and be claimed as a "home town boy" by any one of the three municipalities.

Under the direction of William Beaudine, Douglas MacLean will soon start production work on his next comedy "That's My Baby" which will be released by Paramount in the spring.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Cremulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited. Toronto, Ont.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

RICKARD SPEAKS.

When Mr. Rickard speaks, he says something. Recently he named Chick Suggs as the best bantamweight in the country. In the Rickard rating he was No. 1.

Since Charley Phil Rosenberg is the champion, the opinion as expressed by the well known Mr. Rickard, created quite a flurry among ring followers.

When Abe Goldstein was bantam champion he steadfastly passed up an engagement with Suggs. Since losing his title, Abe isn't so particular. When he asked Rickard for an engagement at the Garden in New York, Tex named Suggs, Goldstein accepted.

I saw that bout and Suggs certainly made good the nice things that Rickard had previously said about him. He gave the former champion a most artistic lacing.

Suggs weighed 118 pounds for Goldstein and looked strong. It seems, however, he prefers the featherweight class as he has repeatedly challenged Kid Kaplan.

But Suggs is no super fighter as recent events have proved. He had better stick to his class the bantamweight.

PRAISE FOR SUGGS.

Three days after polishing off Goldstein at Madison Square Garden, Suggs hooked up with Babe Herman at Boston.

In Herman he picked a tough bird, regarded by many as superior to even Champion Kaplan. In his last fight Herman had knocked out the hard hitting Johnny Datto in Cleveland.

While Herman was the favorite to win over Suggs, the experts believed he would be hard pressed. In winning about as he pleased, Herman provided the first pugilistic upset of 1926.

While I still have a high regard for Suggs, despite the trouncing he received from Herman, it looks very much as if he had been overmatched.

Few fighters in the space of three days can meet two of the best men in the bantam and featherweight class. That is what Suggs tried to do and it proved too great a task.

Suggs a colored boy has been touted by eastern experts as the best bantam since the days of George Dixon. The defeat by Herman came as a great surprise.

STICK TO CLASS.

On the same program as Suggs at Madison Square Garden, was Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, who met Jack Delaney.

It was the Gotham debut of Risko. Undoubtedly he was a trifle nervous, working for the first time before a packed house of 20,000 critical New Yorkers.

Risko isn't one of those fighters who makes a good first impression. You must see him a number of times before you really appreciate his fighting ability.

There is nothing flashy about him and he lacks poise but he can fight, as Gene Tunney and Jack Delaney are now aware. Incidentally, Risko, even in good shape, is the type of athlete who looks 10 to 15 pounds overweight.

"Where did you get the butcher boy, Tex?" yelled the fans as Risko in the first round floundered about the ring after the elusive Delaney. "Rock him to sleep, Jack, and let us go home."

Before the fifty round, the crowd that had been ridiculing Risko, was cheering him. At the finish he was fresher than Delaney, after having been the aggressor in every round.

Risko knows nothing about the Charleston and no one will ever marvel at his ring footwork but the young man can fight and has the courage to do it.

Defeat By 274 To 221 Received By Veteran French Premier.

ON FINANCE BILL.

Expected That He Will Form New Government Shortly.

PARIS, March 6 (Canadian Press).—The cabinet of Aristide Briand has fallen. Like five other ministries in less than two years, it was wrecked on the shoals of the Government's plan to bring about the financial rehabilitation of France. In the Chamber of Deputies early this morning the Government made the tax on sales provision of its financial bill a question of confidence in the Government. It was defeated by a vote of 274 to 221 and immediately afterwards M. Briand tendered his resignation and that of the other members of the Cabinet to President Doumergue. During an acrimonious debate in the Chamber in a night-long session, M. Briand several times made fervent pleas to members that they come to the aid of the Government and pass the necessary measures to enable it to tide over the financial crisis.

Briand Outspoken.

At one time Premier Briand was outspoken in his declaration that the Chamber was not showing a sense of its responsibilities in failing to vote money urgently needed by the Government.

M. Briand will leave for a Swiss city this evening. He declared that he would take no part in the official work of the League as he felt himself no longer qualified to make engagements on behalf of France.

Shortly after the vote of lack of confidence was given, M. Briand went to the Elysee Palace and presented the Cabinet's resignation, which President Doumergue accepted. M. Briand has been in office since November 27 last. He has held the premiership of France eight times. During his last incumbency he has had to steer the ship of state through stormy waters several times on matters related to the financial and Syrian situations.

M. Briand's cabinet was more or less a concentration ministry. In Briand's general plans of leadership the Radical Left cartel worked fairly well in unison with him, but it would have nothing to do with his and M. Doumer's financial projects.

Socialists, Communists and the Conservative minority voted against the Government on the question of confidence.

President Doumergue left during the morning for Lyons, declaring he would allow the deputies the weekend to think over the consequences of their vote. It was announced that he would begin consultations on his return from Lyons tomorrow for the formation of a new ministry.

Unprecedented Circumstances.

The unprecedented circumstances under which the crisis opens has nonplussed the most inveterate prognosticators and there is some talk of the necessity of M. Briand remaining at the head of the Government or at least at the Foreign Office. There are some timid suggestions that Joseph Caillaux's star is rising, while the more pessimistically inclined observers, look for the dissolution of the Chamber and new elections within three months or for the convocation of a national assembly for the revision of the constitution.

Franc Drops

LONDON, March 6 (Canadian Press).—The French franc dropped four points to 134 1-2 to the pound sterling on the London exchange market following the resignation in Paris this morning of the Briand Cabinet. Other rates were scarcely affected.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

Few golfers understand exactly what is meant by a three-quarter or half swing. The full swing with the iron is similar to the full complete swing with the wooden club. It is not often that a full iron shot is required, as it is quite possible to obtain as much distance this way as it would with the brassue What is most sought is direction or accuracy. In using an iron we nearly always attempt to play the ball either on the green or to some safe spot where the green can be reached easily.

The majority of beginners fail to play the iron well because they attempt to hit the ball up into the air instead of permitting the club to do this. Every club is lofted for this purpose.

All that is required in making a good iron shot is skill in making the club hug the ground following along in the track that the ball has taken. If one conuld strive to hit the ball into the ground he would come nearer to making a perfect iron shot than the one who attempts to lift the ball up.

Hudson Super-Six Brougham

HUDSON-ESSEX

The Time Proved "Sixes" and World's Largest Sellers

Hudson-Essex advantages in price, performance and quality are everywhere acknowledged "the World's Greatest Values."

The Hudson Brougham, illustrated above, has all the distinction of the fine custom-built cars. With the Sedan it gives Hudson a value leadership among luxurious cars as distinctive as the Coach holds in the utility field.

And for little more than the lowest-priced "Fours", Essex gives all closed car comforts with the performance and reliability of the most wanted "Six" type in the world. Because Hudson-Essex sales and production are the greatest of all "Sixes", and third of all motor cars made, they are priced way below any rival.

AROUND THE CITY.

Overheated pipes gave the firemen a trip yesterday afternoon to 72 Rogers Street. No damage resulted.

The storm of Wednesday completely blocked the Peterborough-Port Hope highway for motoring. A truck of the Andrews Cartage Company has been sitting in a snow bank since Wednesday. Ploughing operations are in full force and the road will be open again in a couple of days.

KIWANIS NOTES.

Peterborough Kiwanis Club is planning a big May Queen Festival to take place in May, and has applied for the use of the Armouries for a week.

This will be one of the biggest features of its kind ever put on in Peterborough and it will be novel in its presentation.

OBITUARY.

MISS EDNA FARLEY
BELLEVILLE, Mar. 6 (Canadian Press)—Miss Edna Farley, former tax collector for city of Belleville, a position to which she was appointed following the death of her father, J. M. Farley, died suddenly this morning at the family home here. She had relinquished the posion about one year ago.

MRS. THOMAS FAIR.
The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas Fair will take place from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Victor Hamilton, 40 Robinson Street, on Monday afternoon at two o'clock to the Little Lake Cemetery.

ROBERT SANDERSON.
The death occurred in Toronto yesterday of Robert Sanderson. The deceased man was a native of Cavan, having been born in that township on June 23, 1853. He leaves to mourn his loss one sister, Mrs. Alex. Ford of Vancouver, and four brothers, Alfred, of 203 Reid Street, Peterboro; Ethelread and Charles of California, and George of Petrolia. The funeral will be held from Comstock's undertaking parlors to Little Lake Cemetery at 3 o'clock on Monday. The Rev. M. C. Mackinnon will officiate.

IN MEMORIAM.
In loving memory of my dear husband, Jerry Van Norman, who passed away March 4, 1924:
Remembrance is a golden chain,
Death tries to break but all in vain,
To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things
But this they'll wipe out never—
The memory of those happy days, when we were all together.
—Sorrowing wife, Jane Van Norman and daughter and grandchild.

IN MEMORIAM.
BUGG—In ever loving memory of our dear Edna, who passed away on March 4th, 1922.
"Gone but not forgotten."

Deep in our heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we will keep it,
Because she was one of the best.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
That the smile hides all the while.
Ever remembered by Dad, Mother Sister and Brothers.

IN MEMORIAM.
STEVENS—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. Margaret Stevens, who passed away March 7, 1925.
Sleep thy last sleep,
Free from care and sorrow;
Rest where none weep,
Till the eternal morrow.

Though we may mourn
Those in life the dearest,
They shall return
Christ, when Thou appearest.
—Inserted by her daughter, Mrs. Egerton Chapman.

FEAR FOR SHIP.

Mexican Vessel is Several Days Overdue—No Reports.

SAN PEDRO, Calif., March 6.—(Canadian Press. — Concern is felt for the safety of the Mexican passenger liner Chisuasua, due here last Monday and not arrived. The craft left Mexican ports with passengers and general cargo. Although she is equipped with wireless, stations here and further south have failed to hear anything from the ship.

PAYING PENALTY.

Widow Leaving Toronto For Portsmouth To Serve Sentence.

TORONTO, March 6. —(Canadian Press.)—"If I have done wrong I am paying the penalty; let it be a lesson to others."

These were the farewell words of Mrs. Marion Betties, a widow, who was taken from Toronto to-day to Portsmouth penitentiary, where she will serve a sentence of four years, which was imposed when she was convicted with Dr. Walter L. Gilbert last month on a charge of performing an illegal operation.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

Fire, Starting From an Unknown Origin, Does Much Damage.

GUELPH, March 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Fire totally destroyed the large stone tannery of the Verner T. Smith Co. at Rockwood village, seven miles from here, this morning. The factory was recently used for the manufacture of rubber boots and tires. The loss is estimated in the neighborhood of $15,000 and no insurance was carried by the owners.

FUNERAL NOTICE.
The funeral of the late Mrs. Thomas Fair will take place from the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Victor Hamilton, on Monday afternoon. Service at the house at 2 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Gordon officiating.

Few things are impossible to diligence and skill.—Samuel Johnson.

NORWOOD MEETINGS

Presbyterian and United W. M. Societies Held Gatherings.

NORWOOD, March 5.—The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John E. Roxburgh. The chair was occupied by Mrs. Roxburgh, who also read the Scripture lesson. This was followed by a season of prayer, lead by Mrs. W. D. Robson, Mrs. Thos. Robinson and Miss C. Calder. A paper on "Prayer and Missions" was given by Mrs. John Rogers.

The last meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church for the conference year was held in the Sunday School hall on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. E. C. Squire, the President, presided. After the devotional exercises, some matters of business were settled. Rev. F. Stillman then took the chair and conducted the election of officers for the coming year, with the following results: Honorary Presidents, the Presidents of the former Methodist and Presbyterian groups, Mrs. E. C. Squire and Mrs. T. M. Wesley, also Mrs. J. B. Pearce, Mrs. W. E. Roxburgh, Mrs. J. Carter and Mrs. Richard Nicol; President, Mrs. R. G. Lawlor; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. (Rev.) Stillman; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Hugh Robb; Recording Secretary, Mrs. James Buck; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. McNeil; Superintendent Christian Stewardship, Mrs. W. F. Elliott; Strangers' Secretary, Mrs. Jas. Long; Superintendent of Mission Band, Miss Rose Squire; Assistant Superintendent Mission Band, Mrs. Claude Bougard; Pianist, Mrs. B. W. Squire; Assistant Pianist, Mrs. R. McMillan; Superintendent Associate Helpers, Miss Edith Burgess; President Young Women's Auxiliary, Mrs. John Weir.

Chimney Fire.
The Fire Brigade was called out on Monday night, but it happened to be only a chimney fire that was the cause of the alarm.

BANK MANAGER RETIRES

TORONTO, March 6. Canadian Press. — Fifty years as bank messenger, during which he carried millions of dollars, has been completed by Thomas Cook. He is 75 years of age, and is retiring. In all that time, he says, he has never suffered the loss of a single cent through holdups, though once he had a narrow escape; on that occasion he was carrying $100,000 in a bag, and he suspected two men who were following him. He spoke to a policeman who arrested them and they turned out to be wanted for robbery in the United States, where they were sent to the penitentiary for seven years.

K. OF C. BOWLING.
At the Knights of Columbus bowling alleys last evening, only two teams took part in the ladies' scheduled games. The Bluebells (Miss G. Doyle, captain) took three games from the Daisies (Miss Geraldine Collins, captain).

TRAPPERS REINFORCED.

Star Defence Man Reinstated—Affidavits Prove Age is 18.

NORTH BAY, Mar. 6 (Canadian Press)—North Bay Trappers will be reinforced by the return of Wick Barclay, star defence man, for their battles with Kingston in the finals for the Ontario Junior Hockey championship. The Northern Ontario Hockey Association today announced that Barclay had been reinstated. Barclay had been suspended for the play-offs because he submitted an incorrect birth certificate. Affidavits, however, established that Barclay is only eighteen years of age.

HOT ELECTION FIGHT.

Timmins Mayor Unseated After Seven Years in Office.

TIMMINS, Mar. 6 (Canadian Press)—One of the biggest election fights that has ever been staged in Timmins came to a close last night when Dr. J. A. McInnis, for seven successive years occupant of the Mayor's chair and two members of the 1925 council were unseated and members of the opposing factor were elected to their places.
Yesterday's election was held on the order of Judge Caron following protest proceedings which resulted in the December elections being declared illegal.
L. Longmore and J. H. Bacon are the new councillors and the new mayor is Ernest G. Dickson.

PROPOSED ENLARGEMENT OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS BY THE ADMISSION OF GERMANY TODAY THREATENS TO DISRUPT THE LEAGUE ITSELF BY DEMAND OF SPAIN

Eve of Momentous Meeting of League Council at Geneva Discovered Tension Between Nations and Grave Peril to Recent Peace Progress.

IMMEDIATE WELTER OF CONVERSATIONS

Spain Threatens to Withdraw From the League if Refused a Permanent Seat With Germany in the Council.

GENEVA, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Both Locarno and the League of Nations with the hopes of mankind they embody, stand imperilled, for last night Europe's leading statesmen separated without reaching an accord on the conditions under which Germany would enter the League of Nations.

These statesmen have gathered in Geneva to attend the meeting of the League Assembly and Council opening today, the chief business of which is to consider Germany's entry and the possible enlargement of the council.

No agreement was reached on the problem of the reconstruction of the council created by the demand of various nations for permanent seats. Germany was inflexible in refusing to accept any binding obligations in advance as to what she would do when she was elected to the council.

Demand from Spain.

Franae and Great Britain particularly France pressed for an agreement to admit Spain to a permanent seat and all the more insistently as the Spanish delegation had announced during the day that if Spain were not elected to a permanent place concurrently with Germany she would resign her league membership.

M. Briand, the retiring French premier; Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary; Count Skryzinski of Poland, and an imposing Spanish delegation all arrived at an early hour from Paris. They had hardly time to discover their hotel rooms before there was launched an almost frenzied series of conversations and consultations. Speed was deemed a great essential because M. Briand announced that he was returning to Paris last night to confer with President Doumergue today in an attempt to solve the French ministerial crisis.

Crowd of Journalists.

Geneva's streets, like winding byways and tinier than those of Locarno, were primarily dominated by swarms of journalists representing all sections of the globe, Germany alone sending one hundred. They moved swiftly between the various hotels, trying to keep in touch with official Europe which with seven premiers thirteen foreign ministers, scores of ambassadors and other diplomats, was today practically concentrated in Geneva, momentarily the world's capital.

They were told by the Spanish leader that Spain was certain to obtain a permanent seat immediately they saw M. Briand, smiling and indefatigable, calling on Dr. Eduard Benes, of Czecho-Slovakia, to get the views of the little entente on the thorny problem of the council reorganization. They observed M. Briand also hurriedly returning to his hotel and according a precious half hour to Count Skryzynski relative to the Polish candidacy for a permanent chair.

Portuguese Ex-Premier Is President League Assembly

GENEVA, Mar. 8 (Canadian Press)—Dr. Alfonso Da Costa, former Premier of Portugal, has been elected president of the Assembly of the League of Nations by a majority of 36 votes. A special session of the League of Nations Council opened today for the purpose of considering Germany's application for membership and to consider the proposal to enlarge the council board.

MILK SUPPLY IS UNDER DISPUTE

Producers Who Supply Kingston Advise Change in Regulations.

FROM TESTED COWS

KINGSTON, March 8.—(Special)—The recommendation of the Board of Health to the City Council asking that the tuberculin testing of herds supplying milk to the city be made compulsory, and that the pasteurization of the milk be optional, has stirred up a regular hornet's nest. There are many who say that the tuberculin test is sufficient, others who say that there should be both tuberculin tests and pasteurization. It is believed that when the matter comes before the City Council that it will be referred to a special committee for consideration.

At a meeting held last night, the Kingston District Milk Producers' Association passed a resolution advising the City Council to institute in Kingston, the same milk regulations as are in effect in Brantford, namely that all milk sold in the city be from tuberculin tested cows or be pasteurized and that a reasonable time be allowed before the regulations are enforced.

TO ASK BRIAND TO KEEP OFFICE

Doumergue and Herriot To Ask Him To Form New Ministry.

BAD IMPRESSION.

PARIS, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Determined efforts will be made to induce Aristide Briand to form another ministry to succeed that headed by him which was defeated in the Chamber of Deputies early on Saturday morning on a vote of confidence on his tax on sales clause in the Government's financial bill. Such, it is understood, has been the outcome of long conversations, between M. Herriott, president of the left cartel in the Chamber, and President Doubergue at Lyons on board the train returning from Lyons to Paris yesterday.

H. Herriot does not disguise his regret over the defeat of M. Briand which he says he would have done his utmost to prevent had he been in the chamber. The unfavorable impression created abroad by the resignation of the ministry, has not been without effect on those favoring Briand as successor to Briand.

NOW, HONESTLY—

It's a poor hunch.

Far be it from anybody to condemn good hard plugging—but the thing that enables to let you keep on plugging for years to come and go, is the bit of recreation and rest that intervenes.

Summer vacation is on the way. It's the time of year when people get that share of rest that is so important.

Use your vacation sanely. Let play take the place of work—and when you return to the job, you'll feel like sailing right in again with renewed vigor.

AGED WOMAN IS SENTENCED FOR KILLING HUSBAND

VERDICT OF JURY.

Man Was Slain So Wife Could Marry Other Man.

CHICAGO, March 8 (Canadian Press).—The romance of Mrs. Eliza Nusbaum, elderly grandmother, and John Walton Winn, her ex-convict sweetheart, has led one to the gallows and the other to prison for life.

A jury on Saturday night reached the conclusion that they, with three others, plotted the death of Albert Nusbaum "Grandma's invalid husbands, so she might marry Winn.

The jury, pledged at the beginning of the trial to hang a woman, if they believed her guilty of murder, fixed Winn's punishment at death, but let "Grandma" off with life in the penitentiary.

The 61-year-old woman and her 47-year-old suitor sat next to each other when the jury filed in. When it was read, Winn started to smile but quickly changed it to a frown. "Grandma" listened to her verdict and then quietly fainted.

PRESBYTERY MEETING

Will Be Held in Lindsay Church on May the 4th.

Lindsay Presbytery of the United Church of Canada will meet for its first annual session at Queen street church, Lindsay on Tuesday, May 4th. Unusual interest is attached to this gathering in view of the approaching General Council to which petitions will be debated on matters of far reaching interest. Reports will be received from the various charges, several reorganizations proposed in charges and a theological examination conducted of the four probationers within the Presbytery.

Delegates will also be elected to Conference which meets at Kingston on May 25th and matters concerning applications for changes in pastors and pastorates will come under review.

Ex-Crown Prince of Germany At Geneva During Session

GENEVA, Mar. 8—The former Crown Prince of Germany, travelling incognito as the Baron von Salisch, arrived at Lucerne Friday.

He is touring Switzerland and will probably visit Geneva during the League Assembly session. It is his first visit since 1913.

King Albert of Belgium also arrived at Lucerne today. The King and the former Prince are staying at different hotels and there is no likelihood of their meeting.

FARMER AND FAMILY ESCAPED IN NIGHT CLOTHES FROM BURNING HOUSE SUNDAY

Home of Melville Dafoe, Near Trent Bridge, Was Completely Destroyed—Report Property Was Not Insured.

(Special to The Examiner)

TRENT RIVER, Mar. 8—Melville Dafoe, his wife and two small children, had a narrow escape from losing their lives in fire which completely destroyed their home between 5 and 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

The Dafoe family, who lived on the Buchanan farm between Havelock and Trent River were awakened by smoke and the crackling of flames and escaped in their night clothes. The building and contents were destroyed and Dafoe will be a heavy loser as it is understood there was no insurance.

The family is at present in Havelock as the guests of Mrs. Dafoe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wright.

MOON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF TWO AT BELLEVILLE

Charged With Shooting Two Men in Drug Store April 6, 1925.

USUAL TRIANGLE

One of Victims Associating With Moon's Wife, Alleged After Shooting.

BELLEVILLE, March 8.—Trial of David Arthur Moon for the murder on April 6, 1925, of Clayton McWilliams and John McGie began today when the Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court opened here. Mr. Justice Kelly is presiding, H. A. Munro, Hamilton, will prosecute, assisted by B. C. Donnan, crown prosecutor for Hastings County, and the prisoner is defended by Hugh John McDonald, Toronto, assisted by Robert D. MacAuley, Belleville.

The case was adjourned from the Fall Assizes, owing to lack of time for Mr. McDonald to prepare a case, and the absence of an important witness, Mrs. Moon.

Moon has stood his long imprisonment well and does not seem to worry over the outcome of the case. He is alleged to have said that he did not know that he had shot McGie until the police officers informed him after his arrest.

Moon was the caretaker of the Bank of Commerce. On the evening of April 6 he secured an automatic from the bank and walked over to Lattimer's drug store where McWilliams was a clerk. McGie was with McWilliams at the back of the dispensary at the time, and it is assumed he came forward upon hearing Moon enter. One shot was fired without effect, but the second went through McGie's heart and he died almost instantly. There were three girls in the store at the time, two customers and a fountain clerk and their evidence at the inquest was that Moon walked around the show case and fired point blank at McWilliams, the bullet going through the latter's heart.

The story is that Moon had been drinking heavily on the day of the crime and was very nervous. It is said stories had been told him that his wife had been clandestinely associating with McWilliams, and that he had many times told McWilliams to keep away and not break up his home. Some time earlier in the evening Moon with a companion, Sidney Dawkins, went across the Bay of Quinte to a fish house and there tested a revolver by firing two or three shots. Dawkins got him back home, coaxed the gun away from him and hid it.

It is not expected the trial will be of great length, and that there will be few witnesses to examine. It is believed locally that Moon's war record will be part of the evidence offered. He enlisted in 1915, was at the front early in 1916, and had some harrowing experiences, among others having been blown up and buried in the disastrous bombardment of the 8th C.M.R. positions on June 2nd of that year, and having received a severe head wound during the advance on Cambrai which put him in hospital for a considerable period.

LAKEFIELD VETS TO HELP DWYER DURING TRIAL

Appoint Committee To Cooperate With Peterborough G.W.V.A.

FAIR SHOWING.

Will Stand By Their Comrade, Seeing That He Is Defended.

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 8 (Special)—Lakefield branch of the Great War Veterans' Association, of which George Dwyer was a member held a special meeting yesterday afternoon and appointed a committee to co-operate with the Peterborough branch in seeing that their comrade is given a fair showing and properly defended in his trial for murder. The members said they felt that they should stand by him in his trouble and see that he got a square deal.

Dwyer is charged with murder in connection with the death of his twelve year old son, and comes up for preliminary hearing in Peterborough on March 11.

Children from Convent Chant Over Body of Little John Dwyer At St. Peter's Cathedral Today

Rev. Father Paul Costello Sings Funeral Service, Assisted By Rev. Father Butler and Rev. Father Finn—About Three Hundred People Attend Service.

PARENTS NOT PRESENT AT FUNERAL; VIEWED BODY UNDER POLICE ESCORT

Jack Dwyer was buried today.

Snow drifted over the tiny casket before it was lowered into the ground at the unsheltered St. Peter's Cemetery, and blew in the faces of the score of mourners gathered around the grave. A west wind blew coldly, snatching away the phrases of the interment service from the lips of Rev. Father Butler. The coffin itself was snow white, and pitiably light. There was not a single flower to relieve the severity of its outline scarcely seen against the drifted snow.

But little Jack Dwyer lies at rest beside the body of his mother. A path was made through the snow to the plot where she was buried several years ago. Along the path, and in the foot-deep snow around the grave, stood a dozen weeping women who never knew John Dwyer, but sorrowed in his death. There too, were the three sisters of the little boy, supported in the arms of Mr. Edgar and Mr. Little.

The last rites of the church were carried out; the clergyman pressed the hands of the chief mourners—the little girls weeping in unashamed sorrow—and murmured his sympathy; the mourners turned away, and in a few minutes the body of Jack Dwyer was alone, save for the man who was shovelling earth and snow on to the coffin.

At the Cathedral

It was a small white coffin that was wheeled up to the sanctuary railing of St. Peter's Cathedral at two o'clock this afternoon, when the last rites of the church were solemnized over the body of little John Dwyer. Quite a number of people attended the simple service, and the sanctuary held a number of young acolytes bearing candles and lighted lamps. From the organ loft pealed the hymns in English and Latin from the lips of some eighty or ninety of the small girls of St. Mary's Convent. "Jesus, Jesus, Dearest Lord," they sang, and "O Sacred Heart of Jesus I Place My Trust in Thee." Over the small, emaciated body, resting more comfortably perchance in its quiet casket, cut off from all thoughts of earth and earthly things, done forever with any longing for food and warmth, were chanted the words of the priest, "sed libera nos a malo," (deliver us from evil) "requiescat in pace" (rest in peace) and the final prayer "May his soul, and all the souls of the faithful departed, rest in peace, amen."

Sister Wept

As her little brother's remains entered the church, Kathleen, the sixteen-year old sister, standing submissively by the door with her little thirteen-year-old sister, Nellie, sobbed and wept, wiping her eyes with the back of a reddened work-worn hand. The smaller girl did not weep. The fact that this little child had "died that these might live," the thought that he had given his life possibly in time to save his younger brother George and herself from conditions that might have led soon to their own deaths, had not reached the mind of the sad-looking little girl, in her worn coat and white stocking cap. Following the casket out of the church were two weeping women, an older sister of the child, Mrs. Robert Little, and an aunt, Mrs. Charles Bowen. Pallbearers with Mr. Lane, whose eyes were red, were a brother of the child's father, Wm. Dwyer, an uncle, Edward Ellis, and the brother-in-law of the child, Robert Little.

Services at the Cathedral were conducted by Rev. P. Costello, assisted by Rev. J. Finn and Rev. P. Butler.

The father and step-mother of the child did not attend the funeral. They were brought separately, in custody of County Constable Frank Pratt, to Lane and Eano's undertaking parlors, and there viewed the small body for the last time. The father is reported to have shown considerable emotion, the stepmother none.

Many Interested

The wide interest stirred in this district by Dummer's latest and most pitiable tragedy was evidenced on Saturday by the large number of people calling at the undertaking parlors to view the body. It is estimated that 2,500 people visited the parlors during the day and evening.

"Black Messiah" Hanged For Baptismal Murders

CAPETOWN, South Africa, March 8 (British United Press). Mwanalesa, the "Black Messiah," was executed at Broken Hill today for the baptismal murder of 21 or more natives who had sought salvation via the mystic negro's private right of way.

With Mwanalesa were hanged Chief Shaiwala and Headman Makwati. The three were leaders of a cult which found wide support among the natives. The principal rite of salvation was baptism by total immersion, and Mwanalesa kept some of his converts under the water so long that they were able to check up on his claims to possess the key to Heaven by immediate investigation. Although the charge against the negro recounted only 21 such murders, it is likely that many others died in that manner.

Throughout the trial the negroes professed complete ignorance of the nature of the charge against them. According to their faith, the death of a convert during baptism merely meant that he was possessed of the devil anyway, and therefore unfit for salvation. The decisions were accepted as acts of God.

LEAGUE LOBBY CROWDED TODAY

Members of Council Find Difficulty in Forcing Entry.

PROBLEM SOLVED.

GENEVA, March 8 (Canadian Press).—The crisis over the membership question in the League of Nations Council drew such crowds to the lobbies of the League's palace to-day that the delegates to the Council had difficulty in forcing their way into the Chamber, where they began a private session under the presidency of Viscount Ishii for the preliminary examination of the regular agenda.

Problem Solved.

GENEVA, Mar. 8 (United Press).—The election of Germany to the League of Nations and to Council membership on the condition that she would not thereafter veto the candidacies of Spain, Poland or Brazil is the solution of the League crisis under consideration to-day.

Turks May Come.

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Turkey to-day informed the League of Nations that she is examining its invitation to come to Geneva and discuss the Mosul affair before the League Council.

The Council therefore has postponed its consideration of the question for two or three days, giving Turkey an opportunity to appear before finally awarding the Mosul territory to the British mandate state of Irak.

"Valentino Supreme Man" Pola Negri Admits Her Love

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Mar. 8 (Canadian Press).—Pola Negri, the vivacious Polish actress, who once was to have married Charlie Chaplin is now to marry screenland's sheik, Rudolph Valentino, if her love for him can stand the test of four months' separation. The actress, who only recently emphatically declared that she would not marry Valentino or any other man has confessed her love for Valentino according to The Los Angeles Times.

"I think he is the supreme man—he is perfection" she said of him. "But I take marriage very seriously, very seriously. If I am ever married again, I am sure it will be for all time."

PRESIDENT RESIGNS.

Change of Officers Has Taken Place in the Manitoba Pulp and Paper Co.

WINNIPEG, March 8 (Canadian Press).—It was announced here on Saturday that J. D. McArthur had resigned from the presidency of the Manitoba Pulp and Paper Company and that W. N. Hurlbutt, of the Spanish River Company, had been appointed to the post. Mr. McArthur will continue as the vice-president.

REPORTS TO CITY COUNCIL

BOARD OF WORKS

The Board of Works reported and recommended as follows—

That a request from the Western Clock Company for the construction of a short drain be referred to the Chairman of this Board and the City Engineer.

That a letter from the Board of Commissioners of Police and other correspondence in regard to traffic control system be received.

That this Council respectfully protest to the Legislature the imposing of a tax upon gasoline used by Municipal cars and trucks inasmuch as these operate only within the municipality and not upon the highways for which the tax is imposed for upkeep.

That this Council respectfully protest to the Legislature the imposing of a tax for automobile markers used on Municipal cars and trucks inasmuch as these operate only within the municipality and not upon the highways for which the tax is imposed for upkeep.

That with reference to the laying of a sewer under the Canadian Pacific Railway track on Simcoe Street the standard form of agreement be submitted to the Railway Company.

That a Committee consisting of the Chairman of this Board, the Mayor and the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee be appointed to meet the Councils of adjoining municipalities in regard to fire protection.

That prices be procured in the usual way for road oil.

FINANCE COMMITTEE REPORT.

The Finance Committee reported as follows:—

The Chairman of this Committee was appointed to attend the meeting at Toronto called by the Union of Canadian Municipalities in regard to the proposed new schedule of rates of the Bell Telephone Company.

We recommend that no action be taken on the application of the Assistant Chief of the Fire Department for an increase of salary.

We recommend that the requisitions of the Board of Education and the Separate School Board be paid in instalments as requested by these Boards.

We authorized the City Treasurer to sell locally at par the five per cent. debentures that are ready to be sold.

We authorized the Chairman of this Committee and the City Treasurer to sell the debentures which are ready for sale, that are not sold locally, to Wood, Gundy & Company at the best price they can get.

We recommend that a letter from the Union of Canadian Municipalities asking this City to renew its membership in that Union be received.

We recommend that the City's membership in the Ontario Municipal Association be continued and that a cheque for Fifty Dollars be forwarded to pay the membership fee.

We recommend that Alderman Ackerman be the City's representative on the Trent Waterway Association.

We recommend that the Mayor be the City's representative on the Ontario Tourists' Association.

We recommend that a grant of Twenty-five Dollars be made to the Hospital for Sick Children at Toronto.

We recommend that the usual group pictures of the Peterborough City Council be procured.

We recommend that the Chairman of this Committee, the City solicitor and the Relief Officer be appointed to deal with the matter of a patient in a hospital who is the owner of a horse.

COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE COUNCIL REPORT.

The Committee of the Whole Council reported as follows—

We authorized the City Engineer to forward a letter to the Canada Accident and Fire Assurance Co., advising them of the then condition of the installation under the contract with F. R. Wilford and Co. and asking them, in view of the state of the installation at that time and that a possible claim may be incurred on account of this condition, to investigate the matter, and that a copy of the letter be sent to F. R. Wilford and Co.

We left it with the Mayor to arrange for representation of this City at the meeting of the Board of Railway Commissioners at Ottawa in regard to the new schedule of rates proposed by the Bell Telephone Company.

We authorized a letter to be sent to the Board of Railway Commissioners saying that the Council has seen and examined the new schedule of rates proposed by the Bell Telephone Company, and believes that the increased rates cannot be justified.

RAILWAYS AND PARKS COMMITTEE REPORT.

The Railways and Parks Committee reported as follows—

A letter asking that hours be allocated for hockey at the Inverlea Park skating rink was left in the hands of the Chairman of this Committee.

A request from the Ladies' Softball Association that they be given one day a week at the Riverside Park was left over until the Committee deals with the use of the Park.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT COMMITTEE REPORT.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee reported as follows—

That sufficient be placed in the estimates to provide for public liability and property damage insurance on the three pieces of motor apparatus in the fire station.

LEGAL COMMITTEE REPORT

The Legal Committee reported and recommended as follows—

That no action be taken on the claim made by O. de Laplante on behalf of W. Grisdale for compensation for damages to his car.

That the Chairman of this Committee and the Mayor be a committee to look after the City's interests in the matter of the withdrawal of the Peterborough-Port McNichol passenger train.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE REPORT

The Property Committee reported and recommended as follows—

That two flags be ordered from the Great War Veterans' Association to be placed where ordered by the Chairman of this Committee.

That a letter from the Local Board of Health requesting the Council to issue a license to only one scavenger and to pay the scavenger for his work and collect the cost in the taxes be received.

That the recommendation of the Local Board of Health that sanitary conveniences be installed in the house of Mrs. Hazel D. Herron, 575 Stewart Street and George Hawkes, 216 Woodbine Avenue, the cost to be paid in instalments be adopted and that the Chairman of this Committee be authorized to have sanitary conveniences installed in these two houses.

That the matter of boat house berth No. 21 on which the rent has not been paid be left with the Chairman of this Committee.

MR. ARCHIBALD'S SUGGESTION.

The suggestion made at the banquet of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition by E. S. Archibald, Director of the Experimental Farms at Ottawa, that the smaller fairs should be held first and be followed by the district exhibition is novel and interesting.

That naturally would be the logical sequence; the idea being that the best of the prize winners at the small fairs would come together at the big exhibitions for a final test.

However, there is a number of angles to the question, one great difficulty in the way of carrying out Mr. Archibald's suggestion being the natural reluctance of the management of the bigger exhibitions to risk the uncertain weather conditions of late autumn.

With the enormous overhead of these bigger events, heavy outlay upon amusement features and prize lists running into many thousands of dollars, it is obvious that as few chances as possible can be taken in regard to the weather, and thus the desire of the directors of such exhibitions to hold them as early as possible when the assurance of favourable conditions is more positive can easily be understood.

A week of bad weather would be a tremendous blow to the bigger fairs, a setback from which it would be a hard struggle to recover.

THE GAPS IN THE LEGISLATURE.

The opinion has been expressed that the fact that seven constituencies in Ontario are without representation in the Legislature is a matter of minor importance.

It is difficult to follow the reasoning that leads to such a conclusion.

To the average resident of the Province it seems as if depriving some 165,000 voters in Ontario of representation in Queen's Park is a matter about which there should be some concern.

There are various explanations as to the Government's failure to bring on by-elections in these seven constituencies before the present session.

One is to the effect that the strategy of the Dominion Conservative organization did not want Provincial contests to be staged until the Federal situation was clarified; another suggests that as the majority of the unrepresented ridings are "dry" in sentiment it might be convenient to have them voteless if a change in the liquor policy were to the fore.

Neither of these explanations is creditable to the Government, but either of them is as convincing as the statement that it was not considered advisable to have winter elections.

Whatever the real explanation, the fact remains that the present legislature represents not 100 per cent. of the people of the Province, but only a fraction under 94 per cent.

A TEST OF GRATITUDE.

Citizens of Peterboro are being given an opportunity on Thursday of this week to show in a practical way their sympathy for and interest in those most touching "fragments from France," the disabled veterans of Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, when a sale of the articles made by those heroes will be held in the G.W.V.A. Hall under the auspices of the local Thursday Club.

Most of these men have been bed patients since the end of the Great War, some of them longer than that.

Few of them will ever leave the hospital until that last day when they are carried out by former and more lucky comrades to be laid at rest in a soldier's grave.

The work that they do is something more than a collection of mere tangible things; it stands for the spirit in these victims of the war that makes them fight on when fighting seems to mean a hopeless struggle.

And therein lies the chief reason why the articles that are offered for sale should find a ready disposal here Thursday.

The sale of their work is not important for the money it brings; it is of the most vital importance, however, in the evidence it affords these men that there is still something left for them to do, that they are not mere shells, but still useful members of society able to create things which are appreciated by their fellow-men.

It gives them a new hope, a fresh courage, and surely these are desirable things for men who dared so greatly and have suffered so much.

If there is a spark of gratitude in Peterboro for the sacrifice and suffering of the men who fought in the Great War it will be revealed in this test.

The sale of work will be carried on from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday.

LOOKING FOR THE BEST IN OTHERS.

The impressions which we get of the world and of our fellow men depend very largely upon what we are looking for, says the New Outlook. If it is only the dark and seamy side of life upon which we fix our gaze we will almost inevitably become pessimists. When we close our eyes to the good there is in others and look only for their defects and faults, we are in danger of losing faith in our fellow men. The man who, on coming to one of our cities, should visit only the slums and criminal courts would have a very poor idea of our best life and the many attractions of our surroundings.

Some people seem to have a sort of instinct for ferreting out evil and scandal. They sniff from afar the faintest odor of anything unsavory in the reputa[illegible]ey are always on the lookout [illegible]es they, of course, find much to [illegible]emn; for none of us is perfect. But [illegible] of the scandal-monger and the fault-[illegible] error-sniffer is a poor business.

[illegible]re is a bright and hopeful side to life at which [illegible] will pay much better to look. Paul advised his friends in Philippi to think on the things that are true and honest, pure and lovely, for he knew how character is influenced by that upon which the thoughts are permitted to dwell. If you want to get the best out of life, look on the bright side and search out the good. When you go to a great city visit the parks and picture galleries, the beautiful buildings, the churches and public institutions. See what is being done to uplift and save the fallen, to help the poor and needy and to win men to a higher life. Try to find "if there be any virtue and if there be any praise," and "think on these things." You will thus unconsciously form a habit which will contribute more than you can realize to your happiness throughout life as well as confer an untold amount of happiness on others.

THE SPECTRE OF THE LEVEL CROSSING.

Under the foregoing title the last issue of the Canadian National Railway Magazine has an article that ought to be widely reproduced in the newspapers of Canada. The subject is presented from the point of view of the man in the railway cab. The article contains the following striking statement:

> "During the year 1925, statistics compiled by the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada show there were 214 automobile accidents at highway grade crossings, in which 58 persons were killed and 341 persons injured."

It is hardly fair to call these accidents, or at least a very large number of them. If a reckless motorist strives to beat a fast express to a crossing, and fails, it is not an accident. It is a stupid, wilful and reckless disregard of human life. It is easy to stop a motor at a railway crossing, but it is not possible to stop a fast train, with its tremendous speed and heavy weight. The motorist who takes such chances is a reckless fool. The pity of it is that he sacrifices other lives oftentimes with his own. An experienced railway engineer, whose views are set forth, has this to say about these reckless drivers:

> "You would be surprised to know how many motorists strike trains in the second and even the third coach back in these attempts to beat us. If we had tried to stop, we might have just succeeded in slowing enough so that our pilot would have struck and destroyed them instead of them striking us."

The article depicts the engineer of a fast train straining his eyes on approaching a level crossing, observing an automobile rushing for the crossing. He blows his whistle. "A thrill of horror seizes him, enfolds him." Perhaps the speeding auto comes to a stop a few feet from the track. The driver of it thinks it a great joke and waves his hand at the engineer. He little thinks of the mental torture which he imposed on the engineer, who is "clammy from head to foot" in consequence of the motorist's daredevil conduct. "To the engineer in the cab of your train they are the ever-recurring, permanent, hair-raising hazards and terrors of a life of service." The fact is that there ought to be nation-wide laws requiring motor drivers to stop at a safe distance from railway crossings, with severe penalties for violation. The foregoing figures ought to be deeply pondered by the people of Canada.—Brantford Expositor.

TITLES AND BUSINESS.

Many people in this country will be interested to learn from J. S. McKinnon, a man whose name is and has been prominently associated with Canadian industry, that Canada is suffering from the lack of titled Canadians in Great Britain, says the Woodstock Sentinel-Review. He declares that when a man from Australia with a title and a man from Canada with nothing but his plain name present their cards it is the man with the title who receives the attention. He adds that the British public cannot understand why the sovereign is unable to confer a title on Canadians.

The statement is all the more surprising because the people of Great Britain are supposed to be very well acquainted with the sources and origin of titles, and they are expected to know that the sovereigns have very little to do with the conferring of titles in their own country, except to follow the advice of their ministers, and that they had even less to do with the conferring of titles in Canada. Moreover, the people of England have been known to protest against the methods used in their own country in the securing of titles, and there have even been parliamentary investigations of charges of scandal arising out of alleged traffic in titles and honors. Some of the titled people of England seem to care very little for the "handles" to their names, and can make but little use of them, either socially, industrially or financially. The people seem to care even less. Why should the people of Great Britain worry about Canada? It does not seem that the multiplication of titles in Great Britain has had any material effect on the improvement of industrial and unemployment conditions there. If the industrial conditions there are not all they ought to be the explanation cannot be traced to the lack of titles.

But if there is any ground for Mr. McKinnon's complaint, a remedy may still be possible. Why not send more of our titled people to Great Britain to represent us there? We have still a few titled people in this country.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 7 (Canadian Press).—There were no further developments in the market in the cash wheat market saturday, the feeling was about steady and prices unchanged.

Owing to the liberal arrivals of fresh eggs the past week, a weaker feeling prevailed in the market for extras and firsts and prices closed 1c to 3c per dozen lower for the week. The demand continues good and a large amount of business was done, with final sales Saturday at 42c for extras, 36c for firsts, and 32c for seconds. Storage eggs were quoted at 32c for extras, 27c for firsts, and at 23c for seconds per dozen. Receipts 1,473 cases.

The feature of the trade for butter in the past week was the strong feeling that prevailed in the market and prices closed with a net gain of 2c to 2 1-2c per pound which was attributed to the comparatively small supplies available and the steady demand from local and outside buyers. The market was very active and final quotations on Saturday were 47c for Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery. Receipts 1,532 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 6 (Canadian Press).—Wheat reacted at the last today from an advance that was based largely on chances of crop damage by a prospective cold wave. The reaction was associated with disturbing financial rumors. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish, to 3-4c lower. May (new) $1.59 7-8 to $1.60 and July $1.39 1-2 to $1.39 5-8, with corn unchanged to 3-8c higher oats unchanged to 1-8c up, and provisions unchanged to 7c down.

Fellowship of Prayer

MONDAY

The Hope of Immortality.

I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live.

Meditation—The brother beloved was dead. To the sisters all life was ashes. "If a man die shall he live again?" Their only answer was: "at the last day he should rise"—repeated without real conviction. Jesus brought immortality and light to these sorrowful sisters and to all believers with the assurance of his own deathless life. Your brother loved me, and lived by faith in me. "Whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die."

"Seeking to account for the fact that in three centuries Christianity had achieved the throne of the Caesars, the Roman sceptic declared these disciples conquered through this new view of immortality, that realeased from the fear of dying and of death."

Prayer—O Lord Jesus Christ, who by Thy death didst take away the sting of death; grant unto us, Thy servants, so to follow in faith where Thou dost lead the way, that we may at length fall asleep peacefully in Thee, to waken in Thy likeness; through Thy mercy, who livest with the Father and the Holy Ghost, one God, world without end. Amen.

LOSES FINGERS

Asphodel Man Has Three Cut Off at His Sawmill.

NORWOOD, Mar. 8 — Ed. Scott who lives on the 7th line of Asphodel, and who has a saw mill on the 9th line of Dummer, met with a serious accident in the mill on Friday afternoon. All of the fingers of his right hand, except the little finger and the thumb were severed Mr. Scott was brought to Dr. N. F. Sutton of Norwood who attended to the injured member and afterwards he was taken to his home in Asphodel.

The Young Women's Auxiliary of the United church Presbyterian group met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Jas. Buck, Ridge street. The chair was occupied by the President, Mrs. John Weir. An interesting paper was given by Miss Stella Burgess. Miss Ona Finlay and Miss Ona Doxsee contributed a vocal solo and an instrumental solo during the evening. These were greatly enjoyed by all present. It was decided to re-organize the Auxiliary and elect new officers on April 16th.

What would your Wife do?

"Madame", concluded the salesman, "invest $5000. in this oil well to-day and within a year you'll be wealthy beyond your dreams."

The eyes of William Hartley's widow sparkled with interest. Little did she suspect that the whole scheme was a fraud. This man was so gentlemanly, his story was so plausible, he inspired so much confidence.

"I'm sorry", she faltered, "but I haven't $5000."

"But your husband had considerable insurance, didn't he?"

"Oh yes, but you see, I don't get it all at once. The Insurance Company sends me a cheque every month."

William Hartley's foresight saved his widow. Although he is dead, his wise judgment ensures her comfort as long as she lives. What about your wife?

DOWNFALL OF BRIAND'S CABINET CONFRONTS FRANCE WITH CRISIS MOST SERIOUS IN THIRD REPUBLIC

Budget Not Passed and Chamber Helplessly Divided —No Group Has Majority.

GRAVE SITUATION

Dissolution of the Chamber Held to be Impracticable—Muddle Prolonged.

PARIS, March 8.—When in the murky beginning of a dismal day Aristide Briand, his shoulders more stooped than ever and his face white and drawn with fatigue, walked out of the French Chamber of Deputies Saturday morning after the keystone of his fiscal bill had been defeated, there began what may well be the most serious governmental crisis in the history of the Third Republic.

Because of its deep-seated causes, before it is over this crisis may do tremendous harm to France at home and abroad. One need be no pessimist to say the situation is most discouraging.

What is the situation, domestic and foreign, on which the present Paris muddle may have such effect?

At home, with an unbalanced budget due to failure to impose taxation sufficient to carry the enormous burden of the war debt of France, the Chamber is divided against itself to an extent which has rendered it impotent. There is a majority neither to the Right, in Centre nor to the Left. The bloc of the Left parties, having more than half the votes, will not support a Right Government, has proved over and over again that it is incapable of governing itself, and now has rejected the best Centre Government which may well be imagined.

Sought to Avoid Crisis.

For let there be no illusion that M. Briand fell on a fluke vote. Breaking with French parliamentary practice, breaking with his own practice, the man who eight times before had been Premier had been put in a minority eleven times in the past month. He stuck to power against his policies and against his wishes because he wished, for the country's sake, to avoid the crisis which is now upon France. There is no question about his being beaten.

And what next? Dissolution? That is impracticable, for not only has the new election law not been passed, but this year's budget has not been voted. Not only have extra taxes to balance the budget not been voted but the budget unbalanced has not been voted. Were the budget passed and were the new election law in existence, M. Briand would probably advise President Doumergue to dissolve the Chamber, which has proved so unworthy of its mandate, but under existing conditions it appears next to impossible to follow that course for the moment.

Public Wants Action.

Of course it is possible that a great wave of public resentment might bring the Chamber to vote the necessary tax bills in a form the Senate would accept. In the past three weeks the public has made no secret of the fact that it wanted action, almost any sort, to put an end to the muddle of the past two months.

Suppose the Left takes power and votes its canonized capital levy. It is certain the Senate will turn it down and there will be another crisis. Suppose a Right Government were to go in. It would not have the support of a majority in the Chamber as long as Deputies remain in the humor they showed Saturday night. As for a Centre Government, if M. Briand cannot do the task, who can?

It does not explain the situation to say that if some tax bill were presented without a sales tax, for example, but with other provisions bringing in as much revenue the situation might be solved that would be logical if one could suppose the Chamber would handle financial measures upon their merits. But in the debates of the past eleven weeks not one measure has been judged on its merits. Every

WAS NOT SPY SAYS LINCOLN

Is Going To See British Representative at The Hague.

BURY THE PAST.

OLNDON, March 8—(Canadian Press).—Ignatius Tribich Lincoln, notorious spy of the European war, arrived Saturday aboard the steamer Coblenz and his first words were "How died my poor boy." The correspondent of the London Daily Mirror of whom he asked the question, replied, "bravely" and Lincoln said: "It is well, it is what I wished."

Lincoln has made the trip from Ceylon on the steamer Coblenz hoping to reach London in time to see his son, Ignatius, alias John Lincoln, before he was hanged in Shepton Mallet prison, for murder.

He was forced to take the slowest route and thus was long delayed. After speaking of consolation he had received from Buddhism, Lincoln said: "My one aim is to get back to England. I have written to Home Secretary Hicks who is a very fair minded man and I am going to The Hague to submit my case to the British representative. Let us bury the past. I was not a spy. I emphatically deny the accusation. I would like to re-open the matter."

STARTED PAPER FIRE IN PIPES TO 'BURN OUT' CHIMNEY AND FLAMES DESTROYED HOUSE AT STIRLING

Samuel Belshaw Saved Some of Furniture—Wife Was Confined To Bed.

BLAZE UNNOTICED.

Lodged in Roof and Made Swift Advance—Some Insurance.

STIRLING, March 8.—The residence of Samuel Belshaw, just outside the village limits, near the Campbellford road, was completely destroyed by fire on Friday afternoon. Mr. Belshaw had cleaned his stovepipes and put some paper in the chimney to burn it out, and from this the fire had made some progress in the roof before being discovered. With the help of those who hurried to his assistance, Mr. Belshaw was able to save considerable of the furniture in the lower part of the house, but little from upstairs and nothing from the cellar.

Mrs. Belshaw was confined to her bed in an upper room and was, with difficulty, removed from the flames. Mr. Belshaw had some insurance. The family are staying for the present with neighbors in the immediate vicinity.

SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL THEATRE DESTROYED BY FIRE SATURDAY

Museum, Picture Gallery and Library Saved By Firemen.

WIND FAVORABLE.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Eng., March 8 (Canadian Press).—The Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, known to thousands of Canadians who have made the pilgrimage to the birthplace of the great poet, and tower adjoining it, were destroyed by fire Saturday. The museum and picture gallery, which formed a part of the Shakespeare Memorial group, were saved.

The blaze was of unknown origin. A passer-by noticed smoke issuing from the theatre which stands on the bank of the Avon, and turned in an alarm. Fire brigades gathered from the surrounding towns and villages and thousands of the townspeople were quickly on the scene, but efforts to save the theatre were hopeless.

The tower, 120 feet high and commanding an admirably view of Stratford, acting as a huge draft chimney, encouraged the flames which gutted the entire interior.

Aided by a favorable wind, the fire fighters devoted their chief efforts to having the museum and picture gallery, which contained valuable Shakespearean collections autographs and relics, and the library which includes rare editions of the plays and the famous "Droeshout portrait" of the poet. All these were saved.

WIRELESS CHAT OVER ATLANTIC

New York and London Conversation by Radio-Telephone Sunday.

BELL ANNIVERSARY

LONDON, March 8. — (Canadian Press). — British listeners-in were treated Snuday to a radio-telephone chat across the Atlantic between a group of British newspapermen in the General Post ffice in London and a group of Americans in New York.

It was a fitting celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the issuance to Alexander Graham Bell of the basic patents on the telephone. Three thousand miles were eliminated by the radio-telephones, the conversations being heard distinctly and with as much ease as a telephone talk within the City of London.

Experiments in telephonic communication between London and New York have been in progress several weeks, but yesterday, for the first time, a definite schedule of communication between two distant cities was carried out with large groups of men participating in the outgoing and listening to the responsive incoming conversation.

Through a linking-up of the land line between Rugby and London, the broadcasting station at Rugby was able to relay portions of the outgoing conversation while a similar arrangement was made between London and Wroughton, whereby the eastbound conversation was picked up and relayed on a different wave length in such a manner that no manipulation of switches was necessary. Consequently the flow of conversation was uninterrupted and audible to a large group of listeners at the General Post Office as well as to countless private radio users.

RUM WAR COSTS U.S. $25,000,000

Federal Estimate Excludes Enforcement Aid From Various States.

STUPENDOUS SUM

WASHINGTON, March 8. — The cost of prohibition enforcement for the present fiscal year was put at $25,231,000 by General Andrews, the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in testimony given before the House Ways and Means Committee on Saturday. General Adams informed the committee that he did not have the slightest idea what it would cost the Federal gavernment to enforce the dry laws without the aid of the States.

'Would the sum be so stupendous you can't conceive of it?" asked Representative John N. Garner, Democrat of Texas.

General Andrews said that the idea itself was stupendous because it would involve taking over the Department of Justice for prohibition enforcement. He stated that the provision of the Mellon bill setting up the customs service as a separate bureau would add to that organization's efficiency and make it more responsive to the needs of business. The Director of Customs, Mr. amp, explained the bill as it affected the branch of the Treasury over which he presides.

"Has the enforcement of prohibition and the Eighteenth Amendment made it necessary to add men to the customs force " Representative Rainey, Democrat, of Illinois, asked.

"Yes, we have added 125 men since that time," replied Mr. Camp." We have had to absorb prohibition work, however, for we get no money from the prohibition appropriations for it. We have had to spend between $600,000 and $650,000 directly and indirectly on our prohibition work."

A report that Congress soon would be asked by several organizations to pass a law to take an oath of office specifically swearing that they would observe the Eighteenth Amendment, and the enforcement law, created a good deal of a stir among the members of both House and Senate today. It was said that various women's organizations would initiate such a campaign and that it would be pressed vigorously before committees of both branches of Congress.

SETTLE NURSE'S DAMAGE ACTION

Oshawa Woman Injured By Automobile Near Campbellford—$400 Reported.

COBOURG ASSIZES.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 8. — There was only one case, a civic action, entered for hearing at the Cobourg Spring Assizes which open in that town next Tuesday and this matter has been settled out of court. The parties to the defense were all residents of this district, and the plaintiff, a trained nurse who resides in Oshawa, claimed damages in the sum of $2,000 for injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

Angus Brunton, Edwin H. Sanders and Warrington Hay last summer were working with the Seymour township road gang, the first named being a son of Ernest Brunton, the superintendent. One Saturday night young Brunton and Sanders started from the road camp to Campbellford in Sanders' car, the former, who is said to be under 18 years of age, acting as chaffeur. When they were a short distance from town their car went on strike, and they sent a distress call to Warrington Hay, who was already in Campbellford, to go to their rescue. Hay soon had the car in working order again and three statred for town.

Miss Isabel Soule, the trained nurse referred to, had been engaged in a professional capacity at the home of Albert Phillips, who was driving her in a buggy to Campbellford. There was a collision between the buggy and the car driven by young Brunton and Miss Soule was thrown out. In her suit for damages the plaintiff alleged that she had received permanent injuries which prevent her from continuing her professional duties. She alleged further that Angus Brunton, being under age, had no right to be driving a car on the public highway and that the men who were with him should not have permitted him to do so.

Some time ago the plaintiff offered to settle the case for $500, but the defendants considered this figure too high. It is undestood that the amount which they agreed to pay is $400.

Little folks' appetites often lag for want of healthful outdoor exercise and sunshine. You can quickly increase their appetites and at the same time build strong sturdy bodies, promote growth and resist disease by giving them good cod-liver oil.

Not all cod-liver oil is good cod-liver oil, however. It is the A and D vitamin content in cod-liver oil which makes it valuable. "A" is the growth-promoting and disease-resisting vitamin. "D" is the factor which prevents and cures rickets. In ordinary cod-liver oil the vitamin content may soon be lost through exposure of the oil to air in its preparation and handling.

Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is unusually rich in body-building, disease-resisting vitamins. It is prepared by an exclusive process which not only preserves the Vitamins A and D, but renders the oil more palatable. When kept on ice and taken cold, Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is practically tasteless. It has been tested and proved unusually rich in both the health-giving vitamin and in the element which prevents and cures rickets.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN, because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago, where the theater is. The stub is traced to THOMAS FOGARTY, a political boss, who says he gave it to ALGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi, and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Chicago and later is attacked by two men, but escapes.

Jimmy and Olga out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police picture as IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness kindles hatred in her and she breaks their engagement.

LIEUTENANT O'DAY, a police friend of Jimmy's, invites the latter to dinner. There he tells him of a boyhood romance between Henry Rand and a girl named MARIE REAL, that resulted in a break between Henry and his father, Thaddeus Rand, and in Henry's leaving home.

Jimmy goes home to his room to find Barry Colvin. Barry has with him a ring that belonged to Henry Rand.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIV

"You say it belonged to dad?" He frowned.

"Janet gave it to me to show you. She ran across it when she went through some papers he had in the safety deposit vault in the bank."

Jimmy frowned. "Just a plain signet ring. I guess it was dad's, all right. Here are his initials, H.R. But I never saw it before, Barry. He never wore it."

His face went very white. "From Marie to Harry," he said slowly, reading the inscription inside the ring, "September 25, 1898. September 25 was my father's birthday, Barry."

He glanced up at Barry. "What did Janet say? Does mother know about it?"

"Janet said your mother knew nothing about it. You see, Jim, the ring was given to your dad after his marriage. That's why Janet didn't want your mother to know."

"Barry, you once asked me if there could have been another woman in dad's life."

"I'm sorry, Jim." Barry reddened. "There was. I know who this Marie was. Her name was Marie Real. I've just heard about her. It was a boyhood romance. Listen."

He sank down on the bed and, with the ring in his hand, he told Barry Colvin the whole story, just as O'Day had told it to him. . . .

"What a pity!" commented Barry when Jimmy was through. "And so they did see each other again, after all—this Marie Real and your father."

"We can only guess. The ring would make it appear so. . . . Barry, did you ever hear of a concert or stage singer named Marie Real? It would have to be some time back, for she'd be nearly fifty-five years old now."

Barry shook his head.

"Of course," Jimmy went on, "we don't know whether they met accidentally years after they had both left Durbin, or whether they were in communication with each other all along."

"Probably the first, Jim. You see, your dad married someone else."

"Oh well, they both might have decided they made a mistake."

Barry shrugged. "I confess it's got me guessing. . . . Do you think it's linked up in any way with the murder?"

"But if this Marie Real is still living, and we can find her, it might help."

"I'll turn the ring over to Detective Mooney, Barry. Maybe he can do something."

"Of course, she might have had another name, a professional name. It might be possible to trace her through some of the theatrical booking houses and other agencies in New York."

Jimmy was pacing the floor. He stopped. "Is that why you came here, Barry? To show me this ring?"

"Not entirely. I've got some business here. . . . And there's another reason, Jim. Janet wants you to come home. There was another letter."

"You mean—"

"Another one of those unsigned warnings. It's got her pretty scared."

"What did this one say? Did you bring it?"

"No; I gave it to Mooney. It simply said that there wouldn't be any more warnings—that you had had your last chance."

"Good! I'm glad there won't be any more." Jimmy laughed, but a trifle nervously.

"Jim, it's got you worried. I'm worried myself."

"Well, to be truthful with you, it's not exactly a pleasant sensation to know I'm being watched like this. . . . Oh well! . . . By the way, I saw the man that Olga Maynard went out with that night—the man she said might have got the stub and the handkerchief. He was one of the men who tried to waylay me that night that I wrote you about."

He told Barry the details.

"It might be," Barry said, "that this Ike Jensen is the one who is writing the notes."

"Or somebody he knows," supplemented Jimmy. "There's more than one man mixed up in this. Jensen, if he's still in town, isn't taking any chances being seen mailing letters. He's lying low, Barry—for two reasons. In the first place, there was that mixup with me. And then he saw Olga with me and saw Olga recognize him. Lord knows what he thought when he saw us together, but he must have a suspicion that she's told me about the handkerchief.

"I don't think he knows anything about the ticket stub, Barry. I think that fell out of his pocket and he didn't see it. At any rate, it's sufficient to make him hide. . . . I'll bet he's worried sick, wondering how much I know."

"Yes, and how you came to know Olga Maynard."

"What does Mooney think about it? About those letters I've been getting?"

"Well, Mooney, of course, thought he was going to find this H. A. Jones person in Grafton. But he's pretty sure he says, that these threats against you are all mixed up in some way with the murder. He thinks you ought to leave town and go home. Says if you don't he's going to frame some kind of charge against you and come after you with a warrant. He's worried about you."

Jimmy laughed. "Mooney's a man of direct action—and of originality. No, Barry, I'm not going home until the puzzle is unraveled. . . . You see, as long as I stay here I seem to be a source of irritation to someone who evidently knows a lot about the murder. If I go home, they may never find him. But if I stay the chances are this person will get a little overanxious and make a slip. Then we'll get him."

"If you insist on staying," remarked Barry drily, "someone's likely to use you for target practice. Or perhaps a knife between the ribs." He went through the pantomime of a dagger thrust.

"That's a little far-fetched, Barry."

"No, it isn't not by a long shot," the other persisted doggedly. "If you won't come home, then I'm going to stay here a while and be your bodyguard."

"How long shall you be in town?"

"Oh, a few days. Then I'll have to run back to Grafton for a day. Then I'm coming back here and inflict myself on you. Unless, of course, you listen to reason."

"Good. Make yourself at home. You can share this room with me. If you like, I'll have Mrs. King put in twin beds."

"It's not necessary, as far as I'm concerned."

"Nor for me. The old army took a lot of finicky notions out of our heads, didn't it? By the way, while you're here I want you to meet this Olga Maynard. Maybe after you see her you'll agree with me that she's all right now."

Barry was silent.

"Old doubting Thomas, eh?" Jimmy laughed. . . .

"Give me a cigaret, Barry," Jimmy said a few minutes later. He shivered. "Lord, I'm as nervous as an old woman."

"I should think you would be," said Barry, lighting the cigaret for him. "A sensible person would clear out and go home."

"It's this feeling of being constantly watched, Barry. It's not the threats. I think they are a schoolboy trick . . . But to be haunted by the feeling that every move of mine is known to this—this someone, whoever it is."

He clasped and unclasped his hands nervously. "If only he would come out in the open. . . . Barry, have you ever read about any of these vendetta murders?" He forced a smile. "I feel as I imagine a man who has been marked as a vendetta victim must feel. . . Not exactly, you understand . . . It isn't fear actually—"

"It's a plain case of nerves, Jim." Barry laid his hand on the other's shoulder. 'Come home and take a rest, before you go to pieces. Maybe that's just what these people are trying to do—make you a nervous wreck."

"Oh, probably I exaggerate my feelings. It's not that bad. I get presentiments, you know. . . . The night I was followed home and I had that mixup with Jensen, something kept telling me that I was being followed. . . And tonight!—"

He paused. "—tonight, on the short walk from the street car here, I kept imagining the same thing."

"Oh, jim, go to bed. You need sleep, that's all."

"I suppose so. No reason to think anybody was following me tonight. There's a policeman detailed to do nothing but patrol this block since that other night."

Barry yawned. "I'm ready for the hay myself.' He got to his feet and stretched. "By the way, jim, are you a polar bear or something?"

"What do you mean?"

"Well, when I came in the room, the window was open. It was cold as the devil. It's raw outside."

"That's funny." jimmy stroked his chin thoughtfully. "It wasn't open when I left. Maybe Mrs. King came in to clean and wanted to air the room. Unusual, though, for her to clean at night."

He laughed. "Maybe it's spooks, Barry. Better—"

His voice was drowned out in the sudden sharp roar of sound that followed—a crashing pistol shot, and then the tinkling of breaking glass. The bullet sang past jimmy's head and buried itself in the wall over the head of the bed.

jimmy dropped to the floor. "My God!" gasped Barry, "are you hit, jim?"

"No. Get down, that's all. Quick! Get down on the floor."

But there was no need. The sound of scuffling feet came from the porch, on to which the window opened. There was dead silence for a space, and then the two of them, white of face and stunned, ran to the window together and looked out into the night.

DOWNFALL OF BRIAND'S CABINET

vote has been on political considerations.

With all this tie-up about a ten per cent. increase in taxes, for that is what is needed, the Treasury faces heavy calls the next few months through maturing securities, not to mention the cost of the war in Morocco, about to begin again, and of the war in Syria, where the peace negotiations broke down on Saturday.

However, that does not mean that France as a country is in an impossible situation. France is rich and Frenchmen have enough money to meet the budget charges without a superhuman effort. Any one of a dozen measures could bring in an extra 4,000,000,000 francs in taxes, but conflicting theories have tangled the situation with strings of arguments about whether the rich should pay or the poor should pay, or whether taxes should be paid directly or indirectly, so that the result is confusion worse confounded.

Tax Problem Political.

Up to the present France's tax problem is political and not economic. But it is entirely possible that an extended crisis may change all that. If before the danger of a heavy fall in the franc the Deputies will come to place the country's interest over their own for a few moments the situation may improve more rapidly than most suppose, but so long as one sees spectacles such as that presented on Saturday night when the Chamber wasted precious time discussing whether a farmer should be entitled to three or five laborers before enjoying a certain remission on an income tax he does not pay anyhow, no Finance Minister is going to solve the problem.

From the point of view of exterior affairs the present crisis is equally ill-timed. Under the leadership of M. Briand, France has turned from the Poincare policy of force to the Locarno policy of canciliation. There is no unanimity about it, but M. Briand has carried his policy along successfully. Now, on the eve of the meeting of the League of Nations which is to admit Germany and bring the Locarno system into effect with its guarantees for France, the French Premier, who has directed all the work, loses his job.

True enough, M. Briand went to Geneva. True enough, the French Chamber, whatever it did to his tax measures, approved Locarno by an overwhelming vote. But it would be folly to believe France can exert her full strength at Geneva when she has no Government, when her delegates merely represent a hold-over regime.

RECTOR EXPLAINS STORY OF BEN HUR

Rev. G. C. Clarke Delivers a Lecture in Campbellford Parish Hall.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 8. — "Ben Hur," the story that every gospel believer can read and find new confirmation of his faith, the story that has been translated into almost as many languages as the Bible itself, that has been told to thousands from the stage and on the film, and which for nearly half a century has been recognized as one of the classics of modern English literature, was illustrated by lantern views at the Parish Hall Friday night at one of the popular weekly entertainments given by the congregation of Christ Church. And Ben Hur is the story that for more than two years after it had been written by General Lew Wallace of Indiana, remained unsold and unread, was regarded as a failure by its disappointed author, and then in 1880 was thrust into prominent notice by an incident in which the characters were a candidate for the presidency of the United States and a newspaper reporter.

The late General James A. Garfield was in the year 1880 nominated by the Republicans for the presidency. In those days the party candidate was not allowed to take any part in the campaign lest he should be tricked into saying something to which the other side could take exception. After his nomination he was required to remain in the seclusion of his home, receiving only accredited friends who were guaranteed to leave politics out of the conversation.

One day when a correspondent for the Associated Press called at the home of General Garfield to get a story on how he was spending his enforeed holiday, he found the presidential candidate sitting on the porch quietly reading a book. Naturally the conversation turned on the nature of the volume in which the General was interested, and the latter spoke the words that made a hitherto neglected volume the best seller in a generation.

"This," said the General to his caller, "is a religious novel by one of my companions in arms in the Civil War, General Lew Wallace. It is a book that has been in my library for some time, but which I have never before had a chance to read. It is called Ben Hur and is a story of the life of the Christ. In my opinion, it is one of the greatest religious works ever written and a splendid commentary on the New Testament."

The Associated Press carried the words of General Garfield to every corner of the country, and in a few days the demand for Ben Hur was unprecedented in every book store in the United States and once read the popularity of the novel was assured.

The Illustrated Story.

Rev. G. C. Clarke, rector of Christ Church, delivered the lecture explaining the different pictures shown on the screen. Owing to its length, only half the story was dealt with last night, but the remainder will be taken up at the entertainment next Friday evening. The best is yet to come. The next set of pictures will include the famous chariot race, the closing scenes in the life and the death of Christ on the cross.

The illustrations shown last night were vivid pictures of the main incidents in the first part of the story, the apparently accidental meeting of the three wise men in the desert, men who found that they were travelling on the same mission and who were guided over the trackless sand by the flaming star to the manger at Bethlehem in which lay the newly born Prince of Peace. There was a striking picture of the angel choir that announced the nativity to the shepherds as they watched their flocks by night.

The words of popular hymns were thrown on the screen and sung by the audience, Miss Gertrude Maynard playing the accompaniments.

WEDDING BELLS

LOVELESS—WALLBRIDGE.

MARMORA, March 8. — On Thursday afternoon at the United church parsonage, Hazel Pearl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wallbridge of Marmora township was united in holy wedlock to Mr. Ross Loveless, also of Marmora township. Rev. F. J. Horwood performed the ceremony.

WARSAW NEWS

WARSAW, March 4.—The girls of the sewing class wish to thank Mr. E. Hawthorne and Mesdames William Carveth, Percy Lloyd, W. Anderson, W. Laporte and J. A. Crowe, who so kindly lent their sewing-machines.

At the February quarterly Board, held at Bethel, the board members expressed themselves as much pleased with the services of Rev. H. B. Herrington and were unanimous in their invitation that he should remain.

Mr. Herrington has not been any too well for some time and on Sunday afternoon had to turn back before reaching Carmel. He thought he might be able to take the evening service at Warsaw, but at almost the last minute found it absolutely impossible and asked Mr. Currie to help him out. He spoke on "The standard of a man as set by God, and by men.'" He took as his lesson the story of Samuel anointing David, I Samuel, 16, verse 6 to 13.

Calomel Acts Upon the Liver

T kes away all previous days waste

To feel your best day in and out, to eat well, work well, sleep well, digest well, you must keep your liver active or the system will immediately become filled with poison causing a multitude of troubles as indigestion, headaches, gas on stomach, constipation, kidney pains, foul breath, billousness, rheumatism, etc. One Tanol Calomel tablet taken before meals or two at bedtime, then the next morning jump from your bed, take a glass of water, and away goes all the previous days wastes and poisons. Be sure you get Tanol Calomel as it is much better than ordinary calomel; no salts or seidlitz are needed to remove from system. Get a few from F. C. Webber, druggist, Charlotte St., Peterborough, and you will be surprised how effective they are.

Good for All the Family

It makes them smile—it's sure worth while!

For teeth, breath, appetite, digestion.

Combats acid mouth.

Delicious, healthful.

After Every Meal

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.
(Contributed).

The morning service yesterday was of special interest and full of inspiration. A short time ago the eldership was added to, sixteen names being submitted and voted upon. These gentlemen were duly set apart, and nine new and seven from other churches were at this service ordained and inducted to the office of ruling elders, after answering the questions of the Church.

Mr. Allan, prior to the ceremony, preached the sermon, pertaining to their duty, and that of the congregation, from the text, "Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine" (1st Timothy iv., 16). His injunctions were impressive and full of meaning.

The gathering at the evening service was very large and expectant, and Mr. Allan delivered a message, laden with thought and advice, and delivered in an impressive and telling manner. His subject, "Why Not Leave the People to Their Music and Merriment, Drinking and Dancing," the story being Belshazzar's impious feast (Daniel v., 5 6).

At the outset, Mr. Allan said: When you read this chapter in the light of history, two great facts have to be faced. (1) Nothing can hinder the fulfilment of God's Word! When God says a thing is going to be, nothing can prevent it! Passing of time makes no difference. It was predicted 160 years before. A long time, but God only forgets what He forgives. The opposition of man cannot prevent it. God is not slack concerning His promises. Babylon was prepared for a siege of 20 years.

(2) Sometimes when men fancy themselves most secure, danger is most imminent, was Mr. Allan's second point of importance. He instanced the flood, the cities of the plain, and here in Babylon. "And that night Belshazzar was slain."

"You cannot relegate this incident to the past and get rid of it by saying or thinking it only a bit of Babylonian history!" The passion and folly of that gay gathering of Babylon's elite are as much in operation to-day as they were then. The supernatural is as much in evidence to-day, but in our blindness most of us cannot see it. Take in the scene: The King, the lords, ladies, wine, music, feasting and rollicking! What a riot of rivalry by night. Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God! But God is no kill-joy. No good thing will He withhold from them that walk uprightly. Laughter is a lubricant that will make the wheels of the world go round—but don't let it be the laughter of fools. "Eat, drink and be merry" is the language of an empty head and a shallow heart.

"Has the world changed?" asked Mr. Allan. Compare the money spent in amusement and recreation with the amount spent on the spread of the Gospel and the work of the Church. Just as there was a judgment day then, so will there be again. One can almost hear the sneering question, "Where is the God of Jerusalem? His people are here, but where is He Himself?" The world has not changed much to-day. Many people now inquire, "What does the Church amount to to-day?" Think what we should be without our Church—what it would mean to us if she was what she ought to be. We have often a weak brand of religion. Too often it is a church where multitudes borrow the livery of heaven to do the bidding of hell.

As the hand appeared on the wall, writing doom at Belshazzar's feast, so men love darkness rather than light. But God loves the light! What will God write across our programmes—good or bad? That hand is the terror of men, or it is their defence and security. Does He write Pharisee or Publican — rich man, secure in his earthly possessions—the blind man, calling for sight and getting it? No one can plead for us in judgment — neither father, mother, nor friends. We cannot crowd God out always. "That night!" separated Belshazzar from pleasures, throne, friends, etc. What an end to a privileged life! "May we take heed in our lives to the pitfalls of sin," concluded Mr. Allan.

A male voice choir, with the ladies of the choir in the gallery, added much to the service, musically, with Miss Agnes Logan at the piano, and Mr. M. B. Chenhall at the organ. Antiphonal singing, with quartette and solo work by the men, comprised the items rendered, and hearty congregational singing lent color to a wonderful service.

MURRAY ST.

"For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation," was the text taken from the Epistle of Paul to the Romans, 1st chapter and 16th verse, by Dr. Rose last night.

Dr. Rose based his subject on the book of Dr. Frank Crane, "Why I am a Christian." He stated that for 30 years Dr. Crane had been a minister in his own pulpit but his vision became larger and he became a minister of all mankind. "What such a man thinks is of great importance," said Dr. Rose.

Although Dr. Rose could not endorse all Dr. Crane says, he thinks that his statements require much thought. Dr. Crane says that, "All theological discussions have ended in a draw," at first we are not inclined to believe this but when we think to-day of our pre and post millennium discussions we see it is true.

Dr. Crane says he is a Christian—1st, because he was born in a Christian community. Dr. Rose pointed out that if we had been born in China or other countries we would have embraced the belief of that country. So it is of great importance to parents that they live in a Christian community when raising a family.

Next, Dr. Crane is not a Christian because of the fear of hell or hope of heaven this Dr. Rose took exception to, pointing out to prove his point the teachings of Christ.

Then Dr. Crane says he is a Christian because Christianity meets his needs. Dr. Rose said, "That man's instinct and logic work together and this is derived from the teachings of Christ."

Next, Dr. Crane is a Christian because in Christ and Christianity we have an energetic life. Dr. Rose pointed out that all our education and institutions were products of Christianity, and thus we have an energetic life which we love so well.

Dr. Crane is also a Christian because of the beneficient results derived and that Christ and Christianity appeal to mankind. Dr. Rose showed that the same Gospel is preached to the prince as to the working man. Christ shows no favoritism he came to minister to everyone on the same terms.

Then Dr. Crane believes that Christianity is the only religion that gives hope of world organization. Dr. Rose said—"That if the whole world is to be saved, it has to be saved through Christ."

Dr. Crane also is a Christian because Christ was the most matured mind in the world and also believes in Christianity because it gives the best hope of a life hereafter.

Dr. Rose showed that when one makes a study of the different beliefs, it is the Christian religion that gives the life beyond the grave, also the statements of the Scriptures fit into our experiences.

As regards his text Dr. Rose said that—"We should not be ashamed of the conquests and the consummation of the Gospel of Christ, but be thankful for it."

At St. Peter's Cathedral

"Go to Joseph and do all things that he shall say to you," a text taken from the fourth chapter of the Book of Genesis, the 55th verse, was the theme of the sermons delivered by Rev. P. Costello at the morning Masses yesterday in St. Peter's Cathedral.

The month of March is especially dedicated to St. Joseph, who, the reverend speaker said, is the greatest saint in heaven after the Blessed Mother of God, made by God Himself the patron of the Universal Church, the protector of the Immaculate Mother of Christ and the foster father of Jesus.

A pre-figuration of the figure of St. Joseph is found in the story of the Patriarch Joseph, the son of Jacob, in the Old Testament, who was made ruler of Egypt by Pharaoh himself and became the saviour of his brethren.

An example to the world is afforded in the life of St. Joseph, who was not exempt from the general lot of the children of Adam. In his little carpenter shop, he earned the bread for himself and his family by the sweat of his brow. He labored long hours to support the Infant Jesus and the Blessed Virgin. The idler said the speaker, does nothing for himself, for his fellow-men, or for God. His mind has been likened to the devil's workshop. St. Joseph experienced often in his earthly days the pinch of poverty, but he was always ready to do God's will, and he persevered to the end.

Father Costello recommended in a special manner, intercession to God, directed through St. Joseph. "As Jesus Himself obeyed the commands of Joseph when He was upon this earth, so He will listen to the supplications of those who intercede through His foster father in heaven."

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters!

Musterole Works Without the Blister--Easier, Quicker.

Don't mix a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, in the form of a white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

ASK PORTFOLIO FOR MR. BELFORD

Petition Circulating in Riding Being Signed By Both Parties.

HONOR RECOGNIZED.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 8. — There is a petition in circulation here, addressed to Premier Ferguson, asking for the appointment of Major J. F. B. Belford, Legislative representative for the riding, as Minister of Education in the Ontario Cabinet in the event of a vacancy occurring in that Department. This will be largely signed by prominent Liberals as well as Conservatives as the honor of having a representative in a Cabinet position is recognized, regardless of party.

Should the Major be appointed, and it is then necessary for him to return to his constituency for endorsation, this would likely be given him by acclamation.

SECOND VOYAGE OF S. S. ONTARIO

Thousand Cattle and 400 Hogs Composed Cargo For Europe.

THREE OTHER SHIPS.

The Steamer Ontario put out from St. John, N. B., on Saturday with a living cargo composed of 1000 cattle and 400 hogs consigned to European markets. This is the second trip of the Ontario.

The Live Stock Steamship Limited is a Canadian company which has an option on four Copenhagen steamers of the Albert Jensen line.

The S. S. Ontario is the first ship on which the option has been exercised and it is expected that the remaining three will be taken over in a short time.

H. P. Kennedy, president of a live stock firm, has interested several financiers of that city in the great possibilities of the export stock trade. In addition men from other centres have been supplied with information and expressed favorable opinions.

Among these are B. F. Ackerman of this city, Norman Paterson of Fort William, James A. Richardson, Henry Weiler and E. Bolf of Winnipeg.

Mr. Kennedy declared that those mentioned were going into the scheme feeling that it was of national importance and meant much to the agricltural industry of Canada.

FAST SERVICE IN HIGH ALTITUDES

German Society Believes Atlantic Can Be Crossed in Ten Hours.

BERLIN, March 8.—(Canadian Press.)—Ten to twelve hours' air service between Hamburg and New York is the aim of the newly formed Scientific Research Society for Aviation in the Higher Altitudes, known as "Gesellschaft Fuer Hoehenflug-Forschung," established in Berlin.

By means of flying at an altitude of from six to seven miles the scientists of the society hope to solve the trans-oceanic aviation problem.

It is pointed out that in lower atmospheric regions the airplanes are seriously hampered by vertical squalls, fogs and thunder clouds, to which are added off the American coast blizzards, hurricanes and cyclones, none of which occur in the higher strata. It is expected also that such an altitude would increase the speed of the airplane to 270 miles or more an hour.

BOWLING

At K. of C. Alleys

The ladies' bowling games at the Knights of Columbus' Alleys are exciting a good deal of interest among the players just now, as the scheduled games, which began in November, have only three weeks more to run the last week in this month seeing their conclusion. The schedule has run straight through, without a break, and the 20 teams have been competing all winter for the first five places, which will come in for a distribution of the prize money. The Orioles (Miss Alma Fontaine, captain) are now at the the head of the list, with 37 wins and 11 losses out of the 48 games played up to the present time. The Wrens (Miss Myra Maloney, captain) are in second place, with 33 wins and 15 losses on their score, and the Marigolds (Miss Nora Shevlin, captain) come third, with a total of 32 wins and 16 losses. Owing to some postponed games, there is a little uncertainty over four and fifth places, with several of the teams running very closely in the race. The Tulips (Miss Josephine Hunt, captain), the Bluebell (Miss Gertrude Doyle captain) and the Regler Fellers (Miss Florence Giroux, captain) are elbowing each other for fourth and fifth places.

NARROW ESCAPE WHEN MOTOR CAR FELL TO RAVINE

Man and Wife Fall 60 Feet Down Embankment in Toronto.

STAYED IN SEAT.

Man Cut About Head, But Wife Suffers Only From Shock.

TORONTO, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Edward Jenkins, 47, and his wife Nellie, plunged 60 feet down an incline into a ravine yesterday, when their motor car skidded and left the street near the western outskirts of the city and both escaped fatal injury. Gripping the steering post with one arm and holding his wife with the other, Jenkins was able to keep himself and his wife from pitching out and thus they remained in the seat as the car rolled and pitched all the way to the bottom.

Jenkins sustained bad cuts about the face and abrasions about the body. Mrs. Jenkins escaped with nothing more serious than shock. When the debris of the car was lifted from the victims it was found that Jenkins still retained his hold of his wife. They were both removed to the Western Hospital but after being treated there were able to go home. The automobile was left where it had tumbled an almost shapeless mass of scrap iron and wood.

WATERWAYS MUST BE ALL-AMERICAN

U. S. Secretary of War Tells House Committee on Canal.

WASHINGTON, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Secretary Dwight Davis considers that from a military standpoint, it is essential that the Great Lakes-Atlantic seaboard waterway system, "Shall be entirely within American territory."

In making public last night a letter received from Secretary Davis, Chairman Dempsey of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, said he would present the communication at a hearing before the rivers and harbors board of the Army Engineer Corps on Tuesday when he will seek reversal of the findings of the special board of army engineers which last week reported unfavorably on the Great Lakes-Hudson River all-American ship canal project. The special board took the position that the prospective traffic would not justify the cost of the undertaking.

Smith Gives Support

ALBANY, N.Y., March 8 (Canadian Press).—Governor Smith came to the support of an "all-American" ship canal through New York State with the assurance yesterday that he is prepared to wage an active campaign for the project as the only feasible relief for the industrial and grain states of the west.

Merry Widow Waltz Only Music At Funeral

LONDON, Mar. 8 (Canadian Press). — Amid the lilt of gay music, including strains from "The Merry Widow Waltz," the coffin of Alexander M. Carlisle, famous shipbuilder, and friend of the Kaiser, was taken from the chapel at Golder's Green Crematorium to-day into the furname chamber for cremation.

The ceremony was arranged by Mr. Carlisle himself a few weeks ago, when he knew the end was near. He paid for his own cremation and had the certificate framed. He also settled the fee of the organist. "I have no fear of death," he said. "I want nobody to grieve. Therefore I have paid for and instructed an organist to play the waltz from "The Merry Widow."

There were no formal religious rites, no hymns and no prayers. About a dozen mourners were in the chapel, including Mr. Carlisle's daughter, Baroness Von Versen. In the midst of the unusual ceremony she collapsed.

The organist, having promised to play "The Merry Widow Waltz," was in a quandary, but finally solved the difficulty by incorporating it in a medley of light German airs.

RANEY BRINGS BILLS TO TIGHTEN UP LAW

One Would Prohibit Manufacture of Liquor in Province.

TORONTO, Mar. 8 (Canadian Press) The temperance atmosphere in this province would be considerably intensified if two motions of which W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, today gives notice, were passed by the Ontario legislature. One would prohibit the manufacture in this province of liquor for beverage purposes and the other calls for the strengthening of the "dry" laws to the full extent of the province's authority.

Mr. Raney also give notice that he will introduce a bill "to prohibit political contributions by brewers, distillers, hotel-keepers, public contractors, crown lessees and railways."

MASQUERADE DANCE.

Good Costumes at Regular Dance at W.O.W. Hall.

ART ASSOCIATION HEARS OF FLORENCE

Mr. Kenner Describes Beautiful Italian City—Illustrated Lecture.

Under the auspices of the Women's Art Association, a delightful lecture on "Fiorenza la Bella" (Florence the Beautiful") was given in the studio at the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon by H. R. H. Kenner, B.A. whose address was copiously illustrated by a number of lantern slides depicting the lovely city and its chief points of interest. The lantern was operated by V. R. Henry, M.A.

During the afternoon, a very interesting musical programme was rendered, Miss Agness Logan playing, in her usual artistic fashion, Chopin's Etude in C sharp minor, and Liszt's "Valse Oubilee," and Hubert Lowes, basso, singing in splendid voice "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride," and "Duna," with accompaniment by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade.

At the conclusion of the lecture, tea was served, Mrs. J. J. Turner and Mrs. F. P. McNulty pouring, assisted by Mrs. J. J. Craig Mrs. J. M. McCulloch, Mrs. J. A. O'Brien and Mrs. K. S. Wightman. The table was charmingly arranged in orchid and yellow, with a large silver basket and bud vases filled with daffodils and sweet peas flanked by mauve and yellow candles.

Mr. Kenner, speaking of Florence, gave his personal impressions gleaned from a summer spent in what he characterized as one of the most beautiful cities in the world, its history full of artistic and literary interest and interwoven with memories of the struggles for liberty of its sons, who excelled in poetry, science, architecture, sculpture and painting. Florence has been described as "the brightest star in star-bright Italy," and from it and its environs have come some of the most notable men of the world—Dante, whose birthplace is still preserved in Florence; Boccacio, who served as the model for Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales"; the Laura of Petrarch, composer of wonderful sonnets; Brunelleschi, builder of one of the most wonderful domes in the world ;Giotto who, at the age of 58, designed the Campanelli, considered one of the most perfect structures in the universe; Ghiberti, designer of the bronze gates of the Baptistery; Benevenuto Cellini, the sculptor; Leonardo da Vinci and Michaeloangelo Buonarotti. In politics, there is Machievelli, the "Mephistopheles of statesmen"; in sceience, Galileo, and the churchman, famed for his eloquence, Savanorola. Florence also saw the birth of the Medici family, which gave eight dukes to Tuscany, two queens to France, and four popes to the Vatican.

Mr. Kenner described in realistic style the many beauty spots of the city including the Church of Santa Croce, "the Westminster Abbey of Italy"; the Church of San Lorenzo, built by Michaelangelo, and where Savonarolo began his preaching, and the famous specimens in the Uffizzi and Pitti art collections.

In the charitable world, the speaker mentioned the Brothers of Mercy, monks, whose members, of whatever rank, are at the beck and call of persons in need at any moment of their day.

A very enthusiastic vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by Mrs. F. C. Neal and seconded by Mrs. T. Cruikshank.

I.O.D.E. CHAPTER HOLDS MEETING

Peter Robinson 'Hope Chest' To Be Drawn For on April 12.

CHEST ON VIEW.

The regular monthly meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. was held on Saturday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association, the regent, Mrs. J. A. McNab, presiding. Reports for the month were given by the secretary, Miss Maida Connor, and the treasurer, Mrs. B. Moore.

A letter from the Chapter's ward, Peter Robinson, the little Armenian boy domiciled at the home in Georgetown, was read, and Mrs. J. K. Hughes, convenor of the Hope Chest committee, gave a report of the progress being made with this undertaking. The Hope Chest itself was on view on Saturday afternoon, partially filled with some of the dainty things with which it is being stocked. A draw for the Chest is being arranged, to take place at the Capitol Theatre on April 12.

The "Hope Chest" will be on view later in the window of the Grafton Company's store. Its contents are beautiful and include some exquisite things. There is a shrimp pink Kenwood blanket, quantities of wonderfully-embroidered linens for table, bedrooms and bathroom, kitchen towels, luncheon cloths and dresser sets, serviettes, a gorgeous pale pink spread, embroidered in Dresden pattern, a pale pink dresser set and a fluffy pink satin "slumber pillow," a lamp shade and the many small items that go to make up the regular "Hope Chest," all done in the daintiest possible style.

With each ticket for the "Hope Chest" is included a chance on four other lovely things, the second chance, which is a Rose China tea set with a Madeira luncheon set, the third, an embroidered bridge table cover, the fourth, a buffet set and the fifth, a boudoir lamp. To the young lady selling the most tickets goes a prize of a card table and there will also be a special prize to the seller of the ticket which gets the "Hope Chest," the "lucky number" ticket.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, tea was served, Mrs. McNab pouring at a table prettily arranged with mauve candles and basket of marigolds and narcissus, and assisted by the Misses M. Drope, M. Connor and G. Patterson.

SPANISH TROOPS OCCUPY HEIGHTS

Suffer at Least 1,000 Casualties in Driving Out Riffs.

WAR SPREADING.

MADRID, March 8. — (United Press).—Spanish troops occupied the heights of Macizobu, from which Riffian artillery has been bombarding Tetuan, according to a despatch from the Morrocan fighting zone.

The Spaniards suffered at least 1,000 casualties. The Franco-Spanish war with Abd-el-Krim's Riffians, is awakening from its winter nap. The Riffians are endeavoring to take the offensive on all fronts, but general hostilities all along the line have not yet begun.

Krim seeks autonomy for his mountain tribesmen and control over the plains adjacent to their home where live many smaller tribes of farmers and herdsmen.

CABINET BUSY ON LEGISLATION

Preparing For Return of Members To Ottawa Next Monday.

DAILY MEETINGS.

OTTAWA, March 8 (Canadian Press).—While Parliament is enjoying a brief respite, the Government is engaged in preparations for the return of the members one week from to-day. Daily meetings of the Cabinet for the consideration of legislation, which will be introduced after adjournment, have been and will continue to be held. Not only is the Cabinet meeting in daily session, but conferences between the executive committee of the Progressive party and the Government are frequent.

The advice of the leaders of the third party is being sought on matters in which Progressives are interested.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

CLEANING DAY DON'TS

Time-saving means money-saving when we hire help by the hour. The tasks to avoid when we are having a straight cleaning day are the ones that are fussy.

In this modern housekeeping, we soon realize that only the things worthwhile have a place in the home that must be run in a business-like way. The woman who is combining a business career with home-making must make direct and careful planning to have all things run smoothly. She shops at her noon hour gets an early breakfast and a late dinner, in most instances. Some women employ a visiting housekeeper who prepares the dinner and it is ready to sit down to when they arrive home. The additional expense is worth while unless the woman herself gets away early enough to get the little dinner by herself.

Silver-cleaning should not be attempted on a regular cleaning day as it is a job that takes time and should not be hurried. It should be done the day before or after the rest of the house is in order. Picture glasses need cleaning and the frames dusting but this may be done the day ahead and save time.

Gray cambric dust covers should be put over the furniture after it has been cleaned before the floors are done. This method saves dusting again. Sofa pillows should be shaken, brushed, and pinned to a line out doors to sweeten them and make them seem fresh.

All baskets should be brushed with a brush broom and wiped with a flannel cloth to keep them fresh and bright looking.

Don't wait until the last minute to find out whether you have all the appliances you need. Make sure that the vacuum cleaner is running properly; see that there are dust cloths and brushes and brooms in convenient places where one doesn't have to stop and hunt for them. All these precautions will save you time and worry and assure you that the cleaning will be done in a thoroughly efficient manner.

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

Secret of her beautiful hair

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It is inexpensive and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitation. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

The Costume Complete

A frock—a coat—the costume complete—means not only smartness, but complete smartness, and is more than a fashion, it is a necessity for the smart woman. Madam removes her coat to disclose a frock of equal chic, yet both in perfect harmony as expressed in the model pictured here of kasha in striking border design. The coat is fashioned on straight lines, with set-in sleeves showing the border at the lower edge and on the collar. The one-piece dress has center-front fastening ending in an inverted plait, and long tight sleeves finished with tailored cuffs. The coat, No. 1052, is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 3¾ yards 54-inch material. The dress, No. 1071, is in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 5 yards 36-inch, or 3¾ yards 54-inch material. This Dainty Bedroom Jacket Is of Rose Satin de Chine With Val Lace.

The short bedroom jacket is a dainty garment which everyone should possess. It may be worn over the underclothes or over the nightgown, and it is most convenient in the latter case when one is sick in bed and receives callers.

Above is shown an abbreviated jacket of this useful type, in soft, rose-colored satin de Chine. Four rows of Val lace trim the cuffs and the graceful neckline. The bow is of deeper rose ribbon.

Any soft color which is becoming to the wearer may be used. Pale green brings out the delicate tints of the complexion and is flattering to a pale person.

Painting The Lily

By Juanita Hamel.

Little grains of powder,
A little splash of paint
Make a girl's complexion
Look like "what it aint!"

Probably you've all heard this paraphrase on the old rhyme, but have you ever stopped to think how true it is? Would you take a glorious lily and paint it a brilliant blue? Of course not, and you'd think a person who did it guilty of sacrilege, wouldn't you? No, I'm not preaching, but I do think it sinful to cover your fresh young beauty with a thick coat of cosmetics. Do you think that it makes you look lovelier to Love's eyes? Oh, my dears. What a mistake! For true love seeks only what is fresh and unspoiled and natural.

SAYING AND DOING

The sweet young thing with the baby stare, which indicated her belief that all the world was good and fair, is rejected by men. And the sophisticated intelligent female with a positive look in her eye has taken her place in the affections of the male heart. So says Lew Cody, actor. And does anyone believe him? Nary an one!

Beware the henna when it is red! So warns a health commissioner. He explains that hair dyes contain lead and mercury, and in time seep within the system, as the tresses must be redyed every six weeks once the vice is upon the lady fair. And of course you all know of the lady who came home from the dyer's with emerald green hair!

"Gone is the day," writes Eileen Bourne in "Liberty," "when a girl who looked like a comic valentine but who could spell 'judgment' with an 'e' got a job. A new era has dawned in the business world. The business world is turning to art. The architecture of today's big business buildings proves a belief that beauty is good business. And what would it profit a house to design a perfect reception hall and permit a girl clerk to be a blot on the picture?"

OUR GARB

Hats are no longer the belle of the wardrobe. So wailed the millinery industry in recent solemn session. Today, they moaned, fair woman spends more for her hosiery and shoes than her hat, which is rightly the queen of her dress. That's right! Time was when "hats was hats." With feathers and ticklers and roses and pompons and rosettes all growing in riotous array on one poor hat. Now we just jam a plain old felt down over our ears. And look much better than when we wore cabbage roses on platters.

SORTA GOOD?

"The greatest woman in history is the wife of a man of moderate means who does her own cooking, washing and ironing, brings up a family of girls and boys to be useful members of society, and finds time for her own intellectual and moral improvement."

OTHER LANDS

The first needle, they say, was made by foremother Eve from a fishbone threaded with one of her hairs. Redditch, England, has been the Needle City for centuries. Five hundred million needles are made there a year. Eyes are punched at the rate of 7000 an hour.

GASTRONOMIC

Salad with hot rolls, pickles and olives and coffee has solved the refreshment problem of many a soiree. But hostesses oft run out of salad ideas. Have you tried these?

Remove the skins from baked apples. Baked not too long, as they must be firm. Insert almonds in a circle around the middle of the apple. Serve with mayonnaise on lettuce. HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

ENEMY AND FRIEND

"Ah, good evening, Mr. Horton," she smiled, as she took the hat out of my hand and with seeming carelessness turned it over, dropping the bill on the floor.

"You would have lost your supper money, Mr. Horton, if I had not been here," she said, "do you think a hat is a good place to keep it anyway?" and she handed him back the twenty-dollar bill.

The man bit his lip in anger and quickly turned away.

"I'll be reported for that all right, all right," said Mamie.

"Oh, I'm so sorry, but I didn't know what to do about it. You see, I never knew a man would hand you money unblushingly thinking you would accept and I never knew a man would make love to you the moment he saw you thinking you would consider it a compliment."

"Of course you didn't, child. I gather from what Horton said that Sterns is at the bottom of this. You see Horton and Sterns are pals and nothing in the way of an attractive girl gets by them. Tell me all about it when you get time and I'll be with you forty ways."

I felt the tears come into my eyes.

"I haven't a place to stay tonight. I am afraid to go back to the hotel," I began.

"So, that's what they're up to, is it" Mamie whispered almost to herself. "Of course Sterns got it out of you. But we'll worry them a little. You'll come right home with me. My little sister is out of town and you can have her bed."

Before the evening was over I was ready to drop with fatigue and the music became only a bunch of nerve-racking sounds. I began to understand what Mamie meant by "corns." Although I had none my feet became lumps of leaden pain. In the pocket of the apron they had given me there was a jingle of coins. I went over to Mamie and whispered.

"Do you really want me to come home with you tonight? I think I have enough tips to pay for a room in a cheap hotel."

I was so tired I felt as though I couldn't stand the presence of strangers around me—even so kindly a one as Mamie.

"My dear, save your money. You'll need it. You'll have to find a place to live tomorrow and have your trunks brought from the hotel. They'll charge for the room whether you use it or not."

"Oh, I can't go back there," I said hurriedly, "for some of these awful men would find me, I'm sure."

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

FASHION NOTES.

By HEDDA HOYT
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, March 8 (United Press)—Since cape-coats and cape-suits are the most talked of garments for early Spring wear it is well to know just what are the correct cape lengths. Both sleeve length and hip length capes are popular for the matron and the slender flapper can add to her selection the little cape which comes just two inches below the normal waistline. It is predicted that the matron will find cape-effect sleeves even more becoming to stout figures than entire cape effects.

Gray, navy and black will be favored colors for early Spring wear. Black satin coats which are lined with cashmere are among the new models. Rough tweeds and soft worsteds are preferred for suits or wraps of utility type.

Among the new Spring wraps which are featured by a smart shop is a cocoa-colored satin cape-coat which has it's entire hip-length cape covered with four-inch width rows of cocoa colored silk fringe. The collar is cocoa-dyed ermine.

Bandeaux are being used on many of the new Spring hats. Large shapes which have brims wider at the sides than in front and very narrow at the rear often use the little bandeau over the forehead. Sometimes the bandeau is trimmed in small flowers and sometimes it is draped with velvet ribbon to harmonize with the crown drape. Up-turned brims, with small cuff-bandeaux over the forehead are also to be popular.

Fringe is registering strongly on Fifth Avenue. One smart shop is showing moire silk dresses in colors and in black with fringe matching the material set on the skirt in spiral effect in three tiers. The bodice is long waisted and snug-fitting. Another shop uses fringe on georgette dance frocks.

The georgette is yellow, scarlet, green or black and the matching fringe is very wide with but two tiers forming the skirt portion.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

Grubby Groundhog Follows His Nose

Nancy and Nick and the March Hare stood beside Grubby Groundhog's bed in Grubby's underground house, and watched him as he slept.

What did he care about the Land-Where-Spring-Was-Coming! He was having a grand time where he was

Outside the snow was just about gone, there was only a little handful here and there sticking in around fence-corners and stones, the sky was blue and the air was really as warm as pie.

Nancy and Nick and the March Hare were laughing. For Grubby was acting so funny in his sleep.

I'll tell you now why he was acting so funny.

Because the March Hare had cut a big red apple in two and laid the pieces right under Grubby's nose.

Now groundhogs like apples about as well as you like chocolate ice-cream soa, or a sail-boat sundae, or custard pie.

He was dreaming.

He was dreaming that it was summer and he was stuffing his sides out with sweet apples in a sweet apple orchard.

"There's a fine one," he would mutter in his sleep. "That big apple over there by the old grindstone. See! It just fell off the tree and never got bruised a bit and there aren't any ants on it. Not that I'd mind an ant or two. Some of them are mighty sweet."

Then Grubby snored twice and turned over.

"Say, where's that nice big sweet apple?" he muttered. "It's gone. It was over by this old grindstone and now I can't even so much as smell it."

The March Hare took one of the big pieces of apple he had cut and held it under Grubby's nose. "Come along, old man," he said firmly. "Come along. We'll find it."

Grubby threw back the covers and got slowly out of bed. Then all he did, my dears, was to follow his nose, just follow his nose.

"Oh, look!" giggled Nancy. "He's still asleep."

"Yes," said Nick. "He thinks he's still in the orchard smelling that big sweet apple."

"Come right along, Grubby," said the March Hare, wagging one ear at the Twins, which is the way rabbits wink at you sometimes. "Come right along, Mister Groundhog."

Then he took a step and Grubby took a step, then he took another step and Grubby took another step, the March Hare always carefully holding the piece of apple just far enough from Grubby's nose for him to smell it.

They went along the crooked hall and out of the front door by the potato patch, the Twins quietly following, and then they came to the little secret bush that is the beginning of Scrub-Up Land. That magic place, ruled by Mister Rubadub, where all the meadow folk have to get groomed up so they'll look decent for spring.

And the very first person Grubby saw was that fairyman with a towel over him arm and a big pair of scissors in his hand.

Grubby tried to bolt, but he was too slow.

They washed him up and trimmed his whiskers and slicked up his tail and combed him and brushed him and Ithink they put a few drops of brilliantine on him. But it was of no use. Grubby just wouldn't shine. But he looked better when at last he waddled off to the Land-Where-Spring-Was-Coming. Oh yes! I forgot! He got the apple after all and so he wasn't mad a bit.

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori.

How often have you noticed the pretty legs of musical comedy dancers as they entertained you from the other side of the footlights?

Many of them are such a pleasure to watch. Their movements are lightness and grace itself and their arms and legs and bodies are so perfectly symtruly wonderful.

Running Step Developé the Muéelé.

metrical, due to the expert training they have had. For if a girl wants to go into this kind of dancing for a career she must set to work to correct any unsymmetrical line of her body. The results which can come from earnest, well-directed effort in this respect are

Now there are a few dancers whose legs show unsightly bulges of muscles instead of the graceful curves which should mark their calves. This is almost invariably because they have had poor training, have become to depend on the wrong set of muscles and have thus developed them in the wrong way.

I have already given my readers an exercise which ballet dancers use in the early stages of their training. I am now going to give you another which you are sure to find helpful. It is one of the exercises always given to beginners in a dancing class and it is excellent for limbering the body and developing the calves in a symmetrical way.

Now, this exercise is simply running in place, one of the best movements. Real running is rather out of reach of city dwellers and of grown-ups in most places, but every woman can practice this simple exercise in her bedroom. Stand erect, your hands on your hips, your shoulders back and your heels together.

Now begin with your right foot, simply running in pace, dropping lightly on your toes when you put your feet down and keeping your heels well raised.

Keep this up for a certain number of counts or until you become tired.

Your wind may not be as good at first as you might wish, but if you keep up the movements you will find that your wind improves and that you can do this "running" longer without becoming tired.

Practice the movement each day to give your calves symmetry.

"THE AVERAGE HELPING"

The average helping at table is an excellent way of measuring food quantities needed by a healthy human being. It is best to select from the foods that we know supply the needed elements, those which we enjoy and that we digest more readily. A little watching soon teaches us this simple fact. It is over-indulgence in the sweets, starches and fats especially, that do the damage. When once we have allowed ourselves to become encased in a suit of tallow, it is very hard to get rid of it, harder than to acquire it. Besides being uncomfortable, fat is not an infallible sign of good health.

Stick to average helpings and no repeats. Avoid sweets except the natural ones. Give up desserts and white bread. Eat meat, if you must, once a day. Drink milk and buttermilk, but drop tea, coffee and cocoa. Eat vegetables and fruits, fruit juice and melted butter for salad dressing fish, shellfish and a few nuts. Try a day's menus modeled after the following and see if there is any danger of immediate starvation.

BREAKFAST
Orange Juice
Prunes and Cream
Milk Toast, Poached Egg
Hot milk

LUNCHEON
Beef Bouillon
Poached Fillet of Sole
Toast, Fresh Fruit

DINNER
Raw Oysters
Steak with Onions
Baked Potato
Hearts of Lettuce
Fruit Jelly

In the menus above the quantities referred to are as follows:

A half glass of orange nice. Six prunes with a little cream. Two slices of milk toast with the poached egg on top. At luncheon one cup of the bouillon. One poached fillet served with toast. This is followed by any kind of fresh fruit liked, in moderation. Six raw oysters on the half shell with a few drops of lemon juice. A small portion of broiled steak with a tablespoonful of fried onions on top. A medium-sized baked potato. One butter square or ball. A half heart of lettuce with a little lemon juice and melted butter, salt and a few grains of red pepper. The dessert is a simple fruit jelly without cream. A glass of milk may be taken if desired, but a half glass of water is better and the milk can be taken if desired before going to bed. These are very simple meals, the quantities are small, but they are enough for the average person.

A month of feeding after this fashion and the weight will become normal for the height the appetite will be steady and good, the head will become clear, sleep normal and natural in nine cases out of ten.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

An eminent English physician, Sir Henry E. Bruce-Porter says, "If you would have strong, healthy children, tickle them when they are babies and make them laugh. This expands their lungs and makes them breathe fresh air."

I am not sure I agree with this. However, a friendly tickle now and then will do no harm, certainly.

I am in full sympathy with his further thought that it is wrong for the family to cease all noise in the house when the baby is asleep. It is better that the child should be prepared for the rough and tumble of life through being allowed to sleep with noise going on everywhere.

It is a great mistake to coddle a baby and to upset the whole household routine in order to cater to the imaginary needs of the child. You are wrong if you think every noise will be disturbing. It will be, if you begin that way. But it won't be if from the very birth of the baby, he is taught to sleep through every noise.

It is surprising how quickly a little baby will learn things. If he finds you pick him up when he cries, he will cry just to get you to do this. Even a tiny baby will cry a spell and then stop, listening to see if you are on the way to care for him. If he hears no approaching footsteps he sets up another wail to command your services.

This is all nonsensical. Don't you let that precious little rascal make a slave of you! It is terrible for the mother to be a slave and worse for the baby.

When it comes to sleeping in a noise, it can be done if you get accustomed to it. After the first broken night in a sleeping car, you sleep soundly on the subsequent nights. The stopping of the train means nothing. You may sleep as soundly as if you were in your own comfortable bed.

If you live on the corner of two streets, upon each of which is a street car line, you sleep peacefully every night. On the same level and immediately against the elevated railroad, or near a railroad crossing where the engines screech their warnings every half hour, you sleep on, utterly unconscious of all the racket.

Babies are just like grown-ups. If you protect them against all noise and discomfort, they will awaken with a cry if they are disturbed. Not so is it with the baby which from birth has been put to bed within hearing of the noisy family.

There is no doubt that what Sir Henry says about "preparing the baby for the rough and tumble of life" is good sense. Every parent loves the baby, but that is no excuse for spoiling it by over-protection.

In America every town governed by a Mayor and corporation is generally known as a city. In Canada the name is given to towns having more than a certain popluation. In Great Britain cities are created by royal authority, and the general rule now is that the dignity is given to a great town which is also the centre of an important industrial district.

PILES GO QUICK

Without Salves or Cutting.

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside application. Get a package of HEM-ROID from McDermid & Jury to-day. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES.

By Blanche Silver

DOTTY MAKES A NEW FRIEND.

Dotty stopped to listen. Sure enough, in the tall grasses a little way in front of her, she heard a rustle, then a pretty, brown bird sailed low over the grasses to the rail fence.

Here he perched himself and proudly switched his feathers so that his few white tail feathers shone brightly in the "Spring-o-the-year! Spring-o-t h e-year!" he called gayly, trying to attract Dotty's glance his way.

Dotty laughed merrily and ran over the fence.

"Please, don't fly away, Mr. Whatever-your-name-is," she called. "I wouldn't harm you. Where in the world did you get such a lovely, bright yellow vest?"

"Why, all Meadowlarks have yellow vests and black ties," Mr. Meadowlark replied, flipping the white feathers in his tail. "You see the brown and yellow seem to melt in with the brown grasses and help hide me."

"Were you hiding when I found you, pretty fellow?" Dotty asked. "Is your nest in some tree in father's orchard?"

"Goodness me!" drawled Mr. Meadowlark. "Do you mean to say you've never seen our nest as many times s you've been through this field?"

"No, I have never seen your nest," replied Dotty. "Is it in here, some place?"

"Surely! You were almost standing on it when I flew to the fence and attracted you by my song. I would not have hurried away, had I known you were a friend. But the boys of the neighborhood have been through here hunting so much of late that we suspect every stranger we see until he proves himself a friend. Come along and meet the wife. She's sitting on her nest now," and he flew back to the place where Dotty had first found him.

"Please Don't Fly Away."

There on a rude nest fashioned out of dry grasses, arched over with twigs, sat Mrs. Meadowlark.

She was a wee bit paler in color than her proud mate, but just as pleasant.

"My goodness; I should think you'd be afraid something would steal your eggs, and babies, too, sitting right on the ground this way," said Dotty. "Of course, it's hidden pretty cleverly from the hunter, but I should think the field mice and snakes could walk right in and help themselves."

"So they do," replied Mr. Meadowlark. "But Mama Meadowlark likes a home on the ground so much better than one in the trees."

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Orange juice, cereal, thin cream, spinach and poached eggs on toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Asparagus in ramekins, bran and raisin bread, steamed date pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Hot Pot of Hodge Podge, turnips in lemon sauce, endive with bacon dressing, spice cake, canned peaches, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

The meat suggested for the dinner menu is ideal for the fireless cooker, but of course can be cooked in the ordinary oven. Any casserole dish lends itself admirably to fireless cookery.

Hot Pot of Hodge Podge.

One and one-half pounds neck or loin of mutton, 5 potatoes, 1 large onion, 2 tablespoons bacon fat, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, salt and pepper.

Peel potatoes and cut in thin slices. Peel and slice onion. Melt fat in frying pan, add sliced onion and fry to a pale straw color. Remove from fat and add potatoes. Fry quickly to a light brown. Remove potatoes and put a layer in casserole. Trim meat carefully and cut in pieces for serving. Brown quickly on both sides in hot fat. Cover potatoes in casserole with a layer of meat. Sprinkle with onions and parsley and season with salt and pepper. Continue layer for layer of meat and potatoes until all is used, making the last layer of potatoes. Add one cup of boiling water, cover casserole closely and cook for two hours in a moderate oven. Serve from casserole.

This is an economical dish combining meat and potatoes in a most savory fashion. A cup of tomato juice can be used in place of the water and if every member of the family approves of turnips this vegetable can be added to the potatoes making a satisfactory "one dish" meal.

SEARCH SUSPENDED.

Ice Conditions Interrupt the Hunt For Bodies in Lake.

LEAMINGTON, Ont., March 8 (Canadian Press). — Ice conditions have practically forced the suspension of the search for Mr. and Mrs. James Phipps and family who have been missing since Monday last and who are believed to have been drowned while motoring on the ice from Pelee Island to their home near here. All day Saturday workers cut away the ice and used drags in an effort to locate the automobile which is believed to have gone into an air hole. No trace was found.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

TUESDAY, MARCH 9.

A pleasant and lively day is presaged from the lunar activities, but this auspicious state may be circumvented by the tendency to fly into rash or disagreeable situations. With the tongue and temper held in check all matters should thrive. New ventures are not so favorably aspected as are settled connections. Heart and home affairs should be pleasant and prosperous.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a happy and prosperous year, which they should not nullify by tempestuous and ill-considered words and acts. Personal affairs should give happiness. A child born on this day should have many splendid qualities and be popular, accomplished and generous, but it may require early discipline in the control of its temper and taught to keep itself well in hand at all times.

SHE WAS WEAK, THIN AND NERVOUS

One of the greatest strength givers and producers of good healthy flesh in the world is Cod Liver Extract—it's full of vitamines.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines extracted from the livers of the common codfish to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

So nowadays medical men who keep up with the times are ordering a tablet containing the vitamines that give to frail folks vigor, strength and weight—a tablet that is known as McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablet—and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped off their natural strength after any severe illness.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 five pounds in 30 days. As a matter of fact your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on five pounds in 30 days.

Great for weak, skinny, backward and run-down children too, and gives them a hearty appetite.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Extract Tablet. McDermid and Jury, James Lynch and Bond's Drug Store, and druggists everywhere have a big demand for them, and millions are sold monthly all over North and South America. They are sugar-coated and as easy to take as candy. 60 Tablets—60 cents.

DEBT

A man gets behind in his money and such, not thinking that small things amount to so much. He carelessly piles up a heap of regret that will come when he finds he has fallen in debt.

You've got to expect that you'll reap your just dues when sailing through life on the ol' I. O. U.'s. When borrowing, foresight's the thing that you lack, if you don't realize that yoy've got to pay back.

You're doing yourself much more harm than you think, for debt sorta puts a keen mind on the blink. You're hurt by the spirit and pep that it kills, when you're constantly thinking of overdue bills.

The road may be tough, but there's always a way to get to the point wherea you always can pay. Through carelessness, debt gets your goat if you let it, so don't spend the dough that you earn till you get it.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

Gar.—You have a courageous temperament, and a jovial, free, sympathetic, friendly disposition. Naturally, you incline to pursuits connected with mentality, in which you should have much success. You are fitted for a position of responsibility in business life. You have a natural, free bearing and are a convincing talker. You are naturally kind and loving, but, being emotional, are liable to extremes of rage and inclined to be sulky when offended. Your actions are usually guided by your impulses and emotions. Do not try to stand alone.

You should be careful of what you eat, as your stomach is your weak point. Do not criticize others and try not to take dislikes to poeple without a real cause. You must guard against making a hasty marriage, which will be regretted in later life. Marry a man born in September, October or December. You were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are canary and tan.

M. J.—This little boy should never be allowed to associate with cross or coarse people, as he will readily take on the characteristics of those about him. He will be of a proud and haughty nature if not controlled, and should be taught unselfishness early in life. Dress him simply, give him plain food, and no tea or coffee. Having a strong dislike for certain colors and fabrics, let him choose his own apparel as soon as possible. Give him a tool box and let him have manual training. This child will be inclined to brood, so when you punish him, explain what it is for. Be kind to him always, but not over-indulgent. He will have special talents and should be allowed to follow his own particular bent in life. Give him a good business education, and teach him efficiency and initiative, which he may lack. He will make a fine man, if you train him properly. Teach him self poise. He should always guard his health well. He may incline to a political career and this should be encouraged.

He was born on Wednesday. His colors are gold and violet. March and November will be his good months, Tuesdays and Saturdays his good days.

Isa.—You have a great deal of creative power and tenacity, with a tendency toward the material side of life. You should have a certain amount of success in any business line that you might embark in, outside of your domestic life. You are friendly and agreeable and make friends readily when you wish to do so. You have a strong will and a certain degree of power over the actions of others but little control over your own impulses. One thing at a time is your motto and you work with a will when so inclined. At other times, you are subject to fits of laziness. You could accomplish much if you would just stick long enough at one thing. When angered, you have a high temper, which you should guard against, also a slight tendency toward jealousy. The ocean has a strong attraction for you, also rolling water of any sort.

You were born on Monday. Your colors are blue and silver. I would be glad to give you a reading for your husband, as you request, but you have given me his birth date as being in 1922, which would make him about four years old?

Reading for your infant son is given under the intials "M.J."

F. R. A.—You have a strong, active nature, thoughtful, industrious, sensible and persevering. You are anxious to gain knowledge on every subject that comes to your notice and ask a great many questions, some of them being unnecessary at times. You always exact a reason for action in others and will furnish such reasons for your own conduct. You are liable to self-censure and despondency, and should strive for more self-esteem. Your greatest success in life will come through the use of cleverness and you should try to be diplomatic when dealing with other. You are sympathetic and philanthropic, and inclined to be nervous and exacting in all things. Guard against too much tea and coffee drinking. You will always be hampered by being unable to get footwear that fits you comfortably. Pay more attention to your toilet than you may think is necessary now. Marry a man born in September, October or July. You were born on Sunday. Your color is flame, in all its varied hues. You ask only about "July, 1926," and mention no specific date.

Kon.—You have a somewhat conservative nature, unfavorable to new enterprises and with an inclination toward the mystic and occult side of life. You have a great deal of vitality and physical endurance and are dignified in manner. You are impulsive and headstrong and will do well at anything that you can be persuaded to stick at. You have a high temper at times and are also inclined to jealousy, a trait which should be conquered, if possible. You have an undercurrent of sentiment that you are rather ashamed of, and are liable at times to fits of the blues. You like mountain scenery and rolling water has a strong appeal for you. You should do well in business life and would make a good real estate dealer. But do not give way to an impulse to speculate with your money. You must guard against an inclination toward extravagance. Learn to be patient and try to control your tendency to worry, which will affect your stomach in time. Stop worrying and go to work with a will should be your motto in life. You were born on Monday. Your colors are steel and purple. Marry a girl born in February, May, August or March. Your lucky months are August and December, and your good day is Friday.

A. G. C.—You have a frank, energetic progressive nature, logical and daring, but inclined to disregard the rights of others and to domineer over lesser folk. One only way in which you can succeed in life and bring happiness to yourself is by thinking always and first of the joy and happiness of others. As you are innately somewhat selfish, this will be hard for you. You must keep constantly at it. You may say that it is too late in life for you too make any changes, but that is nonsensical. You belong to the class of people who never grow old. You will always be young at heart. You are quick tempered and impulsive and the unfinished task is positive agony to you. You must cultivate at all times the faculty of not seeing little things which annoy. You have a keen sense of humour and are inclined to sarcasm. You put much faith in signs, symbols and dreams. You have the excellent faculty of minding your own business at all times. Being born busy, you like to be active at all times, somewhat to the detriment of your health. Cultivate repose. It is an excellent thing in a woman. You will live to a good old age. You were born on Tuesday. Your color is flame, in all its shades. The day you enquire about, a Saturday, is one on which to be cheerful and generous, accept any responsibility offered you and play no games of chance.

D. A. P.—You may have somewhat of a morbid nature, with a tendency toward spiritualism and occult things that should be conquered, if possible. You will never look with favor on new enterprises of any type, preferring to continue in the old ways. As long as you remain unmarried, you will have to find your success in life by working very hard. An everlasting plugging away at your job is the only course that will get you anything. You would make an excellent teacher, and would be good also as a designer, milliner, or in any capacity in the business world. You are likely to achieve a good deal of wealth if you start in business for yourself and keep working hard. You are magnetic and people are drawn toward you, but you dislike any special demonstration of affection. You are fond of travel.

Marry a man born in May, July, February or November. March and November are your good months, and Tuesdays and Saturdays your good days. You were born on Monday. Your colors are purple and brick shades.

K. W.—You have always had a tendency to fickleness and changefulness in your life. This has spoiled some things for you. It is not too late even yet to control this element in your nature. A weathervane is not a desirable symbol for anyone to adopt. You will achieve happiness and success only through service to others—putting others first and self last, always. This may not seem a pleasant way, but it is an exceedingly worthwhile way to live and will bring much happiness in its wake. You are fond of music and should have ability along this line. Remember, Gladstone is said to have begun the study of the Hebrew language after his seventieth year. You make a good friend and a promise to you is absolutely sacred. Always avoid scolders and fault-finders, who depress you. You like pleasure and should have a certain amount of it and of change and excitement in your life. Do not keep your nose eternally to the grindstone. Be careful of falls and accidents to the legs, hips and feet, also be careful of what you eat. You were born on Wednesday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is pink.

To accept a favor is to sell one's own fredom. —Syrus.

Plowing by explosion is a plan for agricultural improvement. The exhaust from the gasoline motor of the plow is led through hollow cultivator teeth to the soil, and is there discharged explosively, tearing up and aerating the ground, throwing out weeds, and destroying harmful organisms and eggs. The combustion products—carbon dioxide, oxygen, nitrogen and water vapor, are all beneficial, tending to add fertility to the soil.

SCORE OF PENALTIES AND HEATED ARGUMENT OVER DISPUTED GOAL WITH EXTRA PERIOD IN MONTREAL

Maroons Defeat Canadiens 4-3—Players and Fans in Debate.

MORENZ IN STORM

Penalty Bench Crowded Beyond Capacity Cause of Controversy.

MONTREAL, Que., Mar. 8 (Canadian Press) — Montreal Maroons made certain of a place in the championship play-offs of the National Hockey League when they defeated Canadiens, 4-3 in an overtime game at the Arena Saturday night. It was a typical guerilla struggle between these two local sextettes in which the Maroons thrice took the lead, Babe Siebert finally bringing victory and a place in the play-downs when he sniped his second goal of the night two minutes and 40 seconds after the start of the extra session.

But the Maroons made certain of their berth only after being subjected to the severest shock by the Canadiens, who at one stage of the game took the lead and had the Montreal team disorganized and jaded to the point where many Maroon supporters saw visions not only of the game, but all play-off possibilities, flickering out.

Reg. Noble had given the Maroons a one-goal lead early in the first period on a lone rush and a shot from a rebound off the boards —a deliberately planned and well executed move by this crafty defence player which completely dumb founded the Canadien defence.

Montreal went to defensive hockey and let Canadiens carry the play. The Maroons held their lead to the end of the first period. In the initial session Canadiens had an edge in the attacking and started the second period still doing the brunt of the work. Then the feeling which exists between the two local rival clubs became manifest and penalties flew fast and thick, hitting a peak when Montreal was left with three players to four Canadiens.

Canadiens Get Two

Here it was that Leduc took charge of proceedings for the Canucks, and before the teams had got back to strength, had led the rushes which gave Canadiens two goals and the lead, the second counter being protested by Montreal in the most heated debate waged in the National Hockey League this season.

The Maroons seemed dazed by the turn of events and could not rally in the middle period. But in the final session they showed a fight which has been lacking in their play recently. Tired and jaded though the players were after two strenuous weeks, they opened up with an offensive designed largely on the open formation which carried them so successfully earlier in the season.

Noble was the pivot of an attack which sent Stewart in for a shot and the hustling Punch Broadbent, who was playing one of his best games, made sure of the rebound to tie the teams.. And then came the dashing Babe Siebert and his smoking shot —a long drive from outside the defence cleanly beating Rheume to tie the count.

A Charity Counter

Again the Maroons faltered and Joliat's rush with Lepine on Benedict resulted in Noble deflecting the puck into his own net for a score credited to Joliat and which sent the teams into overtime. Pete Lepine drew a penalty for tripping Broadbent as he was hustling in on Rheaume and the Canadian net. While Lepine was off Howie Morenz essayed to carry the puck behind the Canadien goal to kill time. Broadbent and Stewart chased him in from either side of the net and Broadwent got the puck and whipped it out in front. Siebert was unmarked fifteen feet in front of the Canucks' goal. He met the puck with a terrific drive of the stick and it fairly whistled by Rheaume, who could not even move in an attempt to block the winning goal.

Twenty penalties were inflicted by the referees in their attempt to keep thse bitter rivals at hockey. But they were unable to maintain control and the steady parade in the second session tied the penalty time keepers up so badly in their attempts to keep a check on the culprits that they lost reckoning and started one of the most bitter debates ever witnessed in a pro game here.

Packed Penalty Pen

It all started over the small penalty bench, which was not big enough to hold the penalized players in the middle session. Morenz drew the fifth award within a minute and there were three Montrealers and two Canadiens out of action. There was no room in the penalty bench so Morenz went over to the Canadian bench to serve his time. Larochelle immediately jumped out as a relief for Morenz and the row started. Nelson Stewart, in the pen, started to smash his stick against the promenade boards to attract the referees' attention. This was not enough, so he hurled his stick out to the ice where Referee Cooper Smeaton was facing the puck. After the pros and cons had been debated on all sides Larochelle was sent back to the Canadien bench.

Lepine finally got the puck away from Dinsmore and passed it away back to Leduc, who was the third Canadien and unchecked. Leduc rushed in and in a scramble in front of Benedict, Pete Lepine evened the score. Two minutes later Leduc went down again and beat Benedict in a scramble around the Maroon goal and the Canadiens were one up.

Then the big show started. Montreal players objected that Howie Morenz had slipped on to the ice before his penalty had been served and that the goal should not count. Referees Smeaton and Billy Bell went over and conferred with penalty timekeepers Ferguson and Hart. Ferguson stated that Morenz's time was not up and Referee Smeaton ruled "no goal."

Frenzied Argument

With one jump manager Leo Dandurand covered the distance from the Canadien bench to the back of the penalty bench where the officials were. He started to debate heatedly. Questioned goals have been frequent at the Arena this year and Canadiens have not always come out on top in the argument. Dandurand gesticulated loud and long. The wire netting prevented more forcible argument, which was well, for the Canadien manager appeared in a towering rage. Cecil Hart was drawn into the argument and he announced that Morenz's time had been up and after seevral minutes more of debate —in which the crowd of 4,500 joined in from a distance but with plenty of noise and threats at the referees, the arbiters finally decided that Morenz's time had been served, though he had not come back on the ice through the penalty bench, but from the Canadien bench to which he had retired when the pen was too full at the time he started his penalty.

But that was not the end. Montreal objected to the referees changing their decision and Reg. Noble voiced his disgust in no uncertain terms. The Maroon officials in the meantime, President Strachan, in particular, who was running the Montreal team in the absence through illness of Eddie Gerard, had conferred with the timekeepers and got their versions and decided to await the result of the game before deciding his course of action regarding the protested goal.

Early in the third period Leduc was benched for tripping Stewart and Montreal took advantage of the odd man to press a criss-cross fire on Rheaume, Noble to Stewart to Broadwent from a rebound finally putting the teams on an even footing.

The Peterboro Seniors left this afternoon at 3.35 o'clock via C.P.R. for London, where tomorrow night they will clash with Bill Marsden's Ravens in the second game of the series for the O.H.A. senior championship. While recognizing the fact that the Big Six winners will be formidable on their own ice, there was a feeling of quiet confidence in the Petes' camp that the Ravens would know that they had been in a hockey game before the end of the sixty minutes.

Mike Rodden in the Globe on Saturday expressed it all in a sentence when he said: "The Petes are game and they are one of the best road teams in history." The London ice surface, 185 by 85, will not bother the blue and white to any great extent. Give them good ice and enough of it and that's all they ask of any man's team. The roars of the London fans will not bother them in the least, and they are determined not only to protect their lead on the round, but to increase it tomorrow night.

Y.W. QUINTETTE LOSE IN OSHAWA

OSHAWA WON 20-11

(Special to The Examiner)

OSHAWA, Mar. 8—Oshawa cagers were on the long end of both scores in a double bill of basketball played on the local Y.M.C.A. court Saturday evening. In the preliminary fixture the Oshawa Ladies' Ontario Basketball Association Intermediate team defeated the Peterboro City League Y.W.C.A. entry by 20 to 11, and in the second game between Toronto eCntral Y.M.C.A. and Oshawa Y.M.C.A. Juveniles, the Oshawa lads continued their unbroken record of wins by being on the long end of a 19 to 18 score.

In the Peterboro-Oshawa game the Motor City ladies outscored their opponents by six to one in the first period, Doris Kennedy securing one field goal and Katherine McLaughlin two field goals for Oshawa while Gertie Gimblett notched Peterboro's only point on a foul throw. In the second ten minutes of play the Liftlock city girls outpointed Oshawa six to two, Miss Gimblett getting two field goals and Nellie Francis one, while Doris Kennedy for Oshawa scored the only field goal of the period and when the first rest came the score stood Peterboro 7, Oshawa 8.

Oshawa Jumped Ahead

Oshawa scored three field goals to their opponents' one in the third period, the sharpshooters for Oshawa being Agnes Alger and Doris Kennedy while Nellie Francis secured two points for Peterboro on the best shot on the basket of the evening, being delivered from the left outside line. In the fourth period Oshawa again outscored Peterboro six points to two, Katherine McLaughlin, Marion Germond and Jean Hall each scoring a field goal, while Gertie Gimblett secured one for Peterboro and the total score at full time was Peterboro 11, Oshawa 20.

The teams and individual scores were:

Referee—Cliff E. James, Oshawa.

In the second fixture between Oshawa Y.M.C.A. boy juvenile team and Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. lads Oshawa led at the end of the first half by nine to five and while outscored by Toronto in the last period 13-10 they came through with a basket in the last two minutes of play to win out by 19 to 18.

PETERBORO COLLEGIATE BASKET TEAMS DIVIDE LINDSAY GAMES

Boys Win by 52-32, But Girls Lost to Lindsay Maidens.

STURGEON A STAR

LINDSAY, March 8. — Peterboro Collegiate basketball teams played return games with the local Collegiate crews on Saturday. Peterboro students won their game by a large margin, the score being 52-32, while Lindsay girls were winners by the score of 36-30.

The boys' team from the city proved to be a well balanced one, their passing and shooting as well as general combined team play being excellent. Sturgeon was the strong man on the visiting line up, scoring about 40 points. The score in the first period was 27-8 and in the last period 52-32. The teams:

Peterboro, Sturgeon and Devine, forwards; Ecobichon, centre; Bookhout and Doughty, defence; Huffman and McDonald, subs.

Douglas McBride refereed to the satisfaction of both teams.

In the girls' fixture, Lindsay students won out by the score of 36-30, and had to work every minute of the play in order to win. The Peterboro girls played a much better game than they did last Saturday in their home city. They displayed more speed and better accuracy in their shooting. The score at the end of the first period was 26-14 and at the close 36-30, the visitors having the better of the play in the last period.

Miss McIntosh of Peterboro, made a most acceptable referee. The teams:

Peterboro: I. Cooper, centre; A. McKone, side centre; Killaly and J. MacDuffee, forwards, F. Ackerman, and D. Cooper, subs., Morphet, Amys and Davidson.

Lindsay: F. Fever and T. Harcus, guards; N. Miles and E. Cole, forwards; Hall, centre; H. Wickett, side centre; McIntosh and McKinnon, subs.

The visiting teams were entertained at luncheon in the Assembly Hall at the close of the games.

NEW LINE-UP FOR ST. PATS' WIN

Happy Day Makes Good as Centre Man—New York Beaten.

SCORE 4-2.

TORONTO, March 8 (Canadian Press).—St. Patricks tried out a new line-up in Saturday night's game against New York, and won by 4 to 2. "Happy" Day was the regular centre man, with Norman Shay at left wing and Pete Bellefeuille at right. This front line showed to real advantage and carried the weary Madisons along so fast in the first period that the game began to develop into a rout, but the visitors did good work in the next two sessions and almost overcame the lead.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

GEORGE DUNCAN—DESCRIBES HIS CLUBS

Of late there has been a good deal of discussion as to the golfer's kit—how many clubs he or she should carry, and the kind that are particularly adapted to the use of the average player.

Having been asked to set down my views on this subject, it is an almost essential prelude that I should give details of my own equipment, for naturally, one has faith in the collection that one has evolved after many years of trial.

We know that Miss Alexa Stirling, former United States woman champion, makes a very successful job of the use of 15 clubs, and that J. H. Kirkwood, the open champion of Australia and New Zealand, is content with seven. (These are by way of being extremes in abundance and scarcity —at any rate, in the case of golfers who are bidding for the world's highest honors on the links.

If I may lay the flattering unction to my soul, my set of nine clubs represents the happy medium. It is constituted as follows:

Driver	Driving-Iron	Mashie
Brassie	Mid-Iron	Mashie	Niblick
Spoon	Mashie-Iron	Putter

Cowards die many times before their deaths; the valiant never taste of death but once.—Shakespeare.

We wound where we never intended to strike; we create anger where we never meant to harm; and these thoughts are the thorns in our cushion.—Thackeray.

WINS ANOTHER CUP.

Helen Wills Carries Off Mentone Tournament.

MENTONE, France, March 8.—(Canadian Press.) — Miss Helen Wills, the United States' champion, won the finals of the Mentone tournament Sunday by defeating Senorita De Alvarez, of Spain, 6-4, 6-4.

Mlle. Vlasto and Henri Cochet defeated Miss Wills and J. H. Van Alen in the finals of the international mixed doubles for the Cup of the Nations, 6-2, 6-2.

Henri Cochet, who ranks fourth in the French list, won the men's singles, defeating Count Von Kehrling, the Hungarian champion, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 3-6, 8-6.

DEMPSEY WANTS CHICAGO BOUT

Negotiations Begun For the Match With Harry Wills at Amusement Park.

PLANS TRAINING.

CHICAGO, March 8. Canadian Press. — The battleground for the world's heavyweight championship bout between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills will be Chicago if the negotiations started here are carried through. The bout will be staged under the auspices of the Coliseum Athletic Club provided the law legalizing boxing is passed at the April election.

Selection of Chicago as the scene of the battle is definitely announced by Floyd Fitzsimmons, who holds the contract for Dempsey's and Wills' services, and later confirmed by the heavyweight champion himself.

The negotiations provide for the merging of the South Bend., Ind., syndicate, which first posted the money binding the match, and the Coliseum Athletic Club, recently incorporated to promote boxing in Chicago, provided the law is passed.

Dempsey, before leaving for Los Angeles, said he planned to start training within two weeks, although the bout will not be held until September, probably on Labor Day.

HOFF RAISES VAULT.

Record Smashed For Fifth Time.

CHICAGO, March 9. — Canadian Press. — Charley Hoff, the black-haired Norwegian, smashed the world's indoor pole vault record for the fifth time since invading America when he leaped 13 feet 6 3-4 in., in the National A. A. U. championship indoor track and field meet here Saturday, exceeding his mark of 13 feet 5 1-8 inches established a week ago.

The world's record for the shot putt was smashed when Herbert Schwarze, the giant University of Wisconsin athlete, competing unattached, hurled the pellet 50 feet 7 1-5 inches.

AMERICANS LOSE TO TORONTO TEAM

St. Patricks Downed Rickard's Team 4-2.

TORONTO, March 8.—The Toronto St. Pats defeated the New York Americans in a National Hockey League game here by the score of 4 to 2. The St. Pats clinched victory by scoring three goals in the first period.

The Irish changed their regular line-up for this game. Hap Day, regular winger started at centre, with the substitute wings, Shay at left and Bellefeuille at right. The Americans started their regular line-up.

The best hockey of the game was witnessed at the start of the third period as the Americans fought valiantly to score the tying tally. Billy Burch was right through after tricking the Irish defence, but Roach came out to make a brilliant save. He repeated the performance a moment later when Shorty Green drove a terrific shot from close in.

The Americans sent out their second string forward line. This trio displayed some pretty combination, and frequently Roach and his wings worked in close on the local cage, but their efforts were nullified by the spectacular net minding of the Irish goalie.

Adams, veteran centre ice player for St. Patricks, came on and soon made his presence known by his tricky stick handling. The locals increased their slim lead on a pretty goal by Day, who went to left wing while Adams was on the ice. Day scored on a pass from Adams. The Irish goal had many narrow escapes as the period drew to a close.

LONDON OPINION OF FRIDAY'S GAME

The London Advertiser discusses Friday night's game as follows:

It was the third period which proved London's downfall. Breaks, and a tendency to rise to the bait of the Peterboro roughing tactics, spelled the margin of defeat. Moore had smothered a shot from Collins, diving out to the side of his net, but the puck slithered across the goal mouth, and Bailey, who started the attack, swept across and tucked it into the open nets.

That was the break part. London was playing one man short when Bailey got the Petes' fourth goal and only nine men on the depopulated sheet. Lowrey had drawn a penalty for a comeback after a particularly rough passage and while he could not be blamed in any way, yet his absence was fatal.

Big Six Fans Are Nonplussed.

London and Big Six fans, probably numbering 800, were nonplussed, even at the end of the game. Whether London had met a better team or were below their form, was still an open question. Certainly, they showed none of the form of their games in the Big Six. Petes were sure checks, but not overly attentive. Their front line attack in its whirling, unselfish style of play looked all they were cracked upto be, but at that, the Petes' two winning goals had a soft touch to them.

The Londoners looked worse during the first period than at any other stage, and the fans were hopeful that with the first excitement over, they would settle down. They did settle down to get two goals, and then the Petes' pair came out of the blue to upset the Big Six critics.

Both came at a time when the Miners seemed to have a distinct edge on the play, but both came as a result of combination, which was more than normally lacking on the London team. Every man seemed imbued with the idea that the winning of the game was on his shoulders. It was this spirit, rather than deliberate selfishness, that the London team-play suffered.

Teams Even on Lost Chances

The teams were even on lost chances ,a break on any of which might have meant goals. Petes matched London speed in every department, but their weight did not count as eastern fans thought it would. The Londoners were not backward in stepping into the heaviest bodying the Petes could hand out, and on end were not backward enough.

Teddy Graham was the only gory victim and he had to retire with blood streaming down his face in the third. The Londoners absorbed the shocks courageously, and the fact that they came from behind a two-goal handicap once to tie the score tonight, indicates that Tuesday night is by no means a forlorn conclusion."

And hen hes cracks:—

Oh, well, two goals isn't such a lead when you're playing in your own backyard.

Hats off to the London Miners who absorbed more punishment last night than in all the Big Six games put together.

The Lift Lockers had the weight, and they knew how to use it.

At the same time our own little Teddy Graham showed the Petey boys a few more wrinkles in the body-checking.

The blue and white crew won't be able to play the boards with the same precision in London. It was fully 25 per cent of their play last night.

The Petes have a wonderful machine, and played a great game. They are hot stuff all the way.

The Miners will pick their way to victory Tuesday night, or we miss our guess.

With the home crowd behind them, London can't help but win. The Petes' win came with Miners' predominating in the penalty box.

We never realzed how large a number of "two" was till we counted the score.

It won't look so big after the Miners get to work Tuesday. The Petes' lead will look like a movie fade-out when Sandy Bill and Keeling get going and not forgetting Shrimp, Jerry and Teddy.

Both teams did a lot of holding around the nets, but there wasn't any kissing.

The checking was fast and hard in the last thrill, both teams bodying furiously Lowrey and Starkings flopped McLeod and the rough stuff started early in the period.

Bailey, Peterboro wing strutted his stuff in great style the whole game. Packing a wicked shot, and with speed to burn he kept London fans mighty anxious.

"Won't you go home, Bill Bailey, won't you go home?" chanted a few London supporters. The sentiments were echoed by a good many others.

McLeod, the husky Pete defence man, didn't like the treatment meted out to him when he started to get rought with Teddy Graham and Starkings. Bill and McLeod were both banished for mixing at the London end he first period. Ditto, third period. In fact, several dittoes.

The extremely rounded corners of the rink were all in Petes' favor. They know what would happen at every angle of the corners when the puck hit.

London didn't start to play combination until the Petes had scored twice on beautiful combination plays.

Lowrey's second goal was the prettiest of the evening. He swept round the Petes' net and poked the rubber past the much-padded Dwyer.

SENATORS' SECOND STRING SQUAD LOSE LISTLESS GAME TO BRUINS

SCORE WAS 1-0

BOSTON, Mass., March 8—(Canadian Press).—Boston Bruins added two more points to their hold on third place in National Hockey League standing by defeating the league leading Ottawa Senators 1 to nothing in a colorless game here Saturday night. The Bruins now have a three point lead over Pittsburgh for a place in the play off.

Ottawa, saving up Hooley Smith and Boucher for the final series put up a somewhat spiritless contest, apparently content to keep the score down by an almost impregnable defense, even the great Nighbor left the ice for long periods to rest, and second string men were left to bear the most of the Boston attack. Throughout the contest Bruins held a heavy edge, and the great work of Connell in goal was the chief factor in keeping down the score.

Cooper and Herberts, the front line stars of the Boston team, performed at their best. The only goal of the game fell to the former who drove in the rebound of his own shot as Connell lay on the ice. At times the Bruins swarmed about the Ottawa net and were given opportunity for shot after shot at the wizard Connell.

From the Boston team one well known face was missing, Red Stuart having been given a match penalty on the basis of his third major penalty of the season in Thursdays game in Montreal against the Maroons.

First Period.

The Bruin's forward combination got going at the outset, when Harrington, Cooper and Herberts worked a fine short passing game that pierced the Ottawa defense. At the right minute Clancy intercepted a pass right in front of Connell. A second or two later Herberts knifed all the way down and missed a shot on an open goal. Then Dr. Stewart saved spectacularly as Nighbor, Finnegan and Denney bore in on the Bruin's citadel.

Scoring chances came thick and fast, but Connell and Stewart were in rare form. One of Cooper's bullet shots bothered the former, but he cleared finally. Hitchman carried through passing to Cooper for the shot. Connell stopped the puck but Cooper knocked the rebound in over the shoulder. The time was 8.15.

Second Period.

Just after the second period opened Connell saved from letting another goal through by falling on it. Herberts passed the Ottawa defense and shot from a few yards from the net. Three times in a few seconds the Bruins threatened, faulty passes at the net spoiling the attacks. The crowd began to call for action on the part of the Senators. Shouts of "play hockey" came from the betters on the side lines. Clancy and Denneny responded with a rush that broke up the Bruins' inner defense. Hitchman carried down and Harrington stopped his own mans' shot in front of the net. Clancy and Denneny staged another brilliant assault. When Ottawa pressed Boston fell back on a full team defense.

The game speeded up again. Kilrea and Clancy were through but Stewart saved the day. Bruins sent in their reserves to hold the fort for a time. Cahill and Jackson broke up repeated Ottawa attacks. The Boston forward line returned in full strength and from a face off near the Senators' goal Herberts caged it but the play was offside.

Clancy went off for charging Hitchman. Ottawa was jeered as they lifted out of danger and held on to the puck in an effort to kill time. Denneny carried around Bruins' net and it was a close one for Stewart.

Third Period.

As the period opened Aleck Smith stopped one of Cooper's hard shots in the face but the Ottawa defense man was able to resume after a few seconds. The Ottawa attack teamed up, Nighbor and Denneny leading the parade, but seldom got past Cleghorn and Hitchman. Once it looked like a goal for Bruins after a long run up the ice by Cooper and Jackson but Connell was equal to the task and it was saved. In a mix up near the Boston net Kilrea secured a shot which Stewart handled but the Boston defense man was caught napping and was very lucky. A fine bit of team work by Finnegan, Kilrea and Denneny failed when a pass in front of Stewart was slightly wide. Herberts got the puck in the eye in a mix up but kept right on. A second or two later he made a brilliant single handed drive on Connell. Clancy came down all alone for a fierce drive which Stewart deflected. Cooper's shot on a pass from Herberts was almost pulled in by himself.

Denneny resumed one of his fierce attacks and was close in on Stewart twice in quick succession but was beat by the Boston goalie both times.

Boston was near another score when Cooper and Herberts shot passed their way down and Cooper drove a soht at close range. The Ottawa backstop saved a situation that seemed impossible. Finnegan was sent to the penlty box for tripping Herberts. The entire Senator team was held on the defensive with shot after shot.

Bruins lifted the rubber away repeatedly as the Senators strove to tie it up in the waning minutes. The bell sounded with Boston still in the van.

HAGEN WINS AGAIN FROM BOBBY JONES

12 Up and 11 To Go in 72-Hole Match.

The match, which was heralded as for the unofficial golf championship of the United States, began Sunday of last week when thirty-six holes were played over the Whitfield Estates course at Sarasota, Hagen leading, eight up, at the end of the day. The final thirty-six holes were played to-day over the Pasadena course here, and ended with Hagen four up for this 36.

The contestants quit their match play on the twenty-fifth hole as Jones was willing to yield to his opponent, but they finished the course to please a gallery of nearly 2,000.

In his work on both links Jones showed occasional flashes of the form which carried him to the top of the amateur list, but Hagen's steady and relentless game and his calm demeanor in the most trying situations resulted in his overwhelming victory. Hagen's performance to-day was considered by experts to be one of the finest exhibitions of golf ever seen in this country.

HOLLYWOOD'S THRILL.

During the last six years Mac and I have watched a lot of people get their first glimpse of pictures in the making.

We've seen staid, responsible business men stand up nearly all night watching a fake storm, thrilled with the mechanical devices used to produce natural effects—and thrilled too to see men make heroic efforts to battle their way through a violent sea—a sea so violent that the actors were dragged out exhausted—and yet the whole thing taking place in a pond probably half a block wide.

People never fail to be amused and astonished to see men and women in gorgeous evening dress, Chinamen, cowboys and beggars calmly eating roast beef sandwiches in a restaurant near a studio—costumes, even the most bizarre, being as much a matter of course to screen actors as overalls are to the laborer, and that's why we think we can write about a lot of things that will be interesting to you, because we're right here in this funny, busy, fascinating Real City of Make Believe, Hollywood.

One day several months ago a Japanese Prince and Princess asked to be permitted to go through the Pickford-Fairbanks Studio. Mary wore a new dress for the occasion—a simple little rose silk, two-piece dress, such as any of us might wear—and as luck would have it—Mary sat down on a chair in the projection room which wasn't as clean as it might be—and behold a nasty spot in the pink silk dress, and Mary in as much of a stew about it as you or I. Also Mary discussing quite seriously the matter of bobbing her hair—asking advice about it and wondering—but up to the present time she hasn't bobbed it. Douglas Fairbanks came into the room and Mary quite casually introduced him—"This is my husband"—and proceeded to show him the spot, which had been of much more importance in the sum of the day's affairs than the visit of Japanese royalty.

There is no doubt that Mary Pickford has been, and still is, to a certain extent, the most outstanding woman in the history of pictures. Not that she is the greatest actress, or the greatest beauty, or the greatest anything, but through a fortunate combination of circumstances she occupies a unique position. She has been wise enough to build on a solid financial foundation. Her fame hasn't had anything of the sky-rocket quality. As she herself sagely remarked when a well-known critic scoffed at "Anne Rooney"—"If I made pictures to satisfy the highbrow critics I'd be broke!" And she would. She takes herself and her work seriously, does Mary. She takes her marriage seriously—

And here's a little bit of sentimental gossip that may help to prove that wives in the picture business are very much like wives in general. At the end of every one of Douglas Fairbanks' pictures, in the final clinch, it is Mary who gets the kiss—Mary doubling for the actress who has played the part—and if you notice, Doug is never very affectionate throughout his pictures—the only chance he gets to play the Great Lover is in private—but he seems well content. Their marriage seems to be a very satisfactory partnership.

As a general rule Hollywood is inclined to take engagements and rumors of engagements more or less carelessly—there are so many! And how is one to tell those that are sponsored by the great P. A. (press agents) from the honest to goodness serious ones?

However, when Mae Murray came back from Paris all divorced from Bob Leonard, and when they didn't get married again right away as some people perdicted, and when Bob continued to shower his attentions on Gertrude Olmstead and gave a brilliant New Year's party in her honor, the rumor of their engagement persisted, and at last it has been admitted by the principals and has been attended by the giving and receiving of a gorgeous diamond ring.

So the little Beauty Prize Girl who landed at Universal City one hot, dusty day in the summer of 1921, utterly bewildered, and without the shred of an idea as to what it was all about, is to become Mrs. Robert Leonard, wife of a director who can make her a star, perhaps—who can make her happy—perhaps.

Anyway, it has been a long jump for Gertrude—in five years. Having won the first prize in a beauty contest in Chicag , which gave a contract with Universal at the munificent salary of fifty dollars a week, Gertrude and her mother came to Hollywood.

Gertrude was pretty, but it was the sort of beauty that did not photograph easily and nobody had the time to experiment with various forms of lighting, and the most beautiful woman in the world hasn't a chance before the camera, without a sympathetic cameraman, so for more than a year the beauty prize girl was lost in two reel westerns and comedies. She didn't show any special aptitude for acting, but in a very short time she had learned the value of clothes, and how to wear them—and she wore them, but it didn't get her very far with Universal. Irving Thalberg finally gave her a chance at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, not a big chance—never a big part, but she's in good pictures. She never looks as beautiful as she is—she hasn't enough poise to register as effectively as she should, but she always looks and acts what she is—a regular girl, who has been well brought up. She is an only child. Her father was a dentist in a small town near Chicago. Her mother, now a widow, is as foolish about her as mothers are, but not foolish enough to force herself into the foreground of her daughter's professional life. They live very quietly in an apartment hotel in the center of Hollywood, and no one seems to know just how to explain her engagement to Bob Leonard—somehow one would think it would take a woman of some sophistication to successfully succeed Mae Murray, The Merry Widow—but according to Mae's story, "Bob was always a lovely husband," so maybe Gertrude is lucky after all, but it seems to us one of the most unexpected of Hollywood's unexpected romances.

NORTHERN TEAM IS BIG AND FAST

Trappers Hailed As Best Outfit Ever to Come After Junior Cup.

TORONTO, March 8 (Canadian Press).—North Bay Trappers, the husky N.O.H.A. Junior champions, arrived in Toronto yesterday for their O.H.A. Memorial Cup elimination series with Kingston, the first game of which will be played at the Arena to-night and the second on Wednesday night. The trappers are a big team, with the majority of the players enjoying their last season in Junior hockey, and they are hailed here as one of the fastest and cleverest Junior aggregations to come out of the north since the O.H.A. and N.O.H.A. champions engaged in the first of their annual series.

COUNTERFEITER CAUGHT.

Man Committed at Alexandria For Passing False U. S. Note.

OTTAWA, March 8 (Canadian Press).—An aftermath of the recent arrest of a counterfeit gang in New York City took place at Alexandria, 56 miles from here, when Israel Goldberg, of Montreal, was committed for trial on a charge of passing a counterfeit bill. The note is an imitation of a United States Federal Reserve note and is easily detected. It is alleged to be one of those made by the New York gang.

NEW YORK, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Tryon Hall, the $2,000,000 towered and gabeled mansion of the rocky promontory at the northern end of Manhattan Island, was completely destroyed by fire yesterday, while thirty pieces of fire apparatus battled in vain with the flames.

WHITEHOUSE IN EXHIBITION GAME

Peterborough Southpaw Pitches For Baltimore Against Athletics.

RELIEVES SKIDMORE.

The following clipping from 'The New York Times" contains a name well known to Peterborough baseball fans. No particulars are available as to the showing made by Frankie Whitehouse in the exhibition game mentioned as yet.

Philadelphia, March 5.—(A. P.)—A slightly different Athletic line-up trotted out on the baseball field at Fort Myers, Fla., to-day for the second exhibition game between Connie Mack's players and the Baltimore Internationals.

The Athletics made it two straight winnings by 5 to 3, the same as yesterday's score.

CLOSE GAMES IN CAMPBELLFORD

Clerks and Hydro Won From Colts and Outlaws.

BOTH SCORES 2-1.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 8. — The Clerks won another game in the Town League double attraction staged at Coverts' Arena on Friday night beating the Junior Colts 2 to 1 and the Hydro handed the Outlaws their first defeat of the season by the same score, 2 to 1, in an overtime game.

The Clerks were without Wood, and they missed the regular wing man's ability along the boards and close in on the nets.

The Colts also put up a superior brand of hockey to what they did before, with the defence work of Ingram and Davidson outstanding, and the Clerks had difficulty in getting in close to Irwin.

The line up:

Junior Colts: Goal, Irwin; r. defence, Davidson; Ingram, l. defence; Haig, centre; Baker, r. wing, Reynolds, s. wing; subs, Newsome, Bland and McAvoy.

Officials, Cowell and Ayrhart.

The Hydro-Outlaw struggle was a thriller all the way through, with the play very even. The close checking of both sextettes made combination almost an impossibility and the game was replete with fast individual rushes. The Hydro had more shots at Stewart than the Outlaws did at Saunders, but they also shot from all angles and all distances, while the Outlaws nearly always tried to work in close before shooting.

Each team scored a goal in the first period while the second and third periods were blanks. The rules of the league call for 20 minutes overtime or until one of the teams score, that team to be the winner, and the game ended. Both teams cut out a dazzling pace at the start of the overtime, and it looked as if the team that could maintain the killing pace the longest would be returned winners. The Outlaws had a close call in the first five minutes. Stewart came ten feet out of his net to sprawl on the puck but it got away from him and was travelling slowly for the open net, when Sarginson slid across the goal mouth, and diverted the rubber off in the corner. The end came shortly after the teams changed ends; there was a scramble in front of the Outlaw net, and Cowell shot the rubber through a maze of legs, and it landed in the net behind Stewart, and the Hydro were winners of the most exciting battle of the season.

Officials, Rev. Clarke, Ayrhart.

At a meeting of the executive Saturday night the tie game between the Clerks and the Outlaws was given to the Outlaws. The vote was 4 to 2 to follow the rules, and ignore the gentleman's agreement, made by the managers of the teams, and President Bell, to play 5 minutes each way

As a result the Outlaws and the Clerks are tied for first place in the first round, with eight points each. The Hydro are next with 7 points. The Clerks and Outlaws will clash next Tuesday night, the winners to go into the finals. The Hydro and the team losing on Tuesday night will play a sudden death game, likely on Thursday or Friday night, and the survivors of these two contests will play two games the following week, goals to count on the match.

The Cloth Co., Junior Colts and Menie have dropped out to allow the finals to be played before the ice breaks up, and a picked from the three above will play the Hydro an exhibition game to fill out the bargain attraction on Tuesday night.

Desire of greatness is a god-like sin.—Dryden.

BASEUMPIRE

Why the umpire at third base? That is the question invariably asked when some fan for the first time sees three umpires in charge of a ball game.

True, the umpire at third base does seem a lot of excess baggage, but there's a reason. Difficulty in getting competent men has resulted in this rather intensive, or perhaps you may prefer to call it, passive training.

The National League recently announced that it would carry 12 men. I think this is an excellent idea, even though it does seem that the man at third base should be provided with a ukelele to keep him busy during the afternoon.

President Johnson, of the American League, originated the idea of an umpire at third as a method of schooling the recruit. Last season the American League had a staff of 11 men.

Major league presidents have discovered that when injury or illness forces a regular umpire out of the game, it is impossible to recruit an umpire from the minors and ask him to give satisfaction with a close fight for the pennant in progress.

Using a man at third, enables the recruit to learn much by observation and instruction, making him ready to step into any emergency and deliver.

No doubt the scribes who have worried about ways and means to keep the umpire at third interested, will suggest that he be made worthy keeper of the resin bag.

ALEXANDER TALKS

I was rather interested in reading what Grover Cleveland Alexander, of the Chicago Cubs had to say the other day relative to the use of resin.

Alexander is one of the greatest pitchers the game has ever known. Like all great pitchers, throughout his career he has been long on control. Batters must earn their way to first base with Alexander pitching.

"Nothing doing on the resin for me," says Alexander." I have been pretty successful using natural methods to fool the batter and I am going to continue along those lines.

"Last year several of our pitchers rubbed resin on their hands between innings, insisting it helped them get more stuff on the ball. Being curious I tried it but the result was most disappointing.

"Instead of helping control on hot days I am sure it will retard that feature. Resin has a tendency to make my hands sticky and handicapped rather than helped me. So I intend to go along in the same old way.'

RULE DIFFERENCE

There is nothing unusual about the American League placing the ban on resin. For years both leagues have had at least a half dozen league rules governing their games that have been at variance with the strict inerpretation of the rules.

There was a striking illustration of this condition when both leagues used the Polo Grounds in New York. The distance from the home plate to the grandstand is much less than 90 feet.

The rule says the baserunner is entitled to an extra base if the ball touch any fence or building less than 90 feet from the home plate.

In the American League games any such a happening made the ball dead and baserunners could advance only one base. In the National League, the baserunner was entitled to the extra base but could advance more at his peril.

Thus the two leagues differed widely. In world series games two separate rulings were necessary.

The American League in placing a ban on the resin bag, simply refuses to conform to a rule that it believes savors of trickery. The rule is not compulsory, merely optional.

SMEATON MANAGER.

Montreal Referee Offered Post With New York Hockey Team.

MONTREAL, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Cooper Smeaton, Montreal referee on the National Hockey League staff, has been offered the post of manager of the second New York team, which it is expected will compete in the N.H.L. next season. The position was offered Smeaton by Col. J. S. Hammond, who is promoting the team which it is expected will operate from Brooklyn.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

W. BOULTON.

Dear Sir:

Enclosed find cheque, value $4.00, together with two application forms for membership in the Peterborough Exhibition.

During the past five years, I have watched very carefully the growth and development of the Peterboro' Exhibition and feel that Mr. Roland Denne and his associates should not only be congratulated but also encouraged upon the excellent facilities the Exhibition affords of bringing country and town together and providing entertainment which cannot be duplicated by an exhibition between Toronto and Ottawa.

Yours for a record 1926.

Sincerely,

W. BOULTON.

ROULEAU, Sask., March 8 (Canadian Press).—Richard McLuskie, 15, was killed on Saturday afternoon when a runaway team jammed him between a hay rack and a barn door.

CONDITION OF JENNINGS IS SERIOUS

ASHEVILLE, N.C., March 8— The manner in which the mental and physical strain of a gripping baseball race gnaws into the strength of the human physique of diamond athletes perhaps is better illustrated in the recent case of Hughie Jennings than in any athlete of recent years.

Jennings now is at Winyah sanitarium, Nasheville, N.C., striving to recover his health. The strain and worry of the 1925 struggle the Giants and Pirates waged until the closing date of the race are reported responsible for Hughie's breakdown, physicians who examined him at Asheville declare.

A rest of six months has been prescribe for Jennings. Should he insist on reporting to the Giants' camp at Sarasota, Fla., for spring training, the physicians in charge of his case refuse to assume responsibility for his condition. Since his arrival at Asheville many admiring fans have showered him with flowers but physicians and attendants refuse to permit anyone to see him, save Mrs. Jennings. His condition is very serious.

Jennings, who managed the Detroit club for years before going over to the National League to join his old teammate at Baltimore, John McGraw, was McGraw's first lieutenant last season.

When the Giants lost, Jennings grieved and worried. When they won he relaxed a little. But the Giants fought a losing battle to the end and, when the season was over, Jennings was a physical wreck, exhausted and fatigued until the breakdown could not be avoided.

The gruelling years he has served on the diamond have slowly sapped stamina and power from his being. No longer does the gallant old veteran of many a memorably struggle possess the recuperative powers that once was his.

Many fans read about the physical and mental strain of a hard season's grind. They pay little attention to it. Instead, they look upon it all as the pipe dream of some sport writer.

But in Hughie Jennings' case the fact has been driven convincingly to its target. The wear and tear of over 30 years' diamond slavery is beginning to collect its toll.

Although on the coaching lines the past several years, Hughie took defeat to his clubs to heart just as did Cobb or Crawford at Detroit or Frisch or Kelly at New York.

CHOIR CONCERT MUCH ENJOYED

TO BE BROADCAST.

WINDSOR, Mar. 8.—The choir of Central United church under the masterly direction of Mr. George H. King, new choir leader and organist presented a fine program of music and readings in the Auditorium of the church on Thursday evening February 25. Weeks of expert training have brought the choir to a high standard of musical excellence of which any church or community might be proud.

The church is fortunate in having a number of splendid singers, and the choir, under Mr. King's supervision, is accomplishing truly remarkable things. The numbers rendered by the choir was among the most notable features of the concert.

Since coming to the Border Cities last fall, Mr. George H. King, has gathered around him a band of singers it would be difficult to equal in any choir in Detroit. The parts are equally balanced and are capable of extreme tonal contrasts. The numbers selected for them in last evening's program were well chosen. Much credit should be given to the choir and soloists, who have so willingly and so freely given of their telent and time to make this concert the great success it was.

Miss Jessie B. Tuite, teacher of elocution of Albert College of Belleville, Ontario added much to the enjoyment of the program, with a number of splendid readings. She has wonderful ability to interpret life and reveal it in dramatic art, and a clear magnetic voice and possesses both humor and pathos in a high degree which always holds her audience spellbound. After hearing Miss Tuite once there is always a desire to hear her again, so great a mistress of her art is she.

Mrs. George H. King also assisted with the concert and was heard in several solo numbers which gave ample expression to her lovely soprano voice and it was a pleasure to hear her in concert selections. She has a well-rounded voice, colorful and having a range that embraces a warm richness and soars in a birdlike effect to the pure sweetness of the high soprano. She has been spoken of most favorably by the critics in various places where she has appeared in concerts.

Mrs. George H. King is a welcome addition to the ranks of local sopranos and her singing on Thursday evening tended further to establish the good esteem in which she is already held, possessing a well-trained voice of wide range and ample proportion, Mrs. King was able to portray every changing emotion of the varied choice of songs she presented on the program, from the intensely dramatic "Pipes of Gordon's Men" by Hammond, to Geoffrey O'Hara's "Little Bateese," and the playful "Good Morning, Brother Sunshine" which she gave as an encore. Captain Fred Lodge, always a favorite with local audiences, was generous in his offerings. His sweet tenor voice is always a pleasure to listen to. His songs were greatly appreciated.

Special Numbers.

The following program was rendered:

PART 1—1, Chorus, Come Unto Him (Gounod), choir; 2, soprano solo, Pipers of Gordon's men (Hammond), Mrs. George H. King; 3, reading, Here Comes the Bridegroom (Booth Tarkington), Miss Jessie B. Tuite; 4, chorus, Judge Me, O God (Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy), choir; 5, tenor solos, Morning and Sunlight (Strickland), Night and the Rain (Strickland); 6, reading, The Perfect Tribute (Mary Shipman Andrews), Miss Jessie B. Tuite; 7, chorus, Goin' Home, Largo from the New World (Dvorak), choir.

PART II—1, chorus, Lullaby from the Bavarian Highlands (Elgar), choir; 2, soprano solos, Little Bateese (Geoffrey O'Hara), Morning (Oley Speaks), Good Morning, Brother Sunshine (Liza Lenmann), Mrs. George H. King; 3, reading, Sandy McDougal's Opinion of Church Bazaars (Bell), Miss Jessie B. Tuite; 4, chorus, The Miserere, Prison Scene from Il Trovatore (Verdi), Mrs. King, Capt. Lodge and male chorus; 5, reading, selected, Miss Jessie B. Tuite; 6, tenor solos Has Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded (Moore), Your Smile (Forster), Interlude (Martin), Capt. Lodge; 7, chorus, Bridal Chorus from the Rose Maiden (Cowen), choir.

The above choir concert will be broadcasted tonight, March 8th, from 8 to 9 p.m., by station WCX, Detroit Free Press.

NOVA SCOTIA BUDGET INCREASE CONTRARY TO PREMIER'S PLEDGE

RHODES STATEMENT.

HALIFAX, N.S., Mar. 8—Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Premier of Nova Scotia, brought down the budget at Friday afternoon's session of the Legislative Assembly and announced that on March 8 he would move that the house go into committee of supply for consideration of the estimates. The budget calls for an estimated expenditure during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1926, of $6,666,674.64 against an expenditure in 1925, according to the public accounts tabled in the House on March second, of $5,969,544.24. The budget speech was replied to by Hon. William Chisholm, leader of the opposition, who agreed that the increased expenditure was probably necessary but declared that such an increase was not in keeping with the pre-election promises of the Conservative party to reduce expenditures and lower taxation. He criticized the method by which figures were arrived at in the public accounts, accusing the government of departing from the usual system for the purpose of creating a more attractive report for 1926. The debate was brief.

Before entering upon consideration of the details as set forth in the estimates, Premier Rhodes referred to the report, tabled in the House on February 9, of the firm of accountants who made an independent audit of the public accounts last year, copies of which are being prepared for general distribution. Financial statements submitted in previous years had been extremely unreliable, he said, and quoted an instance in which "a net deficit of $7,364.62, reported by the government as at September 30, 1924, was shown to be under-estimated $1,733,774.79." The deficit for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1925, as set forth in the auditor's report amounted to $1,180,866.37. The estimated deficit for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1926, was given by the Premier as $1,127,374.72.

Good Bond Price

Premier Rhodes pointed out the highly favorable prices received on bond issues in connection with recent loans, indicating, he said, that the province rated high in the money markets of the world. More loans would be imperative, the Premier said, stating that the overdraft at the present was over $2,000,000. The premier drew attention at the low rate of bank interest required on overdrafts since December last when by arrangement with the banks the government was able to reduce the rate on overdrafts from six per cent to five per cent per annum. On the other hand the rate of interest to be allowed on credit balances in those banks was reduced from 4 to 3 per cent. As it is rarely there is a credit balance, the arrangement, Premier Rhodes said, would save the province a considerable amount.

Per Capita Debt $69

The per capita debit of the province was given as $69.00 as compared with $100.00 in Ontario, $114.00 in Manitoba, $72.00 in Saskatchewan, $134.00 in Alberta and $142.00 in British Columbia.

The estimated revenue for 1926 amounts to $5,295,978.92 as against the amount shown in the public accounts for 1925 of $4,467,483.54.

Among the items under the heading of provincial treasurer's department, were $25,000 set aside for a plebiscite should it be necessary to undertake this procedure," $2,000 to cover the expenses of the Agricultural Commission; $6,000 for railway freight commission; $51,750 for the independent audit; $30,000 for the Royal Commission inquiring into the Nova Scotia coal industry and $13,000 as a loan to the United Mine Workers of America. It was pointed out by the premier that no provision had been made for payment of the bill amounting to $134,084.65 rendered by the Dominion government for the service of the military in Cape Breton last year. "Until our responsibility and liability in the matter is decided we shall hold this account in entire abeyance," said the Premier.

Under the Department of Public Services heading a sum of $25,000 was being set aside for an investigation into the water powers of the province, the Premier said.

Commenting upon the budget speech Hon. William Chisholm said there was no apparent cause for alarm so far as the public finances were concerned, contrary to what the people had been led to believe. He remarked upon the increase in stimated expenditures for the current fiscal year over last and expressed surprise that those had not been reduced.

"You will note a corresponding increase in estimated revenue," the Premier reminded him.

Election Promises.

Was this the answer to the pre-election promises of Conservative members, Mr. Chisholm asked. The Government had increased the expenditure, added to the Government departments, appointed new ministers and were seeking even more fields for expenditure in creating a deputy minister of highways, he challenged. Referring to the decrease in the bank rate of interest, Mr. Chisholm said it was no great accomplishment. Any person with good security could obtain a better interest rate today than he could a few years ago he declared, and the favorable rates readily received on provincial loans, he said, were a definite repudiation of claims that the country was in a "deplorable state" and "on the verge of bankruptcy."

All the expenditures of the last government, which he agreed had run into many millions, had been endorsed by the peopl and the people had reaped the benefit of the money expended in good highways and power development. The speaker made no objection to the increase in the expenditure for the ucrrnt fiscal year, but declared the Government should be sincere about it and not condemn the late administration for waste when its expenditures had been less per annum than those now proposed. He took occasion to express complete approval of the premier engaging a private secretary.

Buy Cheaper Liquor.

Taking up the item in the House accounts, showing the amount of revenue received from the Board of Vendor Commissioners for the last fiscal year to be $50,000, Mr. Chisholm challenged that the Government had deliberately failed to show the entire amount of net profits from that source on that year's business, intending to hold the balance for the revenue of the current fiscal year, thus making a better revenue showing when the next report is brought down. The fact that $315000 less of "tained money" had come into the revenue during the last fiscal year might be taken for an indication of progress of the temperance cause, he said. Others might say it was because people did buy liquor cheaper from "bottleggers" and were not patronizing the vendors he said but as a matter of fact he pointed out the net profits of the vendor commission was shown in another place in the public accounts as $167,080.41.

"It's time to get the independent auditors down here again," said Mr. Chisholm.

"They didn't come any too soon," said a voice from the Government side.

"But they didn't stay long enough," observed Mr. Chisholm. The Opposition leader declared that similar tactics had been followed in crediting highway taxes receivable from municipalities.

AT THE REGENT

EXCITING MYSTERY AND FAST COMEDY

Twenty Authors of "Bobbed Hair" Turned Out Fine Picture.

If one good author can turn out one good story, twenty good authors can turn out a story twenty times as good—and if you see "Bobbed Hair" the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen which opened today at the Regent Theatre you'll be convinced that this is good arithmetic and a mighty good picture.

Warner Bros. who produced this photoplay lost no time in procuring one of the most popular novels of the season for screen use. Almost everybody who read the adventures of beautiful Connemara Moore in book form will be interested in seeing Marie Prevost in the same role on the screen. She is exactly the type pictured by the twenty famous authors—incidentally it might be fair to mention them now:

The story is a rollicking, swift-moving, joyful tale through whose maze of swift adventure progresses the charming heroine and the personable young men in love with her. Not only is it an adventure story, but a delightful romance as well; perfectly acted by a cast which includes Kenneth Harlan, Louis Fapenda, Francis J. McDonald, Pat Hartigan, Emily Fitzroy, Reed Howes, John Roche, Tom Ricketts, Walter Long, Otto Hoffman and Kate Toncray, besides "Pal," the dog.

Alan Crosland directed the photoplay which was adapted to the screen by Louis Milestone and photographed by Byron Haskins.

RED LAKE FIELD GOOD PRODUCER

Is Quartz Field, However, and Will Require Much Expenditure.

SPLENDID ORE.

WINNIPEG, March 8. Canadian Press. — The difficulties and possibilities of the Red Lake mining district are fully discussed in a report prepared by W. J. Davidson of the Howey Syndicate and reported to the Free Press by its special correspondent at Hudson, Ont.

The report states that enough is not known of the property to say that the area is assured of some producing mine; but it is pointed out that it is a quartz district and that heavy expenditure will be necessary before a dollar's worth of gold is produced.

The Davidson report says in part:

"Work has been mainly confined to a thousand feet along the strike of the ore body eastward from McIntyre line. In all 23 cross trenches have been blasted across the ore body after having removed boulder and clay over burden, averaging six feet in depth. These cross trenches represent a total length of 1141 feet. Over 1200 feet of rock drilling has been done and blasted.

"The surface work has disclosed continuous ore over the entire length opened up, which is 1000 feet, and the most easterly trench shows splendid ore continuing to the east."

McIntyre and Dome Firmer At Standard Mining Exchange

TORONTO March 8 (Canadian Press). — Save for isolated firm spots, the market was uniformly weak on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. One of these firm spots was Dome, 50 cents higher at 19.00, and another was McIntyre, up 25 at 25.50. Teck Hughes last 7 at 320, Vipond 3 at 165, and Kirk-Hunton 4 at 24. Other easier golds were Argonaut, down 1 1-2 at 34, Kirkland Like, down 5 at 110, and Tough Oakes down 1 at 50. Mining Corporation was one of the weakest silvers, declining 7 at 388, while Castle Tretheway and Crown Reserve each lost 2 points at 160 and 17 and La Rose eased 4 at 28.

Smelters and Brazilian Lead On Toronto Stock Exchange

TORONTO, March 8.— (Canadian Press.)—Distinctly easier tone combined with much lighter trading marked this morning's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Smelters and Brazilian were the only stocks in which trading was heavy, while Industrial Alcohol and International Nickel were the other active leaders. Smelters led the decline, dropping during the session eleven points at 185, but recovering to 190 3-4 at noon close, a loss of five and three quarter points. Brazilian closed the morning three-quarters lower at 91. Nickel and Alcohol each lost 1 1-4 at 37 3-4 and 16 3-4 respectively. Winnipeg dropped 1 1-2 at 50 1-2 and Twin City and Brompton each 3-4 at 76 1-4 and 31. Mines were firm, Dome gaining 50 cents at 19.00 and McIntyre 25 at 25.75.

Drop In Temperature Sends Wheat Price Upward Again

CHICAGO, Mar. 8 (Canadian Press)—Influenced by the likelihood that low temperatures over Sunday together with the lack of snow blanket had done more or less damage to the new domestic winter crop wheat prices showed an early upward turn today. Opening, 3-8c lower to 1 1-4c higher, May (new) 159 1-2 to 160 1-4, and July 139 1-2 to 140 1-4, was followed by a material advance all around with indications at hand that the hauling of corn will be a good deal restricted until after the corn trading is complete.

Corn and oats were sympathetic to wheat strength. After opening 1-4c off to 1-4c up May 78 1-8 to 78 3-8 corn scored moderate general gains. Oats started unchanged to 1-4c lower, May 39 7-8 to 40 and later turned up grade.

Provisions reflected the down turn in hog values.

Stocks On Downward Path Report on To-day's Market

NEW YORK, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Selling pressure was resumed in today's stock market, but the decline was an orderly one, and apparently represented further readjustment of speculative accounts after the sensational fluctuations of last week, several of the high priced specialties were hammered down 3 to 7 points, but the net losses in standard rails and industrials were held to a point or two. Trading showed a marked contraction in volume, total sales in the first three hours falling well below 1,000,000 shares.

BRIAND LOATH TO TAKE OFFICE

Premier's Friends Believe He Will Retain Foreign Ministry Under New Premier.

HEALTH NOT GOOD.

PARIS, March 8 Canadian Press. —The political situation points to a ninth cabinet under Aristide Briand, should he care to accept the offer which the majority of those consulted by President Doumergue believe will be forthcoming.

M. Briand however is said to be loath to accept the premiership at this stage. It was with reluctance that he agreed to form his eigth cabinet last November. He pleaded ill-health at that time and his condition has not improved since.

When asked this afternoon whether he would accept the premiership again, M. Briand said: "They break a plate over my head and then come along and expect me to try to mend it." He shrugged his shoulder and walked off.

Friends are confident that he will not accept any offer to form a cabinet but may be willing to retain the foreign ministry in some new combination."

GIRL BURNED TO DEATH.

Little Girl, While Playing With Matches,, Is Fatally Injured.

OSHAWA, March 8. — (Canadian Press.)— Receiving horrible burns while playing with matches at her home, Ola Marjorie, 8 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery, died in the Oshawa General Hospital at 11.45 o'clock last night. The little girl had locked herself in the bathroom about 5.30 yesterday afternoon, and five minutes later her parents were startled by her screams. They were obliged to break down the bathroom door to gain entrance, and discovered the child in flames. An empty match box was found on the floor. Besides her parents, the child is survived by five brothers and four sisters. No damage was done to the house by fire.

WILLIAM EGGLETON.

The death occurred yesterday of William Harding Eggleton, at the age of 25 years. The late Mr. Eggleton was born in London, England, but came with his parents to this country twenty years ago. There is left to mourn his loss his wife, one son, William, aged four, also his grandfather, father and mother, three brothers, Frederick of Detroit and Alfred and Arthur, of this city, also one sister, Winnifred, living here.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the funeral chapel of D. Belleghem & Sons. Service was held at two o'clock, conducted by Rev. Dr. Blagrave, of St. John's church, with interment at Little Lake cemetery.

The deceased was a returned soldier and the bearers were members of the G.W.V.A.

DR. PETER MACNAUGHTON.

BROCKVILLE, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Dr. Peter MacNaughton, medical superintendent of the Ontario Hospital for the Insane, and one of the veterans of the Provincial hospital service, died at his residence here this morning of pneumonia, following a short illness. Born in 1859 in Dummer Township, Peterboro County, he was educated at Norwood High School and at Trinity University, Toronto, from which he graduated in medicine in 1888. He is survived by his wife. The funeral will be held here tomorrow, with burial at Peterboro on Wednesday.

MRS. WILLIAM HOGAN.

An aged and highly respected citizen of Peterborough was laid to rest to-day in the person of Mrs. Anne Hogan, relict of the late William Hogan. Requiem high mass was sung in St. Peter's Cathedral by Rev. Father Maher, and the Rev. Father Butler officiated at the cemetery.

The deceased lady, who was in her seventy-sixth year, passed peacefully away on Saturday and will be mourned by a large circle of friends and relatives. Four sons, J. J. of Otonabee, A. J. of Asphodel, R. J. of New York, and W. AROUND THE CITY.

The Peterborough Utilities Commission held a routine meeting on Saturday evening.

The firemen received a call to 523 Sherbrooke Street yesterday after-

Poke 'Em in the Locomotive To Remove Crossing Menace

How about the railroad crossings that the City Commissioners were going to give the railroads 10 days to protect? What has happened? Whose fault is it that these crossings are not protected? We know that Mayor Blanc wants them protected because he said so, and Mayor Blanc is as much interested in the interests of the people and protecting the people as anybody can be. He is a man with a great big heart. He is a man who is full of sympathy and we know that he wants to protect our people from accidents at the railroad crossings.

Now, isn't there something that can be done to put the resolution into effect that was passed some days ago asking that these railroad crossings be protected? Why is it that the city has to ask the railroad to do this? Why not order them to do it? Why not tell them that if they don't do it they can't run their trains across the street? Then they will do it. What right has the railroad company, because it is a railroad company and has a franchise, to go to certain points and endanger the lives of our citizens? Why? It seems to us that the Mayor should issue an order to the Chief of Police to arrest the engineer, fireman and conductor of a train crossing the street and put them in jail. It is done in other cities. Why, down in Miami the railroad paid no attention to the congested district of the city and it happens that the main line of this road coming into Miami crosses Flagler street within 50 feet of the main fire station. On one occasion a railroad train stopped the passage of a fire engine across the tracks and serious damage and almost a fatal result was the price.

Now if this railroad blocks the street, Chief of Police Quigg of Miami will arrest the fireman, the conductor and the engineer and lock them up. And, you bet, he soon put a stop to blocking Flagler street in Miami. Why can't the Mayor here issue an order to the Chief of Police to put one or two train crews in jail? Of course, the engineer and brakeman will say that they get their orders from the division superintendent, the vice-president, the president and the dispatcher, but we will soon find out who is the boss and, by cracky, if we cannot rule our own city we don't see why we let the railroad do it.

Look it up, Mayor Blanc, and see if you can't start something. Give them a poke in the locomotive.—

BRIAND IN DEFEAT REGARDED AS ONLY FRENCH LEADER CAPABLE OF UNRAVELING TANGLE OF POLITICS

Was Interviewed by President Doumergue, But is Reluctant to Try Again.

PUBLIC FAVORITE

His Prestige at Geneva a Factor Urging His Premiership.

PARIS, March 9.— (Canadian Press).—A ninth Briand cabinet last night seemed the most probable solution of France's cabinet crisis.

"The situation is complicated and simple. It is simple because it is complicated. The explanation of the apparent anomaly is that when a situation is so complex there is only one man who can unravel it. That man is Briand." Thus one of the public men consulted by President Dumergue yesterday, expressed the general sentiment regarding the crisis.

M. Briand, however, will require a great deal of persuasion before he consents to undertake anew the difficult task of bringing order out of the present parliamentary chaos. He is willing to remain at the Quai D'Orsay as foreign minister, but prefers that someone else grapple with the financial situation. The opinion last night, however, is that the necessary pressure to overcome his objections will be brought to bear, because it is impossible now to see how any other man can unravel the tangle.

Radicals Want Herriot.

The extreme radicals and socialists are making another effort to reorganize their cartel behind a Herriot cabinet. The president of the Chamber of Deputies, however, is averse to this combination, because he would be obliged to support the same financial policy he followed when in power before, which was rejected by the Senate.

Joseph Caillaux is still mentioned as an available candidate if M. Briand should steadfastly refuse. He is understood to have formulated three conditions to his acceptance, at least two of which are thought to be fatal to his chances. The first is that any government presided over by him be authorized to settle the financial problem by decree, levying taxes, holding lotteries and consolidating loans without action of parliament. His second condition is that parliament at once repeal the proportional representation electoral law and substitute therefor a system of electing deputies in separate districts instead of on a single ticket for a whole department.

President Doumergue devoted Monday to consultation with leaders of the groups that made up the old majority of the Left bloc. Today he will continue with leaders of the Opposition. Definite indications as to how he expects to solve the crisis will be possible only after these conversations.

Political gossip is all in favor of M. Briand's resumption of the premiership. It is held that it is necessary to send him back to Geneva with the same prestige he has had before, and hence he must again assume direction of the government.

LURE TOURIST BY GAME FISH

URGE DEVELOPMENT.

TORONTO, March 9 (Canadian Press).—Urging that the Government take all possible steps to foster the propagation of game fish in the province and suggesting that some of the attention given to the development of commercial fishing be diverted to this channel, a deputation from Toronto Anglers' Club waited on the Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature to-day. The deputation contended that the propagation of game fish brought much more revenue to the province through tourists than did the return occasioned by commercial fishing.

Nine Miners Now Known To Have Died In Explosion

ECCLES, West Virginia, Mar. 9. Canadian Press. — The known dead in the mine explosion here last night, was increased to nine to-day as rescue workers broke through a barrier of debris, and found eight additional bodies near the shaft bottom of the Crab Orchard Improvement Company's number 5 mine.

INTER-CITY NIGHT AT ROTARY CLUB

Members of Toronto Club Attend Meeting of Local Branch.

RED LETTER NIGHT.

Over one hundred members of the Toronto Rotary club journeyed to Peterborough last night for the inter-city meeting of the Toronto and the Peterborough Rotary clubs. It was a red letter night in the history of the Peterborough club which was well represented for the happy occasion. Rotarian J. H. Seels, President of the Peterborough club acted as chairman, his first act being to call on Rotarian Alex. Mowat to propose the toast to the visitors from Toronto.

Rotarian Seels then handed the gavel to Rotarian John Miller, President of the Toronto Club, who presided for the remainder of the evening. The Toronto members supplied the programme and song, story and different difficult stunts were in vogue until they had to leave for the special train which conveyed them back to Toronto.

Past President Norman Sommerville of the Toronto club presented the Peterborough club, on behalf of the Toronto brethren, with a beautiful shield with the Rotary emblem engraved upon it, its purpose in his own words "a shield to leave upon your walls that you may remember in a spirit of kindness the memories of our visit tonight." He dwelt for a short time on the ideals of Rotary and said that such visits as these were the core and kernel of the institution.

President Seels in a brief speech thanked the members of the Toronto club and said that for once he was unable to "express" himself. Songs by Rotarians Tom Bell, W. Baker, "Chappy" Chapman, and Bob McKillop were encored in an enthusiastic fashion.

Rotarian M. Neilson, the ice cream king, gave a very clever demonstration of a memory test. Some thirty or more names of articles were called out by members of the audience and were written upon a blackboard by a Peterborough man. Mr. Neilson stood with his back to the board and named each article in turn and then named them backwards in the exact order.

Rotarians Dixie Johnston and Bert Trestrail combined in an interesting mind reading stunt in which the members present wrote questions on slips of paper. The slips were passed to Bert Trestrail who read them correctly apparently by merely rubbing them against his head and his answers in reply were an eye opener to those present.

The singing of Auld Lang Syne brought what was said to be one of the most enjoyable nights in the history of the local club to a close.

The members of the Toronto club were conveyed to the C.P.R. station in the cars of the Peterborough members where they departed amidst cheers and at the same time expressions of regret.

You hate to be bothered by being called to the phone, and yet it's your own fault.

I hafta laugh when anybody comes away from a phone grumbling 'cause conversation took up some valuable time.

Don't tell folks to do what you'll be peeved about if they do it.

SUGGESTION OF WITHDRAWAL IS NOT ACCEPTABLE

German Delegates Say That Council Seats Are League Affair.

WON'T AGREE.

Matter of Rhine Occupation Is For Allies To Settle.

GENEVA, March 9 (Canadian Press)—Any suggestion that France might offer diminution of the forces in the Rhineland and reduction of the occupied area, in exchange for German acquiescence to Foland's admission to the League of Nations Council falls on barren ground, so far as the German delegation here is concerned.

This was made clear to-day by a German spokesman, following a round about point along the line conveyed through the columns of Geneva newspapers.

Published articles remarked that Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresemann could easily convince German public opinion that the withdrawal of additional French troops from German soil was preferable to uncompromising insistence that, when Germany enters the Council, she must enter alone.

"The question of Rhineland occupation is a matter between the Allies and Germany," the German spokesman said. "The question of enlarging the League Council is purely a League question, and all candidates for permanent or non-permanent council seats have equal merit in our eyes."

BROCK ST. RINK TO-MORROW NIGHT

Ladies' Gift Night—Another Handsome Prize Is Offered.

Gift night at Brock St. Rink has become very popular. Last night one of the best mid-week crowds of the season was present, and the winner got a prize of a handsome coat sweater.

Tomorrow night will be ladies' gift night, and the prize will be a boudoir lamp.

The possibility of there being skating for any longer than a week or ten days is not very good, but just now the ice is as fine as it has been all season.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer this morning was at two degrees above zero. Whether this is the last kick of winter I do not know. I would like to think it was. I would much prefer to speak of babbling brooks, singing songsters, bursting buds and skipping squirrels, but facts are stubborn things. I look around and see almost three feet of snow on the level. I feel the stinging pinch of Jack Frost on ears and nose and recognize that spring is yet in the future. However, it is coming. During the last few days I have been told of numerous crows having been seen in different places, a squirrel having been seen in the southern part of the city skipping from branch to branch of a tree, a robin near the Normal school, (this fellow, however, failed to go south with the rest of the family last fall), nuthatches and a "canary." I feel there must be some mistake about the latter. Perhaps some of the readers of the Examiner in the country could add to my list.—W. P.

Mother and Child Burn to Death at Warkworth

Mrs. Stuart West and Her Two Year Old Son Lose Lives in Blaze—Dr. West Escapes in His Night Clothes—Inquest Opens Under Campbellford Coroner.

ONLY REMAINS OF MOTHER FOUND.

Warkworth, March 9 (Special to The Examiner—Mrs. Stuart West, aged about 35, and her 2-year-old son, were burned to death about 2.00 o'clock this morning, when fire destroyed their home here. Dr. Stuart West managed to escape in his night clothes. The cause of the fire is believed to have been overheated stovepipes. The remains of Mrs. West have been recovered, but those of the infant have not been found.

Dr. W. F. Loucks of Campbellford, coroner, impanelled a jury today, with W. A. Kelly as foreman. Constable Cousans of Cobourg was also present. The jury viewed the remains and adjourned until March 25. Dr. West was so affected by shock that he was unable to give any account of the fire.

Dr. West has been in Warkworth about three years, and was successful in his profession. He served during the war with the Veterinary Corps, and met Mrs. West, who was a Belgian lady, while overseas, marrying her after his return to civilian life. Before enlisting, Dr. West lived in Campbellford, where his father who is also a veterinary surgeon, still resides.

RIFFS RETREATING CLAIM OF SPANISH

Tribesmen's Long Range Gun Reported. Captured.

MADRID, March 9.—(Canadian Press.)—The big gun with which the insurgent tribesmen have been bombarding Tetuan, Spanish general headquarters in Morocco, has been captured, the war office announces. The official statement also says:

"After four days of continuous fighting, the enemy is in full retreat and we have captured the Bebeitung Plateau without much resistance.

"Land, sea and air forces in cooperation with French air detachments made possible a rapid advance over mountainous country."

BRIAND WILL TRY TO GET CABINET

Veteran Statesman Accepts Mandate To Form Ninth Ministry.

NO RIGHT TO REFUSE.

PARIS, Mar. 9 (Canadian Press). —Aristide Briand, veteran French statesman, to-day accepted a mandate from President Doumergue to form his ninth Cabinet, to succeed the one which fell last Saturday.

He proposed that M. Briand be summoned, saying the Premier must return to the League meetings at Geneva with all the prestige he had before the fall of his Government. Herriot was summoned this morning by the President and asked to form a Cabinet.

Once more Premier Briand proved to be the only French leader willing to attempt to lead the country out of the financial bog in which it has been floundering. As he left the Elysee Palace this afternoon, after notifying the President of his acceptance, he said: "In view of the present situation of my country, I have told the President that I did not feel I had a right to refuse to attempt the task he did me the great honor to offer me. I will do my best to form a Cabinet, and hope to give President Doumergue a definite answer this evening."

ORDER FORBIDS LIQUOR EXPORT

Railway Officials Receive Official Notice Regarding Foreign Shipment.

NEW AGREEMENT.

TORONTO, March 9.— (Canadian Press.)—Railway officails here have received notice of the promulgation of an order that prohibits further shipments of beer from breweries or of whiskey and alcohol from distillers to border warehouses, for export to the United States, Mexico or Cuba. The order is believed to be the outcome of an arrangement between the United States and Canadian Governments.

HOMELESS DOGS MUST BE KILLED

Montreal Police Have Orders To Shoot Unmuzzled Canines.

MONTREAL, March 9 (Canadian Press).—Friendless and stray dogs will be made to feel their lot more keenly to-day when the Montreal police will be under orders to shoot and kill any stray and unmuzzled canines.

No exceptions will be made by the police. The Department of Agriculture has declared the Island of Montreal an infected area as the result of several people being infected with what is believed to be rabies, after being bitten by dogs.

TRUE BILL OF ARSON AGAINST HALIBURTON HOTEL MANAGER

HIS WIFE SICK

LINDSAY, March 9.—The Spring Assizes opened here Monday afternoon, with Mr. Justice Lennox presiding. There are three cases on the docket. The grand jury brought in true bills in the two charges preferred against Joseph Cooper, of West Guilford, Haliburton County. The accused is charged with arson and theft. Cooper was late manager of the Royal Kushog Hotel at Haliburton Village, which was destroyed by fire last fall. Following an investigation by the Fire Marshal and Provincial Officer Storey, Cooper was placed under arrest, charged with arson, and also with the theft of a quantity of silverware from the hotel.

On the request of Mr. L. V. O'Connor, counsel for the defendant, Mr. Justice Lennox enlarged the case until the next session of the Supreme Court. Mrs. Cooper, an important witness for the defence, is at present in ill-health, and could not attend court.

The second case is an action for damages preferred against James Casey, of Valentia, Mariposa Township, by Roy McCausland, of Ops Township, as a result of an accident which occurred last fall. Mr Casey, who was driving a car on the streets of Lindsay, collided with McCausland, who was riding a bicycle. The latter sustained serious injuries and was confined to his home for eleven weeks.

The third case is that of Lancaster (Bobcaygeon) vs. John O'Keefe, Lindsay), and has to do with a contract over the building of a house by the plaintiff for the defendant.

Bus Routes Are Changed To Cover Larger District

In response to numerous suggestions, the Jackson Park bus was re-routed this morning. Instead of turning at the corner of McDonnel and Monaghan Road as formerly, the bus proceeds south on Monaghan road, east on Weller street, and north along Park to McDonnel, making the return trip along its original route. J. O. Clifford, superintendent of the local branch, said that more territory would be covered, and that there would be no difficulty in meeting the schedule requirements.

The other change which went into effect this morning is intended to relieve the congestion which results when the buses and street cars meet at the corner of Charlotte and George streets. The west bound Hunter street bus, instead of coming down George to Charlotte, will turn at Water street, and stop on Charlotte at George, returning by the regular route.

This change was suggested by the Hydro officials.

ALPENA POLICE CHIEF SHOT BY MONTREAL PAIR

James and Leonard Lyons, Alleged "Bad Men," Caught By Farmers.

STOLE AUTOMOBILE

Wanted in Ohio for Murder —Chief Likely to Recover.

ALPENA, Mich., March 9 (Canadian Press).— Two gunmen who, according to the police, gave the names of James and Leonard Lyons of Montreal, Canada, shot and seriously wounded Chief of Police Dougal MacKenzie here Monday. The men claimed to be brothers, aged 35 years and 28 years respectively.

According to the police, both men admitted being wanted in Ohio for the murder of a special officer there and fled to Alpena as fugitives in a stolen automobile, which they abandoned on the outskirts of the city. The abandoned motor car led to suspicion of the pair, and Chief MacKenzie was shot when he questioned them.

After shooting the Police Chief, the two gunmen stole a small automobile and attempted to make their escape. Farmers who had been notified of the shooting armed themselves and caught the two gunmen at Lachine, 18 miles north of here. When brought to the jail in Alpena the gunmen had four loaded revolvers and a few coppers in their possession.

Chief MacKenzie is in a local hospital, and the authorities state that he will probably recover.

Records in the police department here show that rewards of $2,100 are out for the Lyons brothers, and the notice sent to police chiefs characterized them as "bad men, who will shoot at sight."

HONDURAS SETTLES OLD BRITISH DEBT

Incurred Fifty Years Ago— Easy Terms.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Mar. 9 (Canadian Press).—Congress yesterday ratified the agreement signed at Washington on October 29 last for the settlement of a debt Great Britain contracted more than half a century ago. The people of Honduras are gratified over the settlement because they feel that it reestablishes the credit of their country and establishes an era of prosperity.

A Honduran debt was floated fifty years or more ago in Great Britain, amounting to £5,000,000, but before the settlement was reached it had climbed to nearly £20,000,000. The agreement signed at the British Embassy in Washington last October provides for the payment by Honduras of a total of £1,200,000 in semi-annual instalments without interest over a period of thirty years.

CHICAGO'S ALLIES AND FOES ARE ARRAYED IN LEGAL BATTLE OVER WATER STEAL FROM GREAT LAKES

Wisconsin Supported in Suit by Eastern States Before Supreme Court.

NEARS ARGUMENT

Mississippi Valley States Reinforce Chicago in Diversion Defense.

WASHINGTON, March 9.— (Canadian Press).—The forces that are to battle in the supreme court over Chicago's diversion of water from Lake Michigan established yesterday the positions they will occupy when the suit brought by Wisconsin against the Chicago Sanitary district and Illinois is reached for oral argument today or Wednesday.

In her effort to upset Chicago's present arrangement for taking water from the lake, Wisconsin now has supporting her reinforcements from Ohio, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Michigan, Indiana and New York. Meantime, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee and Louisiana have rallied to the support of Chicago.

The states of Michigan, Indiana and New York came in line Monday, joining Wisconsin and other Great Lakes states with briefs which were filed with the consent of the court. Illinois, the Chicago Sanitary District, and the Mississippi valley states brought up heavy artillery in the shape of reply briefs.

Separate Suit Filed.

In addition Michigan established a new salient in the battle line by receiving permission by the supreme court to file a separate suit against the sanitary district and Illinois, but that will not be heard until next term of court in the fall.

The briefs of the sanitary district, Illinois, and the Mississippi Valley states filed yesterday challenged the jurisdiction of the supreme court, insisting that the suit must be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Congress, they argued, delegated power to the secretary of war to authorize diversion from Lake Michigan at Chicago, and the court, in deciding the suit brought by the government recognized that fact by authorizing the secretary of war to increase temporarily the amount of diversion. For the supreme court to decide the controversy now, they insisted, would be interference by the judiciary in a matter strictly within the control of congress.

They took the position that the diversion of water for use in the "lake-to-the-gulf" waterway upon authority of the delegated power of Congress was superior to any rights which the lake states might have.

Diversion Not Authorized.

The Great Lakes states supported the position taken by Wisconsin that Congress only has the power to authorize the diversion and has not done so. They challenged the assertion that the Secretary of War had authority to permit the diversion and insisted that the sanitary district could only divert such quantity of water as might be necessary to maintain navigation, which they asserted would not be more than 1,000 cubic feet per second.

Michigan, in its separate suit, will take the advanced position that even Congress cannot authorize the diversion of water from the Great Lakes from one watershed into another.

Hard-Working Charlie Has No Use For Mascara

The actor explained it was part of his make-up for a new picture.

"I tried mascara but the stuff ran down my face when I perspired," said Chaplin, "therefore I had to use dye."

FENG FORBIDS VESSELS' ENTRY

Peking Cut Off From Outside World By Kuo Minchen Dictum.

DEFIED PROTOCOL.

PEKING, March 9 (United Press) —Peking to-day is cut off from mail and freight communications with the outside world.

The isolation resulted from the battle around the Taku forts, near Tientsin, where Kuo Minchen troops and a force representing the coalition of Marshal Chang Tso Lin, Wu Pei Fu and Li Ching Lin are hotly engaged.

Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang, Kuo Minchen commander, who controls Peking, bodily defied the Boxer protocol by notifying pilots that no vessels would be permitted to pass the forts, thus closing the last outside mail and freight connections with Peking and Tientsin. The forts fired on pilot vessels before notifying the pilots of the new order.

OPPOSITION TO ELLIOTT LIKELY

PROGRESSIVES MEET.

STRATHROY, March 9 (Canadian Press).—Conservative leaders in the riding of West Middlesex are of the opinion that the party will nominate a candidate in opposition to Hon. J. C. Elliott, who was yesterday sworn in as Minister of Labor in the Dominion Cabinet. Robert McKellar, of Glencoe, Ont., president of the Conservative Association of West Middlesex, has called a meeting of the executive for tomorrow afternoon to decide on a course of action and to fix a date for the convention.

The Progressive leaders will also meet shortly to discuss the situation.

Hon. J. C. Elliot is expected here this afternoon and a meeting of his leading supporters will probably follow immediately on his arrival. In some quarters here, it is stated that the appointment of Mr. Elliott to the cabinet came as no surprise. There have been conferences among the Liberals in regard to the possibility of a bye-election.

KOREANS HERE.

C. M. ANDERSON LOSES MOTHER

Ex-President of C.O.B.L. Is In Hospital Himself After Operation.

DEATH SUDDEN.

OSHAWA, Ont., March 9 (Canadian Press).—The baseball fraternity throughout the Central Ontario Amateur Baseball League circuit and Eastern Ontario in general, will learn with regret of the death, this morning, of Mrs. William Anderson of Oshawa, mother of Chas. M. ('Chick') Anderson, past president of the C.O.A.B.L. Mrs. Anderson was taken sick the day after her son, Chas. M., was taken to the Oshawa General Hospital to undergo an operation on Friday of last week, and never rallied from the breakdown. Baseball fans will be glad to learn that Past President Anderson's condition this morning is reported as favorable by the hospital authorities, but no word of his mother's death was allowed to be communicated to him.

Old English Recipe For Foot Troubles

For troublesome bunions—hard, horny callouses — and sore, tired, tender, aching, burning feet—there is nothing in the world that gives such swift and certain comfort as the cooling, soothing, pain-killing touch of Geero Wormwood Balm!

No rags, pads or plasters — no burning acid liquids — no greasy, "smelly" salves to stain and muss you up—Geero Wormwood Balm is clean and pleasant, and like a Vanishing Cream "rubs in" almost instantly to give quick and satisfying relief. All good druggists, guaranteed.

PLAN NOW FOR THAT PACIFIC COAST AND ALASKA TRIP YOU INTENDED TO TAKE NEXT SUMMER.

Next summer forget the cares of business or profession and take a trip to Western Canada, the Pacific Coast or Alaska. There's satisfaction in this kind of a vacation—a swift journey through never-before-seen country, restful stops at splendid resort hotels, and, when you reach the Canadian Rockies, gorgeous vistas of lake, forest and towering mountain peaks.

There is never an idle moment if you travel the Canadian National Route on radio equipped trains. Crossing the vast prairie country, the Granary of the Empire is always interesting. Then there is Jasper Park Lodge of Continent-wide fame. There are mountains on all sides, sky piercing giants, snow-capped massive, many of which have never been scaled.

From Jasper National Park is a never-ending succession of mountains—and more mountains—lovely valleys, turbulent rivers and dashing waterfalls until you reach the Coast at Vancouver or Prince Rupert.

To make the most of your trip the voyage through the Sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific should be taken from Vancouver to Prince Rupert or Alaska. On the voyage you will see from splendid sea-going steamers, alluring inlets, towering headlands and tumbling icy streams and glaciers. On the return journey, see Kitwanga and its totem poles, Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and again to Jasper National Park.

These trips, as mapped out by Canadian National Railways, are not surpassed anywhere and furnish a liberal education on Canada to our Canadian people.

Summer tourist fares are effective between May 15th and Sept. 30th, with return limit of October 31st, at a minimum of cost.

Make sure of your Western trip this summer by planning ahead. Any Canadian National Agent will give you full information and illustrated booklets. 3d-9,17,27

ERNEST SEITZ RECITAL.

(By Jeanette)

Mr. Ernest Seitz of Toronto gave a piano recital last evening in the hall of the Conservatory of Music, before an audience of over three hundred people.

The programme was arranged in the pleasing manner characteristic of Mr. Seitz' work and included some of the very difficult music which he handles with such ease. One of the outstanding impressions gleaned from a recital by this artist is the feeling that he is a master of his work. He plays with a sureness and ease that is eminently satisfactory. His programme last night showed that technical intricacies have no terrors for him and his execution of difficult music is marvellously good. His technique is polished and finished in the extreme, his rendition smooth and marked by a fluid and limpid tone that is incisive and clear cut it its sparkling brilliance. This quality of cemeolike tone, every note at times standing out as if etched with a sharp tool, combines with an impeccable sense of rhythm and a bigness and brilliance of style, to make his work exceptionally attractive. His interpretation is adequate to the demands of the composer but it has never a hint of the individuality of the player. It is essentially music of the head and the intellectual bias of the musicin is paramount at all times. Even in the temperamental music of Rachmaninoff and of Chopin there remained a lack of rich, emotional color. Mr. Seitz plays as a coloratura soprano sings, with diamond-hard, flute-like brilliancy, his music clear cut, perfect, entrancing and cold.

Probably the outstanding group in a beautifully-arranged programme, was the quintette of compositions by Chopin. The wonderful powers of memorization possessed by the artist were demonstrated splendidly in this group, also his grasp of every phase of technical perfection. The flexible finers, bringing from the piano tones that ranged from tinkling silver in the pianissimo passages, to glaring bass in the forte measures, wove in dreamy melody and outlined in smashing chords the chromatic sinuosities of the temperamental Pole. The Largo movement and the final Presto non Tanto were beautifully played, the former smooth, suave, cool in its atmosphere its accented rebled standing out against the blurred softness of the bass, a hint of far-away melody beneath the little groups of super-added notes, while the latter, in contrast, was filled with unceasing sound, bright, flowing, vivacious. The musician's constant use of the loud pedal, almost overpowering at times, was very evident in this group, which made many demands on the player on account of its transitions in mood and tempo.

The programme opened with two light numbers, dances of the olden time—a Menuet by Dutton and a Gavotte by Glazaunow—followed by a trio of Brahms' compositions. The originality of figure and harmony, the asceticism of style and the occasional very noisy interludes which are characteristic of this composer were splendidly expressed by Mr. Seitz in the G Minor Ballade, the B Minor Capriecio and the F Minor Scherzo the latter a thing of light, limpid trilly intervals interspersed by sudden, heavy arpeggios played "en batterie."

The pelluicd quality of Mr. Seitz' tone and the absorption with which he enters into his music were very apparent in the Rachmaninoff numbers. His emotional self control and absence of stage mannerisms, attributes that make him exceptionally easy to listen to through an exacting programme, lost their value in music of a temperamental type, when the hearer longs for a less severe and businesslike approach to the task in hand and a little more warmth and color in its execution. But the music, like the rest of the evening's offerings, was wonderfully player, the recurrent galloping refrain of the Prelude in G Minor giving it a vivacious touch and the soft smooth measures of the Melodie in E Major progressing to the erratic, clamorous, staccato passages of the sparkling Polichinelle, its heavily-struck chords alternating with trills in silvery cascades of lightly-touched sweetness. A Valse Niegnonne by Rebikoff was a brief, sweet bit and the Struass-Sluiz-Evler "Arabesque on Themes of the Blue Danube Waltz," was a return to the favorite style of this player, brilliant, florid music of intricate type the melody overcast by a tapestry of ceaseless, swift movement. Mr. Seitz concluded his programme with a dainty encore, a vibrating tone apparent in the treble.

Uses Heintzman.

The Grand piano used at the Ernest Seitz recital last evening, was shipped from Toronto especially for him by Ye Olde Firme, Heintzman & Co., Ltd. This instrument is an achievement in the art of piano construction and the great artists prefer to use this high-class piano. This piano is constantly used by Ernest Seitz.

ABRAHAM'S ETHICS TERMED OBSOLETE

Doctrine of Favored Race is Peace Obstacle.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9.—The Old Testament, with its doctrines of the favored race, stands in the way of world peace; the ethics of the Old Testament heroes are obsolete, and Abraham lined with impunity, Dr. D. J. Evans, pastor of the First Baptist church, declared in a sermon here.

"We have no business dragging the ethics of Abraham's time into modern religious education," Dr. Evans said. "The Sunday school lessons about Jacob, David and other Old Testament heroes are but sugar-coated pills, and modern boys and girls need only to read where men lied, that they were polygamists and even murderers, to know this.

"Let religious education, rather, centre around the life of Christ, first, last and always. Jesus pronounced a permanent code of morality which makes the annals of the Old Testament heroes anachronisms. Their ethics are obsolete, provedly fallible and against the best interests of humanity.

"Why keep dragging the skeleton out of the closet for children to misunderstand?"

NOT A SIGN OF BACKACHE SINCE

Saskatchewan Lady Took Dodd's Kidney Pills and Her Trouble of Three Years' Standing Disappeared.

Mrs. R. Kolaso Was Unsuccessful with all Other Remedies.

WILLOW BROOK, Sask., March 8.—(Special).—"I have been troubledwith backache for almost three years. I have tried all kinds of medicines but they didn't help me at all.

"I sent for some Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did me much good. I have not had a sign of backache since."

This statement comes from Mrs. R. Kolaso, a well known resident of this place. That Mrs. Kolaso's trouble was caused by the kidneys is evidenced by the immediate relief she got.

Weak kidneys are not confined to grown people only. They are too often found in children, sowing the seeds of future ills unless the kidneys are strengthend and put in condition to do their full work.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have been tried and found to be an excellent kidney remedy. They will do you good at once, and better still, time will prove that the good they do is lasting.

BISHOP BERATES THEATRE TREND

NO ETERNAL SENSE.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., March 9 (United News).—When the church went into the theatre for its architectural ideas, it lost all traces of solemnity necessary to worship, Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Chicago told the New Jersey Methodist Episcopal Conference here Monday. "It was a bad day for Methodism," Bishop Hughes said. "I like to enter a church, so constructed that the minute I get in I instinctively take off my hat and feel a sense of eternity."

"If in May or June you want to take a spin in your automobile instead of going to church and want to run down Jesus Christ on a Jersey road in God's name, don't get pious about it and talk about worshipping God out in the open spaces," the Bishop said.

IRISH TO ATTEMPT NON-STOP FLIGHT

Two Pilots and Navigator of Free State Service To Cross Atlantic.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Mar. 9 (United News)—A non stop flight across the Atlantic will be attempted by the Irish Air Force in July, officials at Rockfield have been advised from Washington.

The projected route lies from Clifden, Galway, to St. John's, Newfoundland. Two pilots and a navigator of the Irish Free State Air Service will fly, planning to take about eighty four hours in the crossing, it was said.

ENGLAND TAKES NO STOCK IN THREATS

Chamberlain Harshly Criticizes Divergent Attitudes of League Members.

LONDON, Mar. 9 (United Press)—Sir Austen Chamberlain's criticisms were harsh today as they drew a picture of Sweden and Germany fighting for the "new diplomacy" while other nations grimly for the pre-war brand at Geneva.

England is not much impressed with the various threats of candidate for council seats to withdraw from the League of Nations if their aspirations are not satisfied. Such withdrawal, it is held would prove that the nation concerned was not suitable for membership anyway.

The greatest possibility of a solution of the crisis at Geneva, according to the opinion here, lies in Aristide Briand of France, returning to the league conference table.

CASE NOT PROVEN.

Hotels Have No Right To Draw Color Line, Says Justice.

TORONTO, March 9. — (Canadian Press.) — Holding that the plaintiffs had failed to prove that they had been definitely refused service by the Royal Connaught Hotel of Hamilton, Mr. Justice Logie in the non-jury Assize Court, yesterday dismissed without costs the action brought by Dr. Benjamine Cohen and his wife, Dr. Minnie Cohen, and Dr. George Wendel Morrison, against the hotel company, in which the plaintiffs claimed $50,000. The decision does not in any way disturb the existing laws governing innkeepers, nor does it give them the right to refuse service to any respectable guest who presents himself.

CALLS PASSED BY PRESBTERY

Rev. William Allan To Be Inducted At St. Paul's This Month.

OTHER BUSINESS.

The Peterborough Presbytery met in St. Paul's Church at 9.00 o'clock this morning, Rev. Mr. Walker, the Moderator, presided. The first half hour was devoted to devotional exercises led by Mr. Walker.

Mr. Thomson reported that Omemee and Lakevale were asking for a grant of $325 from the Home Mission Committee.

The call to Rev. Mr. Tenor of Havelock from Beamsville was presented, signed by 94 members. The call called for $1,800 stipend and 4 weeks' holidays. Mr. Cameron supported the call for the Hamilton Presbytery. Mr. Matheson and Dr. Thompson of Havelock spoke very fittingly of the work Mr. Tenor had done. Although the church had lost 28 members over Union, it had had the best year in its history. Mr. Tenor indicated a desire to accept the call, and Mr. Grier of Campbellford was appointed moderator.

Mr. Thomson presented a call to Rev. Wm. Allan from St. Paul's Church, Peterborough. The call was signed by 383 members and 52 adherents and a stipend of $4,250 is guaranteed with 6 weeks' vacation. H. B. Cowan and D. H. Moore, representatives of the session, supported the call for that body, and Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Logan for the board of managers. Mr. Allan had given his acceptance of the call and he is to be inducted on March 31 at 8 p.m.

Mr. Cameron presented a call to John Riddell, a student of Knox from Centreville and Millbrook, guaranteeing $2,000 stipend and two weeks' vacation. Mr. Dodds and J. H. McGill, representatives of Centreville and John Steele and W. T. A. Deyell of Millbrook supported the call. Mr. Riddell has given his acceptance of the call. The induction is to take place after convocation of Knox College in April.

The committee reported re a general superintendent for the Presbytery to have charge of minority groups and vacant charges. It was decided that no action would be taken at this time.

REPLY TO THRONE.

Provincial Members To Reply To Theme This Afternoon.

TORONTO, March 9. Canadian Press. — James Seagster, Liberal, Glengarry, will continue the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne, in the Ontario Legislature this afternoon.

Speakers to follow him are W. H. Chambers, Con., Oxford South, W. G. Weichel, Con., Waterloo North, and J. G. Lethbridge, Prog., Middlesex West. The conclusion of the debate may be reached to-night, in that case the House would divide on the Premier's amendment to amendamendment moved by W. E. Raney, Prog. leader.

MARSHALL MURDER HEARING IS BEGUN

Wife Disappears — Was Counted on as Defense Witness.

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—Disappearance of Mrs. David L. Marshall, counted on as a valuable defence witness at the trial of her husband, for the murder of Anna May Dietrich, 34-year-old milliner, was announced at the opening of Marshall's trial here Monday.

The statement was made by Abraham Wernick, Marshall's counsel. He declared Mrs. Marshall had disappeared from a hospital here on Saturday morning and had not since been heard from.

For several days Mrs. Marshall had been watching at the bedside of her 12-year-old daughter, Betty, who is critically ill.

More than a quarter of the first jury panel of 80 persons drawn for the trial were excused when court opened.

Murder Charged.

Marshall is said to have become enraged at Miss Dietrich, when in answer to his refusal to buy her pretty clothes, she is said to have threatened to expose his relations with her. In his rage he is alleged to have killed her.

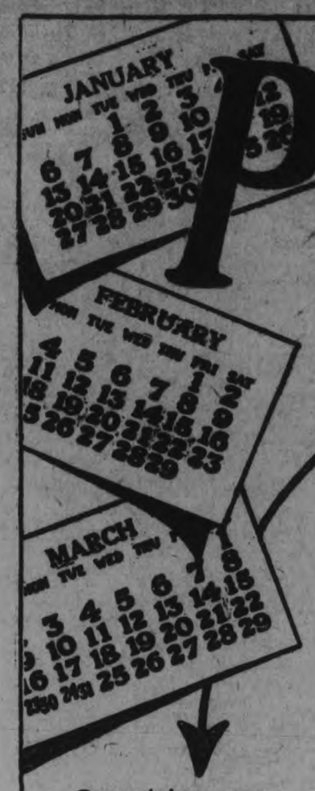
Then, with the skill of his profession, he is alleged to have dismembered her body, cutting off the head and then the legs and carrying the legs and torso to a wooded spot, where he concealed them.

But he forgot the head. When he returned to his office it reposed there—accusing him. In terror, he fled with it, tossed it aside near his home, and its discovery led to his arrest.

Marshall's wife has refused to come to his aid, it was understood, although she has expressed a belief that he was of temporarily unsound mind.

After his arrest, Marshall made a detailed statement, but there were reports that in his defence he would repudiate this confession on the grounds that it was made under pressure.

Earth is but the frozen echo of the silent voice of God.—Hageman.



Pneumonia! The season is on--

SINCE the dawn of civilization, pneumonia has scourged the human race. Hippocrates, father of modern medicine, described this disease in 400 B.C., and yet after 23 centuries, we know little more about it than he did. The cure for pneumonia is as yet undiscovered. But we do know that colds lower the vitality aud hence pave the way for pneumonia. Many fatal attacks, however, might be averted if more of us would follow this maxim—

"Never let a cold get a start"

Pneumonia is now more deadly than Tuberculosis

Government records show that deaths from pneumonia reach their peak during January, February or March. Formerly, tuberculosis, the "Captain of all the Men of Death," as it was called by John Bunyan, was the most fatal scourge of mankind. Since 1916, however, pneumonia has gained the grim title, averaging yearly 32 more deaths per 100,000 population.

Coryza—rhinitis—no matter what medical men may call the common cold, it is nevertheless a disease. A person with a bad cold is sick and should go to bed for a day or two.

Complete rest enables the body to regain lost vitality and so throw off germ infection. Unfortunately, it is not possible for all of us to get such rest. The next best thing is to take vigorous action at the first sign of a cold.

At night take a purgative—a hot bath, and plenty of hot lemonade—go to bed under blankets to induce perspiration. Briskly massage the throat and chest with Vicks for five minutes. Then spread on thickly—about one-eighth of an inch thick—and cover with two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths.

Leave the covering loose around the neck so the vapors arising from the application on the chest may be freely inhaled.

If there is much tightness or soreness in the chest, apply hot, wet cloths to open the pores of the skin before using Vicks.

If the air passages continue stopped up, try the "teakettle and tent treatment." This method—fully explained in the directions—consists, briefly, of vaporizing Vicks in a teakettle and arranging a newspaper "tent" over the patient's head so that the combined warm steam and vapors can be inhaled.

Being externally applied, Vicks can be used freely without disturbing the digestion. This makes it a boon to mothers. An application at bedtime will usually prevent a night attack of croup.

Vicks acts two ways— Externally and externally

When applied over throat and chest, Vicks acts like a poultice or plaster, increasing the circulation and so helping to prevent congestion in the region of the lungs.
At the same time, the ingredients are released by the body heat in the form of vapors and these vapors, inhaled with each breath, carry the medication direct to the air passages and lungs.
The ingredients of Vicks are printed on every package.

GLADIOLUS SHOW.

Committee Formed To Make Preparations For the Coming Convention in August.

A good representation of interested Horticulturists met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last night to organize committees and begin preparations for the coming of the Canadian Gladiolus Society, which will hold its annual convention and show in Peterboro, August 24 and 25. Coming on the invitation of the local Horticultural Society, it is up to the Peterboro society to be ready to entertain the most enthusiastic specialty floral organization in Canada, and to take care of what promises to be the biggest show of its kind ever held in Canada. Splendid progress was made last night, and carefully selected committees appointed under the leadership of "full-o-pep" chairmen.

From now on there will be no pause in the work of preparation the first thing to be taken care of being the list of prizes which will be open for competition by members of the Peterboro Horticultural Society only.

Following is the list of committees, the first named in each case being the chairman.

General Committee — Chairman, Mr. Thompson; made up of all sub committees.

Reception and Entertainment Committee—Dr. Middleton, Mrs. R. Harstone, Miss Hamilton, Jack Marshall, J. M. Greene.

Local Prize Committee—Mr. Wm. Young, D. G. Melton, J. Seymour, H. L. Beal, Harry Carter, Wm. Cruthers.

Publicity Committee—Mr. Callander, Mr. Beal, Mr. Thompson, and Fred Roy.

Finance Committee—Mr. Lacheur, Mr. Harstone, Mr. Harris, Alex Weddell.

Decoration Committee—Mr. Melton, Mr. Shiner, Reg. Turner, Percy Hamilton.

Trial Plot Committee—Mr. Prest, Mr. Young, Mr. Edgar, W. J. Kennedy, John Sanderson.

Exhibit Committee—Mr. Grierson Mr. Wood, Mr. A. T. Brown, Mrs. J. Wells Fraser, Messrs. Jordan, Blade, Williamson and Land.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mr. Stinson.

HEARING POSTPONED.

Counsel For Municipalities Asked For Adjournment To Study Data.

OTTAWA, March 9. — Canadian Press. — Hearing in the application of the Bell Telephone Company for increased tariff rates in Ontario and quebec ,before the Board of Railway Commissioners, was resumed here this afternoon, but later postponed until April 19. Counsel for the municipalities opposing the increase asked for adjournment to give them time to study data furnished by the telephone company, some of which opposing counsel said had just been made available to them.

PAPER COMMENTS ON IMPORT SCHEME

Says Government's Idea of Spending Million Sterling Is Paradox.

GLASGOW, March 9 (Canadian Press).—The Glasgow Herald, commenting on the Government's proposal to grant £1,000,000 for the encouragement of Empire trade, says: "It is something of paradox that while the Government proposes to spend £1,000,000 to assist the growers and producers of the Dominions to market their commodities here, many of our importers apparently are gripped with fear at the marketing power already possessed by important sections of Empire producers."

The Herald proceeds to cite the Western Canada wheat pool as an important example of acquired power and strength.

"The ruinous prices obtained for the record wheat crop of 1923," the Herald continues, "may be said to have been the provocation to action by the Dominion wheat producers, yet so swiftly has Canada adopted the pooling idea that its wheat pool already ranks as the biggest selling agency in the world."

Commission To Consider Germany's Admission Was Adjourned.

DATE NOT SET.

GENEVA, March 9 (Canadian Press).—On the proposal of Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, a commission named by the League of Nations Assembly to consider Germany's application for membership adjourned this afternoon immediately after it had convened. No date for the new meeting was set. Sir Austen pointed out that the situation concerning the allotment of the Council seats has not yet been clarified.

Officials of the League of Nations foresee May as the probable date for the meeting of a preparatory commission which is to lay the foundation for an international disarmament conference with every likelihood that the meeting will be held there, despite the fact that this would prevent the participation of Soviet Russia. The date will be fixed by the League Council.

ST. VINCENT'S ORPHANAGE TAG DAY ON SATURDAY

An Institution Deserving Your Kindly Consideration and Hearty Support.

St. Vincent's Orphanage will hold their annual Tag Day on Saturday, March 13th. This is usually held the Saturday just previous to the 17th of March.

St. Vincent's Orphanage is doing a grand work in the care of children who have lost their parents.

The Orphanage has been an institution in this city for many years, and the general public is well aware of the extremely good work they are doing.

Those in charge of the Orphanage bespeak for the young ladies who will be tagging the citizens on Saturday their kindly consideration and assistance.

Under the States Relations Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture co-operating with State departments more than 1,000 women are employed in home demonstration work in rural districts, as leaders of girls' clubs, specialists in nutrition, etc.

TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1926.

TONIGHT'S BATTLE.

Tonight the thoughts of most Peterboro people will be concentrated on the game in London, where the Peterboro hockey team is striving with the London Seniors for premier honours.

Probably Peterboro has never been more excited over a hockey game.

At least three special wires will carry play-by-play stories of the game for the benefit of local enthusiasts who are unable to make the trip to London, and even this service will fall short of accommodating all who wish to learn the details of the critical game.

The Peterboro team has earned this popular interest by playing fast, clean, colourful hockey that has brought the amateur game back to its former status and been responsible for attracting two of the largest crowds that ever saw a game in Toronto.

Win or lose tonight they will have earned the admiration of the people of Peterboro by their remarkable record this season, a record that has won for them a place in hockey history as one of the great teams of all time, and for their home city a record amount of the most desirable publicity.

All Peterboro—in fact, all Eastern Ontario—is pulling for the Petes tonight.

THE AMUSEMENT TAX AND AMATEUR SPORT.

The Free Press recently drew attention to the handicap upon amateur sport, in smaller places particularly, from the present Provincial Government's tax and suggested that the law should be amended so as to exempt athletic clubs, which have a hard enough time anyway in financing, from this nuisance tax. The Allison Herald states that Allison has no hockey team this year because this tax has put the team out of existence. The Provincial Government needs the money if it is to make its budget balance, but amateur sporting organizations are in a different class from places of amusement that are conducted primarily for the profit of the owners.

Manitoba has shown the way for Ontario in this respect, as the Manitoba Legislature has passed an amendment to the Manitoba law which exempts all amateur sports from the amusement tax. The difficulty, of course, will be to draw the line. For instance, the hockey games of the Big Six O.H.A., which draw thousands of spectators, can hardly be expected to get exemption. However, it should be possible to draft a bill which would bring relief to sporting organizations which have no thought of profit. The amount collected from such organizations is comparatively small, yet it is a nuisance to the clubs themselves. In these days, when amateur sport has hard sledding, the Government would be bestowing a real benefit upon the youth if they would lift this trifling but annoying burden.—London Free Press.

THE CHAIN LETTER NUISANCE.

That ancient old pest, the chain letter, has turned up again, and somebody has been pleased to send a copy to the Examiner, asking us to express an opinion on such letters.

Nearly everybody has seen a chain letter, one of those communications you are asked to copy nine times and send a copy to nine of your friends, with the threat that if you refuse to do so and thus break the chain you will have bad luck, while a compliance with the request will mean that good fortune will smile upon you.

This particular letter states that it was started by "an American soldier on the African desert," and the first thought that will strike any recipient with average intelligence is that the place from which this hoary nuisance originated would be a capital spot to send everybody who persists in bothering his friends by asking them to participate in the scheme.

The Examiner would advise all Peterboro people who receive a chain letter to tear it up and promptly forget it.

The letter-carrers are sufficiently over-worked as it is through carrying mail-order house catalogues, patent medicine almanacs and other similar mail matter without putting upon them a further burden of silly letters written by superstitious Morons.

There are some nuisances that unfortunately we cannot do much to abate, but the chain letter evil is a thing that can be very effectively nipped in the bud by a general refusal to copy the letters and send them on.

ONTARIO'S APPLES.

Figures issued by the Natural Resources Department as the output of Canadian fruit last year show a surprising increase in the quantity of apples produced in Ontario.

It will be a surprise to Examiner readers to learn that the quantity produced in this Province in 1925 was 1,587,848 barrels, as compared with 913,080 barrels in the previous year, the value of this fruit being $8,336,202 last year and only $4,834,978 in 1924.

The statistics indicate the necessity of the aggressive marketing and advertising campaign carried on by Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, last year, a campaign that not only produced a splendid sale of Ontario apples in the British market at top prices, but that also helped the Ontario product to hold its own market, which for some years has been seriously threatened by apples from outside the Province.

The production of commercial fruit in Canada has become an important industry, and in 1925 the output had a value of $28,553,212, an increase of $49,866 over the previous year. Apple growing in Canada is by far the largest branch of the fruit-growing industry, and last year the total production of commercial apples is estimated by the Department of Agriculture to have reached 3,580,770 barrels, with a value of $20,057,417. This was a slight improvement over the crop of 1924, which was 3,375,084 barrels, valued at $19,747,772.

The production and value of other fruits grown for commercial purposes are estimated as follows: Pears, 113,582 bushels, $249,185; plums and prunes, 79,562 bushels, $154,288; peaches, 201,840 bushels, $547,772; cherries, 114,925 bushels, $409,210; strawberries, 8,070,000 quarts, $1,458,950; raspberries, 1,947,000 quarts, $401,690; other berries, 2,470,000 quarts, $524,700; grapes, 25,000,000 pounds, $1,750,000.

SAVE THE FOREST WEEK.

His Excellency the Governor-General has issued a Royal Proclamation appointing the week of April 18 to 24, inclusive, to be observed as "Save-the-Forest Week."

The issuing of the proclamation indicates the importance of this subject to all Canadians and calls attention to the causes which render a vigorous campaign necessary, as well as to the best methods of carrying out the principles of conservation.

The reasons for setting aside this period as Save-the-Forest Week are given as follows:

The protection and perpetuation of our forests are vital to the continued industrial welfare and national strength of Canada and to the health, comfort and prosperity of our people.

The tremendous economic loss through forest fires continues year by year without appreciable diminution; and Canada's future prosperity is seriously menaced by these recurrent holocausts.

The experience of all forest authorities in Canada has abundantly demonstrated that the forest fire problem can be solved only with the full sympathy, assistance and active support of all the people, practically expressed by increased individual care with fire in the woods, and an insistent public demand for proper precaution against fire on the part of all workers or travellers in or adjacent to the forest.

It is imperative that in the public mind there should be thorough recognition of the fact that pleas of ignorance or thoughtlessness cannot possibly compensate the victims of fire's ravages nor condone the contravention of the law; that in truth, not fire but the hand that lights it is the public enemy; that in the national interest such ignorance and thoughtlessness cannot be further tolerated; and that responsibility must be fixed on the individuals concerned and the penalties provided by law imposed.

Forest fire revention demands education and publicity concerning the real situation with respect to our forest fire losses; and it is customary to set aside a week in each year known as Save-the-Forest Week, in which the attention of the people of Canada may be specially directed to this matter.

FORWARD IDEAS IN FARMING.

Several recent happenings point to advancement in Ontario agriculture. It is the season of legislation, and also of many farm meetings with discussion on important topics. The diversity of agriculture in this Province divides up the farm organizations, in contrast with the associations on the wheat-growing prairie, but most of the lines here are organized, and the annual conventions are fruitful in new ideas or in giving impulse to old ones.

In the Legislature a bill providing for payment for cream according to grade is being pushed to a conclusion. There is little or no opposition, the battle having been largely fought and won some years ago when provision was made for the grading of butter. As cream is the raw material for butter, the present bill is a logical step. Moreover, a campaign in education has been carried on during the past year leading up to the present measure.

It has been found that grading of butter, cheese, bacon hogs and eggs has been a profitable move, giving Canadian produce the necessary quality and standing in export markets. It is now being urged among producers that tender fruits and honey be similarly graded. The action of the Prairie Provinces in grading cream for some years past makes the present Ontario action the more necessary, and there is still further argument in the demand for raw cream. The conditions under which the man with poor cream received as high a price as the man with good cream could no longer be defended.

Packages for apples have been under discussion at recent meetings in the fruit belt of Ontario. It is believed that the day of barrel packing is about over. The barrel contains too large a quantity for the average consumer, and, besides, it causes too much injury to the apples. Fruit experts are now trying to decide upon a suitable package, and they will then have to arrange with transportation companies for a fair and equitable freight rate. Even the apple box is not wholly suitable for the apartment house trade, holding too large a quantity for quick consumption where there is no proper cool chamber for storage.

Years ago Ontario sent 400,000 barrels of apples annually to the Prairie Provinces. That has been much reduced by competition from British Columbia and from the Western States. Ontario growers still believe they can recapture that market through the quality of their apples, but they must work for it and build up a permanent reputation. A further safeguard of Government inspection to ensure quality may be necessary. The British market opportunity is also now complicated by the larger production of English apples. It is still felt, however, that Canadian apples of the very best dessert varieties, such as McIntosh and Spy, can depend on a permanent British demand at a profitable price.—The Globe.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A DIFFERENCE WORTH NOTHING

Enumerate all you like on the requirements necessary to good manners; but, when all is said, register this thought—Nothing contributes to good manners if kindliness is lacking.

Good manners are of the heart, not of the head; airs, graces, forms and phrases may masquerade as good manners, but without the sincerity of kindliness such manners are no more than acquired mannerisms.

Head habits are in a very different class from the good manners that kindliness inspires.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

IN THE NAME OF JUSTICE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—We hear a great deal today about Justice, Equity and Fair Dealing, and where should we expect to find these things more than in a court of justice. One can well understand that sometimes a witness may make erroneous statements, that a lawyer pressing the case of his client may overstep the bounds of propriety, but who would ever expect to hear certain severe strictures placed on an honored member of the ministry without his being given an opportunity to state his position.

This grows out of the trial held in Peterborough recently, in the case of Dawson vs. Dawson, Judge Mowat presiding. The evidence produced showed that the plaintiff was under the legal age of 18 years. The copy of the marriage license which was produced and read in court showed that the stated age was 18 years. Someone had sworn to that fact; was there no responsibility on the party who assumed the right to state under oath that the plaintiff was the full age of 18 years. Either he had been misinformed or else he wilfully perjured himself in making such declaration.

Again, because of a physical disability, deafness, Rev. Mr. Bamforth, who performed the ceremony was not allowed to give evidence and thus state his position. Mr. Bamforth is one of the most highly respected ministers of the United Church in the Bay of Quinte Conference, and while forced to cease from the active duties of the ministry because of his physical disability, yet during his ministry which extended over a period of years, he had made a record of which any man might well be pround.

Now why in the name of justice should any court say, "Why, for the sake of a fee of a few dollars will ministers perform these ceremonies without making sufficient enquiries?"; without giving the minister the opportunity of stating his position and thus at least declare that in his judgment the facts as set forth in the license were accurate and he had no mental reservations concerning the ages of respective parties.

Why thus place such an undue responsibility upon the minister in such a case? Is not the license the legal authority for the performance of such a ceremony? Why are such licenses issued, for the revenue the Government may derive, or for the necessary sanction of the state, and hence the ministers' authority for the performance of the marriage ceremony? What special sense would the learned judge expect a minister to have that would enable him to determine the exact age of any young lady within a few months or even a few years?

This is written in defence of Rev. Mr. Bamforth, also as a protest against what seemed to be an unwarranted and an unfair attack upon the ministry, who with rare exceptions are not only anxious and willing, but active to see that the provisions of the statute are respected.

Yours in the name of justice,
Peterborough Ministerial Association, per

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, March 8.— With nearly 1,000 head of cattle more than last week, trading was inclined to drag and very little buying was done during the first hour. H. P. Kennedy bought a number of export bulls from $5 to $5.75 a cwt. and these were steady. Heifers bought by Rogers and Maybee cost $7.50 a cwt. and some fair handyweight killers were taken by the packers from $6.60 to $7.00 a cwt. The latter prices were scarcely as good as the high prices of last week.

Butchers' cattle were much more active than the exporters. One bunch of choice 12.20-lb. steers were bought for home killing at $8.25 a cwt. and loads of near choice mixed handyweights sold from $7.15 to $7.25 a cwt. Cows were steady. Fair choice cows were $6 to $6.50 a cwt. and good cows $5 to $5.75 a cwt. Two steers shown at Christmas were bought for overseas at $8.85 a cwt., but loads of fairly good export steers sold at $7.75 a cwt. A trio of good baby beeves sold at $9.75 a cwt. Butchers' cattle sold generally at steady prices.

The calf market was active at about steady prices. Top calves were around 14 cents and good calves 12½ to 13½ cents a pound. Light medium calves sold from 9 to 11 cents.

About 1,500 western lambs arrived last Friday and sold at 13 cents a pound. Native lambs, good, sold at 14 cents this morning and choice butchers' sheep were 8 cents a pound.

There were less than 1,000 hogs on sale today. Packers were only bidding $13 a cwt. f.o.b., but salesmen were standing firm for $13.25 a cwt.

OTTAWA, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Local fresh receipts are increasing but consumptive demand is still largely depending on imports. A sharp increase in local receipts of fresh is anticipated any time now.

Toronto—Wholesale fresh extras 39 to 40, firsts 35 to 36, seconds 20 to 21.

Montreal—Markets steady. Local receipts light, States fresh arriving freely. Dealers paying Ontario fresh extras 40, firsts 35, seconds 30.

Winnipeg—Egg receipts steady, market lower. Dealers selling extras 30, firsts 28, seconds 20.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 8 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was again dull owing to the continued indifferent attitude of foreign buyers. There was no improvement in the domestic demand and the market in this respect was also quiet with a steady undertone.

The feature of the millfeed trade was the announcement made by one of the leading millers of a reduction of $2 per ton in the price of shorts and middlings but this action was not followed by the rest of the milling industry. The demand was steady. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was moderate and prices were unchanged.

The market for baled hay was without any new features to note. A stronger feeling developed in the potato market and prices were advanced 10 to 15 cents per bag.

A moderate amount of business was worked in beans and the tone was steady, with car lots of choice hand-picked white beans selling at 2.45 per bushel, and broken lots at $2.65 per bushel.

The receipts of butter were five packages as compared with 24 for the same day last week, and 1,988 for the corresponding day a year ago. The undertone to the trade was easier owing to the fact that some importers of foreign butter seemed to be anxious sellers, but as buyers were all fairly well supplied for the time being the demand was somewhat limited and business was quiet.

The receipts of cheese were 98 boxes, as against 70 for the same day last week, and 6 for the corresponding day a year ago. A feature of the trade was the demand from local byuers for Quebec 20-lb cheese and sales of several hundred were made at 21 1-4c per lb, while small lots of Western fancy white and colored sold at 25c per lb, and winter made cheese at 19 1-4c to 19 1-2c per lb.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, March 8 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.87 7-8.
Sterling cables $4.88 3-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 8 (Canadian Press).—Selling which developed after the United States visible supply figures were announced led to a material setback in wheat prices today and pulled down the corn market as well as oats. Wheat closed unsettled, 1 1-4 to 2c net lower, May (new) $1.58 to $1.58 1-8 and and July 1.38 1-8 to $1.38 1-4. Corn finished at 3-4 to 7-8c net decline oats 1-4 to 3-8c off, and provisions unchanged to 17 cents.

Fellowship of Prayer

TUESDAY—
Uncalculating Love.

Read Jn. 12:1-11. Text: 12:3. The house was filled with the odor of the ointment.

Meditation.—Our motives are mixed. Love is debased when self-seeking. Our golden ideal stands on feet of clay. This gospel story has been told wherever the transforming name of Jesus has gone because it illustrates love without alloy. Our hearts turn to it as flowers turn to the light. This woman had received much and acted with a love utterly uncalculating, and unselfish, in response to the perfect love of the Master. Much has been forgiven, and she learned to love much.

"What Thou hast given to me, Lord,
here I bring to Thee,
Odour and light, and the magic of gold,
Feet which must follow Thee, lips which must sing Thee,
Limbs which must ache for Thee ere they grow old."

Prayer.—Eternal, holy Love, God most high, we seek to worship Thee not only in words and outward form, but in the depths of our spirits and in truth. We have only one offering it is our poor selves we give Thee but thine own. Steal upon us like the grace of summer evenings, like the dew on parched ground. Rest our longings in Thyself. Amen.

Making the Farm —"Big Business"

Nowhere has the telephone wrought a greater transformation than on the farm. Everything raised on the farm is now sold and bought by telephone.

GONE are the days of the "Covered Wagon." On isolated farms where lonely souls used to hunger for the sound of a friendly voice, they now listen to market reports and neighbourhood news over the telephone—buy their supplies—order new parts for broken machinery.

Give the telephone a chance to accomplish wonders in YOUR business! It can. It should be doing it.

Build up Your Business by Telephone!

Canada's first real farmer, Louis Hébert, his only tool a spade, little dreamed in 1617 that with the telephone's assistance Canada's agricultural wealth would increase to over six billion dollars!

Now the farmer's steers, hogs and sheep, the immense grain crops, the vegetable and fruit crops, milk, butter, cheese, eggs, poultry, are largely marketed by telephone.

By bringing the markets of the world to the farmer's door, the telephone has made farming "big business."

"FORCES OF DESTRUCTION MUST NOT BE PERMITTED TO PREVAIL AGAINST WORLD'S DESIRE FOR PEACE"; APPEAL TO NATIONS BY PRESIDENT OF ASSEMBLY

League Must Not Contemplate Its Own Disappearance or Check.

CRISIS CONTINUES

Adjournment at Geneva on Monday Until Briand Returns From Paris.

GENEVA, March 9. — Canadian Press. — No progress was made on Monday in the crisis over the question of the enlargement of the League of Nations Council.

The opening session of the assembly, convoked for the election of Germany, adjourned last night after a dramatic appeal by the president, Dr. Alfonso Da Costa, former premier of Portugal, for harmony, without designating a day for the next meeting. In order to gain time to permit the reappearance of M.Briand at Geneva, the sub-committees of both assembly and council, will take up auxiliary matters to-day.

Monday closed with a continuation of the almost frenzied exchange of visits between the statesmen and with all parties to the conflict for council seats adhering rigidly to their original positions and openly proclaiming that they had no intention of receding one iota.

Count Quinones De Leon, Spanish ambassador to France, said: "Spain demands a permanent seat simultaneously with Germany. As for the idea of a sub-committee investigating how best to reconstruct the council we do not fancy it."

Brazil's Contention.

The Brazilian spokesman explained the attitude of that country: "We are going to pursue our claim for a permanent seat to the end. We do not know what the end will be, but we are persevering. We cannot allow a whole continent to remain without permanent representation and in this claim we have no Latin-American rivals."

The Swedish representative declared: "We will not agree to any enlargement of the council even if Germany's approval is won for it."

The Polish delegates seemed gloomier yet not less insistent in their demand for a council seat.

Despite the undoubted crisis, members of the council not directly connected with the present conflict informed the press that they deemed Sunday's conversations with Dr. Luther and Dr. Stresemann, the German delegates, helpful in that they removed the spirit of vindictiveness engendered by the dispute. They therefore thought that so mighty was the issue at stake, involving as it does the reconciliation of Europe and the whole destiny of the League of Nations, a way should be discovered to adjust the crisis.

In their best judgment the proper procedure was the election of Germany to a permanent seat, the entire problem of the reconstruction of the council then to be submitted for profound study. One point suggested was the adoption of a clear cut system of rotation for the non-permanent chairs.

Dr. Da Costa in his salutary address warned the assembly that the league's life had reached a turning point, and besought them neither to make nor let others make depressing or paralyzing suggestions. Recalling Locarno he asserted that its harmony had brought all peoples together in fraternity and hope for the opening of mankind of an era of tranquility and happiness after all the anguish and suffering of the past.

"The League of Nations," continued, "has no right to contemplate the remotest possibility of its own disappearance or even check. The present juncture is so decisive that we must feel the most complete confidence and obstinately refuse to admit that the vast dream of peace and progress might vanish at the moment when it has begun to seem a beautiful reality, leaving mankind once more beneath the heel of all the forces of destruction which we had thought were vanquished."

GOVERNOR SMITH OF NEW YORK PRESSES FOR SHIP CANAL TRAVERSING HIS STATE

Would be Built and Operated by United States Government—Extend From Lake Ontario to the the Hudson River.

ALBANY, N.Y., March 9 (Canadian Press). — Governor Smith last night sent to the Legislature a special message urging continued efforts by the State in advocacy of a ship canal, which would be built and operated by the Federal Government, from Lake Ontario to the Hudson River.

The message was sent on the eve of a hearing in Washington by the Board of Army Engineers to determine the feasibility of constructing an all-United States ship canal across New York State in preference to the proposed St. Lawrence waterway.

With his message, Governor Smith included a report by Stuart Green, superintendent of public works, pointing out that the public would not derive full benefit from the present barge canal until it was converted into a ship canal.

The Governor asserted that with the canal under Federal control and used for inter-state traffic, these facilities would be used completely, and that among the states directly benefitting would be Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minneapolis, North and South Dakota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri and New York.

Look for Film

(Run your tongue across your teeth and feel it!)

That's what makes your teeth look "off color." That's what invites decay and gum troubles.

Just accept, please, this remarkable dental test which gives "off-color" teeth dazzling whiteness and firm delicate gums by removing that dingy film from teeth

In a few days you can work a transformation in your mouth this new way. Dazzling whiteness will supplant that "off-color" look of your teeth. Your gums will become firm and take on a healthy coral tint.

Film . . . the trouble

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film, a viscous coat that covers them. That film is an enemy to your teeth—and your gums.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs discolorations and gives your teeth that cloudy "off-color" look. Germs by the millions breed in it, and they, with tartar, are a chief cause of pyorrhea, and gum disorders.

Old-time methods fail in successfully combating it. That's why regardless of the care you take now, your teeth remain dull—your gums soft and toneless.

New methods remove it. And firm the gums

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, dental science has discovered effective combatants. Their action is to curdle the film and remove it, then to firm the gums.

What you see when film is removed—the whiteness of your teeth—will amaze you.

Largely on dental advice, the world has turned to this method. A few days' use will prove its power beyond all doubt.

58 MEN TRAPPED IN MINE BLASTS

Double Explosion Rocked Connecting Mines in West Virginia.

EARLY REPORT

BLUEFIELD, W.Va., Mar. 9 (Canadian Press).—Fifty-eight miners were entombed last night at Eccles, when a double explosion rocked two connecting mines, Nos. 5 and 6, of the Crab Orchard Development Company, according to reports reaching here. The first blast was said to have trapped 30 miners in No. 6, and a moment later the explosion carried to No. 5, entombing 28 men working there.

STORIES OF DEATH ARE CONFLICTING

Police Investigate Fatal Shooting at Sandusky.

DETROIT, Mich., March 9. — (Canadian Press). — While sheriff and coroner investigate, three persons, William Lee, Perl Orling and Thomas Martin, are being held at Sandusky, Mich., following the shooting and killing of Roy Lee, aged 19, at the farm of William Sager, near Forester, Mich., on Saturday evening.

According to the police, the Lee brothers and six others went uninvited to Sager's farm for an oyster supper, and Sager objected. Roy Lee refused to enter the farm house and his brother, after going outside to him once or twice, reported that he had shot himself. Roy was found dead in the motor car, but his revolver was missing from its holster.

The members of the party tell conflicting stories.

CAVAN LADIES' AID

Discussion on "Our Community" Feature of Programme.

CAVAN, March 9.—The March meeting of the Ladies' Aid of Cavan United church was held at the home of Mrs. aJs. Douglas on Thursday afternoon. There were eighteen present. The president, Mrs. R. S. Staples occupied the chair and conducted the meeting.

The usual devotional and business session was held.

A short discussion on "Our Community" was a feature of the programme.

The ladies sent a telegram to Mrs. Rorke, Brantford, expressing sympathy with the family in the loss sustained in the passing away of Mr. Rorke.

Great regret was felt by the Cavan people in the loss of their dear friend and former pastor.

After the adjournment of the meeting the lunch committee, assisted Mrs. Douglas in serving lunch and a social time was enjoyed around the tea tables.

There was a euchre party in Cavan Community Hall on Thursday evening.

LAID UP BY NEURITIS AND RHEUMATISM

Is quickly put on his feet by simple home treatment

Many people who have suffered for years from the crippling pain of rheumatism or neuritis report that they have got amazing relief from a very simple home treatment.

"I could not walk for two weeks," writes a man from Moncton, N. B., Canada. "I had to be carried around like a baby. But one bottle of Sloan's Liniment put me on my feet again."

Just a little Sloan's patted on lightly—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood is sent tingling through the pain-ridden tissues. No rubbing! It's the medicine itself that does the work.

Soon the swelling and inflammation go down. The aching stops. Almost suddenly you find yourself really free from pain, really comfortable at last. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

ACTRESS TO MARRY

Elsie De Wolfe Made Debut Thirty-Six Years Ago.

PARIS, March 9 (Canadian Press).—According to reliable information last evening, Elsie De Wolfe, the actress, and Sir Charles Mendl, head of the press section of the British Embassy in Paris, plan to be married Wednesday morning. The intended wedding comes as a great surprise to their friends.

Miss De Wolfe is 61 years old. She made her debut on the stage in 1890, was for years head of her own stock company, left the stage in 1905 and since has been engaged as an interior decorator. Sir Charles Mendl was an intelligence officer in the British Army during the war. He was knighted in 1924.

England Sympathized With Revolution In States, Says G. K. Chesterton In New Play

LONDON, Mar. 9 (Canadian Press).—G. K. Chesterton has completed a new play, "Dr. Johnson," which deals with the great author and scholar and a young United States revolutionary who visited England in his time as a spy.

"G. K. C." develops two themes in the play. The first is that England of revolutionary times sympathized with colonialism as something splendid but hopeless, while the Toryism of old Dr. Johnson was alive. The other idea is that if you want to find a man bullying a woman into subjection, you must look out for a superman with his free love adventures.

"Dr. Johnson" will be produced in London by Sir Barry Jackson. Chesterton's most recently presented play, "The Man Who was Thursday," was dramatized from his book by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Cecil Chesterton, and Ralph Neale, fiance of Countess Cathcart.

MISS LAMARR LEFT LESS THAN $10,000

Film Star's Earnings Exceeded Million Dollars.

ALTADENA, Cal., March 9.—Although she was earning more than $10,000 monthly before she was stricken with her fatal illness, Barbara LaMarr, late film star, gave so much to charity that her estate is less than $10,000, according to her father, William M. Watson, who has been appointed executor.

"Barbara derived her greatest pleasure in lavishing her wealth on others and watching the fruits of her charity," Watson said. "She gave away more money than she spent on herself. She spent thousands of dollars every month towards orphanages, hospitals and film-struck girls in need of financial assistance."

Barbara's earnings in her movie career are said to have totalled more than $1,000,000.

BIDS TO BE ASKED FOR POWER LEASE

Private Development of Muscle Shoals Power.

WASHINGTON, March 9 (Canadian Press). — Congress yesterday approved the appointment of a joint committee to negotiate bids for the private leasing of Muscle shoals.

A resolution drafted to carry out a recommendation of President Coolidge and already adopted by the House was accepted by the Senate, 51 to 26, and sent to conference.

The Senate added two amendments. One, by Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, would require that surplus power developed at the big war-time project be distributed equitably to states adjoining Alabama. The other, by Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, would give the proposed joint committee until April 26 to submit a proposal to Congress for lease of the project, instead of April 1, as voted by the House.

REBUILD CREAMERY

Peterboro Man Has Contract —Former Building Was Burned.

NORWOOD, March 9.—Mr. Walter Bitten, whose creamery was destroyed by fire some time ago, has purchased from Messrs. J. Finlay & Sons Co., the lot at the corner of Peterboro and Elm streets. A new and substantial building will be erected on this lot as soon as it is possible to begin work. Mr. Doucette of Peterboro has been given the contract. The structure will be as nearly fire proof as possible, and will be constructed of cement blocks. The size of the new building will be 40 x 48 feet and will be built along the most up-to-date lines with new equipment throughout. A first class refrigerator and ice storage room will be built, and will be lined with cork board insulation, providing an even temperature.

SEAMEN EXPEL UNION OFFICER

Wilful Breaches of Rules in Australian Union Alleged.

TO IGNORE ORDER.

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 9 (Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's).—According to the Melbourne Herald, the executive of the Federal Seamen's Union has expelled Jacob Johannsen, secretary of the union, one of the leaders in the recent unofficial strike of British seamen at Australian ports, from the union, along with other members of the union, for alleged "wilful and continuous breaches of the rules of the union."

Internal trouble has been threatening the existence of the Australian Seamen's Union for some time. Johannsen, however, according to a report from Sydney, will continue his duties as secretary of the union, "ignoring the star chamber methods of the Federal executive."

At a meeting of the Seamen's Union at Sydney yesterday, which was attended by 500 members, it was unanimously decided to suspend General Secretary Raeburn on the ground of alleged neglect of duty.

Tom Walsh, president of the Australian Seamen's Union, and Secretary Johannsen were exceedingly active in connection with the prolonged seamen's strike, and the Australian Federal Parliament passed a law calculated to give the authorities power to deport them, but the Australian high court ruled that the Parliament had no authority to pass such a law. Walsh and Johannsen were imprisoned with a view to their deportation, and when they won their fight against the Bruce Government and were set at liberty, they began proceedings against the Government for damages for false arrest and imprisonment.

LINDSAY PRESBYTERY WILL DISCUSS WAR

Resolution From General Council to be Taken Up at Meeting.

Lindsay Presbytery of the United Church will meet in Queen Street United Church, Lindsay, on May 4th. One of the items of business will be the discussion of a resolution sent down to all Presbyteries for report back to the next General Council to be held in Montreal in June. The resolution is as follows: "That whereas we believe that the training of our young men for war is contrary to the spirit of Christ; therefore resolved, that we take steps to discontinue all the officers' training corps in the colleges of the United Church, and that we urge the Government to abolish cadet training in the public schools of the Dominion."

This will evoke a discussion on the whole question of the church's attitude on war, and Rev. M. C. McKinnon, M.A., B.D., and Rev. R. T. Richards, B.A., B.D., have been asked to speak to the resolution.

Birthday Party.

A pleasant surprise was arranged for Mrs. Hurd, senior, Fallis Line, on Saturday afternoon, when a few intimate friends gathered at her home in honor of her 86th birthday The birthday actually occurred on the 28th, but that date coming on Sunday this year, Saturday was made the occasion of its celebration.

A handsome birthday cake, boasting eight large candles round its base, each representing ten years, and six smaller ones on the top of the cake itself, centred the well-laden supper table.

Baskets of good things were safely smuggled in when the self-invited guests arrived, and a very happy time was spent, the guest of honor, who is enjoying excellent health in spite of her advanced years, being particularly pleased with the good wishes expressed and the kindly attentions shown.

Mrs. Hurd's daughter was recently called to Brandon, Man., on account of the serious illness of her aunt, Mrs. J. Medd, a niece from Oshawa, Miss M. Rodd, taking her place in looking after the household.

Mrs. Arthur Fallis, Mrs. Herb Ball, Mrs. W. Fred Fallis, and Mrs. J. H. George were the friends who planned the birthday party this year Mr. W. F. Fallis and others were callers during the evening.

Mrs. Walter Brock, and Mrs. Hilliard Strong of Peterborough, were visitors to Millbrook, coming out to call on their neice, Mrs. J. J. Crown, of Reaboro, who is a patient in Dr. Turner's hospital.

Reeve W. T. Wood was in Toronto last week as delegate to the annual convention of the Ontario Good Roads' Association.

Mrs. John Hatherly has returned from visiting her daughter, Mrs. Stanley Jones, of Newtonville. Mrs. Jones has a baby boy about one month old.

The carnival which the Cosmos Club intended holding on Friday evening was unavoidably postponed owing to the unfavorable weather.

The local Cosmos intermediate hockey team was beaten here on Saturday by a team from the Peterborough Canoe Club, the score being 1-0. The cold and rather stormy weather made it practically impossible for spectators to remain for game, the rink being an open one. Another year it is hoped the Cosmos club will be financially in a position to build a covered stand for the convenience of onlookers, the initial expense of purchasing the building and ground for starting the rink itself, being all it could undertake this season.

SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTION IN RATE FOR CAMPBELLFORD LIGHT USERS IS DISCUSSED BY COMMISSION

No Decision Arrived at With Opinion of Members Divided.

FOR BOTH CLASSES.

Commercial As Well As Domestic Users Would Benefit.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 9.—There is a chance that the consumers of both domestic and commercial light in Campbellford will be given a substantial reduction in their rates as this question has been before the Water and Light Commission for some time. At the last meeting it was again discussed but no decision was arrived at. The originator of the idea is Chairman S. J. Abernethy, Mayor Kingston is opposed to it, while Commissioner A. L. Riendeau (who was elected at the beginning of the year by acclamation) wants more time in order to get the views of the taxpayers.

Domestic consumers of light in this town pay two cents a kilowat for the first 150 hours and one cent an hour for all over that amount. Stores are charged four cents for the first 30, two cents for the next 70 and 4 cents for any additional consumption.

A reduction of 10 per cent is allowed on all bills for prompt payment but if payment is delayed beyond a certain time the customer is charged an additional five per cent if he continues to take the service.

Chairman Abernethy is in favor of allowing a rebate of 20 instead of 10 per cent on all lighting bills that are paid within a specified time. His contention is that this would have a tendency to encourage consumers to pay their accounts promptly and would do away with the necessity of employing an outside collector. If the proposed reduction is given effect it will, Mr. Abernethy says, lower the total yearly receipts of the Commission by about $1600. He says that the Commission is required by law to operate the system at cost and it now has on hand a surplus, or reserve fund, of about $25,000 from which the people are entitled to receive some benefit.

Just how the public is to share in the reserve fund is the question that is now engaging the attention of the Commission. Mayor Kingston believes that the present schedule of charges should be maintained and that part of the surplus should be turned over to the Town Council to be applied to a reduction of the tax rate which last year was 47 mills and this year is likely to be higher unless some means can be devised for holding it down.

In 1925 the Commission turned over to the Council $6000, or enough to reduce the tax rate by about four mills. Already this year a similar amount has been placed to the credit of the Council but there are members of the latter body who believe that this grant should be at least doubled.

Commissioner Riendeau at the beginning of his term of office was inclined to agree with Chairman Abernethy on the question of reducing the rates but at his request the matter was put over until the next meeting when it is expected it will be settled one way or the other.

Dispense With Collector.

The Commission of 1925, the members of which, besides the present chairman, were ex-Mayor Meyers and A. E. Caddy, engaged Matt. Mulhearn to collect over-due accounts against consumers of light and power, his compensation to be $40 a month and a percentage of his collections. Chairman Abernethy was opposed to this appointment as he maintained that any additional expense for clerical help should be paid by the Council which now has the services of one of the office staff of the Commission by paying only 25 per cent of his salary.

The present Commission has decided to dispense with the services of Mr. Mulhearn and on April 5th his engagement will terminate as a month's notice was required before his name could be removed from the pay-roll.

Not A Close Corporation.

Taxpayers have complained to The Examiner that the public is denied information as to what is being done by the Commission which is regarded as the most important civic body in town, handling as it does every year vast sums of money, more by far than that which passes through the hands of the Council.

The Water and Light Commission is a body so well organized that its business is carried on with the regularity of clock work. At some of its regular sessions all that there is to do is to pass the monthly pay roll. Chairman Abernethy has always maintained that the public has a right to know what the Commission is doing. At the yearly nomination meetings he presents his annual statement so clearly that all may understand. All important steps taken by the Commission have been duly recorded in The Examiner so that no taxpayer has reason to complain that the public is being kept in the dark.

Discount to Churches.

The Commission has already decided to allow all the churches in town a discount of 25 per cent on their bills instead of the present reduction of 10 per cent. This change will go into effect at the beginning of the next quarter.

RUNAWAY CAUSE OF EXCITEMENT

Teams Bolt During Hay Moving Bee, Upsetting Loads.

BURNBRAE NEWS

Burnbrae, March 9.—On Thursday afternoon some ten local farmers gathered to assist Mr. Harry Petherick in the moving of his hay to his new home on the Alex. Innes farm. During the afternoon a somewhat serious accident occurred when two horses hitched to a loaded sleigh became restless and broke the scantling to which they were tied, starting a general runaway which for a time assumed serious proportions. With six teams and seven loads of hay in the yard and no person nearer the ground than the top of a load, the horses got a long lead. The first team in line ran about one-third of a mile to the main road, where the load overturned in the ditch, effectually halting the horses. The second team circled through the field and upset their load in about fifty yards, while the third team took a turn through the other loads and stopped only when the load became wedged against another. With the exception of a few torn blankets and some broken tie-straps, no other damage was done, and it is extremely fortunate that the horses and men escaped injury.

Burnbrae W.M.S.

The Burnbrae Unionist W. M. S. held a meeting in Hoard's Church on Monday evening. Miss Mitchell, Field Secretary of the W.M.S., was present and addressed the meeting, and other numbers by local talent made an interesting programme. It was a matter of regret that the bad roads and storm kept many away, as Miss Mitchell has a really worthwhile message for everyone interested in missionary endeavor.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.

The Ladies' Aid regular monthly meeting was held Thursday in the basement of the church and was an all-day session. An old-time quilting bee and the work of renovating the vestry occupied the attention of the many ladies present. Dinner was served in the basement at noon.

Roads Closed.

The roads have finally became impassable for motor traffic, the last car going over the 8th Line on Monday, the day of the big storm. This road being the main road from Campbellford to Allan Mills, Springbrook, Marmora and Madoc, is kept open much longer than other roads, and should no further storms occur will doubtless be opened up within a week.

Prediction Misleading.

Crows appearing on Tuesday, March 2, were thought to be the heralds of spring, but the zero weather of the next few days gave the "lie" to any of Mr. Crow's predictions.

Hockey.

Menie hockey fans are rallying behind their team and are attending the game swell. Although the Menie team has won but one game as yet, it is putting up a good brand of hockey, and the support of the fans will encourage the players to further efforts. The splendid game being played by Rev. Clarke in the nets is acting as a stimulus to better play by the outer guard.

ORDERED TO SELL

BROCKVILLE, Ont., March 8.—(Canadian Press).—Sitting here on Friday, the Ontario Church Property Commission dealt with several application made under The United Church of Canada Act in respect to church properties, the manse owned by the East Oxford and Bishops-Mills circuit was ordered sold and the proceeds divided. Another manse attached to the Spencervile and Ventnor was ordered sold, two-thirds of the proceeds to go to Spencerville and one-third to Ventnor. Judgements were reserved in the cases of the South Mountain and Pleasant Valley manse and the Ventnor church, while the application in connection with the North Augusta church was withdrawn. The sittings are being continued, applications dealing with buildings at Lyn, Yonge Mills, Lansdowne and Fairfax requiring settlement.

$8,000 A YEAR AS COMMISSIONER OF HYDRO SYSTEM IN ADDITION TO SESSIONAL INDEMNITY TO COOKE

Hon. J. R. Cooke's Collection From Ontario Treasury Explained By Premier.

LEGISLATURE'S DAY.

Quiet Session Opened Week —Answers to Members' Queries.

TORONTO, March 9.— (Canadian Press.)—The Ontario Legislature yesterday had a dull session dealing mostly with legislation proposed by private members. Two bills proposed by F. C. McBrien (Con. Toronto) ran into difficulties and were eventually sent to committees for further explanation. One of these would have university property loaned to private individuals or companies for business purposes pay municipal taxes. Mr. McBrien said that Toronto lost $177,000 a year because of the present exemption whereby University property leased to others was not paying full taxes. Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney General, saw some difficulties in the bill and asked that it be sent to the legal committee.

Mr. McBrien had another bill whereby all property except crown lands wold be taxed for local improvements. He explained that cemeteries and public utility properties were not now taxed for local improvements. W. E. Sinclair, Liberal leader, said he thought it another bill simply for the good of Toronto and should be introduced as a Toronto private bill instead of a public measure which would clutter up the statutes of the province. The bill was withdrawn and the statute revision committee will be asked to deal with the matter.

Let Parents Sue.

F. R. Keefer introduced a bill whereby in a civil action the parents of a child killed in accident might be enabled to sue for damages. He explained that the present law gave no opportunity of compensation for such accidents. Edmund Proulx (Prescott) said it would be difficult to name a basis for such damages. Mr. Raney said the basis might be on what the child could have later earned on what it had had cost its parents during its life. The bill went to the legal committee.

In reply to a question by W. Ireland (Conservative) the Prime Minister said that the McNamara Construction Co. had had contracts with the Ontario government for the past 5 years. He also informed the House that the government railway had been extended 12 miles towards the Rouyn mining field since March 11, 1925. Twenty-seven miles of the line remained to be constructed. The cost of materials and equipment distributed on the Quebec side amounted to $89,000. He explained that much of this had been salvaged and sold and in case the road was never completed the ultimate loss would be very little.

Bees Destroyed.

Answering R. H. Kemp the Premier stated that the total cost of a barn at Hearst had been $15,400. During the year 5,238 persons registered under the Foul Brood Act and 4,563 colonies of bees were found infected; of these 1,500 were destroyed without compensation.

The Premier explained that Hon. J. R. Cooke, Hydro Commissioner, had drawn $6,000 a year since the date of his appointment until last year when he received $8,000. He also drew his sessional indemnity. Replying to D. J. Taylor, Premier Ferguson stated that the Shevlin-Clark Co. had asked for certain changes in the original agreement of settlement with the government, but as yet no change had been made. This company paid $951,000 back to the Province under an agreement of 1922 as a result of the timber probe.

Mr. Raney's motion that 10 members of the opposition be added to the public accounts committee was not pressed by its mover after the Prime Minister had objected to it. Mr. Raney felt that the system adopted in England where the opposition has the majority and also the chair on such committees should be adopted in Ontario. The Premier explained that the traditional system in Ontario was to give representation according to the number of each group. The motion was therefore withdrawn.

SHOP IN THE MORNINGS FOR BETTER SELECTION

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY REA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago, where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Chicago and later is attacked by two men, but escapes.

Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police picture as 1KE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness kindles hatred in her and she breaks their engagement.

LIEUTENANT O'DAY, a police friend of Jimmy's, tells him of a boy hood romance between Henry Rand and a girl named MARIE REAL. Jimmy goes home to his room to find Barry Colvin there with a ring that belonged to Henry Rand and that is inscribed with the name "Marie."

While they are talking, a shot is fired through the window.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV.

A round hole was in the pane, a hole fringed with splintering glass. Jimmy threw the window up with a bang, for the light shining from behind them prevented them from seeing a thing outside.

Glass came tumbling out of the sash and fell about them. . . . Up the street, in the darkness, a fleeing figure. . . .

"There he goes!" Barry grabbed Jimmy's arm in his excitement.

"Climb down the porch." Jimmy led the way and they clambered over the railing, hung by their hands and dropped to the ground.

They ran up the street, but whoever it was that had fired the shot had vanished.

Barry said, as they were returning: "He may be hiding. I don't relish the idea of having him take another shot at us."

But Jimmy had no such fears. A concrete danger—something they could put their fingers on, so to speak—was not half so troublesome, he explained, as the vague premonitions he had been experiencing.

"In a way, Barry, it's comforting to know that, after all, it's a human being we're dealing with. There's been something supernatural about this watching, and the letters." . . .

In front of the house, ironically enough, they encountered a policeman, the one O'Day had stationed as a sort of bodyguard since the night Jensen and his companion had followed Jimmy home.

He was just back, he explained, from ringing in at the call box. No, he had heard no shot, hadn't seen anyone. . . .

"The fellow must have been watching—waiting for the right moment," said Barry.

"You didn't get a good look at him?" The policeman had pulled out a notebook.

"No. Just a glimpse of him running away in the darkness. Couldn't even tell you how big he was."

"I'll ring in for some help and we'll search the neighborhood." The policeman seemed troubled. "I'll have to make a report. Sorry I wasn't here at the time. I'm sort of responsible, you know."

"Not your fault," Jimmy assured him. "I'll explain it."

Mrs. King met them at the door, all a-flutter. The shot, it seemed, had awakened her. . . .

She insisted on all the details from Jimmy before she agreed to go back to bed. . . .

"He must have hidden on the porch, Jim," said Barry. He and Jimmy had climbed out of the window and were looking in the room. "That explains the open window that I saw when I came in the room."

"But he couldn't have been out here all the time you were here. You said you had been in the room here nearly all evening."

"No. Chances are he waited outside until I lit the light. Then when he saw who it was he jumped down and came back later. . . . I guess you'll admit now that I was right."

"Right about what?"

"I told you this fellow who has been writing the notes meant business. He meant to kill you, Jim. No question about it. Why don't you listen to reason and come home?"

"Barry, let me ask you a question. If you were in my place would you let a thing like this scare you off? You know why I came here. Would you pack up and leave after getting as far as I have?"

"I don't know how to answer you, Jim. All I know is that I have a very wholesome respect for my scalp. That very likely would be my first consideration."

"That's just talk. You know very well you'd stick it out. This sort of thing can't go on indefinitely. We'll catch those fellows sooner or later."

Sleep was out of the question. . . . Police came later to ply them with more questions and to survey the porch and the broken window. . . .

And so the two of them sat and talked far into the night.

At that moment Samuel Church sat in the library of his magnificent home, busying himself with a pile of legal papers. . . . There was an important damage suit against the Q. & R. Railroad which he would have to defend. He scanned the documents—some of them formidable looking affairs—briefs, depositions and notes on testimony he would have to bring out.

And yet it was hard for him to concentrate on his task. A frown knit his brow. He stared dreamily at the ceiling, pressing the tip of his pencil against his lips.

He glanced at his watch. Two o'clock in the morning. Again he sat back in his chair, studying the ceiling . . . .

Then, fired with a sudden resolution, he rose and opened a drawer. Taking out some stationery, he uncapped his fountain pen and slowly composed a letter. He addressed it to Mrs. F. C. Lowell.

It was a very well written letter. . . . He loved Mary Lowell, and she had promised to marry him. . . . Now, because of a sudden whim, she had broken off with him. Wasn't there some way of getting her to realize the mistake she had made?

Of course, it had been rather heartless about him—that affair about the dog. Yet he was a busy man, a preoccupied man. Important business engaged his thoughts most of the time. He was sorry it had happened and quite honestly admitted he had been wrong.

Mary must not condemn him on the strength of that one little thing. . . . An honest man, a good name, wealth. . . . all these things she was turning down. He had been hasty and wanted to apologize, but Mary hadn't given him the chance. He needed an ally. . . .

This letter he read over. Then, apparently satisfied, he stamped it and left it where the butler could find it and mail it the first thing in the morning.

Again he leaned back in his chair, and again that worried frown between his eyes. . . .

He stood before his safe, twirling the dial. Presently he swung the heavy door open and drew forth a wallet, held together with a heavy rubber band.

From this he extracted a folded paper and a letter. With a quick glance around the room, as if to assure himself that he was unobserved, he opened them and read them. . . . But he read them mechanically, unseeingly, as if their contents already were familiar to him.

The worried frown on his brow deepened. From time to time he glanced up from his reading. He seemed to be waiting for something. He looked at his watch again, muttered an imprecation and then very carefully replaced the papers in the wallet and put them back in the safe. . .

The butler entered the room quietly. "A gentleman to see you, Mr. Church."

He nodded, comprehendingly. "Show him in." Then he settled back in his chair and waited.

"I suppose," said Jimmy, as he and Barry were dressing the next morning, "I ought to go out and look for a job. But what's the use? I can't seem to hold them after I get them."

"The whole thing looks pretty suspicious to me," Barry remarked. "It looks as if your friend of the letters is conspiring to keep you out of work. Probably he realizes that if you go hungry you'll be forced to go home."

"It does look that way," agreed Jimmy. He was thoughtful for a moment. "Still, we might be dead wrong entirely. There are such things as coincidences."

"Why don't you have the police question this man Porter? If someone did approach him, maybe the police can get him to admit it."

"No use. He could easily say, if it came to a showdown, that he was satisfied I wasn't going to fill the bill—or that I wasn't the kind that would stick."

"Well, give up the idea of working while you're here, Jim. I've got enough to tide you over a while, if you'll accept a loan."

"Nothing doing, Barry. Thanks just the same."

And nothing Barry could say would make him change his mind. . . .

There was a letter for Jimmy downstairs. When Mrs. King handed it to him he introduced Barry.

"You won't mind if he stays with me while he's in town?" he asked. And she told him she would be glad to have any of his friends.

Jimmy broke away before she could inquire further into the affair of the previous night. "She's a good old soul, Barry, but like all women, inquisitive. And I don't like explanations, though Lord knows she deserves one."

He tore open the letter as they walked downtown. It was from Olga Maynard asking him to meet her at noon.

He did, in front of the Mayfair Hotel, and he thought she had never looked prettier.

"You won't mind if I treat you to lunch, will you?" she asked. "It was my idea, meeting you, and it's my invitation."

He demurred, but she was insistent. "All right," he laughed.

"You said," she began when the head waiter had shown them to a table, "that you'd come to see me. You haven't. Are you mad with me?"

"Mad with you? Heavens, no!" He looked at her seriously. "I've been so busy. So many things have happened."

She was toying with her silverware. "You're sure you're not sorry you made that promise?" She did not look up.

"Try me," he fenced. "When shall it be?"

She raised her head to see if he was serious. As she did so she started violently. She was looking past Jimmy, toward the entrance. Her eyes narrowed in hate, blazed wickedly.

"There's a man I could cheerfully kill," she said.

OBITUARY.

REV. WILLIAM BUCHANAN

MILLBROOK, March 9.—Many in this district will learn with regret of the death of Rev. William Buchanan, in his 82nd year, which sad event took place at the home of his son, the Hon. W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge, Alberta, on Thursday, March 4.

After his retirement from the active ministry Mr. and Mrs. Buchanan both now deceased, spent a winter in Millbrook living in the residence of the late F. J. Walsh, now Mrs. Chas. McNeil's property. They had many warm friends in this vicinity.

Over forty years ago Mr. Buchanan was pastor on the Frazerville circuit when the present brick church was built.

Mrs. W. Archer and Mrs. A. Payne are sisters-in-law, and Messrs. William and F. W. Pendrie are brothers-in-law.

Interment took place at Lethbridge on Saturday.

MRS. JOSEPH SYMONS.

WELCOME, March 9.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Joseph Symons was held in Welcome church on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. D. R. Clare.

Among the friends from a distance who attended the funeral were the three sons, Joseph Symons of Regina, Alfred and Wilfrid Symons of Rochester, Mrs. Rickard and Mr. Rickard of Newcastle, Mr. and Mrs. Clemence of Bowmanville, and Mr. Austin Chestnut of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. John Symons of Port Hope.

HARRY T. VARS.

NORWOOD, March 9.—Word has been received of the death in Kobe, Japan on February 23rd, of another of Norwood's oldest citizens, in the person of Mr. Harry T. Vars. The deceased was a son of Captain A. Vars of the 40th Northumberland Regiment, Cobourg, and a nephew of the late Mrs. Butterfield of Norwood. He was educated in Norwood Public and High schools. In 1884 he entered the employ of the T. Milburn Co. of Toronto and later moved to Buffalo, N.Y., where he became a member of the firm of Foster, Vars and Co.

He is survived by his wife and one son, Addison Foster Vars of the Stirling Engine Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and a sister, Gertrude M. Vars, of Los Angeles, California.

REV. G. S. RORKE.

WELCOME, March 9.—The remains of the late Rev. G. S. Rorke arrived at Port Hope on 3.11 train on Saturday afternoon and was conveyed to Welcome cemetery.

Rev. D. R. Clare assisted by Revs. Anderson and Myers of Port Hope conducted the service.

Mr. Arthur Rorke of Brantford, Miss Laura Rorke of Midland and Mrs. E. H. Martyn of Welcome were the members of the family present.

HOWARD FORREST

CAMPBELLFORD, March 9.—Mr. and Mrs. William Smith of Seymour received the sad news on Monday morning of the sudden death of their nephew, Howard Forrest. Mr. Forrest, who has been in Alabama for the past few months, was brought up in East Seymour, and worked at the town power house prior to leaving for the States. No particulars have been received as yet the message stating Howard had been instantly killed. The body will be brought to Mr. Smith's for interment.

Mrs. ANTHONY M. RANKIN

CAMPBELLFORD, March 9.—The death occurred on Sunday, March 7th, at her home in Collins' Bay, of Jean, beloved wife of Anthony M. Rankin, M.P.P. for Frontenac. The deceased has been in failing health for the past five years and last August suffered a stroke from which she was not able to rally. The late Mrs. Rankin was the second eldest daughter of Mr. Alexander Innis and the late Mrs. Innis of Crow Bay. She was born on the old homestead at Crow Bay 50 years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband who is a member of parliament in the Toronto House for Frontenac County; one daughter, Marion, who resides at home; one son, David, who is attending Osgoode Hall in Toronto; her father, Alexander Innis of Crow Bay; three sisters, Mrs. Robert A. Linn of Menie, Mrs. Thomas Dunk of Crow Bay, Mrs. Frank Dunk of Wawenesi, Manitoba; and four brothers, Alexander of Cleveland, Ohio, John of Alberta, James of Calgary and Hugh of Campbellford. One sister, Mrs. John Thompson, predeceased her several years ago, and one brother, Edward, gave his life in the great war. Her mother died last fall.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at the home at Collins' Bay. Interment wil be made at Cataraqui.

Mrs. Linn, Mrs. Dunk, Mr. Innis and Hugh will attend the funeral.

MRS. ALFORD DUNFORD.

The death occurred in Lakefield yesterday afternoon of Ida Freeburn, wife of Alford Dunford, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Freeburn, aged 21 years and 5 months. She leaves two young children, one aged two years and one ten days old.

The funeral will leave the family residence at 2.00 o'clock on Thursday afternoon, proceeding to Lakefield Cemetery. The Rev. S. A. Kemp will officiate.

MINISTER OF LABOR.

JOHN C. ELLIOTT, K.C., M.P., Of West Middlesex, sworn in yesterday as member of King Cabinet.

JOHN C. ELLIOTT LABOR MINISTER IN KING CABINET

ELECTION MARCH 29.

New Minister Serving First Term in House—11 Years in Ontario House.

OTTAWA, March 9.—(Canadian Press.)—John Campbell Elliott, K. C., representing the constituency of West Middlesex in the House of Commons was yesterday appointed a Privy Councillor and Minister of Labor in the Government of Premier Mackenzie King. Mr. Elliott was sworn in before the Governor-General and in the presence of Premier King at Government House last evening.

Writs have been issued for the by-election in West Middlesex, nominations to take place on March 22nd and polling one week later, on Monday, March 29th. Mr. Elliott returned to his home in London last evening.

The new Minister of Labor is fifty-four years old. Since his entry into the House of Commons following the last general election he has come into prominence, first as mover of the address in reply to the speech from the throne and again as a member of the committee which is engaged in probing the administration of the customs service. He was born on a farm at Ekford, Ont. and lived there until eighteen years of age. He was educated at Glencoe High School, Trinity University and Toronto University. In 1898 he was called to the bar, and in 1920 was created a K.C. In religion he is a Baptist.

Until the last election the political career of Mr. Elliott had been confined to the Provincial field. He represented West Middlesex in the Ontario Legislature from 1908 continuously until the dissolution in 1919. West Middlesex is a strong Liberal constituency, but in 1921 it returned a Progressive. In the last election the new Minister, J. C. Elliott, polled 4,926 votes; Allan L. McDougall, Progressive, 3,548; and Thomas Elliott, Conservative, 2,513.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

NEIGHBORHOOD BOOK AND MAGAZINE CLUB

Have you a neighborhood book and magazine club in your town? If not, and you like to read, start one. The clubs are composed of not over six families who live near together. Each family subscribes to one or two magazines, which are decided upon by a meeting of the club.

Each family reads the magazines that come to them and in order they pass them on to the next reader. Each member may keep the magazines three days only. But if they want to see any special ones again they make a note of it and, after they have gone the rounds of the six households, which takes eighteen days, they may apply again for a second loan.

Of course, one or two children's magazines can be added to the group. These may be for boys, girls or the general magazines that both will like.

Six books a month will be more than many of the readers will have time to read. The length of time allowed each should be four to six days. Of course, the books are more difficult to hurry than magazines. Some months the books will lapse over into the next month. It is the librarians' job to hustle them along.

In regard to the books, a return reading may be granted after the first reading all around. Some people will read so much more quickly than others that it helps out the slow ones, for they will probably turn in a book in two days instead of the four.

The books may be covered with ordinary brown paper or school book covers to keep them in good order. A question of ownership of the books does not arise, as they are returned to their buyers after the last member has read them. From there they can be borrowed and are not thereafter subject to club rules.

There are restrictions that must be decided at club meetings on the kind of books to be purchased, so that they will be agreeable to the various readers.

The club can be made an inspiration andpleasure if rightly managed.

Feminine Foibles

To Be Sure It's the Little Things That Count!

"I agree, my dear, that your necklace of half cream colored and half smoke colored pearls is perfectly precious, but what do you think of this combination ring-bracelet of mine? Don't you adore the slender platinum chain for the bracelet and the connecting links of real pear-shaped diamonds?"

TWO LEADERS OF WOMEN

At a dinner given in honor of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst by women friends in London, England, Lady Astor, M.P., offered to resign her seat in the House of Commons in favor of the one-time militant suffragest leader. Mrs. Pankhurst declined the ofer, but expressed willingness to contest some seat which may fall vacant. Mrs. Pankhurst recently returned to England from Canada. HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

THE STORY BELIEVED

"You needn't go back there, you poor child," said Mamie Riley. "I know exactly how you feel. You are torn between solitude and having someone about who would bother you with questions. You cannot determine which would be least aggravating to you. I think, however, it would be solitude. I won't bother you, Julie, you can sleep in sister's room, you know."

As I looked into that smiling face, I knew that if I went out to a strange hotel, I would cry myself ill. Quickly I made my decision.

"I'll go with you and thank you for taking in a stranger who comes to you under such dubious circumstances," I said.

"Oh, that's all right," was Mamie's comfortable rejoinder. "We girls must stick together.

"If you are sure you want me," I said brokenly, "I'll be gladder than I ever was in my life to come."

"Well, then, that's that. Don't worry any more about anything, Julie, until we see what tomorrow will bring."

In a little while we were on our way to Mamie's.

"Mother is asleep," she said as we entered the house. "I will come into the room you will sleep in for it is farther away from hers than mine where I am afraid we would wake her up with our gab."

We got into night clothes, Mamie lending me a pair of pajamas, the first I ever had on, and sitting on the bed with our feet curled up under us, I told her my story from the time I had boarded the train.

"Gee, that's tough," was Mamie's exclamation when I came to the place where I lost my money.

"You know I'm telling the truth about it, don't you, Mamie?"

"Of course I do, and so did those guys down at the restaurant. To think that man Sterns just the same as called you a thief and a liar when he knew as well as I do that you are telling the truth! It just makes my blood boil!

"My advice to you, Julie, is to get away from that restaurant as soon as you can. I expect you'll have to stay there until you can find something better but I'm your friend even if I lose my job." Mamie put her arms around me and kissed me.

I broke down and cried like a baby and confided that perhaps I had better go home.

"Do you want to go home?" asked Mamie quickly.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

GOLD DIGGERS.

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, March 9 (United Press)—Female gold-diggers get panned for taking money away from men but the meanest gold-digger in the world is the man who makes his wife believe that dirt digging and dust hunting are more profitable to a woman than gold digging.

I saw a man of this breed the other day in a department store. He was quite a handsome brute, middle-aged, well fed, well dressed and pompous. He was on a shopping tour with his wife, an old-fashioned little woman, somewhat fagged and worn looking. Her hat was perched high upon a knot of gray hair, her cotton gloves were faded green as was her once black coat. They went to the house dress department where the woman seemed at home.

Dozens of pretty pastel-hued house frocks were shown them luster silks, tub silks, dimities in rose, orchid and golden brown colorings. The old boy frowned when he found they cost $10. The woman handled them covetously. Still more dresses came, one prettier than another. The man felt of them, asked if they'd wash, if they'd fade, if they'd shrink, etc. Then he said in a high-hat tone, "Show us some ginghams!"

The saleswoman said she was afraid they didn't have ginghams as they weren't being worn.

"Show us calico!" growled the man, and being assured that calicos were out of style, the old boy whimpered to his wife, "You'd better buy some gingham and make them up yourself." This settled, he replaced his light chamois glove on his manicured hand and marched off to the gingham counter where, I found, he fretted about the cost of gingham.

If this is the sort of man who goes shopping with his wife I shall no longer listen to women complain about husbands who won't go shopping with them. This fellow believed in prodding his wife along to get all the mileage possible out of her and he wouldn't even pay for the gas without growling. Any business man who can take time off to paw over calico for kitchen dresses is the sort of walrus who'd die of apoplexy if his wife steered him in to the millinery department.

If I found myself sheckled to a boy like that at middle age, I'd run right out and buy myself the pinkest, flashiest negligee possible and I'd plank myself right down in his favorite easy chair and smoke a cigarette, while he fried himself an egg for dinner. A man who treats his wife to a scrubbing dress is not my ideal husband. From now on I'm for the fellow who can't tell silk from sack-cloth and I'm for the boy who never tells his wife how nice she looks but pays her bills without balking.

EDMONTON WOMEN ARE REFUSED BEER

Beer Parlor Owners Say It Is Too Hard To Tell Age.

EDMONTON, Alta., March 9.—(Canadian Press).—Serving of beer to women will be tabooed in the majority of Edmonton beer parlors from now on, according to an announcement as the result of a meeting of hotelmen yesterday. It was stated after the meeting that all the hotel proprietors, with the exception of one, have agreed to this change, which is to take effect at once.

One of the main reasons for the hotelmen's action is said to be difficulty in determining the age of minors.

Hemorrhoids

Or piles are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

It is a serious matter to have piles and one person in four has them at one time or another. The annoyance and distress is great. It is difficult to obtain lasting relief. YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

I happened to speak at a woman's club one day when the streets were filled with slush. A two-days' rain on top of a lot of snow made the streets and sidewalks almost impassable.

Asking how many of the hundreds of ladies present had worn rubbers, I was amazed to find that not one-tenth of them had done so.

Modern women, particularly in the cities, despise rubbers. These articles, they think, detract from the daintiness and neatness of their dress. They "make the feet look big!" They are "such awkward things!" They "are so heavy and homely!"

You know what fair woman says. She does not like rubbers and she—just — won't — wear — them. That's that!

If I had time to devote to it, as Benjamin Franklin would have, if he were alive, I should spend it in attempting to design a neat, shapely, appealing rubber. Franklin was always working on the solution of some human problem. I wish he were here to solve this one.

But since Dr. Franklin can't, why does not some rubber manufacturer do it? There is a fortune in it for somebody.

From what I read there seem to be many fortunes in rubber anyhow. But the fortunes due to the present economic condition will not accumulate forever. On the other hand, the right kind of rubbers for women would give the inventor fame and a wonderful income for life.

I know it will do no good to throw out this bait to the rubber makers. I tried it several years ago, with no response. But hope springs eternal in the human breast.

The reason I long for this invention is because it is a crime against health to go about with wet feet. There is no need of going into details, for everybody believes it is dangerous.

But I have a word of warning to those who do wear rubbers. They should be reserved for wet weather. Rubber is impervious to air. If the rubbers are worn for long at a time, the feet will perspire and the stockings will become damp. So you see the very purpose of wearing the protecting foot gear is defeated.

Rubbers should be used exactly as are heavy cloaks or overcoats. They should not be worn in the house or outdoors either unless extra protection is needed. But when such protection is required, it is a great mistake to neglect the health by refusing it.

"A stitch in time saves nine," is a well-known saying. A pair of rubbers worn when needed, will save you many an illness.

WHERE WOMAN CARRY LIVE-STOCK TO MARKET ON THEIR HEADS

It has been a custom for countless centuries for women to carry burdens upon their heads. It is a perfectly natural thing to do and busy peasant women whose hands are probably occupied with a hundred things find it far more convenient to get some of their burdens out of the way by placing them upon their heads than to attempt to carry them all in their arms and hands.

We are accustomed to see the old fashioned laundress carry her basket of linen on her head. We have seen pictures of the women of the Near East carrying water pitchers balanced on their heads and we know that this fact is one of the causes of their graceful, languorous carriage.

But have you ever seen a woman carry a live pig on her head? I doubt it. This is a custom that seems to be restricted to several of the small islands of the Pacific, between the Japanese archipelago and the coast of Formosa.

These little islands with their perfect climate are so fertile that they bring forth two crops of rice each year instead of the usual one.

There are no modern methods of conveyance and the stock must be carried great distances to market usually. It is not the men, in these islands, but the women who bear the burden of carrying the stock to market. It is said that the average coolie woman of this region is capable of carrying two hundred pounds on her head.

And what is more astounding than that is the fact that the weight is sometimes not dead weight but very much alive. The pigs are taken to the market alive. A mat of straw is used as a cushion for the pig. He is bound firmly to it, his forelegs stretched out before him and his hind legs behind. When he has been made secure to the mat, the entire burden is placed upon the head of the woman who balances it there very carefully.

When the goat, sheep or pig to be disposed of is too big for even these women to carry on the head, it is slung on a pole and carried by two women. But one never sees an animal driven to the market on its own legs. For some unknown reason this practice seems to be tabooed.

Carrying a Live Pig to Market.

ASHES

You kin have a million ash trays 'round the house, an' mebbe more, but somehow, men don't seem to know just what the things are for. And therein lies the reason why the wife's so often sore—she's tired of seein' hubby flip his ashes on the floor.

He'll sit him down at evening and he'll light a cigaret. He puffs away in comfort and he's feelin' nicely set. He's buried in a book and, absent-mindedly he'll let the ashes drop haphazard. It's no wonder women fret.

The evening meal is over. Father's smokin' once again. Of course he has the ashes trait, like all the other men. A tray is very handy, but he simply cannot wait till someone brings it to him, so there's ashes on his plate.

In every home I've been in I've seen ashes flipped galore. On window sills, within the sink, and round about the floor. And always, when the missus says, "Please put them where you should," I hafta laguh when husbands say, "they do the carpets good."

Remove Corns this easy way

Cutting corns, or using a so called corn solvent, is useless. You have probably tried and know yourself how the corn always comes back again painful as ever in a week or less. The only satisafctory way to deal with an obstinate corn is to take a Radox Foot Bath once or twice; you can lift the whole corn out with your fingers.

When you put your feet into a foot-bath containing Radox the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn and the oxygen which Radox liberates enters the pores, opens them, and penetrates further and further, carrying the corn-softening salts right to the root of the corn, which is thus loosened so that it can be lifted out bodily. This life-giving oxygen leaves the feet clean and healthy. Because it is the oxygen which carries the corn solvents to the root of the corn, and because Radox liberates, by test, more oxygen than any other salts, it is obvious that Radox is more efficient in removing corns than any other salts. The Radox Bath Salt does not affect the living skin; if softens and refreshes this; it cannot dissolve it. It is only the dead skin—the corn—which it dissolves.

There is nothing left to ache; the corn is bodily removed. A Radox enthusiast writes:—

"I was in the bath for about 20 to 25 minutes, and when I got out I thought I would see if my two corns would come out. They both came out easily by pulling them with the fingers. My feet are now perfectly comfortable, and there is no soreness whatever....it is difficult to tell I ever had a corn on my foot."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10

An active and encouraging day is forecast from the dominant stellar influences. With Mercury parallel Sol it may be a fortunate time for pushing all affairs of a commercial nature, as well as in connection with writings, publications or publicity. It may also be a good time to renew contracts. Other directions forecast change, removal and travel, which should be a step in the right direction, since Saturn lends stability and reward for labor.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a successful year, with new opportunities, possibly involving change of environment. There should be substantial return for industry and perseverence. It may be a favorable time to deal with old persons or institutions. A child born on this day may be clever, versatile and inventive, as well as industrious and patient. It should make moderate success of its undertakings, entirely through its own fine qualities.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES.

By Blanche Silver

THE LITTLE ANT WHO WOULDN'T TAKE ADVICE

It was a day of wild excitement at the little Ant Hill. Mama Ant had promised to take all her children over to visit their cousins, who lived at the edge of the woods.

The youngsters were out of bed bright and early and every one helped straighten up the place so they could get an early start.

It was a happy crowd that left the little ant hill and followed their mother down the tiny path to the woods.

"Isn't that queer," Mother Ant mused to herself as she walked along. "Mrs. Pimpernel isn't up yet. Wait, children," she said out loud, "I'll run right. She should have been up this long time." The little Ant children all sat down on the grass and Mamma Ant hurried up the long green stem road to Mrs. Pimpernal's blossom home. She rapped at the door and called.

"My goodness, Mrs. Ant," answered Mrs. Pimpernel behind closed doors, "what are you doing out in this kind of weather?"

"Oh, we're on our way to have a picnic with our cousins," replied Mamma Ant. "I saw you weren't up yet, and I thought maybe you might be ill. Were you up so late last night that you couldn't awaken this morning?"

"No, indeed," replied Mrs. Pimpernel, behind closed doors. "No I went to bed at the same time, but I see it's going to storm today, so I decided not to get up. You see, when it storms I——"

They Followed Their Mother.

"But, my dear," laughed Mrs. Ant, "the sun is shining. It isn't raining now."

"Of course it isn't raining now," chuckled Mrs. Pimpernel, "but before you can reach your cousin's house it will be storming hard. Better run back home with your family."

"I'll do nothing of the sort," laughed Mrs. Ant. "I don't believe it will storm today." She hurried down the stem and called her children together and away they went across the meadows.

They hadn't gone very far though, when the wind began to blow and the rain to come down in torrents. Mamma Ant and her children huddled under the grass as best they could, trying to keep dry. It rained all day and by the time the sun came out again it was too late to go to their cousin's house. So the little Ant family had to return home, tired, hungry, cross and wet.

Mamma Ant built a nice warm fire and made the children sit with their feet to its warm blaze while she prepared the supper. After a hot meal she tucked them all into their little beds, then crawled in herself.

The next morning was another threatening one, but Mamma Ant ran over to Mrs. Pimpernel's house to thank her for the advice she had made fun of.

"After this I'll take your advice," she declared.

"You can always rest assured when you see my blossom doors closed like they are now that it's going to rain," laughed Mrs. Pimpernel, behind closed doors. "You see, my petals are so delicate they can't stand too much moisture, so when I feel a storm coming I keep my blossoms closed."

"A mighty fine prophet," said Mrs. Ant. "I'm going home right now," and she hurried back to the little Ant Hill just in time to avoid another storm.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER SIX—THE BURGLAR ALARM RINGS

Mister Rubadub pulled out a watch almost as big as a dinner plate and looked at it.

"Goodness gracious!" he cried. "It's high time things were happening. It's half past a quarter to the year after next almost. And spring's about here. And all those wood folk and meadow people not scrubbed up yet to go to the Land-Where-Spring-Is-Coming! If we don't watch out, Mister Hare, they will be slipping away without coming to my magic barber-shop first."

The March Hare looked over his spectacles. "They can't," he remarked. "I've got burglar alarms on everyone of their doors. The minute they step out, the alarm rings right here over your towel-rack."

Nancy and Nick were stepping over curiously to gaze at the funny little bell when suddenly it went "Tinkle, tinkle, tinkle, tinkle,"—like an alarm clock.

"There it goes!" cried Mister Rubadub excitedly. "Somebody's trying to slip out without us knowing it. Who is it, I wonder."

The March Hare went over and looked at the little bell. Below it was an arrow pointer like the hand on a clock, and around it in a circle were names instead of numbers.

Each name belonged to one of the wood or meadow people.

"Aha, it says 'Mister Ringtail Coon,'" said the March Hare. "Come, Twins, we'll skip over to his house and head him off. But I must say that I'm surprised. Ringtail Coon usually goes out at night and here it is broad daylight."

"I'll be waiting for him," said Mister Rubadub, sharpening his razor on his razor strap. "Ringtail's the biggest dude in the whole country and likes to be shaved around his nose. And he's very careful about his moustache. It has to be just so."

The Twins followed the March Hare along the path until they came to the little secret bush that marked the place where Scrub-Up Land ends on that side and the meadow begins.

Then they crossed the meadow to the woods.

There stood the old oak tree where Ringtail lived. It had two stairways—one outside and one inside the old tree. The inside stairway went right on down to the cellar. It was in the cellar that Ringtail had his winter bedroom.

Of course, Ringtail doesn't sleep all winter like Grubby Groundhog, or even half of it like Scramble Squirrel, for he has such a thick handsome coat, and under that another coat. But he likes to snooze as well as the other fellow when old Mister Thermometer goes down to zero. And sometimes he's slow waking up.

But what do you think. There was no sign of Ringtail himself, but there on his doorstep stood his two nephews, Corny and Cobby Coon who had spent the summer with him the year before.

"Oh, ho! So it's you, is it, you young rascals," said the March Hare. "I thought you were still sound asleep. Aren't you making your calls pretty early in the spring?"

Corny yawned and Cobby yawned, for they were still very sleepy.

"Yes! I guess so," said Corny. "But we had nothing for breakfast, and the fishin's no good yet. We thought Uncle Ring might have something good.'

"So he might," declared the March Hare, "but he's not up yet. Let's all go in and surprise him."

They all trooped into Mister Coon's underground bedroom, and there he was, just as they thought, still fast asleep.

There is only one "Congoleum" and it is identified by this Gold Seal pasted on the face of every pattern.

Most children won't think of the snow and slush on clothes or shoes until they are in the house! But no mother need worry about that—if the floor is covered with a Congoleum Gold Seal Rug.

For these rugs can be cleaned up in a moment. Just a few strokes of a damp mop removes every trace of snow and the cheerful colors shine as bright and spotless as new.

It's the smooth, seamless surface of Congoleum that makes it so easy to clean. Dampness and mud cannot work into these rugs. Liquids and spilled things can never penetrate or stain them.

Beautiful Patterns for Every Room

On gloomy days you will appreciate more than ever the colorful beauty of Congoleum Rugs. And the attractive designs are so varied you can easily find one suited to any room in the house.

Congoleum Gold Seal Rugs are no bother at all to lay. Just unroll them and after a few hours they'll hug the floor without tacks, cement or fastening of any kind.

Popular Sizes at Low Prices

Congoleum Gold Seal Art-Rugs are made in seventeen sizes; ranging from the handy 18 x 36 inch mats to the 9 x 15 foot room-size rugs. Their amazing durability and very low prices make them the most economical floor-covering you can buy.

Dealers everywhere sell Congoleum Art-Rugs. See for yourself why Canadian housewives regard them as Canada's biggest floor-covering value.

SEMI-PRO LEAGUE RUMOR AGAIN HEARD AMONG "BIG SIX" TOWNS

Kitchener Will be Included If New Arena is Erected There.

SIX IN LEAGUE

HAMILTON, March 9.—Hamilton has gone through its last season without fast hockey, according to "inside information." From one in a position to know, it was learned yesterday that the artificial ice cities of Western Ontario, which include London, Stratford, Niagara Falls and Hamilton, with the possible addition of two others, will be grouped on the same lines as the one proposed several months ago which fell through.

It was said that Kitchener would be included if interest considering the erection of a modern artificial arena carried through their present plans. Also, the central group of the U.S.A.H.A. is likely to turn the group into a semi-professional organization and co-operate with the Ontario group to make semi-pro hockey a strong attraction.

Developments in major hockey, represented now by the National Hockey League, will help rather than injure the chances of success for semi-pro organizations, it is thought, for they will not only provide a market for star players, but will have many "farms" for the development of young players in need of experience. Also, the veterans of the N.H.L. will be able to drop back into the lesser league and add considerable color to the circuit.

The semi-pro league, as far as local officials are concerned, was considered seriously previous to the start of the present season, and it is known that the league might now have been in operation had it not been for one city backing out at the almost certain for London, Stratwere said to have discouraged the idea, but now it is stated that they are ready to make the jump and will build their teams in preparation.

That such a league would pay is almost certain for London, Startford and Niagara Falls fans like their hockey in any shape or form and might even expand under the influence of a faster and more attractive game. Hockey has had its worst season in many years in this city, but a fast semi-pro organization would re-establish the game and supply the want felt all season long.

ROYALTY PLAYS IN TOURNAMENT

SOFT FOR HELEN

NICE, France, March 9 (Canadian Press)—The Nice tennis tournament, which opened yesterday, suffered two heavy losses when Frau Neppach, the German champion, scratched her entry and left suddenly for Berlin, and Senorita DeAlvares, of Spain, announced that she probably would not play on account of fatigue. This leaves Helen Wills without a seeded opponent in the singles.

Frau Neppach received a second ultimatum from the German Tennis Federation threatening to debar her from competition in Germany if she should play again [illegible] on the Riviera. Frau Neppach said she was unable to understand the attitude of the German Federation, and contended that she was an Austrian. However she is unwilling to risk losing her right to play in this year's Berlin tournament.

After Frauu Neppach had withdrawn, Senorita De Alvarez' father announced that he would insist that his daughter take a week's rest at Cannes and not enter the Nice tournament. The Nice promoters' now are attempting to persuade Mlle) Didi Vlasto to enter the singles although she has already refused once to do so.

The handicap doubles match between King Gustav of Sweden and the former Swedish champion, Setterthwalz, and Prince Chichibu, second son of the emperor of Japan, paired with R. L. Murray, of England, resulted in a victory for the Swedish pair, 6-1, 6-1. The bespectacled son of the Mikado was wild, sending many balls over the fence in the early games, much to the delight of the small boys employed in recover the balls. These boys laughed delightedly whenever Chichibu's imperial arm swung on the empty air.

On leaving the courts Prince Chichibu tried to avoid cameramen, but King Gustav led him before the photographers, saying "All good players must consent to this."

DELORO JUNIORS WON.

Defeated Marmora Juniors Four to Two.

MARMORA, March 9.—Marmora Juniors engaged Deloro Juniors at hockey on Saturday afternoon on the latter's rink. Play was fast and evenly divided. At the end of the first period the score was 1 to, Art Phillips for Deloro, and Gerald McInroy for the visitors being the scorers. Phillips added two more goals in the second period, McInroy replying with another for his side. In the third period, Jack McCroden jetted for Deloro, who won by 4 to 2.

Forrest Craig of Deloro Public School was the referee. Fred Callery in goal for Deloro and Frank Burns, his Marmora rival, turned in good games.

IF PETES WIN HERE'S THE NEXT

Play Winner of the Grimsby-New Hamburg Series This Week.

TONIGHT'S CAST

In the event of Peterboro and London being tied on the round after tonight's game in London a sudden-death play-off game will take place at Niagara Falls on Thursday, March 11.

Should there be a tie on the round between New Hamburg and Grimsby at Grimsby itwill be played off at Niagara Falls or London on Thursday, March 11.

Providing a winner in each series is declared tonight tentative arrangements have been made for the Allan Cup elimination play-off between the senior and intermediate O.H.A. champions.

If Peterboro and New Hamburg are the successful teams the first game will be played at Stratford or Niagara Falls, Thursday, March 11, with the return game at Arena Gardens, Toronto, Saturday afternoon, March 13.

If Peterboro and Grimsby win out the first game will be played at Niagara Falls Thursday, March 11, and the second at Toronto, Saturday afternoon, March 13.

Should London and New Hamburg be the title winners they will play at London, Thursday, March 11, and at Stratford or Niagara Falls on Saturday, March 13.

And providing London and Grimsby qualify the first game takes place at London Thursday, March 11, and the second game at Grimsby or Niagara Falls on Saturday, March 13.

If a tie results in the senior or intermediate finals or in both the dates for play-off games between the senior and intermediate champions will be announced later.

Officials at London

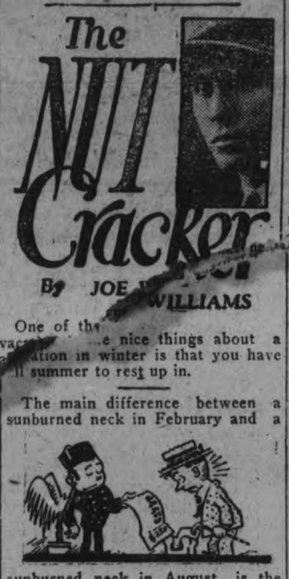
Referee—M. J. Rodden, Toronto
Goal umpires—M. S. Benson, Toronto, and Charles Lloyd, Stratford.
Straight timekeepers — James T Sutherland, Kingston, and Alvin Schlegel, Preston.
Penalty timekeeper, Lou E. Marsh Toronto.



One of the [illegible] nice things about a vacation in winter is that you have all summer to rest up in.

The main difference between a sunburned neck in February and a sunburned neck in August is the cost.

Be that as it may, it is no harder to pose as a capitalist's son on the beach at Miami than it is on the beach at Long Island.

The dinner coat is a remarkable device....It enables you to imagine you are getting $5.40 worth of food out of an average six bits meal.

A soup stain on an ordinary vest is just a soup stain; the same ornament on a dinner vest is social ostracism.

That's why this country is a democracy with no dissatisfied taxpayers, except resident members with paid-up cards.

It seems to us the chief drawback about a winter vacation is that it always lasts longer than the bankroll.

It is the proud boast of our friend, Mr. O'Goofty, that usually manages to look quite silly without doing either.

Ninety-seven per cent. of Arctic explorers have returned alive.

It is better to point with pride than to view with alarm.

Wishes wont win, while work will when welde' w'th wisdom.

LOU MARSH FANS ON LONDON GAME

Says Cockneys Should Do Better at Home—Depends on Team Play.

"Let's fan a bit about the London-Peterboro final," says Lou Marsh in the Toronto Star and proceeds to discuss the two teams in tonight's fray as follows:

Every unbiased fan who saw Friday night's game here declares that the ePtes deserved their 4-2 victory on the night's play, but just the same the same identical fans will agree with you if you say that the Ravens looked all over like the winners when they came from behind and tied up the score 2-2 at the end of the second stanza. In other words, the London squad outplayed the Petes so distinctly in the second canto that they went to the barn for the breather looking all over like sure winners.

Then why did they lose?

Simply because they fell to pieces. They had just as much speed as they had in the second stanza, and, individually, they finished just as strong as the winners, but their game everywhere in the third period was ragged. Possibly the heavy checking had something to do with it, but when it comes down to aces the Ravens checked just as wickedly as the Petes did in the final period. The difference was that the Petes clung to their team play all the way and that carried them through. Take the two teams from end to end and there is not a whole lot of difference individually. As a team the Petes have more speed, but just the same Graham, Lowery and Keeling of London can step along with any trio you can select from the Pete squad.

The Petes have a smart combination on the forward line and they stick to it through thick and thin. The Ravens have just as sweet a combination—at least they did have it all through the "Bix Six" season and they should have it yet—and taking them all around, regulars, subs and all, they are more accurate shots.

Then why did London fail here Friday night?

Lack of sustained combination, plus a slght superiority in goal, s what defeated them.

Starkings Selfish

And the man who is chiefly responsible for lack of combination is the very man on the London team who should be a leader in this important factor in hockey — Bill Starkings, the captain of the team.

Starkings is a smart defense player, a superb rusher and a good puck carrier, but not once but a dozen times here Friday night, when he had his wings flanking him in his rushes, he elected to go through himself and was wrecked on the McLeod-Rose deefnse. The Peterboro defense pair knew that he would not pass and were [illegible] him. If he made one [illegible] all set for ning I was looking [illegible] pass all eve- If Starkings [illegible] the other way. self" and [illegible] gets wise to him- mow [illegible] passes the Ravens might [illegible] down that two-goal lead.

The Ravens are a hard team to beat on their home ice. Alfie Moore in goal is only a youngster, and his record for a kid just out of junior ranks, has been superb all season. He stood up like a sentry on a couple of long shots here on Friday night and looked a bit nervous at times, but with the London crowd behind him tonight he is likely to look just as good as the brilliant veteran in the cage at the other end of the floe.

Graham's performance here stamped him as one of the best all around defense men in the senior O.H.A. He bodies hard and fearlessly, and he covers up well in front of the nets. He breaks fast on a rush and has plenty of speed and a good shot. He is not araid to make a pass to a comrade, and that is what makes him doubly dangerous. Starkings is a smart rusher but he is too selfish. Defensively he is good.

Keeling Should Improve

Keeling will be better in London than he was here—at least he should be for he did not play up to his group form. True enough he was up against Irving Bailey, probably the best individual forward in the O.H.A. this season. Bailey outplayed him badly here, but Keeling has it in him to give Bailey a better argument than he did. Over on the other wing Jerry Lowrey made a good job of holding Ranger who has been a star all season. He looked as good as the starry Ranger.

HOCKEY PLAYERS RECEIVE MEDALS

Madoc High School Board Honors Whitby Cup Winners.

MADOC, March 9.—On Friday evening the High School Board invited the champion High School hockey team, winners of the Whitty Cup, to meet them and presented each of the boys with a silver medal as a token of appreciation of the team's success and sportsmanlike play this year.

Charlie Whytock acted as chairman and J. Marcellus, Principal of the High School, presented the medals, congratulating the boys on their excellent team work during the past season. The chairman also called on Messrs. E. Tufts, T. Burnside and J. B. Haugh for speeches. Archie Ashley replied on behalf of the team.

Representatives of the High School Board, the hockey boys and their fathers were present at the meeting. After the presentation refreshments were served.

W.M.S. Meeting.

An inspiring meeting of the W. M. S. of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church was held on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. G. Foote. The topic of the evening was prayer, and excellent papers were given by Mrs. William Mackintosh and Mrs. A. Milne, who were the leaders for the evening. Mrs. Marshall also gave a very interesting little talk on the subject.

Miss Pauline Foote played an instrumental solo very prettily.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. McCaffery and Mrs. Foote, who were the hostesses for the evening. There was the splendid attendance of forty-three members.

SMALL CROWD SAW EXHIBITION MATCH

Game Between Tweed and Marmora Ended Four All.

MARMORA March 9. (Special)—The visit of Tweed, the Hastings county champions, to the Marmora rink last night, did not draw the anticipated large attendance. Instead the game was viewed by only 100 spectators. The black and white arrived practically at full strength whilst Marmora lacked the services of Jack, whose place was taken by Earl Bennett. The game was remarkable for striking individual play and for the number of enticings of both goalies out of their nets.

Half way through the first period Bond scored on an individual rush, beating Wagar close in. Houston equalized with a shot from the blue line. Berry then executed a brilliant movement carrying out a rush and drawing Wagar out of goal to net a beauty. Shortly before the period closed Houston drew his team level by scoring a good goal on a lone rush. The score then stood 2-2. Berry, who was playing the best of his local career became conspicuous early in the next period. Again drawing Wagar out and registering a series of swift rushes by both teams now ensued, speed up to this point having been but ordinary. Brown had hard luck in not scoring and Wagar was called upon to neutralize a swift shot from Bond. A Geraldi in beating Neal near the end of the period, made the score read 3-3.

In the third period play continued fast. Berry broke through early to give his side the lead again. Tweed had hard lines in not equalizing a few minutes later when the goal was at their mercy. Wagar saved successfully from Berry, Bond and McWilliams. The latter also had hard luck in not registering with three minutes to go. Tweed had the luck to score their fourth goal through M. Geraldi so that the final read 4-4. As it was an exhibition game overtime was deemed unnecessary.

For a game with nothing at stake, some high standard play was observed on the part of both teams. The spectators left with the relish for this brand of hockey as next season comes round. There was no rough play and only two penalties, which were for offences of a minor kind.

The ice was never in better condition and the refereeing was satisfactory in every degree. Berry was the outstanding player and though well marked proved most elusive. Houston turned in a good game as also did the brothers Geraldi. The line-up of teams:

EYEWITNESSES HEARD AT OPENING OF TRIAL OF DAVID ARTHUR MOON FOR DOUBLE MURDER LAST SPRING

Huge Crowd Tries To Get Into Court Room at Belleville.

TWO TRIALS.

Moon Will Be Tried Twice On Two Charges of Murder.

(By a Staff Reporter).

BELLEVILLE, March 9.—Dressed as neatly and looking as debonair and care-free as he did when he was in the employ of the Belleville branch of the Bank of Commerce, David Arthur Moon was taken into the court-room here, handcuffed to an officer, to answer to two separate charges of murder, committed on April 6 of last year. A year's confinement in jail has made little difference in the appearance of the defendant, except that he has lost several pounds in weight. His face shows none of the prison pallor that is usualy noted in a man who has been out of the sunlight for nearly 12 months. Moon, as he was brought into court, looked as unconcerned as any of the spectators who thronged the room. When he was placed in the dock he smilingly greeted the two lawyers who have been retained to defend him, and who occupied a table directly in front of their client. Moon listened to the proceedings of the afternoon with the closest attention, but no matter what the nature of the testimony given by the different witnesses, his countenance showed no change. His appearance is certainly not that of a a man one would expect to see placed on trial for his life.

Opening of the Assizes.

The Spring Assizes opened here Monday afternoon with Mr. Justice Kelly presiding. The Moon case was the first taken up, after a few formal motions relating to other matters had been disposed of. Moon had been brought before the court last October, when the grand jury found a true bill against him, but the hearing was postponed until the spring, at the request of counsel for the defence. There was also other criminal case to be submitted to the grand jurors Monday, so that the Judge discharged them for the present.

Two Separate Trials.

Moon is to be tried separately on the two charges against him, the murder of Clayton MacWilliams and John McGie, both of this city, this arrangement being insisted upon by the counsel for the Crown. The first case heard has to do with the death of John McGie, and this is to be followed by Moon's trial on a charge of murdering Clayton MacWilliams.

John A. Monroe of London is appearing for the Crown, assisted by Bryson C. Donnan, Crown attorney for Hastings County. The defendant is represented by Hugh John MacDonald, of Toronto, and R. D. Macaulay, one of Belleville's rising young lawyers. Lionel G. Gardner, who is a law student in Mr. MacDonald's office, is acting as clerk, and these three are putting up a vigorous fight for their client, Messrs. MacDonald and Macaulay taking turns in cross-examining the Crown's witnesses.

Waiting For the Defence.

Not over one-third of the crowd that sought to hear the trial was admitted. The majority of the curious were women, who stood for two hours or more in the corridors, waiting for the doors to open. When that time arrived the doors were closed again as soon as the seating capacity of the court-room was exhausted.

Calling the Jury

It occupied about half an hour of the time of the court to select a jury. The defence challenged 14 of the number called, announcing their objection in some cases before the clerk of the court could repeat the usual formula. The objection of the average citizen to serve as a juror on a capital offence was manifest yesterday as every man challenged retired with evident relief. Harry Fanning of Hoard's Station, near Campbellford, being just across the boundary line between Seymour and Rawdon township, ever since he received his summons, was hoping to escape serving on the Moon case. His was the third name drawn and he did not have the luck to be challenged. The jury finally sworn in were as follows:

It is the probable nature of the defence that will be put up by the counsel for Moon that the public is anxious to hear, as the Crown's side of the case is a matter with which they are tolerably familiar. No inkling of the method that will be adopted by Messrs. MacDonald and Macaulay to save their client from the gallows has yet been given They have, however, called in two alienists, Dr. Baugh of the Brockston ville Asylum and Dr. Ryan of the asylum for the criminal insane at Kingston, so that it is expected that the sanity of the defendant, at least at the time of the alleged murders will be made an issue when the defense lawyers open their case.

The underlying cause of the double homicide, it is believevd, was domestic infelicity, a jealous husband taking the law into his own hands. It has always been understood and it as shown by the evidence already taken, that MacWilliams was the first man killed and that McGie grappled with Moon and that in the struggle that ensued the former was shot. The whole tenor of the cross-examination of the crown witnesses Monday appeared to be designed to show that McGie's death was accidental, as even if Moon did shoot him he had no intention of doing so. If the unwritten law is appealed to it will not be until Moon is called upon to answer for the death of McWilliams.

Rushed to the Rescue

The late Clayton McWilliams had for six and a half years been clerk in the Lattimer druug store where the double tragedy was enacted. McGie, a friend of his, was with him, when he as shot and, acting the role of peacemaker, met his own end.

Five Witnesses Heard

All of the witnesses were required to leave the room when the case opened yesterday and were called as required. Crown Prosecutor Monroe, who does not appear to be over 25 years old, the youngest official ever seen here to act in that capacity, made a brief opening address to the jury, confining his remarks to an explanation of the different degrees of homicide. Five witnesses were heard before court adjourned.

Ernest MacCormack, testified that he had made photos of the interior of the drug store, at the request of the police after the tragedy, and these pictures were offered in evidence and shown to the jury.

Charles J. Campbell, a local civil engineer, had made a plan of the interior showing marks that were supposed to be made by bullets. There were a number of holes in the wall and one of these, the witness was satisfied, had been so made although he did not probe it in a search for lead.

Mr. MacDonald: "Now Mr. Campbell, would you like to hang a man on your opinion that the hole you refer to was made by a bullet? Remember I do not mean to say that you are giving wrong evidence, only that you may be mistaken."

Mr. Campbell insisted that the hole in question was different from all the others. For one thing, it was more recent. Although the witness could not undertake to say how long it had been in existence. He admitted that it might have been caused by something other than a bullet..

The Only Eye-Witnesses

There were only three actual eye-witnesses of the grim tragedy, three young ladies, and all of these gave testimony. Miss Eva Cousins was clerk in the ice cream department of the drug store and at the time of the double shooting was waiting on Miss Irene Woodley of Belleville and Miss Isabel Morris of Toronto, who had dropped in together. Miss Cousins gave her testimony in a straightforward manner and stood the ordeal of cross-examination without flinching.

It was shortly after 10 o'clock on the night of April 6 last. MacWilliams was at work in the back part of the store in the dispensary; and McGie was also in the building. Miss Cousins testified that the front door opened and Moon came in, walking to the rear of the store. She heard a "bang" and, looking up, noticed that Moon was standing near the wranping counter with a revolver in his hand. He walked down to the dispensary and then she heard shots, but could not say for certain how many. She saw MacWilliams take two or three backward steps, throw up his hand to his breast and sink down on the floor. There was more shooting; McGie fell to the floor, and Moon walked out of the store taking his pistol with him. Miss Cousins had to pass the two wounded men. McGie was breathing, and McWilliams was moaning but neither spoke. The ghastly spectacle was so much of a shock to Miss Cousins that she left the store and did not return that night. The whole tragedy did not occupy, in her opinion, much more than a minute.

Her Idea of Time.

When Mr. MacDonald, to test Miss Cousins' idea of time, asked her to silently count of what she thought was a minute, she did so, while Mr. Justice Kelly and Mr. MacDonald held their watches. Miss Cousins was out only 10 seconds in her calculation, announcing that the minute was up when 50 seconds had expired.

Miss Cousins swore that after MacWilliams had been shot, McGie came out of the dispensary and grabbed Moon, who was standing at the door, by the wrist. It was then that the second tragedy occurred.

Heard Three Shots.

Miss Woodley was positive that only three shots had been fired. She and Miss Morris left the store and told some boys who were on the street to go for a doctor and call the police.

Miss Morris, the youngest of the eye-witnesses cross-examined by Mr. MacDonald said that more time elapsed between the second and third shots than between the first and second. She and Miss Woodley agreed on this point, while Miss Cousins thought the longer interval was between the first and second reports.

Mr. Justice Kelly submitted Miss Morris to a test to find out her idea of how long two minutes really are. At the end of 50 seconds she announced that that space of time had expired.

The court adjourned until 9.30 Tuesday morning, after Mr. Justice Kelly had ordered that the jury be kept in seclusion under the supervision of an officer.

It is expected by the counsel that this case will be finished sometime today.

CIVIC RECEPTION TO HOCKEY TEAM

When Team Returns Home After Games in Western Ontario.

BANQUET LATER.

A civic reception for Peterboro's Senior hockey players the next time they come home, whether they win or lose the Ontario championship. The Mayor and Ald. Denne, chairman of the Reception Committee, were given authority to arrange for band, fireworks and other details. Should the team go further and win the Allan Cup they will arrange another reception, later after all the games have been played and the team is through for the season, they will arrange for a banquet. All this was decided at a meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council, held last night.

The matter of a civic band was also discussed, Ald. Greene referring to a report presented by a special committee at the December meeting of the Council. His committee, the Parks Committee, will discuss the matter further when the grant for music is being apportioned.

SECONDS' BONSPIEL.

LAKEFIELD, March 9.—This week a new bonspiel will be held when the second store men will skip the rinks, and prizes are being given by Dr. S. J. Gibson and E. H. Northey. This is quite a new departure and has roused an unusual amount of interest, the second store men are on their toes and there will be some good games for the prizes are unique and well worth winning.

LAWYER'S WILL.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 9.—(Canadian Press.)—By a will which was written in longhand by himself on a sheet of foolscap paper, the late John Bishop, K.C., formerly local master of the Supreme Court of Ontario, who died on Feb. 27 last disposes of an estate amounting to $37,939, half of which goes to his daughter Ellen Florence Bishop, and the remainder to his son John Leigh Bishop, barrister.

KILLED BY TREE.

Canton Man Fatally Injured When Tree Fell on Him.

WELCOME, March 9. — Homer Austin, of Canton, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when a tree which he and his brother were cutting fell on his head. The accident occurred in the woods owned by his brother, Harry Austin, north-east of Canton.

PROVINCIAL COP TRAPS TRAPPER

Insular Inhabitant Came To Town for a Booze Spree.

HE'S IN TOWN YET

LINDSAY, March 9.—Provincial Officer Storey had rather an exciting experience Saturday afternoon with a trapper named Myles who lives alone on an island at Goose Lake, lower Scugog river. Myles has been shadowed for some time by the officer, as he was suspected of being engaged in the sale of liquor. He was seen going into the Royal Hotel with two local characters, and the Provincial Officer followed in his wake. He proceeded to search Myles, who drew two six ounce bottles from his pocket and brought them down with great force on the floor, the glass flying in all directions. He made an attempt to smash the third bottle, but the officer closed in on him. He almost succeeded in making a getaway, but the officer overpowered him, and brought him to polce quarters. He was charged by Police Magistrate Bradford with having liquor in his possession. As this was his first offence, a minimum fine of $200 with one month in jail, and in default of payment, an additional five months. Myles went up to jail.

EUCHRE PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Cole Entertained Friends at Cards—Games Close.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 9—Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Cole, Wellington street, entertained thirty of their friends on Friday evening at their home. Progressive euchre was played and the games were close. Mrs. Pearse and Mrs. Ernest Cassan tied for ladies' first, the prize going to Mrs. Cassan. Wilbet Dorie secured gentlemen's first prize. Mrs. Herb Frederick got the ladies' prize for lone hands, and Ernest Cassan the one for gentlemen. Harry Seaborne got the consolation Mrs. Cole served lunch about midnight and dancing was then the attraction. All joined in thanking Mr. and Mrs. Cole for their hospitality.

Birthday Party

Mrs. E. A. Stuart entertained a number of little boys and girls on Thursday afternoon from four until seven o'clck in honor of the birthday of her little daughter, Gloria. The children played games and sang. Mrs. Stuart served lunch and the kiddies had great fun competing for the nickel and other symbols in the birthday cake.

Miss Rita Palliser entertained a number of her young friends on Thursday evening at her home. The young people went for a snowshoe hike and after this went to Miss Palliser's. The evening was spent in games and contests after which Miss Palliser and her mother served lunch.

OYSTER SUPPER

Belmont U.F.O. Club Holds Its Annual Social.

HAVELOCK, March 9.—The annual oyster supper of the Belmont U.F.W.O. Club No. 1561A was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Belmont on Thursday evening, when about eighty of the members and their friends gathered to partake of the good things provided.

After the supper, which was served from 6 to 8 o'clock a delightful evening was spent in community singing, checkers, cards and dancing. The special feature of the evening was an interesting and instructive address given by Mr. G. A. Brethen, ex-M.P. of Norwood. W. E. Griffith also gave a short address.

The crowd dispersed between two and three a.m., and many expressed their appreciation of the evenings enjoyment and hoped there would be more social gatherings soon.

TREVOR; 20 YEARS ON STAGE, SIGNS UP WITH MOVIES

By Russell J. Birdwell
NEA Service Writer.

HOLLYWOOD, March 8.—Norman Trevor, prominent for 20 years on the stage here and in England, and more recently active in motion pictures directed by Herbert Brenon, has been signed to a long-term contract to appear in Paramount films exclusively.

Trevor leaves "Young Blood," in which he has been appearing with success on the stage in New York, to assume his first picture work under the new contract. This is to be the role of "Beaujolais," a major in the French Foreign Legion, in the screen version of P. C. Wren's novel, "Beau Geste," which Herbert Brenon will produce in France and at the legion headquarters in northern Africa.

Trevor is an Englishman, born in Calcutta, India, educated at St. Xavier's College in that city, who spent his youth in the northeast Himalayas as a tea planter. Later he entered the indigo and jute trade in Bengal. He went on the stage when he was 27.

ANNUAL SPORTS NIGHT

Broom-a-Loo Games Looked Forward to by Lakefield People.

LAKEFIELD, March 9.—Thursday night is the annual sports' night at the rink and one looks forward to a good evening. Broom-a-loo will again be a feature and as it was so successful last season people look forward to there being just as good a game this year and probably even better. The list of races promises well and anyone can look forward to one of the best nights of the season at the rink.

As the winter wanes and spring advances a dramatic epidemic appears to have struck the village with considerable force. At least four local organizations are hard at work on a dramatic entertainment to be produced during the spring. Two dramatic importations drew packed houses in February.

LEADERS Their Records of 1925 BATTING

HARRY HEILMANN

Made major league debut with Detroit in 1914. Farmed out to Portland in 1915. Rejoined Detroit following year.

Has led American League larrupers three times. Started in 1921 and every other year since. Hit .403 in 1923. Made 237 hits in 1921.

Led league in doubles with 45 in 1924.

Has hit .300 and over every season since 1918. Has scored 100 or more runs three times, 121 in 1923 being his premier effort.

Has played both infield and outfield positions—first base, second and right field.

Fair fielder: possesses strong throwing arm.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

LAURIE LAYTON—USE AND CARE OF CLUBS.

The only right way to play the irons is to take turf on every shot in which they are used. Doing this gives a player more control over the ball and increases the steadiness of his play. It also helps to get a back-spin on the ball when a club of the mashie type is used.

In playing from very hard ground hit the ball and hit it clean, without taking turf before the shot. Hitting hard ground with the club before the ball is struck will spoil the direction of the shot by turning the shaft in the player's hands and will rob the impact of the firmness and pep which it should have.

After playing, it is a good practice to wipe the clubs free of any moisture which might cause them to warp. The shafts should be lightly oiled every week or so. Any fraying of the grip or binding threads should be tended to immediately by an expert.

The best way to keep the clubs when not in use is to place them across a table, being sure the shafts are lying flat, with the heads over the edge of the table.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

MANAGERIAL MINDS.

It's hard to figure the big league managers.

Eight American League bosses waived on First Baseman Walter Pipp of the Yankees. Manager Jack Hendricks of the National League was the only one in his league to claim him.

"Pipp should make the Cincinnati club a pennant contender," says Hendricks. "My dope is that he is far from through.

"When Cincinnati took the aged Jake Daubert, after no other club wanted him, rival managers laughed at the very idea. Yet Daubert until his death was one of the most valuable players on the ball club. He made the team.

"Lack of a competent first baseman cost the Cincinnati club at least a dozen games last year, perhaps more. Put a dozen games on the won column of last year and the Reds would have been right up there."

"I look for Pipp to go along for at least three more years."

Cincinnati is banking on a player waived out of the American League, to make the club a pennant contender. I am inclined to agree with Jack Hendricks' judgment.

HARD TO FATHOM.

Last spring after watching the Chicago White Sox in training, Manager Eddie Collins asked me what rookie infielders I liked best.

"Johnny Butler and Ike Davis are the only two new infielders who impress me," I replied, "and I like Butler the better of the two. He's rangy, looks like a good fielder and if he can hit, he will fill the gap at short."

It seems Collins had a similar opinion. When the team started north it was a battle between Butler and Davis for the position at short.

The breaks at the bat went against Butler. He, himself told me that he didn't hit a ball hard all spring in the exhibition games. When a player isn't hitting he fails to impress. Incidentally he usually slumps in the field as a result of worrying over the scarcity of base hits.

Ike Davis played shortstop for the White Sox last season and did a pretty good job of it. Johnny Butler was sent back to the minors before the race started.

The other day Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Nationals gave six players for Johnny Butler who had a big year of it with Minneapolis in 1925.

THE SECOND GUESS.

A year ago George Sisler traded Pitcher Urban Shocker for Joe Bush. Now Bush goes to Washington in exchange for the veteran Tom Zachary and the rookie Win Ballou.

Last year George Sisler took George Mogridge as part payment for Catcher Hang Severeid. He wanted to bolster up his pitching staff.

Now Mogridge goes back to New York, a club that turned him loose to Washington several years ago. In his place Sisler takes the veteran catcher. Wally Schang. He wants to strengthen his catching.

Conditions are constantly arising in baseball that call for changes in personnel. A manager must juggle his players in trades or sales to meet all such situations.

The history of baseball is that many a manager pays a fancy price for some player who was once cut loose by the same manager without so much as even a trial.

At the Knights of Columbus bowling alleys last evening, the Orchids (Miss Marita Collins, captain) won two games out of three from the Bluebirds (Miss E. Leahy, captain) and the Poppies (Miss Katie Radey, captain) took two games from the Larks (Miss Margaret O'Brien, captain).

Miss Grace Sharpe of the Orchids' team had two nice scores of 206 and 154, Miss Theresa O'Heron of the Poppies made 209 and Miss G. Condon, of the same team, 167 and 169, Miss G. Leahy, of the Bluebirds, 150, and several members of the Larks' team had good scores, Miss M. O'Keefe, 169, Miss C. Conroy, 162, and Miss M. Maher, 151.

HAYMAKERS THAT MADE HISTORY.

Defeat of Freddy Welsh Leonard's Hardest Fight.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Benny Leonard had to whip the timekeeper as well as Freddy Welsh in their memorable battle in New York May 28, 1917, when Leonard brought the lightweight title back to America.

Leonard knew he could beat Welsh; he had already outpointed him on two previous occasions in 10-round bouts. But knock him out? —that was the thumb in Benny's chowder. Leonard had to knock him out or in all probability lose his last chance at the lightweight title. Knock out one of the cleverest defensive fighters the ring has known —that was a large order for a fighter of even Leonard's known ability.

Leonard called the battle the hardest of his entire ring career, even though he came out of it with hardly a scratch. For days before the bout he had it dinned into his ears, "You must knock him out." Round after round during the fight, as Leonard pounded at Welsh's uncanny defense, he kept repeating to himself, You must knock him out." Billy Gibson, his manager, and George Engel, his trainer, told him earnestly between rounds, "You must knock him out."

With that command ringing in his ears, Leonard tore into the champion from the opening bell. He showered rights and lefts at Welsh's head, most of which glanced off Freddy's arms and elbows as harmlessly as rain off a turtle's shell.

It was Leonard's fight all the way. He scored repeatedly. There was never a moment when he was in danger. But it was a no-decision fight. A knockout was the only thing that would help him.

It looked encouraging for Benny in the fourth. A right that weaved past Kelsh's guard to his chin staggered the champion. Three more rights and left to the same spot had him on the run. But the canny Welshman called upon his defensive tactics and weathered the period.

Leonard's punching won out in the ninth. The finish was one of the most dramatic in ring history. Welsh was boxing in his accustomed fashion. Benny looked somewhat discouraged at not being able to connect with his right. Suddenly he whipped over for Welsh's jaw. Welsh ducked but didn't entirely escape. It was a terrific blow and Freddy went to his haunches. He grabbed the ropes and pulled himself to his feet, but Leonard was on him like a tiger.

Then ensued a strange spectacle—Welsh pulling himself backward along the ropes with one hand and trying to hold off the young Hebrew battler with the other. A few savage chops and Welsh was down again. For the second time he pulled himself up and Leonard was at him once more, turning him into a human punching bag.

Virtually unconscious, Welsh was wedged in a corner. He dropped for the third time, but struggled back to his feet, his hands hanging helplessly at his sides.

Referee "Kid" McPartland looked questiongly toward Welsh's corner. The champion's manager, Harry Pollock, stood waiting, the soggy sponge in his hand, watching to see if there was a chance for Welsh to get out of the corner.

McPartland took matters into his own hands. He ordered Leonard to his corner, while Welsh, still dazed, staggered to the center of the ring, reeled and fell through the ropes, thoroughly "out."

PETES PREPARED FOR FINAL GAME

Arrived in London Last Night—Tickets Are Very Scarce.

GAME BROADCAST.

LONDON, Ont., March 9. Special. —Peterboro's Senior O.H.A. team arrived here at 9.40 o'clock last night, and is housed at the Iroquois Hotel, where the players were in bed an hour after their arrival.

President J. J. Duffus Manager Eddie Wright, Trainer Ed. Dillon and his assistant George Gauthier, Buster Wright, Mascot, M. Shanby, Art Costello, Art Johnston, W. King, W. D. Cairns, and Dr. Gibson and son of Lakefield completed the party.

These latter rooters will be reinforced by the arrival this evening of a score or more of other ardent fans.

The Peterboro party was met at the station last night by ex-Ald. Frank Whitehouse, Billy Cahill, Firth Buller and other old Peterboro boys now living in London, and given a hearty welcome.

The Petes squad are in good shape for to-night's test. Collins, McLeod and Bogardis are suffering from colds but it is not expected that they will be bothered greatly and the rest of the crew are all ready for the battle.

In London, of course, the game is the whole topic of conversation. There are only two questions being asked, "Can the Ravens overcome that two goal lead?" and "Where can I get a ticket?"

The battle for tickets is a repetition of last Friday's game, and the Petes have been besieged for pasteboards since their arrival. The arena here will only hold about 3800 people and ten times that number want to see the game. Eight hundred rush seats go on sale to-night, and the line up will form early.

As to the game itself the London fans expect the Ravens to overcome the two goal lead. They base their opinion chiefly on the fact that the London team has not been beaten on its own ice this season and that only in two cases have the Ravens failed to win by two goals or more. The obvious answer to that from a Peterboro view point is that they have not played the Petes on London ice yet.

Peterboro radio fans, if they can succeed in pulling in Statios CJGC, 389.5 metres, to-night, will be able to get a play by play account of the game, as the London Free Press is broadcasting a running story direct from the arena.

The teams and officials for to-night are announced as follows:

Referee, M. J. Rodden.

Goal umpires, M. Benson, Toronto; C. Lloyd, Stratford.

Timer, Jim Sutherland, Kingston.

Penalty timer, L. E. Marsh, Toronto.

AT THE REGENT

MARIE PREVOST IN THRILLING COMEDY.

At Her Best As Daring Heroine of Warner Bros. "Bobbed Hair."

The Regent Theatre is featuring a delightful and amusing photoplay this week. It is "Bobbed Hair," Warner Bros. picturization of the popular novel written by twenty famous authors, and losing none of its romantic and adventuresome flavor in screen form.

An all-star cast has been assembled for this production, directed by Alan Crosland, and the players move through a series of exciting adventures and amusing love scenes with rapid charm. Marie Prevost plays the heroine, charming, head-strong and willful. Reed Howes and John Roche play her two suitors, an ardent Southerner and a wealthy New Englander, while Emily Fitzroy is the maiden aunt, determined to spare her niece the fate of spinsterhood. She makes a will that requires Connemara's marriage before she is twenty-one, and the girl is at a loss to choose between Bing and Salt—to bob or not to bob—to satisfy their wishes in regard to her hair. She is expected to make her decision the night of a big masquerade ball, and instead disappears with David Lacy (Kenneth Harlan) in his car, and becomes involved in one breath-taking adventure after another.

Smugglers, revenue agents, stolen cars, burning motor boats all come in for a share of the excitement and the fun; with the girl still keeping the two men guessing her answer, and the new man fascinated by her. The story ends happily for Lacy and Connemara, and entertainingly for the audience.

AT THE CAPITOL.

RICHARD DIX IN "THE LUCKY DEVIL."

One of the racing pictures which are so popular with movie directors is the feature at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week, starring Richard Dix in "The Lucky Devil."

It is one of those pictures in which the photography is very clear cut and the action moves along swiftly and easily. The good-looking Richard Dix is the hero. This young man evidently patterns his screen work on that of Thomas Meighen and his puzzled manner in the midst of conflicting situations is an imitation of the famous star's demeanor. His work is as successful as most imitations in this regard, but he gives a very fine presentation of the hero, nevertheless.

As Bill Phelps, Richard Dix falls heir, by way of a lucky raffle ticket, to a special model racing car recently owned by his employer, son of the Franklyne Department Store's owner. The car is a hoodoo, and Phelps' ownership of it brings him various misadventures, but finally lands him as winner of a ten thousand dollar first prize in the race, and successful suitor for the hand of Doris Kent, a part excellently taken by Esther Ralston. The role of the aunt who chaperons the girl with fierce vigor is taken by a lady with a strong resemblance to Jock Holland, in the Dumbells' troupe.

Phelps and the girl and her aunt meet on the way to Florida, Bill is robbed on the way of his money, and the trio become bankrupt just about the same time in the small town of Nampa. The hero engages in an encounter with a prize-fighter to win the necessary entrance fee for the big race, and is robbed again and slugged by an over-conscientious policeman. The girl comes to his rescue by selling her Ford to get the money and Bill embarks on the race, taking with him as a companion the constable who has been ordered to keep the car in sight by an angry landlady of the three travellers. The constable, however, proves to be a good sport, and Bill has an exciting race, with many trials and tribulations that take it out of the realm of the ordinary speed event on the screen. Humorous touches throughout add to the interest. —Jeanette.

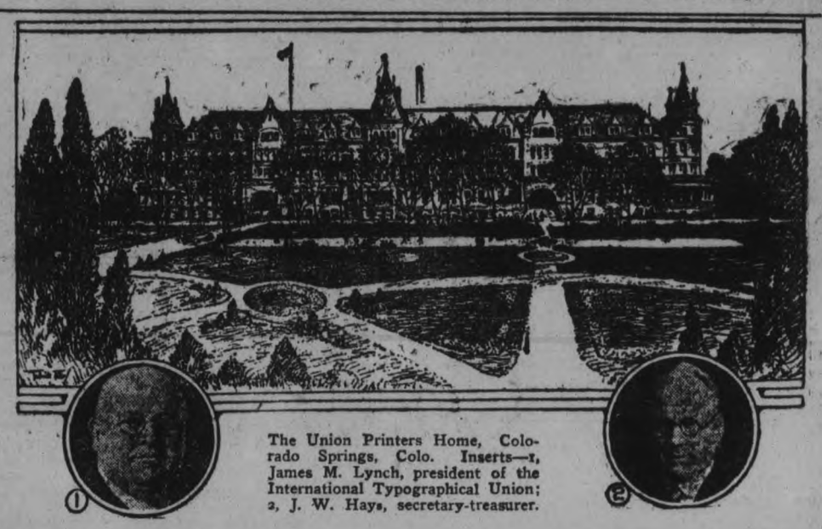
LIFE OF CLUBMAN AWAITS OLD PRINTER



The Union Printers Home, Colorado Springs, Colo. Inserts—1, James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union; 2, J. W. Hays, secretary-treasurer.

When a member of the International Typographical Union begins to lag behind in the swift rush of the modern printing industry, he may retire to the Union Printers Home in Colorado Springs, Colo., to live the life of a "clubman" for the remainder of his days. How he passes his time under such advantageous circumstances is revealed in the motion picture, "His Brother's Keeper," which will be shown in the program of the Regent Theatre here on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 15, 16 and 17.

Financial worries are left behind by the old printers who enter the Home. The best of food, comfortable quarters, clothing and all necessaries of life are provided for Home residents and in addition a small sum weekly, adequate for tobacco and amusements, is supplied by the International Union. Residents who possess savings or who have pensions from local unions can practice thrift without depriving themselves of pleasure or comfort.

The Home library is one of the most extensive in the West. Magazines and newspapers from all parts of the world enable residents to keep abreast of the time. Lawns and gardens, covering a large part of the Home's three hundred acres, offer many pleasant walks. The most famous scenic region of the Rocky Mountains is only a few minutes distant by street car. Croquet courts provide outdoor recreation. More strenuous games are considered hardly suitable for the character of the institution's population, but fishing in mountain streams offers a pastime attractive to many of the old timers.

Books, card games, picture shows, the radio, strolls in the gardens, rides over the mountains and exchanges of reminiscences enable the retired printers to pass the time very pleasantly and have served to prolong the lives of many faithful workers.

The tuberculosis sanatorium at the Printers Home is said to be one of the finest and best equipped in the world. Specialists on the hospital staff have been encouraged to investigate every method for treating respiratory diseases, to which printers are susceptible because of the nature of their work. Facilities for treating other diseases are also provided The capacity of the hospital was increased recently by more than fifty beds.

The Typographical Union pays pensions of $8 a week to old members who prefer to remain at their homes in preference to residing at the Colorado Springs institution.

ST. PAUL'S MEN HOLD BANQUET

Rev. W. Allan Speaks On Scots At Home and Abroad.

ENJOYABLE NIGHT.

To the strains of the bagpipes played by Piper Leith and son, some seventy five men of St. Paul's church gathered 'round the festive board.

The ladies of the congregation had supplied a most delightful hot supper. The eats were soon made to vanish by the hungry Scotsmen, and those who wished they were Scotsmen, for it was a Scots' night.

After the repast had been disposed of a business programme followed, presided over by Dr. Craig.

Dr. Malcolm McCulloch gave a brief address on the new organ and D. H. Moore spoke on the plans for a canvas which is to be made for this organ.

Then followed a recitation by Master Joe Leith, two readings, "Mon Choual 'Castor'," and "Les Vieux," taken from William Henry Drummond, by R. J. Soden. Jack Smith sang several Scots' songs, "The Battle of Stirling Bridge," and "Sound the Pibroch."

Rev. Mr. Allan the speaker of the evening, then followed. His subject was "A Scotsman at Home and Abroad." Mr. Allen having been born and edudcated in Scotland, was quite able to deal with this subject. He told many stories at the expense of the Scots but said that "no man enjoys a story on himself any better than a sensible Scot."

The speaker continued by saying that "A Scotsman is modest in a conceited way," and that "The Scots' race is like any other race—you have to belong to the race before you can understand it and enjoy it."

Mr. Allan also stated that "It is peculiar to the Scots' race to have the mark of Cain stamped on them." For the benefit of his hearers he said the mark of Cain was "a wanderer." No man loves his country more than a Scotsman, but no man is more ready to leave his country than a member of the same race. "Then, when he is an exile is the time when he appreciates his homeland," said the speaker.

"Scotland has always been famous for its attitude towards things that are sacred. That is why to-day we find the Scots' race dominating the pupits of our churches. The Sabbath day has always been sacred to the Scotsman, no matter where he is found," said Mr. Allan.

As for the Scotsman abroad, Mr. Allan spoke briefly, of his own experiences in Australia and the United States.

The programme concluded with a solo by Master Joe Leith, "Wi' a Hundred Pipers," and "O Canada." As the men were leaving more than one said that it has been a bonnie nicht."

ALL-AMERICAN CANAL FAVORED

Secretary Wilbur Advocates New York Waterway for Defense.

VIA HUDSON RIVER

WASHINGTON, March 9. — (Canadian Press.)—Secretary Wilbur and Elme C. Crowley, president of the Fleet Corporation, in letters Monday to Chairman Dempsey of the House rivers and harbors committee, both endorsed the proposal for an all-American canal to connect the Great Lakes with the Atlantic Ocean via the Hudson River. The proposed route recently was disapproved by a special board of army engineers as economically unsound and will be the subject of a hearing to-day before the rivers and harbors board of the engineers corps.

Secretary Wilbur said the proposed canal would add materially to the United Sttaes' transportation system from the viewpoint of national defense. "A waterway of this type, to be an asset to the national defense, must be entirely within the limits of the United States," he asserted. Mr. Crowley said he favored the canal route through New York state and down the Hudson in preference to the proposed St. Lawrence River route.

"As between the two routes," he said, "it seems to me that the American people should be more interested in developing that one which is wholly within their own territory."

OBITUARY.

CANADA ALSO!
The Waterloo Chronicle of Thursday, Feb. 26, 1925, says:
Mrs. Macalpine, in her contributions to the evening's program, showed herself to be a true artist. Her singing made an irresistible appeal from the pure melody of the lovely song "Since first I met Thee" by Rubenstein and the Old English Songs of surpassing beauty to the loveliness of the coloratura songs and arias so rarely heard because of their extreme difficulty. Her voice was especially clear and sweet on her high tones, her singing being also characterized by perfect intonation. She sang the most difficult passages in a register high above the ordinary soprano, with astonishing ease, revealing unusually fine artistry. Her stately, magnetic stage presence and sweet graciousness also added to the charm of her numbers. 1d-58-632.

EMPLOYEES BUY STOCK.
By way of encouraging thrift and stimulating the interest of employees in the Company they work for, the Bell Telephone Company has made it easy for telephone workers to become owners of shares in the Company. As the Annual Report for 1925 discloses, no less than 8,255 employees have subscribed for stock to the amount of 26,528 shares. This means that 70 per cent of eligible employees are in process of becoming shareholders, indicating as the Report says, "a commendable tendency towards saving and thrift." 1d-58-631.

Stocks Take Upward Trend After Last Week's Drop

NEW YORK, Mar. 9 (Canadian Press) — Gradual restoration of speculative confidence in the stock market was reflected today in the upward movement of prices. Bullish sentiment was created by easing of the call money renewal rates, series of favorable dividend announcements and official confirmation of reports that negotiations were under way for the merger of American Locomotive and railway steel spring companies. Investment Rails started upward under the leadership of Delaware and Hudson, which was selling nearly 10 points above yesterday's final quotations by early afternoon. Atlantic Coast Line and Texas and Pacific each moved up about four points and several others a point or two.

Wheat Takes Strong Lead After Short Wavering Start

CHICAGO, March 9 (Canadian Press). — Wheat prices developed considerable strength today after a wavering start, the upward trend of values was based more or less on chances that the Government estimate of domestic farm reserve stocks this afternoon might prove smaller than recent unofficial figures Initial quotations, 5-8c off to 1-8c up, May (new) 11.57 3-4 to $1.58 1-4 and July $1.38 to $1.38 3-8, were followed by material gains all around. Corn and oats were firmer, helped by predictions that only small movement of corn would take place from rural sources during the next 30 or 60 days. After opening unchanged to 1-4c higher, May 77 5-8 to 77 3-4c, corn scored moderate additional upturns. Oats started unchanged to 1-8c higher, May 39 3-4 to 39 7-8. Later the market hardened a little more. In line with hog values, provisions were firm.

Prices Are Extremely Light Standard Mining Exchange

TORONTO March 9 (Canadian Press).—Volume of trading was extremely light on Standard Mining Exchange this morning, and prices tended lower, few changes of note were shown. One of the largest declines was that of 60 cents in McIntyre at 24.90 at noon; Lake Shore lost 35 at 10.50, and Kirkland Lake 4 at 106. Dome eased 10 at 18.50, Argonaut Consolidated 1 1-2 at 33 1-2 and Vipond 5 at 160. Teck Hghues advancing 2 at 320, and Kirk-Hunton gaining 4 1-2 at 29 1-2 were exceptions. In the silvers, Keeley and Mining Corporation each lost 3 at 152 and 387 respectively.

Quiet Session at Toronto Though Stocks Notably Firm

TORONTO, March 9 (Canadian Press).—Canada Steamships Preferred and Consolidated Smelters were the leaders of this morning's quiet session of the Toronto Stock Exchange, though trading was light and market was notably firm. Smelters advanced to 194 and closed this morning at 192½, a gain of two and a half points, while Steamships Preferred advanced 1½ at 67 3-4; Common firmed a half at 17½. Brazilian on a few small sales strengthened three-eights at 91 3-8, and Canada Cement gained ½ at 109. Brompton advanced one at 32, F. N. Burt a ½ at 59¾, and Twin City 3-4 at 77. Leading mines were weak, McIntyre losing 70 cents at 24.80, Lake Shore 45 at 10.50, and Dome 25 at 18.50.

DIVORCE SEEKER SEVERLY BEATEN

Tampa Man Threatened With Worse Beating if Case Proceeds.

TAMPA, Fla., March 9.—(Canadian Press.)—Dudley Read, 36, a photographer, who was taken from his home here and severely beaten by a band of unmasked man last night, returned home this morning. He displayed numerous wounds on the body.

After lashing him, Read said his abductors left him by a roadside fifteen miles from Tampa with the remark that if he did not abandon the divorce action which he had recently started, they would take him out again and nearly kill him.

Mrs. Read, 26, was formerly a feature writer of a local newspaper. About two months ago Read instituted divorce proceedings, naming John Kelly, a friend, as co-respondent.

...LDSAY WOMAN ... TWO OF DWYER CHILDREN, BUT LEGAL DIFFICULTIES PREVENT

Offspring of Second Marriage Not Ill-Treated or Neglected, Says Official.

NOT BAPTIZED.

John Edgar Says Kathleen Told Him Mrs. Lytle Beat Her.

A letter received from a woman in Lindsay was referred to at yesterday afternoon's regular meeting of the Children's Aid Society. This was a request that two of the children of George Dwyer of Dummer be given her for adoption, provided they are Protestants. Mr. Edgar said that he was not sure if the Children's Aid Society could make these three small children by the second marriage of George Dwyer wards of the society as they do not come under the classification of ill-treated or neglected children, necessary in order to make them wards, according to law. He also said that the law requires that Roman Catholic children be not placed in a Protestant home, nor Protestant children in a Roman Catholic home, and the children are supposed to be of the same religion as the father, who, in this case, was, for many years at least, a Roman Catholic The second wife of George Dwyer declares, he said, that when they were married by the Rev. Mr. Chapman of St. James' Church, her husband agreed that any children of the marriage should be brought up as Protestants, but the man denies this. These three children have not been baptized. The consideration of making them wards of the Children's Aid Society came up before the magistrate today.

Otonabee Case.

Mr. Edgar also reported on a case in Otonabee which he had driven yesterday 25 miles to investigate, in which the mother of two children of two and four years of age is in the habit of going out in the afternoons and leaving the children without fire in the house to warm them.

Mr. Powell, who has been assisted in his work by Mr. Edgar during his illness of some time past, spoke of resuming his active outside duties within a month's time, and Mr. Edgar rose to ask the society's attitude concerning his retention on part time of the present position he occupies in doing the outside work for Mr. Powell. He produced a letter proving that his own business had suffered considerably by reason of the interest he had taken in the society's work, the firm of which he is an agent having drawn his attention to the fact that his orders of late had not been very large, and commenting somewhat unfavorably on this circumstance.

Doesn't Approve

Mr. Powell spoke of Mr. Edgar's good work in assisting him, but thought that, in the case of the three small Dwyer children, they might have been left with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Mat. Lytle, instead of bringing them all into the Shelter. Mr. Edgar replied by telling of the accusation made by the daughter of the first marriage, Kathleen, who has been living with the Lytles, and who said she had

Thought Citizenship Gave Him Right To Beat His Wife

WINNIPEG, Man., March 10.—(Canadian Press.)—John Kiralski had his own views as to the definition of Canadian freedom. Hailed into court on a charge of wife-beating he offered the defence that he had just taken out his naturalization papers, and if his new status did not give him the right to take a cuff at his wife, he wanted to know what did. He was remanded for sentence.

THORNTON WILL CONFER ON COAL

C.N.R. President To Meet Stewart and Alberta Members.

DISCUSS RATES.

OTTAWA, Mar. 10 (Canadian Press)—Sir Henry Thornton is expected in Ottawa this afternoon to attend a conference respecting Alberta-Ontario coal shipments.

Sir Henry will meet with Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior and Mines, Alberta Members of Parliament and freight experts from Alberta and Ontario.

The two provinces will urge the railway management to accept the three way agreement between themselves and the Federal Government to make up the difefrence between the seven dollar per ton rate on coal shipments and the figure which the Board of Railway Commissioners finds to be the actual cost of the movement.

GORDON DENIES TORONTO RUMOR

Local Liberal Says That He Will Not Succeed Sinclair.

IS SUPPORTING HIM.

The Examiner interviewed the Honorable G. N. Gordon this morning and inquired of him what truth there was in an article appearing in the Toronto Telegram, to the effect that the former Federal member was to succeed W. E. N. Sinclair, K.C., M.P.P., as leader of the Liberal party in Ontario.

Mr. Gordon says there is no truth in the statement whatever, and added that he was supporting Mr. Sinclair vigorously and intended, when the Provincial campaign came on, to assist Mr. Sinclair in the Province for several weeks.

According to Mr. Gordon, Mr. Sinclair's leadership was satisfactory to the Liberals of the Province and Mr. Sinclair had been giving splendid leadership and good service, and the last thing, Mr. Gordon said, in his mind was the question of taking the Ontario leadership, or even considering it.

GERMAN AND FRENCH STATESMEN FEAR DOMESTIC REACTION UPON DIPLOMATIC VICTORY AT GENEVA

Stresemann and Briand Mindful of Opinion of Their Separate Publics.

NO PROGRESS YET.

Chamberlain and Stresmann in Long and Friendly Conference Tuesday.

GENEVA, March 10 (Canadian Press)—"We hope the League of Nations Council crisis will be settled within a few days," said a German statesman last night after a long conference between Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, and the German delegates Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann.

The spokesman of the British group declared that the ministers had a long and friendly conversation" and announced that an agreement had been reached by the Rhine pact signatories, who resumed their conference this morning.

M. Briand telephoned M. Paul-Boncour last night authorizing him to go on with the negotiations, in which the Germans are taking part.

Then followed a conference between M. Paul-Boncour and Dr. Streseman, who concurred in the Chamberlain idea to reopen the Locarno group negotiations which ended Sunday so unsatisfactorily.

Fear French Reaction

The situation has become complicated by fears openly voiced by the French that a clean German diplomatic victory in the present struggle would be likely to have so undesirable an effect on French public opinion as to endanger that spirit of Franco-German reconciliation which was launched by the Locarno accords. Hence, the German chancellor and his foreign minister are being urged to reflect on the wisdom of conserving the new era of friendship to which the Locarno agreements gave birth.

To this the Germans reply that they have their own public opinion to think of, pointing out that re-

RAILWAY BILL HAS OPPOSITION

Counsel For C.N.R. Puts Up Battle Against Ontario Legislature.

OTHER BILLS PASSED.

TORONTO, March 10 (Canadian Press).—Much opposition, chiefly from the counsel for the Canadian National Railways, was encountered before the Railway Committee of the Ontario Legislature today passed a bill incorporating the Welland and Port Colborne Railway. MacGregor Young, K.C., for the C.N.R., contended the railway if built would divert a great amount of traffic from Canada to the United States railway lines

Mark Vaughan, Welland, sponsor of the bill, declared the railway was needed for the new industrial area created by the reclaimed land in the visinity of the Welland Canal, and he was supported by a delegation from Welland.

The bill was finally carried with four dissenting votes. Bills were passed extending the charter of the Midland-Simcoe Railway which proposes a railway from Midland to Port McNicol, and for the lumbering railway from Haliburton to Mattawa.

FIFTY TRAWLERS SUNK

VIENNA, March 10. — (Canadian Press.)—A Belgrade despatch to the newspaper Pester Lloyd, of Budapest, reports that fifty trawlers with their crews were sunk along the Dalmatian coast during a gale.

A shore train was overturned and many passengers were seriously hurt.

The Italian freighter Zeeno was shattered on the rocks of Spalato Harbor, half of its crew perished.

Million Dollar Fire Loss To Indiana Railway Shops

FRANKFORT, Ind., March 10 (Canadian Press). — Fire yesterday virtually destroyed the locomotive shops of the Nickel Plate Railroad with a loss of $1,000,000. Six hundred men will be temporarily thrown out of work.

The fire started when an oil burner in the roundhouse exploded. Flames spread rapidly and were beyond control in a few minutes.

The roundhouse, erected a year ago, the machine shops, blacksmith shops, a quantity of new machinery and a number of locomotives were destroyed before the blaze virtually burned itself out.

MOTORSHIP HELPLESS.

Drifting in Pacific — Relief Appeal.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—(Canadian Press.)—The motorship Mazatlan sent a wireless message to Swayne and Hoyt, her owners here, yesterday, saying that she was drifting helpless 860 miles east of Guam on account of engine trouble. She has 19 persons on board, two of them women.

N. H. Hickman, to whom the boat is under charter, has sent a cable message to Honolulu asking that a relief vessel be sent from that place.

CONDITIONS IN DUMMER TOLD

Rev. H. D. Cameron Tells Presbytery That They Are Terrible.

FEW SCHOOLS.

Conditions in Dummer were denounced at the meeting of Peterborough Presbytery held yesterday. No definite action was taken, though the members expressed the opinion that something should be done by the churches concerned.

Rev. H. D. Cameron brought up the conditions in Dummer, and stated as he knew them conditions were terrible. Other members pointed out that there were only four schools; one school had one pupil attending, and the others three or four pupils.

The Presbytery thought that the churches concerned certainly ought to do something to help clean up the township.

In some places members stated that families of ten and twelve are living in a two roomed shack.

SEVEN PEOPLE BITTEN BY DOGS

Total For Montreal Has Reached Nineteen—Clinic Opened.

POLICE USE GUNS.

MONTREAL, March 10 (Canadian Press).—In spite of the fact that the Montreal police were working under orders to destroy all unmuzzled dogs found on the streets of the Island, seven more persons were bitten by dogs yesterday, which brings the total to 19. The majority of those bitten were treated at the Royal Victoria Hospital Babies' Clinic which has been opened since Montreal was declared an infected area by the Department of Agriculture.

THE WEATHER.

The temperature dropped to two degrees below zero some time during the night, although this morning it was up to 20 above. March is usually a month of sudden changes — blustering wind... bright sun in daytime and frigid temperature at night. —W. P.

Workers Freed on Tuesday Night 26 Hours After Fatal Blasts.

IN VIRGINIA MINE.

Survivor of the Disaster in 1914 Found Among the Dead.

ECCLES, W. Va., March 10 — (Canadian Press. — Ten men were rescued alive last night from the workings of the Crab Orchard Improvement Company Mine No. 3 here after they had been entombed about 25 hours following an explosion in the operations early on Monday evening. Eight men are still missing.

Rescue workers continued their explorations into the stricken area of the subterranean workrooms last night. Nine bodies of the 28 miners entombed were removed on Tuesday and a tenth located.

One of the first bodies to be brought to the surface was that of J. R. "Slim" Russell, who miraculously escaped death in the explosion of 1914 when 184 miners lost their lives in the same mine. Russell, a machine runner, leaves a wife and child.

Hope that some of the entombed men might be alive was entertained when the bodies of Muncie Click were found with handkerchiefs over their faces indicating that the men had some time to make an effort to escape and that further exploration may reach a point where some of the men had time to make more efficient protection.

24 Escaped Nearby.

While the rescue teams sought survivors and bodies in mine No. 5, where the explosion occurred. 34 men who were at work in mine No 6, a connecting operation in a seam above No. 5, were rejoicing in their escape alive.

Reports soon after the explosion gave a larger number entombed in No. 6. It developed however that five had left the mine before the explosion but had not removed their "checks" from the board by which the first list was compiled.

One man, Arthur Wilkinson, a motor man, died in No. 6, but it had not been determined whether suffocation or contact with the trolley wire had caused his death.

COURT OF ENQUIRY ON DWYER CHILDREN

No Decision Arrived at Regarding Disposition—Hearing Adjourned.

A Court of Enquiry held under the Children's Protection Act was held at the County Court House this afternoon. Justices of the Peace Vincent Eastwood and Harry Rush presided. An application from the Children's Aid Society in connection with making the children wards of the society was the reason given for the holding of the court. The Magistrates adjourned the court without any decision being arrived at.

When interviewed by The Examiner to-day regarding the disposition of the Dwyer children, John Edgar, Children's Aid Society Officer, stated that no decision had been arrived at yet.

MONEY IN TRUST.

Children's Aid Society Holds Large Amount For Wards.

According to the 32nd annual report of J. J. Kelso, the Children's Aid Societies of the province hold in trust for wards of the society deposits amounting to $105,000. This money is kept in individual bank accounts and the amounts run from $ to $3 000. It is paid out to the children just as soon as they they are fairly established in life.

"High View Farm" For Sale

Special Farm of 236 acres, clay loam, 10 miles from city of Peterboro, on good gravel road, 1 mile from Cavan C.P.R. Station, 60 miles from Toron-to, with A1 buildings, new; house of red pressed brick, 11 rooms, bath, furnace, running water. Barns fully equipped, with stone wall, cement floor and steel stanchions for 45 head, also steel calf and bull pens, hay fork and slings. Horse stable holds 10 head, all have litter and feed carriers. 14 by 45 hollow clay tile silo.

This is an excellent grain and dairy farm, with two maple sugar bushes, and could handle from 40 to 50 head of dairy cows easily. It has grown 50 bushels of wheat per acre. The farm is well watered with a flowing creek in pasture and a flowing spring for the build-ings and which has head enough to go over the buildings.

This farm can be bought as a going concern, with stock, feed and implements.

GOOD NEWS

Nine Extra Years of Life

HEALTH is improving—disease is decreasing—life is lenghtening. You and your family have a better chance to live long and happily than people ever had before in the history of the world.

Splendid gains have been made in the United States and Canada within the last thirteen years. Stated in an insurance man's language, five years have been added to the average expectation of life.

But more encouraging—in the same period, nearly nine years were added to the life expectation of Metropolitan Industrial Policyholders—a gain, over the general average, of four extra years.

How was this done?—Largely through the inspiring work of our Metropolitan men and women. They sent trained nurses to the home of millions of sick Policyholders. They fought disease and taught the well how to keep well.

Your Health in 1926

Use the helps offered by medical science to prevent disease. You need never fear typhoid. Inoculation will prevent it. Your children need never have diphtheria. Anti-diphtheria treatments will safeguard them. Smallpox will not touch your family if all are vaccinated when necessary. One by one, dread diseases are being conquered. In ten years the tuberculosis death rate has been reduced more than one-half. Five years ago the diphtheria death rate alone was higher than that today for diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and whooping cough combined.

Send for a Life Table

Have you ever seen the figures shown in Life Tables that tell the average life expectations for each age? While these tables may not apply to you individually, they do apply to the composite you—you and all the other tens of thousands at your age.

Send to our Head Office for Canada, in Ottawa, for a Life Table so that you may see how many years it allots to persons of your age. It will be mailed free on request together with a list of many free booklets prepared by the Metropolitan, covering the cause and prevention of almost every disease by which you are threatened.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company cordially invites all of its friends and neighbors to share and use the knowledge that is conquering disease and building longer, happier lives.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 10, 1926.

PREVENTABLE FIRES.

The case reported in the Examiner the other day in which a Stirling man tried to clean out his chimney by burning paper, suggests that most people will be inclined to stick to the old-fashioned method of chimney cleaning even if it is slower and more vexatious.

The Stirling man cleaned his chimney, it is true, but in the process he burned his house and its contents.

The incident illustrates the fact that many of the fires which are responsible for Canada's appalling fire waste are the result of carelessness.

At least 75 per cent., according to the authorities, would be prevented by the exercise of ordinary care and common sense.

The fire loss each year in this country amounts to a tremendous figure, and when cases of the kind mentioned at the beginning of this article are reported day after day in the newspapers, the size of the yearly fire bill is not to be wondered at.

The Canadian people have not yet learned the truth of the statement that an ounce of fire prevention is worth a pound of fire protection.

A CHANCE TO HELP.

The attention of the citizens of Peterboro is again called to the fact that tomorrow afternoon in the G. W. V. A. Hall there will be a sale of articles made by the soldiers in the Christie Street Hospital, Toronto.

The Examiner would like to stress the importance of a successful sale as a means of encouraging these veterans in their long fight against odds.

Nothing is more helpful to them than to feel that there is still something for them to do, and a ready disposal of the articles they have learned to make will serve to show that their work is appreciated by their fellow-Canadians.

The monetary returns from such a sale are a consideration that is secondary to the chance that is given of giving these war veterans a helping hand and an encouraging pat on the shoulder, as it were.

The men themselves are still fighting, and it is the duty of their fellow-citizens to take every chance that is offered of assisting them in their fight.

The sale will continue from 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon until 9 in the evening, and will be under the auspices of the local Thursday Club, the members of which are glad to offer their services in such a worthy cause.

ONTARIO'S "WHO'S WHO."

The announcement of a textbook along the lines of an Ontario "Who's Who" for free circulation in the schools of the Province is not without its interest.

Prepared under the direction of the present Government there will be naturally curiosity as to how the book will deal with Hon. W. E. Raney, for example.

Will there be a chapter devoted to discussing Mr. Drury—perhaps written by Mr. Ferguson itself?

And there are several other prominent men who deserve a place in such a publication, but who would naturally await with a good deal of trepidation any sketch of themselves prepared on the authority of the Government.

Seriously, though, a book of this kind, if compiled conscientiously and without bias, should serve a useful purpose in the schools of Ontario.

Our school children know far too little about the men of prominence in their own Province; it would be interesting to compile a list of twenty such men and present it to an average public school class with a request for information as to the men in the list and as to what they have done or are doing.

TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARDS.

Mr. Ferguson's township school board bill, which was introduced last year and then withdrawn in order to have the measure discussed throughout the country, is coming up again this session, and is strongly supported by educational authorities and by many of the newspapers.

However strong this current of approval may be, it is by no means certain that rural opinion has warmed to the proposal in the least, and if Mr. Ferguson intends to keep on withdrawing his bill until the whole countryside supports it, he might as well tear it up.

Educationists believe that the Government should proceed with the measure, and are confident that a thorough trial of the township board plan, as opposed to the present school section system, which is expensive and does not get the desired results, will convince the critics in the rural sections that the Ferguson proposal is an improvement in many respects over the existing system.

Mr. Ferguson should go ahead with his legislation; after it has been tried out he may find that rural sentiment has been thoroughly changed as a result of the benefits of the plan when put into operation.

LIVING IN THE SUBURBS.

Every once in a while someone starts an outcry about civic employees living outside the city limits, where they pay taxes to an adjoining municipality and not to St. Thomas, says the St. Thomas Times-Journal. The claim is even put up at times (by extremists, of course) that no one making his living in one municipality should reside and pay taxes in another. But isn't this taking rather a narrow view of the situation, especially under present-day conditions, when modern means of transportation eliminate space? There are many men who like to live in the suburbs, where they can, perhaps, keep a few chickens and other livestock, without bothering their neighbors; where they can have a decent-sized bit of ground for a garden, fruit trees and plenty of space for the children to grow up strong and healthy. They may pay their taxes to the township, but they trade with the city grocer and butcher, and do the bulk of their other spending in the city; and in the long run spend even more than the man who has his home in town, pays city taxes and does the bulk of his shopping in other towns. The interests of the city and the rural municipalities are too greatly interwoven today to justify drawing the boundary lines too close. Besides, a man and his family ought to have the right to live where they please. And simply because a man happens to get his pay envelope from the city is no reason why he should be singled out for attack.

Speaking of persons residing in one place and making their living in another, isn't it pretty well understood that a carload or two of people live in St. Thomas and go to London for their daily labors, and many others work in St. Thomas and go to their homes in London every night. Quick radial service and the automobile have changed conditions, and we ought to try and adjust our views accordingly.

STOP, LOOK, LISTEN.

The "Stop, look, listen" warning with which drivers of motor vehicles are familiar will be incorporated in a Manitoba law, says a newspaper despatch, if a bill, introduced by a private member in the Provincial Legislature, is passed. The bill would compel drivers of motor vehicles to bring their machines to a standstill before attempting to pass over a level railway crossing. Furthermore, it would provide for the imposition of penalties upon drivers who violated it and lived.

The proposal embodied in the Manitoba legislator's bill is one that has been made in other parts of this country and in the United States and that has been much debated. The idea is that a legal obligation to stop before traversing a railway crossing may prevent automobile drivers from running risks at such places and so reduce the number of accidents at points where highways and railways intersect. Legislation of the kind has been opposed on the ground that to bring a motor vehicle to a complete standstill before crossing the railway tracks might increase the danger of causing it to stop on the tracks themselves through the stalling of the engine. Another argument against it has been that, with police forces at their present strengths, such legislation could be enforced only to a very limited extent. It might be enforced at points where there were police officers or railway employes. It might also be enforced in a few cases on the complaint of drivers of motor cars or pedestrians. On the other hand, it has been said, it might be violated by many a driver, with very little chance of punishment, at crossings in the country where and when traffic was light and few people were about. The same arguments, of course, might be directed against some sections of highways laws already on the statute books. Not every driver who violates the speed limits, for example, is detected and brought before a magistrate. Indeed, a good many drivers in Ontario believe that the present speed limits are unnecessarily slow, having regard to improvements made in recent years in highways and in motor cars, and think that faster rates of travel should be made legal. A careful driver, noticing a highway sign warning him that he is nearing a railway crossing, will reduce the speed of his vehicle and will be prepared to stop should a train be approaching the crossing. If he has a clear view of the track in both directions and finds no train in sight, he will be very unlikely to bring his car to a dead stop and then go ahead again in low gear. Yet the law requiring him to stop before traversing the crossing is not needed on his account. The law is proposed for the benefit of the fool-hardy fellows who disregard highway signs, who approach railway crossings at such rates of speed that they cannot stop before reaching the rails or who recklessly try to beat railway trains to the crossings.

A question to be considered is whether or not such a law would act as a deterrent upon speed fiends who, in the absence of such a law, drive recklessly at railway crossings. Will a threat of fines or imprisonment or the infliction of fines or imprisonment on others stop mad drivers from taking chances if the danger of dismemberment or death will not? If it will the legislation will serve a useful purpose. The Manitoba Legislature is asked to pass upon the problem.—The Mail and Empire.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

HOME, HOME, SWEET HOME.

In the amber of song, thousands of precious thoughts have been embedded and preserved—songs that forbid sentiment to die.

There are spiritual songs that have gently lifted souls to heaven. There are comic songs, rustic songs, war songs, suggestive songs; but the human lips have never contrived to form syllables so sincere, so sweet, as that of "Home, Home, Sweet Sweet Home."

As my friend, P. C. Kullman, would say: "Everybody knows it. Everybody loves it."

Now why is this particular song so popular with all peoples? Because it is a sincere song.

"Home, Home, Sweet Home," is sung from the heart. It expresses an emotion that from childhood to old age is as constant in the heart as the changeless fact.

This song vividly brings back to view the seminary of sentiment and awakens the tenderest thoughts that a human heart can harbor.

"Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

There can be no comforts, no virtues, to compare with that of the Home. It is out greatest National asset, our most permanent institution. The very independence and improvement of mankind—the security of State—depends on the dwelling we call "Home."

Therefore, without the slightest fear of contradiction, I say: The man or the agency that helps humans to construct a Home is of incomparable Service to Society.—Silent Partner.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

CAMPBELLFORD SERMON.

The Editor, Peterboro Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Your Campbellford correspondent reported a sermon preached in St. Andrew's Church there last Sunday. In it there was the usual protest in general terms against present-day modernism; and the opinion that the United Church of Canada would become a "political" rather than a "religious" body. I do not know what college Mr. Bennett attends or attended, and would be interested in knowing what college it is that teaches the mere manhood of Christ, "because the preachers know that the message of Christ and Him crucified will fail to draw the crowd."

Perhaps your readers would be interested in knowing that the United Church throughout Canada is now in the midst of a great preaching mission, culminating at Easter, emphasizing not only the fellowship in Jesus, but week by week expository sermons on the doctrinal basis of union, looking not only for instruction therein, but for new life through the sacrificial work of Calvary. The first Lenten topic was "God and Revelation." Ours is a religion of revelation and not of human discovery. The record of this revelation is the inspired word of God, the basis of faith and life. Another topic was "The Sin of Man," emphasizing that man is responsible for sin, is under its power, and under its penalty. Next Sunday the topic assigned is "The Divine Saviour" and "The Divine Redeemer," and by a coincidence I was telling the congregations last Sunday that this is the Gospel—Paul's Gospel, in which we stand, in which we are saved, "That Christ died for our sins." This is the Gospel of the United Church, of all Christian Churches; outside of it there is no Gospel, and any church or individual who ignores it is not Christian. This is the message for next Sunday, and al over the Dominion ministers will sound out a call to allegiance to the Deity of Christ and the atoning work of Calvary. Instead of emptying churches this type of expository preaching is noticeably filling churches, and Easter will find thousands nearer Jesus, their Lord, and with a better understanding of the Faith.

Not so long ago, a young minister, now on the mission field, braving bandits to get there, after pleading with the mission authorities to let him risk his life to go and preach Christ, was vilely traduced in the circles this sermon will circulate in as an infidel, the typical result of modernism and college life. Talk about modernism is specious, easy and cheap. Modernism is a present-day attitude towards intellectual discovery that discounts no part of God's handiwork, at present or ages ago, in rocks or in skeletons. Christianity has to face the unfolding facts, or it loses its right to face the world. Theological students are no longer human cisterns, filled at a theological filling station. The colleges of the Church have a passion for truth, and the atmosphere of the class-room as I know it is as the garden of the Lord. Let me state the faith of the Church, accepted by that part of it called the United Church of Canada in its article of the Lord Jesus.

"We believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, the only Mediator — the Eternal Son — born of the Virgin Mary, yet without sin — a perfect sacrifice—made propitiation for the sins of the whole world." This is the Gospel we are authorized to preach, to which we have been called, and into which we expect to receive our new members at Easter. My prayer is that Brother Bennett will join us in this preaching mission, declaring the whole counsel of God and leaving behind for ever unbrotherly attacks on those we don't always take pains to understand.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, March 9 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:
Sterling demand $4.87 1-2.
Sterling cables $4.88.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 9 (Canadian Press).—Owing to a better enquiry from exporters for all kinds of grain a moderate amount of business was transacted on the Montreal market today, there being sales of 40 to 50 cars of oats, barley and rye made. The tone of the spot market for oats was steady and prices were unchanged.

A feature of the egg trade was the easier feeling that developed for all grades of fresh eggs, and prics were shaded 1c per dozen which was attributed to the continued liberal arrivals from the United States and the prospects for increased receipts of Canadian fresh stock in the near future. The demand showed some improvement and a more active business was done. The receipts were 1,864 cases, as against 1,217 for the same day last week, and 1,057 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 9 packages, as against 342 for the same day last week, and 2,224 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no further developments in the condition of the market, prices being about steady at the recent stead at recent changes. Demand for supplies was again somewhat limited and the volume of business was small. Sales of odd lots of Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter were made at 47c per lb. Australian and New Zealand No. 1 pasteurized at 46c, and Western No. 1 pasteurized creamery at 45 1-2c per lb. and No. 2 grades at 1c per lb. less. Offerings of New Zealand No. 1 pasteurized for shipment from England were made at 42 1-2c per lb, and Australian No. 1 pasteurized at 42 1-2c per lb duty paid, delivered here, but no sales were reported.

The receipts of cheese were 182 boxs as compared with 614 for the same day last week, and 966 for the corresponding day a year ago. The trade was report d quiet, the demand being confined principally to small lots for local account, and sales of Western fancy white and colored were made at 25c per lb, and Quebec 20-lb. cheese at 21 1-4c per lb., while winter made goods were quoted at 19 1-4c to 19 1-2c per lb.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 9.—(Canadian Press).—Government figures this afternoon on farm reserve stocks of grain were generally construed as bearish on wheat prices, and on corn and oats as well. In particular, the report issued after business for the day had closed was contrary to expectation of wheat traders, who as a rule had been actively preparing for a somewhat bullish exhibit. Wheat closed unsettled, 3-8 to 3-4 cents net higher, May (new) $1.58 1-2 to $1.58 5-8 and July $1.38 5-8 to $1.38 3-4, corn 1-4 to 1-2 cent up, oats at 1-4 to 1-8 cent advance and provisions varying from seven cents off to a rise of five cents.

Fellowship of Prayer

Read John 12: 20-30. Text 12, 25: He that loveth his life loseth it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.

Meditation—The Greeks were concerned with the meaning of death. To them it was the King of Terrors. They wanted to see Jesus because they hoped for light. Oppression threw him more and more back on God and he was ever more certain of his Sonship in God. In the hour of death he was to be glorified, not annihilated, because he was one with God. He gives us the hard saying that to win the deathless life a man must gladly make the sacrifice of outward things which seem to promise the most immediate, active and vital life that he may be sure of the inward reality. They who trust his interpretation of death as the way to life, are unafraid.

Prayer—O Thou Lord of Life, deliver us from the nagging worry about food and raiment, as though the whole of life were in things we see and buy with money. What shall we exchange for priceless and deathless life? Deliver us from the lure of the world for which men sell their souls. Free us from morbid fear of the death of the body, and open our eyes to see "the sunset consummation lights of death." Amen.

4 out of 5

is grim pyorrhea's count

Dental statistics tell this grim story: four people out of every five are destined, through neglect, to contract pyorrhea after they pass the age of forty. Thousands younger also suffer.

Pyorrhea is the dread disease of the gums which is responsible often for loss of teeth, rheumatism, neuritis and other dangerous disorders.

It starts with tender bleeding gums. Pockets form below the teeth and poisons spread relentlessly through the body. If you have pyorrhea or any of its symptoms see your dentist at once and start brushing your teeth with Forhan's for the Gums.

To safeguard yourself against pyorrhea make Forhan's your regular dentifrice. It is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., and contains his pyorrhea liquid which has been used by dentists the last 15 years in the treatment of pyorrhea. If used regularly and used in time it will prevent pyorrhea or check its course. Don't give this insidious disease a chance to start. Start using Forhan's this very day. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

BRIAND NEEDED TO SAVE FRANCE ENEMIES AGREE

Even the Deputies Who Caused His Recent Defeat Extol Him.

FATHER OF PEACE.

Promptly Accepted President's Request To Form New Cabinet.

PARIS, March 10 (Canadian Press).—Aristide Briand, at present France's foremost statesman, apparently as indispensible to his country in peace as Clemenceau was in war.

When Paris was under the range of the German guns, France turned to Clemenceau and he became the father of victory. With the franc sinking daily and internal strife rampant, menacing the life of the country, France turns to Briand. His prompt acceptance of President Doumergue's request to form a cabinet his friends aver, is because he wants to be known as the father of peace.

For the past two days every prominent statesman consulted by the president of the republic on the choice of a man qualified to lead France out of her present predicament, as he emerged from Elysee Palace, spoke the name "Briand." The verdict was the same, no matter to what party he belong—Right or Left, Moderate, Conservative, Radical or Socialist.

The very deputies who voted against M. Briand Saturday and assisted in the downfall of his eighth government in the excited atmosphere of the chamber, suggested Tuesday, in the face of cold, clear facts, that the man whom they had helped to overthrow, be called back.

Portfolio for Caillaux.

Joseph Caillaux, recently defeated in his capacity of finance minister in his attempts to restore the financial situation, is mentioned for that post again. He was offered the portfolio but early yeserday had not decided whether he would accept.

All the other prominent statesmen of France conferred with M. Briand last evening. They appeared to feel that he is France's last hope. The Premier will have no trouble in forming a cabinet; he has only the embarrassment of a choice among the most eminent men in France.

The cabinet crisis evolved rapidly yesterday. President Doumergue exhausted all sources of inspiration by noon, and immediately summoned Edouard Herriot, former Socialist premier, to offer him the premiership. The leader of the radical party believed that this was merely a courtesy to the head of that party and he promptly declined. He recommended that M. Briand be asked once more to form a new government.

Briand's Duty to France.

M. Herriot told M. Doumergue that it was necessary to send Briand back to the council and assembly of the League of Nations with all the authority he had when the Locarno pact was negotiated, and the president of the republic passed this idea on to M. Briend when he called at the Elysee Palace soon afterward. Furthermore, the president informed him that it was his duty to stick by the ship until all financial questions were solved and the franc was saved.

The outgoing premier, who had enjoyed one good night's rest in four days and had already recovered his spirits, abandoned hope of being able to confine his future activities to the foreign office, with long week-ends at his farm, and gave in to the needs of the situation.

Arriving at Elysee Palace, M. Briand chided the journalists for having said he was in ill-humor Monday.

"But just think," he went on, "I had been in two accidents—the fiscal train ran off the track and the Geneva special broke in two. What could you expect?"

Immediately the newspapermen ran to flash the message that M. Briand accepted the task, relying on the returned good humor of the eight-time premier.

They said to him: "You are the man," as he went into Elysee Palace.

"You win," M. Briand remarked as he came out. "I am going to try what I can do, because the president has appealed to my patriotism."

To Geneva Thursday.

It was announced soon after at the Foreign Office that M. Briand would probably leave Paris for Geneva Thursday, which was taken to mean that his ninth combination was about ready.

M. Briand indicated that he would in the new combination utilize as far as possible the services of those who had showed good will in the hard battle fought for the passage of the financial restoration measures. This was interpreted as meaning that a place was being reserved for M. Lamoureux, reporter of the finance committee of the chamber, who was a member of the Caillaux mission to Washington.

GERMAN AND FRENCH

treat from their position that they must enter the council alone would have a disastrous repercussion in Germany.

It is said, also, that President Von Hindenburg has telegraphed his cabinet members that there must be no abandonment of the Reich's fundamental principle. The Germans were insistent last night that the present unfortunate situation is not their fault; they remark with some irony that the disclosure of Poland's candidacy for a council seat, with the backing of her friends did not come until two days after the Germans had filed their formal application for membership in the league.

It is understood that the Germans rejected Sir Austen Chamberlain's suggestion that it might be desirable to meet privately with all the members of the council, submitting that they were not yet members of the league, and it would, therefore, be inadmissible for them to sit with the council.

Avoid Clear Victory.

The prevailing opinion in the most reliable circles last night was that an earnest endeavor would be made to prevent the crisis from terminating in a sharp victory for either side. This is so because all the leaders desire to perpetuate the league policy of attaining an agreement by compromise.

Nevertheless, the favored forecast was that Germany would enter the council alone, as she insists, agreeing simultaneously to the immediate appointment of a sub-committee of the council to investigate all claims for seats, with a possible private understanding that Germany would not be hostile to the promotion of Spain to a permanent seat or the election of Poland to a non-permanent place.

Although the British communique characterized the Chamberlain-Luther - Stresemann conference as "friendly" reports from other quarters alleged that it was extremely lively in that the British foreign minister conjured up the danger of the collapse of the league following upon the possible withdrawal of Spain, should the Germans remain adamant.

The Russian Shadow

Interest in the unsettled council crisis wandered momentarily last night to the question as to whether Geneva will be definitely selected as the home of the League of Nations. The assembly must vote credits for the erection of the proposed assembly hall but the still unsolved conflict between Switzerland and Russia over the Vorovsky affair has caused some of the delegates to consider whether the league should not be established in a community which would enjoy clearly defined extraterritorial rights.

The problem came up at a conference between Lord Cecil and representatives of the British Dominions. A delegates of one of the dominions suggested the desirability of the creation of a definite territory similar to the District of Columbia, which would render impossible the interference of conflicts between the country which was the seat of the league and other nations. No decision was reached as to any official action by the assembly.

China brought a hopeful note into the council enlargement discussion, when she announced that she was willing to withdraw her claim for a permanent seat at this sesion of the assembly if the other claimants would do likewise, with of course, the exception of Germany. In making this announcement, Chao Shin Chu, the Chinese representative, said:

"Some critics assert that China should not be given a seat because of her having political troubles at home. I do not think such an allusion fair, because no country can entirely escape domestic troubles. Despite political differences, the Chinese people think as a whole always so far as foreign affairs are concerned. China holds the key to the peace of the Far East, and peace in the Far East will mean the peace of the world."

DRIVER OF CAR NOT NEGLIGENT JURY'S VERDICT

Roy McCausland's Claim For $2,000 From James Casey Failed.

LINDSAY ASSIZES.

Plaintiff Riding Bicycle Collided With Car in Lindsay.

LINDSAY, March 10.—The jury in the damage action of Roy McCausland of Ops Township against Jas. Casey, of Mariposa, brought in a verdict in favor of the defendant in the Supreme Court yesterday, presided over by Mr. Justice Lennox. This case engaged the attention of the court for two days. A big grist of evidence, including the testimony of two doctors was submitted to the court, some of which, Justice Lennox pointed out, was not very conclusive.

The plaintiff was represented by Mr. C. G. Frost, while Mr. L. V. O'Connor represented the defendant. Mr. Justice Lennox referred to the zeal displayed by the opposing counsel which he characterized as inexhaustible

The action for damage arose out of an accident which took place on the main street of Lindsay on November 11, 1924. The plaintiff was coming from the Rose Hospital on his bicycle, and when near the corner of Albert Street he ran into a Chevrolet car driven by the defendant, who, he claimed was on the wrong side of the thoroughfare, and did not exercise reasonable care. The plaintiff had his leg and collar bone broken and also sustained a number of abrasions. As a result of the accident one of his legs was shorter than the other, and he felt the results of the accident would be permanent. He had paid out in doctors' and hospital bills and for the service of a practical nurse the sum of $777. He was suing for $2,000.

Justice Lennox gave the jury a number of questions to answer: Was the defendant guilty of negligence Was the plaintiff guilty of contributory negligence. They were also asked to specify the nature of the negligence and to assess the damages accordingly. The jury gave a negative answer to the first question, which disposed of the others.

THANK OFFERING OF OMEMEE W. M. S.

Good Collection Realized and Splendid Address Delivered.

OMEMEE, March 10.—The annual thank-offering of the Women's Missionary Society and Mission Band of the Trinity United church was held on Sunday at the evening service. Two musical numbers were rendered by the choir which were very appropriate for the occasion. The address was given by Miss Reid of Bethel, who is deserving of much praise for the able manner in which she delivered a splendid talk on "India" to the large congregation present. Following the address two ladies, Mrs. Bushnell and Mrs. Bradburn, members of the W.M.S. received the offering which amounted to about $130, while the Mission Band contributed $3.10, both amounts being an increase over last years' thankoffering.

GIRL OF FUTURE OF BOYISH TYPE SCIENTIST SAYS

Brunette, Slender and Six Feet Tall, "New American Woman."

MENTALITY GOOD.

Large Feet and Long, Slender Hands Other Physical Marks.

WASHINGTON, March 10. — The "new American woman" of the future, according to Dr. Alex. Hrdlicka, of the Smithsonian Institute, will be brunette, about six feet tall, and falt as a pancake.

In an exclusive interview on Tuesday the noted anthropologist, who has just announced his findings as the pure "new American type," added that the flapper of to-day will give rise to a race with "good, but not very high mentality."

Extraordinarily Slender.

"Women of to-morrow," he said, "will be extraordinarily slender until at least middle age, and they will be a corsetless age. The chest of the flapper is no undeveloped, and this characteristic will be typical of the coming generations.

Large, narrow feet, and long slenrow hands will mark the coming "new American," he said. Both men and women will have round faces, "without protruding cheekbones and their noses will be long.

"Women," he continued, "will always be women, but the girl of tomorrow will be distinctly of the boyish type, insofar as looks are concerned."

Physically Superior.

"The next generation," he said, "will be physically superior to their forefathers and therefore will have greater resistance to disease. America will be the most healthy country in the world. The race will be benefited by the present prosperity of the country in that the mothers of to-day are able to give their children better food, warmer clothing and greater educational advantages than ever before."

BEAT MOTHER TO DEATH.

Confession in Winnipeg Preliminary Trial.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 10. — (Canadian Press).—Wasyl Kowbel, aged 34, charged with the murder of his aged mother at Caliento, Man., on February 19 last, was on Tuesday committed for trial at the Criminal Assizes on June 1.

A written confession signed by the accused was put in by the Crown, in which he is said to have admitted killing his mother with a stick of cordwood.

"I hit her on the head twice and she fell to the floor. She hit me first," Kowbel said in the confession.

According to medical testimony, Mrs. Kowbel died as the result of a fractured skull, while there were a number of bruises on the body in addition to three fractured ribs.

Join in your children's fun!

DON'T let ill health rob you of your children's or your own pleasure. Many mothers say that they are too tired to join in their children's games, and it is usually because they have allowed themselves to become nervous and run down.

Medical research has definitely proved that one of the causes of a run down condition of the body is a shortage of certain mineral elements, including iron, potassium, calcium, sodium and phosphorus, and until a sufficient supply of these minerals is restored to the body, good health is impossible. Wincarnis contains every one of these elements in addition to other health giving ingredients and in a form in which they are most rapidly absorbed into the blood and carried to every part of the body to be converted into vital force.

Wincarnis has been recommended by over ten thousand physicians in cases of nervousness, anaemia, sleeplessness, and the general debility that accompanies a run down body. For fifty years this strength giver and nerve restorative has brought new life and happiness to weakened men and women.

190,000 CHEQUES BY WHEAT POOL

Total of $37,000,000 Distributed Among Co-operative Wheat Producers.

MAILED ON TUESDAY.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 10. — (Canadian Press).—A. J. McPhail, president of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, made the following announcement Tuesday:

"The wheat pools in the three prairie provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—are making an interim payment of twenty cents a bushel on all grades of wheat. For coarse grains six cents per bushel will be paid on oats and barley; ten cents on rye; twenty-five cents on flax. As a result of this distribution the initial payment on the different grains on and after March 11 will be as follows:

"Wheat 120 basis 1 Northern Fort William.

"Oats 400 basis 2 C.W. Fort William.

"Barley 56 basis 1 N.W. Fort William.

"Rye 80 cents basis 2 C.W. Fort William.

"Approximately 190,400 cheques will be mailed from the three Provincial offices, amounting to a total of about $37,000,000.

Romances From Red Lake Like Old Klondike Rush

WINNIPEG, Man., March 10. — (Canadian Press).—Romances of the gold rush days in the Klondyke are having their counterparts in the Red Lake flurry of to-day. Like an echo of freak bargains in the old days, comes a tale of a bargain struck this week in the northern goldfields of Ontario.

Tim Crawley, a youthful prospector, had taken a team of horses into the outer regions of the Red Lake mining area. He had a small supply of oats and less hay. At the moment when equine provender was running low, he came in contact with A. H. Farington, pilot of one of the planes that survived the crash of last Friday.

Crawley entered into a bargain with the airman. He agreed to stake a claim for Farington in exchange for a bag of oats.

Stories brought from Hudson, Ont., indicate that many similar bargains are being made.

Million Dollar Swiss Chalet Proposed.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., March 9.—(Canadian Press.)— According to reports received here announcement was made in New York a few days ago that an American hotel company will this summer build a million dollar hotel in Waterton Park, in Southwest Alberta. The hotel will be of logs and of the Swiss chalet type. It is understood that the Department of the Interior has granted the company a ten-acre site at the foot of Upper Waterton Lake.

The Spirit of Leadership

FOR leadership, for knowledge, for wealth, or for sheer glory of achievement, Britons have penetrated the furthermost parts of the earth. But no place is so remote that ENO's "Fruit Salt" does not reach it.

All over the world Britons unite in the time-proved practice of drinking ENO first thing every morning.

ENO promotes inner cleanliness in the way intended by Nature.

For sheer goodness, purity, pleasant taste and safety, ENO's "Fruit Salt" has no parallel. It is indisputably the leader.

ENO contains no flavouring matter, no sugar, no purgative mineral salts. It is mild and gentle in action and unlike some of the drastic aperients, does not form an undesirable habit, but can be taken at any time with perfect safety by young and old alike.

PROFESSOR CHANT TALKS ASTRONOMY

Listeners Appreciated Value of Very Instructive Lecture.

BAILIEBORO, March 10 — On Young People's Club had Professor Chant, B. A., of the University of Toronto, come to their club rooms at Centreville, and give a lecture on astronomy. There was a very good attendance and the lecture was not alone interesting but was instructive and educative to the people of the rural districts who do not every day have the opportunity of hearing such topics explained so clearly.

Professor Chant explained clearly the location and names of the different planets that have been discovered by astronomers, and also where and when these planets could be seen. Professor Chant is hopeful that the day is fast approaching when men of his profession will be able to discover whether or not these other varied planets are inhabited.

During the evenings' programme the president, F. Roy Rutherford presided as chairman. Community singing was enjoyed before and after the lecture. Miss Fern Tedford rendered two beautiful solos, while piano solos were enjoyed, rendered by Miss Viola White, and Miss Frances Bonneycastle.

It was decided that the next meeting would be held on Thursday, Mar. 18th in the form of a St. Patrick's social. It was decided that a debate would be held, the lady school teachers taking part. those taking part were to be Misses. F. Bonnycastle, F. Telford, H. Staples and Miss Weir. Willard Waterman was chosen to select the subject for the debate.

Miss Emma Tate and Fred Barnard were appointed a committee to arrange for a social hour during the programme.

WARSAW W.M.S.

Officers for Coming Year Elected—Objective Not Reached.

WARSAW, March 10.—The United Church Women's Missionary Society held its annual meeting on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Thomas Clements, assisted by Mrs. Digweed, entertained the ladies most pleasantly.

The reading of reports showed a membership of twenty-one. This year the society has not made its objective of $100, but the Treasurer has faith it will come yet before the end of the month. The thankoffering will be taken on Sunday, March 14, when the Missionary Society will conduct the service, with an address from Rev. H. B. Herrington.

The officers for next year are: President, Mrs. Robert Moore, re-elected; Vice-President, Mrs. D. Miller; Recording Secretary, Mrs. George Taylor, re-elected; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Thomas Cooper, re-elected; Treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Edwards, re-elected; Strangers' Secretary, Mrs. Thomas Clements; Superintendent of Systematic Giving, Mrs. James Hawthorne.

Mr. Herrington conducted the voting, and gave a short address on the need for missionary work.

It was decided to carry on the group system this year with the same groups as before.

Personals.

Mrs. Miles is going to Campbellford to make her home with her brother. Her sons will have a better chance for school. She will be much missed by her neighbors and church.

Mrs. Rufus Payne returned on Wednesday from her visit with her relatives in Arlington, New Jersey.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago, where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Chicago and later is attacked by two men, but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy accuses her of marrying for money.

Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police picture as IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness causes her to break their engagement.

Olga and Jimmy are eating lunch together in a hotel. Suddenly she looks across the room and her eyes blaze with hatred. "There's a man I could cheerfully kill," she says.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The sudden transition in her attitude, from one of soft cajolery to this blazing hatred, took Jimmy by surprise. Her violence amazed him.

"Why, why—" he stammered, groping for words, looking at her sharply to see if this was some new pose. But she was still looking past him, toward the entrance, her eyes glinting between slit-like lids. He was abashed in the face of such primitive ferocity.

Then he thought to look around to see whom Olga was looking at. Another surprise was in store for him, for there was only one person coming into the dining room and that was Samuel Church.

Good Lord! he thought. She couldn't mean Sam Church. He finally found words.

"What man do you mean, Olga?"

"Right there." There was no mistaking whom she meant.

"You mean Sam Church?"

The name broke the spell that was holding her, trance-like. "Do you know Sam Church?" She seemed greatly surprised.

"Why, yes." He laughed mirthlessly. "I sometimes feel that I could kill him myself."

She was relieved. "I thought at first he might be a friend of yours."

"Hardly. It's a case of what might be termed mutual unpopularity between us."

She fell silent and turned to her food. "What do you know about Sam Church?" he asked.

She shrugged her shoulders. "Plenty," she said shortly.

There ran through his mind the things Lieutenant O'Day had told him about Sam Church that night in the police station. The parties in the big house, the breach of promise suits that O'Day said had never seen the light of day in the courts.

He felt that he had no right to question her further, but something impelled him to continue.

"What did Sam Church ever do to you?" he urged gently. "Why do you say you could kill him?"

"Well, perhaps I didn't mean that. I spoke in anger. The sight of him made me lose my head."

"I wish you'd tell me. I have a reason for wanting to know."

She turned her head away from him. "It's too long a story," she said faintly. "It—it wouldn't interest you."

"You said," he reminded her, "that you'd tell me your history some time. Remember? The last time we were out together."

"But you might not believe me. You might not understand." She was still turned away from him.

"Olga," he said earnestly, "I've believed everything you ever told me. You don't really mean that. Why, I was the one who believed when no one else did."

He laid his hand on hers. "And I think I could understand, too."

She was silent again. Finally she said: "Tell me how much you already know about Samuel Church."

"Oh, hardly anything," he answered, waving his hand. "Only that he's wealthy and apparently occupies a position of some respectability—"

She interrupted, her anger blazing forth once more.

"It's that smug respectability of his that makes him all the more contemptible. If people only knew what I know about him. Oh, I hate him—I loathe him!"

"I suppose I was a fool in the first place," Olga began, "to think that I was ever intended for a career. . . . Although it wasn't my fallt entirely. The neighbors always used to praise my voice when I was just a kid, and tell my mother that I had a great future on the stage.

"At any rate, when my mother died—my father had died years before—instead of taking what little money was left and putting it in the bank and then going out and getting some kind of useful job, I spent most of it while I hung around managers' offices trying to catch on.

"I was in New York for a while. Job in the chorus, you know." She laughed bitterly. "But somehow or other they didn't discover any burning talent in me and I lit out.

"I don't know exactly how I came here, and it doesn't make much difference. At any rate, I did, and I found work. I was singing in a restaurant here when I met Sam Church.

"I told you the other night that I sometimes sang at private parties and receptions. It was at one of those—at a party given by Tom Fogarty—and Sam Church was there.

"He seemed to take an interest in me. At any rate, he said he did. He told me he thought I had a marvelous voice, that with a little more training I could be sure of a great career. He said he'd like to help me, that I could count on him as a friend.

"I asked Mr. Fogarty about him later and he told me that Church had lots of money and was in a position to help me if he really took an interest in me. Later Church came down to the restaurant where I was singing and he invited me to his house—to a party he said he was giving. He said he had a proposition he wanted to explain to me.

"Well, I went. There wasn't any party, of course. If I'd had any sense I'd have known it before I went. And what he wanted to do was to bargain with me. There were a lot of things he could and would do for me, only, of course, there were certain terms to be met."

She laughed, rather bitterly, Jimmy thought, and then she went on. "Just the usual sort of story, you know. You've heard of hundreds like it. He wanted to give me an apartment and—oh well, why go into it all? Nothing original about it.

"I turned him down, and then he got nasty. Oh, he's quite smooth, quite the man of the world, when you meet him on the street—when you don't know him. But when he's balked, he's something else again. He said to me, 'I've got money enough to make you, if you're sensible, and if you're not I've got enough to break you.'

"I told him to let me out, that I'd heard that kind of story before. My indifference—I suppose I was really quite contemptuous—maddened him and made a regular animal out of him."

Olga smiled—a wan sort of smile. "I suppose it sounds like melodrama and 'Hearts and Flowers' and all that sort of thing, Jim." She wandered off. "I often wonder what it is about my profession—if you can dignify it by calling it a profession—that makes a man think a girl is so—so approachable. If I were a stenographer, or a filing clerk, that sort of thing wouldn't happen. Know what I mean?"

Jimmy nodded. "Yes," he said slowly. "I think I do."

"At any rate," she continued, "Sam Church apparently thought it was his legitimate right to make the sort of proposition he did. And it made me mad, the way he takes things for granted.

"Maybe you won't believe me, but I fought him, and I not only fought him but I gave him a beating. He tried to hold me, and I scratched him and tore at him and pulled his hair until he was glad to let me go. Once I caught hold of his necktie and pulled it with all my might. It almost choked him and knocked all the fight out of him.

"Physically, Sam Church is a big coward. He was actually afraid of me after I got mad. When I left him he sort of smiled and mopped his face with his handkerchief and said, 'All right, young lady, go ahead. But don't think I'm through. I'll break you if it takes every cent I own.'

"There was a lot more he said that won't stand repeating. Honest, he talked just like the villain in 'Way Down East,' and I had to laugh at him. Said I'd be crawling back to him on my hands and knees.

"I thought he'd forget it, but I didn't know Sam Church. The next week I lost my job. He'd gone to the proprietor and paid him to fire me. I got another one and lost that."

"You're sure it was Church did it?" Jimmy asked.

"Of course. Of course, no one would admit it, but Church called me up later and asked me if I was ready to listen to reason. I told him he could go to ——" She stopped.

The orchestra, screened off in its corner by potted plants, began to play, and Olga bit her lip, as if the music was reminiscent of some bitter memory. Church, off in another corner of the room, was eating alone and had not seen them.

"There he sits in all his respectability," she said, tight lipped. "And what could I do? Who'd believe me if I told the story I've just told you? He actually tried to starve me. There wasn't a place in town where I could get a job. I sometimes wonder why he's letting me keep the one I've got now. I suppose he has another interest."

Jimmy winced, as if he had been struck in the face. "Perhaps," he said softly, and was silent.

He reached over and patted her hand. "Poor kid," he said.

Tears crowded to her eyes. She laid her hand on his sleeve, looked into his eyes. "Thank God, they're not all alike," she said. "You're a—a square shooter."

And then, quite suddenly, he knew that what O'Day had told him was true—that this girl cared for him deeply. It was in her voice, in the way she caressed his arm, it looked out of her eyes.

A strange emotion held him. He saw himself as a big brute of a man, laughing and cruel, smashing a child's toy in his hands.

And he flinched. He dared not look at her just then, and show her the misery in his eyes.

ENJOYABLE TIME AT HOUSE PARTY

Dancing and Cards Amused Large Number of Guests.

One of the most enjoyable social occasions of the season took place on Friday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Fee, Seventh Line, Cavan, when guests to the number of eighty, not including the children who accompanied their parents, accepted the invitation to be present.

Had it not been for the drifted state of the roads, and the severe cold, over one hundred would have attended the gathering. As it was the friends came from far and near in the countryside.

Three sets of dances were kept going throughout the evening, and with three tables of cards for those who preferred the less active form of enjoyment, provided congenial entertainment for all. Music was furnished by Messrs. M. Todd, W. Todd and C. Porteous.

The hostess served a delicious supper between twelve and one a.m. but it was not until some time afterward that final good byes were spoken and the last sleigh-load was on its homeward way.

RARE COINS AND NOTES IN PURSE

One Bill Values Five and Another Worth Three Cents.

SILVER COIN 1852

MILLBROOK, March 10. — A small leather purse, which was locked away in a table drawer over 55 years ago, recently came into the possession of Mr. Weston Fallis, a slip of paper inside bearing his mother's name showing that it had been the property of the late Mrs. John Fallis, a sister of Mr. J. W. Gardiner, her maiden name being Maggie Gardiner.

The contents are interesting and include, besides a 25 cents bill dated 1870, a 3 cent silver piece of 1852, a copper coin (1 cent) with no date decipherable because of age, and two unusual bills, one of 5 cent value, date 1862, and the other of 3 cents value, 1863.

Rev. Joseph Wilks, who is an authority on coins rare and modern, having been collecting for over 70 years, states that bills of such small denomination were made by the million by both North and South during the Civil War owing to the scarcity of money, and were in use for some time afterward. Mr. Wilks however, has not previously seen any bills just similar to those in Mr. Fallis' possession. They were issued from the treasury at Washington.

EXPECTATION OF LIFE INCREASING YEAR BY YEAR

Interesting Facts Revealed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

One of the most interesting facts that has come to light recently is the news that over five years has been added to the expectation of life of the average citizen. That is to say, increased knowledge of how to prevent and fight disease has given to mankind five years more in which to live. In the case of Metropolitan Life policyholders the expectation of life has been increased nine years through the welfare work that organization has been conducting on a large scale for many years past. It is further indicated that the death toll from tuberculosis has decreased over 50% in the last ten years, while diptheria, typhoid and similar ailments are gradually being eliminated by the progress of science. Over $4,000,000 was spent by Metropolitan Life in 1925 through various offices on this continent in health and welfare work among its policyholders. In Canada no less than 242,361 visits were paid by Metropolitan nurses to 45,574 patients among their industrial and group policyholders. Over two and three quarter million pamphlets were distributed in Canada, some two hundred and thirty thousand being used by Health Departments, Social Agencies, Doctors and Teachers, who were very appreciative of them.

Mr. A. F. C. FISKE,

In addition to its direct work the Company has co-operated effectively with others similarly engaged. Substantial financial aid has been given to the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, the Province of Quebec Safety League and to local Anti-Tuberculosis Leagues. To McGill University a special contribution of $25,000 was made to assist in Industrial Hygiene research work, while a generous subscription was sent to the University of Montreal in aid of a school of Public Health Nursing that institution inaugurated.

Metropolitan representatives aided in the control of twenty-five epidemics throughout the country, participated in forty-five health campaigns, arranged thirteen clean-up campaigns and seventeen health exhibits. A notable activity in Montreal was their action in supplying the children of some three hundred families with free immunization against diptheria, with the object of giving the city health authorities a practical demonstration of the value of such prevention work. The direct result was that the City Council voted money to supply the poor with sera and vaccines free of cost.

The total insurance in force amounts to $12,097,246,792, on 35,222,356 policies, representing a gain in 1925 of $1,574,762,023.

W. E. N. SINCLAIR NOT RETIRING FROM LEADERSHIP OF LIBERALS

Denies in Legislature Toron to Newspaper Rumor That Hon. G. N. Gordon Was To Suceced Him in Provincial Group.

DEBATE ON REP LY CONTINUES.

TORONTO, March 10 (Canadian Press).—The Legislature on Tuesday continued the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne. Conservative members are keeping the debate going, as only one Opposition member spoke yesterday.

Before the orders of the day W. F. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, denied that there was aaything to a published story that he would retire from the Liberal leadership.

"The Liberals of Ontario are satisfied with me and the work I am doing for them. As long as the present happy conditions exist, there is no reason for any change in leadership. When a change is desirable the Liberals of Ontario will make it, and not the newspaper which published this story," he declared. "I wish to assure the Conservative party that I will remain in my present position. The Liberals never had any notion that I proposed to abandon a work which was giving considerable concern to the present government."

The speakers in the debate were: J. A. Sangster (Liberal, Glengarry); W. C. Chambers (Conservative, West Wellington), and H. S. Colliver (Conservative, Prince Edward).

Eastern Power Complaint.

Continuing the debate Mr. Sangster dealt at length with the power situation in the far eastern counties of the province, declaring that they were getting but eight per cent of the hydro power developed in the province under the government ownership scheme. Although the east had this small portion, it had the greatest undeveloped powers in Ontario, and he delcared it was not getting a fair deal. In the matter of price, the east was paying from $65 to $95 per horse power, while Central Ontario was getting power at $25 per h.p. He contended that eastern Ontario would be better off if private companies were allowed to develop power and sell it at the reasonable rates that they did just over the border in Quebec. He would advocate that course if the Ontario Hydro Commission did not start something immediately. Mr. Sangster also declared that the Canadian Pacific Railway should be asked to bring Alberta coal down to Ontario at $7 per ton as well as the National, and that neither should be asked to haul at this rate if it was not fair.

U.F.O. Government.

Mr. Chambers said that the United Farmers or the Progressive party had been a shift government and had paid more cut to lawyers than any government in the history of the province. He declare the late government had tried to kill the whole Hydro Electric enterprise and had given a kingdom of timber and pulpwood to T. W. Backus for a song. "I don't know where the U.F.O. campaign funds came from but isn't it natural that they should come from Backus. I know that is the way they do business, because I had some experience with them, although I never got anything from them.

Mr. Chambers said that the Backus interests were now at Ottawa "feathering their nest," and were getting the King Government to rebuild the Norman dam. On the temperance question, he quoted figures showing the majorities on all plebescites in Ontario and declared that the Liberal governments in power had done nothing. In view of the small majority on the last plebescite he thought it a dangerous thing to do anything now on the question.

"We had better let it stand a little while until we see what the parties on the other side of the House are going to do. I must admit that I have not solved the problem and that I haven't a sugestion to make," he stated.

Praises Own County.

Mr. Colliver took some time in advertising his county as he said himself. He referred to Prince Edward as the greatest canning and dairy county in the province, because it had the greatest agricultural product per capita of any county in the province.

Mr. Colliver congratulated the Minister of Highways (Mr. Henry) upon reducing the width of provincial highways from 88 to 68 feet and contended that the late government had wasted much money on widening the roads. He declared people "have a calm satisfied contentment with the present government," and accused the Liberals and Progressives of having a secret understanding in election matters in his own county and throughout the province.

O.T.A. Enforced.

"Although Prince Edward County has water all around it, it is the driest county in the province," he continued. "It is 85 per cent dry, but during the last three years it has been satisfied with the way in which the present Attorney-General is enforcing the Ontario Temperance Act. I am willing to say that I am quite in accord with the 4.4 beer introduced last year, because it has prevented considerable drinking of stronger drink by the young."

Mr. Colliver declared that 99 per cent of the temperance legislation in Ontario had been passed by the Conservative party and the biggest step had been taken under Sir William Hearst. The worst knock the Act had ever received was when Sir William Hearst was defeated. He asked the Liberals and the Progressives to go down to Ottawa and use their influence to get "home brew permits" and the export of liquor from lake ports stopped, stating that then they would be doing something for temperance.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND OPENING OF LEGISLATURE

Speech From Throne By Lieutenant Governor Heartz on Tuesday.

STREETS CROWDED.

Maritimes To Demand Fairer Readjustment of Federal Subsidies.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., March 10 (Canadian Press)—One of the brightest days of the season ushered in the third session of the fortieth general assembly of Prince Edward Island Tuesday. Crowds lined the streets and assembled at the provincial building when Lieutenant-Governor Hartz, attended by his staff, the Sergeant-at-Arms and guard of honor, arrived to deliver the speech from the throne.

There is no promise of much new legislation. An act will be introduced providing compulsory labor for prisoners and a number of acts will be amended.

The following paragraph in the speech is likely to have some repercussion in federal afafirs:

"I note that negotiations are practically completed between the government and Canada and the governments of the Western provinces for the transfer to the latter of their natural resources. Having in mind that as re-adjustment of the subsidies paid by the federal and provincial government must inevitably follow, my government, in conjunction with the governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, is preparing to present and press the claims of this province for further and afirer consideration in that regard."

The address in reply to the speech from the throne will be moved today by George D. Pope and seconded by T. W. Bentley.

OBITUARY.

MRS. ALFORD DUNFORD.

The death of Mrs. Alford Dunford occurred in Young's Point yesterday and the funeral will take place from her father's residence, Young's Point, tomorrow.

Yesterday's Examiner gave Lakefield as the place of death.

DAVID MINNS.

OMEMEE, March 10.—News of the death of David Minns, an ex-resident of Omemee, reached here on Thursday. Mr. Minns passed away on Wednesday at his home in Bracebridge and the funeral was held on Saturday afternoon from St. Thomas church, Bracebridge. The Minns family were residents of Omemee for many years and were highly respected by all who knew them.

Mr. Minns was the village mail-carrier for a length of time. He was a staunch supporter of the Presbyterian church as was also Mrs. Minns, who predeceased him about two years ago.

Left to mourn his passing is one daughter, Miss Bessie, of Toronto. Joyce Minns of Toronto and Bruce principal of the public school at Bracebridge.

KINGSTON, March 10.—(Special to the Examiner).—The death occurred at the General Hospital, following an operation for goitre of James Sprott, chief cheesemaker at the Eastern Ontario Dairy School here, and for many years proprietor of the Cheese factory at Cataraqui.

As a cheesemaker he was known all over the Dominion as one of the best. Two years ago he entered cheese in the Royal Agricultural Show at London, England and was successful in carrying off the third prize, in a competition which was open to the British Empire. The county council of Frontenac appreciated the honor which he had brought to the county and made a presentation to him. Last year Mr Sprott again entered the competition and won the gold medal.

Deceased was 38 years of age and is survived by his wife and seven children. The parents of the deceased and his brothers and sisters are living in Scotland.

MRS. JOHN McGUIRE.

LINDSAY, March 10.—The death took place at the Ross Memorial Hospital of Margaret E. Burns, wife of Mr. John McGuire of Downeyville. Some days ago a specialist from Toronto was called to the home of the deceased's sister in Ops, where she was ill, prior to her removal to the hospital. A transfusion of blood took place in an effort to save her life, a nephew of the deceased giving a pint and a half of his blood. There was an improvement in her condition, and she was moved to the Ross Hospital in order to recuperate. Her condition again became serious a few days ago, and she passed away Monday night.

The late Mrs. McGuire was a prominent member of St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, and an active worker in the Catholic Women's League. She is survived by her husband, five daughters and one son. Interment takes place at Downeyville Thursday morning.

LEVINA JANE MAGILL.

OMEMEE, March 10.—The death of the late Levina Jane Magill, beloved wife of William Parker, occurred on Wednesday at her home about two miles west of Omemee. The deceased lady was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stratford Magill. She had been in failing health for some time, and all that medical aid could do did not prolong her life to the three score length, she having passed away at fifty-six years.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon to Emily cemetery and was conducted by the Rev. E. W. Rowland.

Left to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother is her husband and two children, Miss Ada and Leslie Parker of Omemee. Three sisters, Mrs. J. McConnell and Mrs. William McConneell of Omemee, and Mrs. Sheketon, of Midland, and four brothers, Messrs. Lewis, Max and John of Omemee and Fred of Midland, also survive her.

Many beautiful flowers were placed on the casket by sorrowing ones, and the deepest sympathy is extended to the family by their many friends.

WOMEN'S INSTIUTE

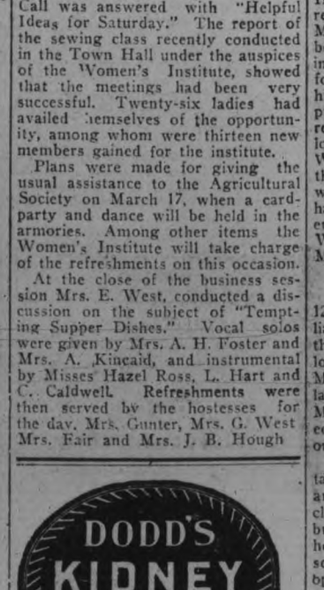
Madoc Ladies Recently Held Successful Sewing Classes.

MADOC, March 9—The February meeting of the Women's Institute which had been postponed on account of the sewing classes, was held on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Walter Ross.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. T. Tumelty, the chair was taken by Mrs. Caskey. The Roll Call was answered with "Helpful Ideas for Saturday." The report of the sewing class recently conducted in the Town Hall under the auspices of the Women's Institute, showed that the meetings had been very successful. Twenty-six ladies had availed themselves of the opportunity, among whom were thirteen new members gained for the institute.

Plans were made for giving the usual assistance to the Agricultural Society on March 17, when a card-party and dance will be held in the armories. Among other items the Women's Institute will take charge of the refreshments on this occasion.

At the close of the business session Mrs. E. West, conducted a discussion on the subject of "Tempting Supper Dishes." Vocal solos were given by Mrs. A. H. Foster and Mrs. A. Kincaid, and instrumental by Misses Hazel Ross, L. Hart and C. Caldwell. Refreshments were then served by the hostesses for the day, Mrs. Gunter, Mrs. G. West Mrs. Fair and Mrs. J. B. Hough



DEFENCE MAKING SANITY ISSUE IN TRIAL OF MOON FOR MURDER TWO ALIENISTS ARE AT HEARING

Two Give Evidence on Mental Condition of Defendant.

POINT FOR DEFENCE.

Evidence on Prisoner's Experiences Overseas is Admitted.

(By a Staff Reporter)

BELLEVILLE, March 10—The sanity of David Arthur Moon is to be an issue in his trial on the charge of murdering John McGie in W. H. Lattimer's drug store on the night of April 6, last. Two of the leading alienists of Ontario, Dr. Edward Ryan of Kingston and F. H. C. Baugh of Brockville, are listening to the evidence given on the stand by Moon who was the first witness called by the defence Tuesday afternoon and later in the hearing these alienists will give testimony dealing with the mental condition of the defendant. Drs. Baugh and Ryan made an examination of Moon last fall just before his case was expected to come up at the Fall Assizes.

Defence Wins Point

When Hugh John MacDonald of Toronto called Moon to the stand, beginning his defence without any address to the jury, he began to question him concerning his experience with the Canadian contingent in the great war. Mr. Justice Kelly called a halt and stated that such evidence could not be admitted if the only object in view was to arouse sympathy for the defendant.

While this matter was being discussed by the Justice and counsel on both sides, the jury and the prisoner were taken out of the court room. Mr. MacDonald gave the Justice assurance that his aim in introducing this line of testimony was to give the alienists a chance to study the mental condition of Moon. His casualties overseas, it is claimed, had an effect upon him in his subsequent domestic troubles and an influence upon his action on the night of the shooting.

With this understanding the testimony was admitted. Moon was also allowed to tell of the trouble he had with his wife for several years past and all the sordid details of his domestic infelicity were unfolded to the jury and the sworn testimony of the defendant represented one of his victims, Clayton McWilliams, as the man who wrecked his home, bringing disgrace upon the defendant's two children.

The Story of His Life.

In his examination of the witness, Mr. McDonald drew out the story of Moon's life. The defendant is 37 years old, a native of Belleville. He has lived in this city for 25 years and spent four and a half years overseas, after enlisting in Belleville early in the war. He was in the front line and was twice blown up when a number of his comrades were killed and wounded in the second battle of the Somme. On another occasion, he was hit on the head by a stone and was in the dressing station for seven days.

At the second battle of the Somme in August, 1916, he was shell-shocked and was removed to the hospital. He recovered and resumed duty in the front line trenches. At Vimy Ridge, he was injured when a dug-out was blown up. In April, 1917, he was lost, and when found by his comrades, was unconscious and remained in that condition for two weeks.

Later he was taken down with pneumonia and bronchitis and was out of active service until 1918, when he returned to duty and remained until the Armistice. He left France in May, 1918, and got back to Belleville on July 12 of that year.

His Home Life.

Then came the story of his domestic troubles since his return from overseas. Moon said he did not know McGie except by sight and never had any reason to suspect that the dead man had been in any way involved in the affairs of his life. He did know McWilliam and their relations were strained because Moon said, he had every reason to believe that McWilliams was keeping company with Mrs. Moon. He found this out in 1921. Once when his wife said she was going to the public library for a book, she did not return, and when Moon went out to look for her he found her and McWilliams alone on the back steps of the High School. Some time afterward he spoke to McWilliams, who had made his escape when discovered at the High School, and McWilliams promised to leave Mrs. Moon alone.

Boy Tells on Mother.

In 1923 Moon's boy, who is now 12 years old, told him that McWilliams was coming to the house while the father was away. He once followed her to Latimer's store where McWilliams was employed, but the latter said she was not there when Moon went in to enquire. He watched the place and saw his wife come out later.

In 1923 he followed them to a certain place and found McWilliams and his wife on a cot upstairs. He chased McWilliams, who ran away, but could not catch him. He went home with his wife and they had a serious row. As soon as McWiliams opened the store next morning Moon went to see him and McWilliams told him that if he did not like the way his wife was acting he should get a divorce. Moon tried to strike the other but the latter got away from him.

In the spring of 1924 he returned home unexpectedly and found the door locked. After he had knocked and kicked at the door for some time it was opened by his wife and McWilliams, who had been with her, rushed past him and escaped. Some time later after another quarrel with her husband over her relations with McWilliams, Mrs. Moon took her two children and went with them to the home of her parents.

Mrs. Moon asked her husband some time afterward to take her back and he did so, on her promise to do better. He also told McWilliams that if he did not keep away from his wife he would not be responsible for what might happen.

Mrs. Moon returned to her husband and they got on all right for some time, but in February of last year he saw her and McWilliams together in a restaurant.

Some time afterward he saw McWilliams enter his (Moon's) home and he folowed him up the stairway, overtaking him before he reached the apartment which the Moons occupied on the third floor. Moon struck McWilliams and followed him down to the street. He quarrelled with his wife, and she phoned the police that he had threatened to shoot her. This charge against him was dismissed. Mrs. Moon again went to live with her parents. Articles of separation were drawn up, but were never signed.

Moon saw his wife and McWilliams together on several occasions after this. He was worried about the state of affairs chiefly on account of his children. He saw them the day before the shooting in the woods together. McWilliams, when discovered jumped up and ran away.

The Fatal Day

Moon admitted that on the day of the accident he had been drinking but denied that he was intoxicated. He went fishing on the night of April 6 with a party of friends He had a pistol with him and a bottle of alcohol. At the fishing party he fired the pistol twice and when his friends were afraid he would hurt some of them, he removed the cartridges. When they returned to the city, one of his friends induced him to give him the pistol.

Goes to See McWilliams

After his friends left him Moon said he decided to go to the drug store and have another talk with McWilliams. He got an automatic pistol out of the office of the Bank of Commerce where he was employed and set out on the mission that ended in tragedy. As the defendant is on trial only for the killing of McGie, what transpired at the drug store had to do chiefly with that affair.

Swears Shot Was Accidental

Moon swort that after shooting at McWilliams twice, McGie grappled with him while the pistol was still in his hand, that his elbow was knocked against the counter and the pistol was accidentally discharged, killing McGie. He left the store, got half way across the street and turned to go back but changed his mind as he felt dizzy. He went to his apartment and soon afterwards was arrested by Detective Sergeant Trusiseh of the local police.

At the police office he made a statement and signed it. This was produced in court and read by the witness who said it was correct. He asked for a cigarette at the station but said he was told that he could not smoke until he had made a statement.

Moon testified further that the officer refused to tell him whether the two men were dead but that the detective had intimated that he had just come from the hospital and that McWilliams had stated that Moon was all wrong about the relations between his wife and himself, thus giving the prisoner the impression that McWilliams was still alive.

Object Of His Visit.

Moon swore that the reason he went to see McWilliams on the evening of April 6 was to ask him, for the sake of the children, to stop talking about their mother. He swore that McWilliams had on several occasions taunted him about his wife, saying she was a common prostitute and was running around with other men besides himself. Two or three times he applied an offensive epithet to Moon and threatened to kill him if he did not leave him alone.

A Ready Witness.

Moon answered without hesitation every question asked him on either direct or cross-examination. Two or three times the court asked him to speak more slowly. He was under cross-examiantion by Crown Prosecutor Monroe when at 6.30 the court adjourned until 9.30 Wednesday morning. This case will probably be finished to-day.

Another Name Mentioned.

The morning session of the court was devoted to hearing four witnesses for the Crown, Dr. G. A. Stobie, who examined the victims of the shooting, finding both men dead, Harvey Potter who called at the drug store soon after the shooting and Sidney Dawkins and W. L. Doyle, who went on a fishing trip with Moon on the evening of the shooting. The police officer who made the arrest, described how that was done and how Moon made a statement after he had been warned that it could be used against him. gone to the drug store to see McWilliams, that the latter and McIn this statement Moon said he had Gie both attacked him and that he had shot in self defence.

Dawkins and Doyle described the fishing trip and how Moon showed his revolver and said that some one was going to get killed. Their evidence was practically confirmed by what Moon himself later told on the stand.

Another name was dragged into the affair, both Doyle and Dawkins stating, when pressed by counsel, that Sid Fisher, the auctioneer, was that day mentioned by Moon as one of the men who was keeping company with his wife.

FARM SALE PRICES AT MARMORA GOOD

Clyde Colt Brought $102 To P. J. Moloney.

MARMORA, March 9.—Unusually good prices were realized at the sale of Mr. P. J. Moloney's farm stock and implements last Thursday afternoon. Cows ranged in price from $65 to $89. Horses sold at prices ranging from $100 to $135. A pure bred yearling Clyde colt realized $102. Brood sows were sold at $56 and $53 respectively. The auction drew a large crowd. Mr. Fred Johnston, auctioneer, remarked that it was the most successful sale conducted by him in Marmora Township.

Nine reels of Safety First motion pictures were shown in Deloro Hall on Saturday evening; admission being free, with smoking permitted.

Miss Marion Seal is spending a few days in Madoc with her cousins, the Misses De Mille.

Mr. Milton Wright left for Detroit on Thursday, and the brothers Frank and Wilson Grant accompanied by Mr. Ray Jones left also for that city on Monday.

Class Re-organized

In a recent re-organization of the Cheerful Workers' Class of the United Church, Miss Florence Sopha was chosen president. Miss Marjorie Colster was appointed secretary, and the duties of treasurer fell to Miss Bernice Bonter. Mrs. F. J. Horwood remains as teacher of the class. A flower fund has been inaugurated in connection with the class, whereby sick beds of members may be brightened and wreaths purchased upon the decease of any.

The Cheerful Workers have also just presented the Church with a beautiful green velour frontal for the choir.

From School Teacher To Great Eminence

A young man who was brought up on a farm in Western Pennsylvania studied diligently and qualified for district school teacher. Further pursuing his studies and teaching, he managed to save up enough money to put him thru medical college. After the Civil War, he began the practice of medicine in the new oil section of Pa., and often rode horse-back thru the woods to reach and relieve those who were seriously ill. He was a student of nature, knew and could easily recognize most of the medicinal plants growing in the woods.

Later, he moved to Buffalo, N.Y. where he launched his favorite remedies, and, in a short time, they were sold by every druggist in the land. Today, the name of this man, Dr. R. V. Pierce, is known throughout the world. His Golden Medical Discovery is the best known blood medicine and tonic. More than fifty million bottles have been sold. If your druggist does not sell the "Discovery," in liquid or tablets, you can obtain a trial pkg. of the tablets by sending 10c to Dr. Pierce's Branch Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

WARKWORTH NEWS

WARKWORTH, March 9.—Miss Mable Plett has returned after receiving treatment for several weeks in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

Mrs. Claude C. Armstrong has returned after visiting friends in Ottawa and Kingston.

Mrs. Emma Gerow has returned to Castleton after spending a couple of weeks with her brother, Dr. C. C. Armstrong.

Miss Fleeta Zuefelt returned on Friday after spending the past week in Toronto on business.

James C. Dixon, who underwent an operation in Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, rectnly, is improving.

Pat Cooney is improving after an operation which took place a few days ago in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterboro.

TRIED TO CONCEAL BIRTH.

FROM THE LIVERS OF THE LOWLY CODFISH, WEAK, FRAIL, THIN PEOPLE GAIN NEEDED WEIGHT AND STRENGTH

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets will increase your weight 5 pounds in 30 days or money returned from any druggist.

Medical science progresses rapidly and now you can get at your druggist's, real, genuine cod liver extract in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the rundown and skinny grown-ups, who need to take the health, strength and weight producing elements that comes from codfish livers, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver extract in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing, health creating tablets just as easy as a box of talcum powder.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets and if the gain is not 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor. Another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets. McDermid and Jury, James Lynch, Bond's Drug Store or any druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 Tablets—and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and beware of imitations.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, thin cream, waffles, syrup, milk, coffee, crisp whole wheat toadt.

Luncheon—Sweet potato and nut puff, steamed spinach, graham bread, milk, tea.

Dinner—Sliced ham baked with potatoes, stewed tomatoes, head lettuce with Thousand Island dressing, bran rolls, rhubarb tapioca pudding, milk, coffee.

Children under school age should be served a poached egg with their spinach for luncheon and not be allowed to partake of the sweet potato dish. The potato and nut dish is so well worth while for a family of adults, however, that the rice follows.

Sweet Potato and Nut Puff.

One cup dry bread crumbs, 1 1-2 cups broken nut meats, 3 cups mashed sweet potatoes, 2 eggs, 4 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 4 tablespoons cream.

Mix 2 tablespoons bread crumbs and 4 tablespoons nuts and reserve for top of dish. Combine mashed potatoes, remaining crumbs and nuts, cream, butter, salt and pepper and beat well. Add yolks of eggs well beaten and fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn into a well-buttered baking dish, cover with reserved crumbs and bake 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven. Serve as soon as the dish is well puffed and firm to the touch.

This combination dish is rich in protein and fat and makes an excellent meat substitute.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

FURNISHING THE SMALL HOME

The joy of furnishing one's new home must be experienced to be appreciated. To make the joy a lasting one great care and study should be given to the subject. "Sets" and bulky overstuffed pieces are not for the small house.

First, take into consideration the size of the house, the amount of light and sunshine it gets, the neighborhood, the size of plot or garden on which it is built, the amount of help, if any, to be depended upon for its care and the income on which it is to be supported. These things decided, one can move forward with certainty toward selection.

In the dining room, for instance, we find that a Georgian sideboard makes a roomy piece of furniture, with its drawers and closets. The gateleg table, drop leaf, or refectory table or the popular slender-legged round table, may be chosen, according to taste. The chairs, if chosen in Chippendale or Adams model that are all wood and with the seat upholstered in leather, tapestry or cretonne, will give the greatest and most lasting satisfaction.

Twin beds have almost entirely supplanted the old double bed. In a room where there is a dressing table and a chiffonier the one-time bureau that was a necessity is now omitted. The long glass, a real necessity, may be set in a convenient door or in a well-lighted wall space. A day bed in many instances takes the place of a couch. It is light and easy to move on sweeping day and is quite as comfortable for an afternoon nap.

The arrangement for the entrance hall depends upon the style of the house. The console table, with a formal chair at either end and a glass hung above it, is an ideal arrangement. If there should be a fireplace, then a more intimate furnishing is allowed, with shallow settees at either side of the fire and closets built in at either side.

Nursery furniture is almost sure to be of the painted variety and is chosen in shapes and models to suit short legs and low visions. Chairs should be so shaped that they do not turn over easily and are just the right height for the nursery table.

MY OPINION

Medical charity is permitting the unfit to live and flourish while the middle-class best citizens are dying because they cannot afford the medical charges made upon them, according to Albert E. Wiggam, author of "New Decalog of Science."

Wiggam has only expressed the disgust of thousands of Americans as they see degenerates and dissolutes given the best possible hospital care whereas the life savings or the children's educational fund are grabbed for the same service to folks who own, perchance, a mortgaged home.

There must be a middle course somewhere! Some answer to the great middle-class question of "what's the premium on decent citizenship?"

Chinese women suffered bound feet century after century, we learn, now, so they could not run away from their husbands.

This fact comes out with the ruling of "the Christian General," Feng Yu-hsiang, that any woman under 30 with bound feet shall be fined $3 a month, "as civilization no longer forces a woman to abstain from running away from her husband if he does not deserve being remained with."

THE ODD SANDWICH

Did you ever grill sardines and place them between the buttered slices of crisp hot toast with a fleck of parsley over their little tails? Buy the rather large sardines. Roll them in a cracker crumb and egg mixture and put on the grill in the oven. Serve hot! Delicious!

THE BOOK

We recommend that the horde of mothers who complain that "I just don't know what girls today want anyway!" read Ruth Sucków's "Odyssey of a Nice Girl." It will "getyou" with its emotionally stirring picture of what every daughter with true aspirations feels about her home and family.

* * *

And, for sheer beauty of writing and fine feeling, get in on the craze for Barry Benefield's "Chicken Wagon Family" that finally lived in a fire house, too! The author is one of the editors of "St. Nicholas."

WORLD O' WOMEN

Englishwomen are "all riled up!" The 1926 honor list mentions only one woman, and she merely a wife of a fairly celebrated husband. The one woman mentioned is Lady Forster, wife of the retiring governor general of Australia.

The women call attention to a few feminine names that should have gone on the list—Commandant Mary Allen for her woman police work; Miss Gertrude Bell, explorer; Miss Maude Royden, preacher, and a dozen others!

* * *

Fair women who have a tendency to embonpoint, or who are plain fat, in the vernacular, have ruled the world according to somebody who took time off to ponder this weighty subject. Cleopatra was fair, fat and forty when Anthony met her, according to these findings. The Medici ladies, Boadicea, warrior queen, Catherine of Russia, Mary Queen of Scots, Nell Gwynne, Mme. Pompadour, Queen Anne, are listed as buxom ladies.

SPRING DUDS

Business women are all jubilant over the vogue for navy blue in the spring clothes. It means that one's penchant for dark clothes because "you just can't keep anything clean downtown" may also be modish. Navy blue dresses, hats and coats will crowd all others off the boards. Touches of red are used lavishly with the navy blue.

GOOD LOOKS!

Even in this age when quantities of hair are not regarded as especially beautiful, the bobbed head should be thick and luxuriant. Nothing keeps it this way so much as the egg shampoo. Beat the yolk of one egg into a pint of warm rain water and use like any shampoo.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin.
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.
—Milton.

Vina.—You have a receptive nature, naturally even-tempered and kind, but you are inclined to have a very cutting manner when you are angry. Any success that may have come to you in life has been through hard work, through keeping always at your job, whatever it may be, and this course must be followed by you all the rest of your days. Make your work as pleasant as possible, but do not try to shirk it in any way. You can readily feel and closely imitate the acts and sentiments of others, and in this way easily learn from example. You have strong emotions and great dramatic ability. Although you have a great variety of disposition, your usual bearing is modest and retiring. You have remarkable foresight, and in decisions of most matters, can usually be guided by your intuitive faculty. This is especially so in the buying or selling of commodities. You are apt to be careless in money matters and in the return of borrowed articles.

You were born on Thursday. Your colors are gold and white.

Alex.—You have a very pleasant nature, fond of good times and with a liking for singing and music and dancing. However, you can mar your life to a certain extent by a habit of change and uncertainty that will haunt you all your days. You will always have to strive against this fickleness that will chain your steps. You are young enough to overcome it now. You are a good judge of human nature and good at mixing with all types of people. You are practical, and should be industrious, if you resolve to keep your hand at the plow and not look backward. You are well adapted to mechanical trades, but your public inclinations will lead you to a more prominent life in mercantile political pursuits. You are shrewd versatile and public spirited. You are of the type that is said to be the strongest and the weakest in the world, endowed with great possibilities which are sometimes not realized. You can bury your higher self by materialism and indolence. Learn to study and to concentrate and practise self-reliance. You would make a good lawyer or doctor. One main thing is for you to study yourself, discover your one particular talent, select a path along this line, then never swerve from it. Your lucky months are April or August, your favorable day Saturday, the day on which you were born. Your color is black.

Sweet Sixteen.—You have a sympathetic, emotional disposition and an affectionate, kind nature. You would make an excellent nurse, as you have a good deal of understanding and sympathy, undeveloped perhaps at this early age, but capable of making for you and those around you a very full, complete, satisfactory life. You are economical and provident, and will make an excellent housewife. You are easily affected by the mental and physical condition of others and your feelings are hurt very much by unkindness. Guided by your own friendly feelings, you will sometimes be misled by a show of friendship, not possessing much discernment as to the true worth of others. You are very determined when once you arrive at a conclusion. You are afraid of poverty, burglars and robbery, and are very uneasy when left alone at night. You are apt to have trouble with your throat, lungs and kidneys, although you possess strong healing powers within yourself. You are inclined to be changeable and fickle, and should guard against this quality. You resent personal criticism, even when it is for your own good. Always seek sunshine and good cheer, and look for these qualities in your companions. Strive for self-poise. Marry a man born in November, March or January. Yes, you were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are gold and violet.

C. J. W.—You have already had a reading. I have too many enquiries to give more than one answer to each person. You were born on Saturday.

Brunette.—You have not given me your own name. The name of your husband is not really your own true name, it is only your married title. Without this information, I cannot give you a reading.

Bebe.—You have not given me your real name. Your husband's first name is not your christened name. Without this information, I cannot give you a reading. Try again.

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

A NEW HOME

"No," I answered Mamie's query, "I don't want to go home if I can keep from starving here. You see, Mamie, I guess I'm not like other girls. I want to lead my life in my own way. I want to be independent. My father would think that I had gone straight to the devil if he knew I was working in a restaurant checking men's hats, but I will stick it out until I can find something better."

"Good for you, Julie! I knew you had the right stuff in you the minute I saw you. If you were going to give up the very first minute that anything comes up that makes you angry or hurts you, you're not fit to be a working girl. But I expect you're going to be a success. You'll soon learn to weather the hard knocks as I have. You were almost frightened to death at Sterns, but you were determined not to lose your nerve.

"You'll work it out, old dear, and I'll help you all I can. If you can stand the gaff, stay with me on the job at the restaurant until you get a little money ahead."

"Why are you so good to me, Mamie?" The words came straight from my heart.

"Because—because — oh, sometime, my dear, I'll tell you my story. I cannot do it tonight. It's too long. We must go to sleep now."

With this, Mamie Riley left me, but for a long time I was wide awake wondering what her story was. Behind every girl who goes out into the world to work, is there a story?—A story which either makes character or destroys it?—Of that I was soon to learn.

I found the next morning that Sellers had been over to the Blackstone telling all about me when he found I was not there. But, Mamie went over and fixed things up at noon. She presented my order and paid my bill, asked no questions and answered none.

When her mother saw my trunks coming in, I could tell she was very much displeased. She was one of those selfish women who thought she was showing her love for her daughter by making her life miserable with advice on every subject she knew nothing about. If she thought Mamie wanted to do something, it was just the reason Mrs. Riley decided it was the worst possible thing for her to do.

The moment she saw me, she looked upon me with suspicion, and coming back from my room after I had deposited my trunk near the closet door, I heard Mrs. Riley saying in that querulous voice of hers:

"I can't understand why you take in a strange girl, Mamie, who will probably work you out of your job at the restaurant. She looked like a designing minx to me."

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, MARCH 11

An active, prosperous and pleasant day is foretold from the very interesting planetary conditions. With Jupiter and Venus, the two greater fortunes, holding important angles with relation to Luna, there should be the fulfillment of many hopes and aspirations, both of a business as well as of purely personal and sentimental nature. It is a time for pushing all affairs toward the desired goal. There is some hint of duplicity, but the menace is slight.

Those whose birthday it is should find the coming year one of fulfilled hopes and ambitions. They should push for this goal, with personal as well as business aims in view, but be on guard against small deceits. A child born on this day may be excellently endowed with social as well as practical qualities. It should rise to high position through its many accomplishments and talents, and also through personal popularity.

Lady Elected Mayor But Office Abolished

STATTLE, March 10 (United Press).—Mrs. Bertha Landes is the newly elected Mayor of Seattle, but she will take office to resign.

The voters yesterday elected her, but adopted the city manager plan of government, abolishing the office of mayor. Mrs. Landes' council is to choose the managers.

SPRING.

We're all jes' kinda waitin' fer the call that's bound ta come. Our spirit's hesitatin', though it's gettin' set ta hum. We know it won't be long, now, till we'll have the same old fling that creeps all through the system with the comin' of the spring.

The trees are gonna waken an' the sap is gonna run, when frost of winter's shaken 'neath the blazin' of the sun. The flowers 'er gonna blosom an' the grass is gonna grow. Fair spring is playin' possum 'er it springs its yearly show.

You'll hear the birds a singin' an' you'll see them flyin' high. You'll know their comins brin' spring as winter's passin' by. The clouds 'er gonna clear up so' ta make all things look bright. The world is gonna cheer up, pretty soon, with all its might.

Ol' Mother Nature's smilin' 'cause she's lookin' just ahead. She'll wait a while 'un then she'll liven all things dead. It kinda thrills a person 'cause ya know what she will bring, when winter time's dispersin' so's to clear the way fer spring.

Self-Poisoning Takes Huge Toll

Many Fail in Life Through Sheer Neglect of Fundamental Rule of Health

Thousands of men and women are to-day victims of their own neglect. Grouchy, listless, quickly tiring, suffering from headaches and biliousness, they spend enormous sums in medicines without avail. They would give much to regain their old vitality.

Can it be done? Yes! How? Simply by recognizing the importance of one fundamental rule of health—the proper elimination of the bowel contents. Poisons that are allowed to remain in the system quickly lower the stamina, weaken the nerves and thus pave the way to ill-health. Stop this self-poisoning by taking Nujol—the scientific lubricant that completes the work of Nature's lubricant when, through modern living conditions, the natural supply fails.

Nujol can be taken indefinitely without injury to the system. Try Nujol to-day. Ask for it at your nearest drug store, but remember there is only one Nujol. Watch for the name "Nujol" in red on the label and package.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES.

By Blanche Silver

DORIS HAS A PLEASANT CHAT WITH THE FLICKER FAMILY

Doris saw the pretty fellow jumping among the grasses, so she stood still to watch him.

"That's all right, Doris," chirped the bird, much to Doris's surprise, "you don't have to hold your breath. I saw you first. I'm not afraid of you. You live in a big house the other side of the orchard, don't you?"

"You're right, Mr. Birdie," replied Doris, laughing merrily. "I'm sure glad you're not afraid of me. May I ask what your name is?"

"Certainly," chirped the bird, strutting around proudly, spreading his tail feathers. "I'm Daddy Flicker, sometimes called Golden-Winged Woodpecker, Yellow hammer, Yarup——"

"Goodness gracious!" laughed Doris, "you don't need to mention any more, for I can't remember so many. I believe I like Flicker the best. Do you really belong to the Woodpecker family?"

"I certainly do," replied Daddy Flicker. "We look something alike, only Willy Woodpecker's head is all red, while my wife and I just have a dab of bright red on the back of our heads. We both wear the same brown and black spotted suits. I have black cheek patches, while my wife hasn't any."

"May I ask your name?"

"Does she wear the patch of black feathers under her neck like yours?" asked Doris. "It looks like a black new moon in shape."

"Wick, wick, wick," came a soft low call above Doris's head. Daddy Flicker answered with a merry "cuh, cuh." Then he laughed merrily.

"There's Mamma Flicker calling me now. Can't you see her on the old tree there?" and Daddy Flicker pointed to the tree.

Doris looked up, but she couldn't see Mrs. Flicker until she moved.

"Well, of all things," Doris laughed. "You certainly know how to dress. I never would have discovered Mrs. Flicker's head in the hole of that tree if she hadn't moved so the sunlight caught the red spot on the back of her head. Why, she just seems to be a part of the tree. I'd love to peek into your nest. Could we?"

For answer Daddy Flicker caught hold of Doris's hand and before she knew it she was sitting on the limb above the nest.

"I'm mighty glad to know you're a friend of the feathered folk," chirped Mamma Flicker. "You peek into my nest, if you won't tell the boys where it is."

She moved over and Doris peeked into the nest, where nestled six lovely white eggs.

"You see, Daddy Flicker is rather nervous," chirped Mamma Flicker. "I'll bet he made five different holes in different tress before he decided on this tree, just because he thought the boys were watching him. Did you bring me anything to eat?"

"No, but I'll get you something," laughed Daddy. Then he and Doris flew back to the garden.

"My, but your wings are pretty when you fly," said Doris. "They are a wonderful golden brown underneath."

"That's how they came to name me Golden-Winged Woodpecker," replie Daddy Flicker. "Come and see us again, Doris." And once more spreading his wings he sailed away in search of food for his wife.

HOLLYWOOD

By Russell J. Birdwell.

Tonight they are diamond studded cars in a brightly lighted and heavenly armament. Tomorrow?—charred remnants and drifting ashes in a world entirely oblivious of them. Billy Franey and Billy West, star comedians, once upon a time headed their own productions. Their salaries ran into the thousands. Franey is an "extra" today, and gone are the luxuries which once linked him to his starring past.

West, who wore the famous chaplinesque garb—battered derby, and baggy trousers—and many years ago claimed authorship of its creation, is cinematically dead. Oblivion swallowed him with a single gulp.

Max Linder and Lester Cuneo lived as gay comedians. Through their films they made the world laugh. Then they killed themselves. At the higiht of their careers they had money to burn; death found them penniless.

VITAL STATISTICS: There are more bunions per square foot in Holly wood than in any other place on earth. Careful investigation reveals that casting directors are responsible for this ailment. They keep aspiring players returning to their offices day after day for work they never intend to give them.

* * *

Greta Garbo, imported Swedish actress, caused a mild sensation upon arriving in Hollywood when she was asked if she intended to take a house in Beverly Hills, the home of star aristocracy.

"A house?" replied Greta. "My, no, I am looking for a furnished room."

Beverly Hills is the residential rendezvous of the Hollywood great. Lillian Gish, Frances Marion, Marion Davies, Harold Lloyd, Corrine Griffith, Herbert Howe, Tom Mix, John Gilbert, and countless others live there. Each home boasts a different architecture.

Fred Niblo, the director, is building a house on the Hills just below that of Frances Marion.

"What style of architecture is it to be—Spanish, Italian, or Arabic?" he was asked.

"I am going to be very daring and original," replied Niblo. "I am building an American house." Now everyone is wondering just what sort of freak edifice it will be.

For all their rolls-royce royalty the kings and queens of Hollywood are not without the common touch. No one is really of Hollywood until he has consumed the celebrated corn beef and cabbage served by Lew Cody in the downstairs rathskeller of his bungalow. What is home without a rathskeller? Say the stars today, and every new home is boasting one.

Pola Negri confesses that when she first arrived here and was a very, very haughty queen, she used to steal off at night to the amusement park at Venice and shoot the chutes! Marion Davies loves the same hilarious place, particularly the chutes and the shooting galleries. And one evening the crowds were startled to behold the beautiful Alice Terry shoot out on to the pavement from Crazy Castle, a hot dog clutched in her queenly hand. While blessed are those who have attended Bessie Love's wiener roasts and heard her sing to the lilt of her ukulele, "Ah, Willie the Weeper."

STAGE IS SET FOR CUP SERIES

Petes and New Hamburg Meet at Niagara Falls To-morrow.

BURGHERS STRONG.

TORONTO, March 10 (Canadian Press). — With Peterboro winning the Senior O.H.A. championship last night and New Hamburg capturing the Intermediate honors, the stage is all set for the Allan Cup elimination series between the two successful teams. Peterboro and New Hamburg will play at Niagara Falls on Thursday, March 11, with the return game at the Toronto Arena on Saturday afternoon, March 13. It should be a thrilling series. New Hamburg this season has one of the strongest teams that ever won the Intermediate title. The Burghers are fast, good stick handlers, and in Bellemere and Lederman have a powerful defence. St. Pats are said to be after Bellemere for next season.

PETES TO VIEW JUNIOR FINALS BEFORE RETURN

Will Then Proceed To Niagara Falls For Game With New Hamburg.

HOME ON SATURDAY.

Celebration After Game Was Happy Occasion—Cheers For Everybody.

LONDON, Ont., March 10.—(Special.)—The Peterborough hockey team, newly crowned senior champions of Ontario, are leaving here shortly after noon to-day for Toronto, where they will be spectators at the Kingston-North Bay junior battle to-night and then get a good night's rest before leaving to-morrow for Niagara Falls.

The first game of the Allan Cup series with New Hamburg, the 1926 Intermediate champs, will be played at the Falls to-morrow night, with the second in the Toronto Arena on Saturday afternoon, and the Petes will not go home until after the series is over. The blue and white expect a tough battle with the Intermediate title holders and they are not making the mistake of holding the New Hamburg outfit too cheaply.

The team came through last night's tense battle without injuries, although Babe Bogardis and Ray Rose, who are suffering from colds, were sent to Victoria Hospital for the night by Dr. Wood, the club's physician, and will remain there until train time. These boys played under difficulties last night and deserve the greatest credit for their game performance.

The Petes celebrated their victory with an impromptu banquet at Wong's Cafe after the game, and with seventy-five rooters on hand to help in the rejoicing, there was plenty of noise and pep to the proceedings. Speeches were made by Mayor Holloway, who promised the Petes a great reception, J. J. Duffus, president of the Hockey Club, R. M. Glover, M. J. Rodden, the referee of the series and Irwin Bailey, captain of the Petes, while cheers were given for every member of the championship team, Shorty P... being included. Among those who telegraphed congratulations was Father Gorman, of Kingston, who managed the Peterborough team while he was there.

NEW HAMBURG NEW CHAMPIONS

Defeat Grimsby, Title Holders, Three to Nil Right in Grimsby.

SCORE ON ROUND 6-1.

GRIMSBY, March 10.— (Canadian Press.)— "The king is dead, long live the king." The local Peach King's reign over the Intermediate series of the Ontario Hockey Association came to an end last evening, when they were defeated by New Hamburg in the second of home-and-home finals by 3 to 0, the visitors winning the round 6 to 1, the title and the John Ross Robertson trophy. Last year the Peach Kings swept through the Intermediate series, knocking off the New Hamburg club by a margin of three goals in the semi-final round, and they went on to eliminate the famous Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds in the Allan Cup play downs. They were finally knocked out of the running by Niagara Falls.

LADIES' BASKETBALL

A special meeting of the executive of the Ladies' Basketball League was held last night.

Full arrangements were made for the final match of the season between the Y.W.C.A. Seniors and Normal School team to be held in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium on March 17 at 8.30.

Walter Perks has been appointed referee and J. Batten and Arthur McLeish umpires.

The Gordon Trophy has been held by the Y Seniors for the last two seasons and the Normal School team have held the Runners-up cup for the last two seasons. Whether the cups will change places remains to be seen as both teams are pretty evenly matched and an interesting game is anticipated.

After the game a social half hour will be held in the Green room. All the basketball teams of the league are invited. The presentations of the Gordon trophy, Harvey cup and Consolation cup will be made. The Westclock has definitely won the Consolation cup.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL BELL TELEPHONE

Fifty Years Ago To-day First Sentence Was Heard Over Instrument.

It was fifty years ago today that the first sentence was heard over the telephone. On March 10 1876, Alexander Graham Bell spoke into a crude instrument to his assistant, Thomas A. Watson, listening in another room. Watson heard the words: "Watson, come here; I want you," and promptly answered Bell's summons. Today all Bell Telephone works in Canada and the United States will celebrate the anniversary by wearing a blue button with the figure 50 printed on it, over an illustration of a modern desk telephone. Throughout the day, on the thousands of telephone buildings all over the continent, the regular Bell system flag will be flown.

"Before the first sound was actually heard over the telephone, there had been much profound thinking, endless planning and experimenting. It was at Brantford, Ontario, that the great principle of the vibrating diaphragm, suggested by the human ear had first taken shape in Bell's mind. Brantford was the scene of some splendid visions in the mind of the inventor of the coming triumph, and of some interesting early experiments that did much to make that triumph assured.

"But it was on March 10, 1873, at Boston, that the first sentence was actually spoken into a crude instrument and heard at a distance. From his laboratory on the top floor of an old house at 5 Exeter Place, Boston, Alexander Graham Bell telephoned to Thomas A. Watson, his assistant, in another room on the same floor. "Mr. Watson, come here: I want you."

"For fifty years now the telephone has brought into speaking communication countless numbers of people. Each year has seen an ever-increasing record of telephone conversations, increasing business and social co-operation. In time of sorrows and in joy, in time of sickness and in death, the telephone has rendered its priceless service. In truth it has made neighbors of the people of this continent."

BABE BOGARDIS IS IN HOSPITAL TO RECUPERATE

Petes' Brilliant Sub-Forward is Suffering From Severe Cold.

McDOUGALL CALLED.

LONDON, March 10—The Petes will likely be without the services of Babe Bogardis in their Allan Cup series with New Hamburg, at least the brilliant little forward will be out of the first game with the Intermediate champs. The new senior title holders left Bogardis in the hospital here when they entrained for Toronto today.

Medical advice was that it would be taking too big a chance to have him leave hospital today as had a cold and high temperature and accordingly he was left here to recuperate.

Manager Eddie Wirght sent for Mel McDougall of the Intermediates this afternoon and he will join the squad in Toronto tomorrow, dividing the subbing duties with Bruce Cox in the first game against New Hamburg.

Rose is in good shape again and the rest of the regulars are fit and well.

What London Says To-day.

(From The London Advertiser)

It took Petes two years to get it. Maybe London will be luckier next year.

Bailey proved to be the most consistently tricky man on the ice. Ranger and Collins were not far behind. They had the speed and the punch when they needed them most, and never less than two goals ahead, they could smile at the frantic and whirling Londoners.

Peterboro's defence did not impress as an offensive weapon though Rose proved dangerous at times, but on the defensive they pinched out practically every individual sortie, and they made the Londoners make good their feinted passes.

* * *

Petes fooled the fans into thinking thy were not on the defensive. With the speedy checking of their forward, they had an effective six-man defence practically all night. And they could shift gears.

* * *

Peterboro asked for a goal in the second period. Bailey's shot beat Moore cleanly, and Petes thought the puck circled the upper corner of the taut hemp. The puck, however, went to the left rail instead of back to the right, upholding the goal judge.

Theatre

AT THE CAPITOL.

CONNIE TALMADGE AS MADCAP DANCER

Star in New Comedy, "Her Sister From Paris."

Constance Talmadge plays her most unique role in "Her Sister From Paris," which First National will present at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow. For the first time in her life, she acts the part of her own sister!

The story has to do with the exploits of a young and charming—although too thoroughly domesticated—wife who educates her husband into showing his love for her. To do it, she impersonates her own madcap sister from Paris, who has become famous as a dancer.

It was necessary to evolve for Constance a disguise which would so completely transform her that even her husband wouldn't know her, and at the same time retain enough of her real loveliness so that she looked like herself. Particular care was taken with her gowns, and dressmakers worked for weeks before Constance and Sidney Franklin, her director, were satisfied. In the early part of the story she appears as a meek little person in housewifely garb, and then suddenly changes into bizarre, loud, brazen young dancer.

In her first character she is unable to hold her husband's love; in her second character she charms him so completely that he even elopse with her, thinking she is her own sister!

Hans Kraly wrote the original story for Constance, and she is supported by Ronald Colman, George K. Arthur, Gertrude Claire and others.

AT THE REGENT

SHOW FILM OF PRINTER'S HOME.

Proves Realization of Trade Union Vision

The Boston Globe has the following to say on "His Brother's Keeper" which is coming ... Regent Th...

... International Typographical Union.

The picture deals a little with the organization headquarters at Indianapolis, but three-fourths of the reel are devoted to that wonderful home out at the Rocky Mountains where the air and the scenery are unrivaled.

Like Beautiful Hotel.

The thing, however, that will most impress the ordinary observer of this film is the fact that this home must be something entirely new in the way of "homes" that are provided by philantrophies and charities. This is more like a beautiful hotel with splendid grounds and flower gardens all around it. This is accounted for by reason of the fact that the aim has been from the beginning to preserve the self-respect and independence of the inmates. The institutional spirit is missing, and it also preserves the spirit of craft-fellowship—that indefinable something which is part of the life and traditions of every craft.

"And it is a splendidly equipped home in all that pertains to health and comfort of the inmates. Here are splendid herds of cattle and thousands of hens; here are vast acres of pasture land and fine dairies. There are hot houses and beautiful flower gardens in charge of a printer who was sent there to die twenty three years ago—of tuberculosis.

Up-to-Date Hospital.

"He looks as if he had discovered the Elixir of Youth. The cooking and cold storage arrangements are perfect; the hospital is up-to-date and especially so in the equipment for the care of tuberculosis.

"There is wise provision for recreation—both indoors and outdoors. In a point of fact this home is in every way a model institution and its inmates seem as happy as were the officials of the union who figure in the reel. It is an inspiring evidence of a vision realized beyond the dreams of the pioneers who laid the foundation, and perhaps beyond the dreams of George W. Childs, who helped found it."

NINE NEW FEATURES ARE INCORPORATED IN GREAT TURF FILM

They Combine to Make Great Picture of "The Million Dollar Handicap"

Chief among the radical departures was Norman McCleod, "gag" man from the Christie comedy studio, and the artist who draws the gay figures that adorn the sub-titles of Christie comedies. As "gag" man, it was his job to make the laughs flow frequently in "The Million Dollar Handicap."

During the World War McLeod fell in alphabetically abreast of Jack McDermott, the director. A Rhodes Scholar at Oxford, and a former student at the University of Washington and at McGill, McLeod had never heard of a "gag" man. After the war he became McDermott's assistant at the Christie Studio, and a month later began illustrating subtitles. Although many "gag" men have earned college degrees, McLeod is the first Rhodes Scholar to enter the field of laugh making.

The most unusual departure of all, says Vera Reynolds, the leading lady, is the sequence where McLeod suggested that she ride Roscoe, a bucking mule. Expecting a pampered leading woman, director Scott Sidney called upon the assistant camera man to ride Roscoe to show that he was tame. Roscoe cast a malignant eye on the assistant camera man and threw him for a fade-out.

To the astonishment of the director, Miss Reynolds hopped on Roscoe and the scene was acted to the bitter end before anyone realized that the camera men had forgotten to turn a crank.

Hon. G. N. Gordon Says Toronto Papers Besieged With Calls on Game.

Referring to the Peterboro-London game played last night the Hon. G. N. Gordon said that he had been speaking to a couple of Toronto men who knew hockey from beginning to end and that they had told him it was the best game they had ever seen. Collins getting the first goal, they said, simply took the heart out of the London fans and shook the confidence of their goal tender. Mr. Gordon said that in Toronto it was nearly impossible to get a phone message into either of the offices of the morning papers on account of the continual stream of telephone calls from those who were interested in the game.

ON TWO CHARGES.

KINGSTON, March 10.—(Special to tthe Examiner).—James Nellis, Macdonnell street, faced two serious charges in the police court on Monday—that of having a still on his premises and having liquor for sale. Police visited his home and confiscated a still and a quantity of mash. On the charge of having a still, the accused was fined $300 and costs and one month in jail and in default of the payment of the fine not less than six months. On the charge of having liquor for sale, he was fined $200 and costs and one month and in default of payment of the fine, three months in jail.

Several scenes of the motion picture, "His Brother's Keeper," produced by the International Typographical Union, which will be shown at the Regent Theatre here, March 15, 16 and 17, were laid at the new headquarters of the union in Indianapolis, known as "Typographical Terrace."

The headquarters property, formerly the estate of the millionaire Murdock family, comprises five acres of wooded and beautifully landscaped grounds in addition to the large stone mansion which houses offices of the union. It is on Meridian Street, the "Fifth Avenue" of Indianapolis. The union recently rejected an offer to purchase the unoccupied south half of its land at a price in excess of the amount paid for the entire property.

This picture above was reproduced from a sketch by the eminent artist, Frederick Polley, whose impressions in crayon of architectural subjects, carried by leading magazines, have attracted wide attention in recent years.

VITAL STATISTICS: There are more bunions per square foot in Holly wood than in any other place on earth. Careful investigation reveals that casting directors are responsible for this ailment. Greta Garbo, imported Swedish actress, caused a mild sensation upon arriving in Hollywood when she was asked if she intended to take a house in Beverly Hills, the home of star aristocracy.

"A house?" replied Greta. "My, no, I am looking for a furnished room."

Beverly Hills is the residential rendezvous of the Hollywood great. Lillian Gish, Frances Marion, Marion Davies, Harold Lloyd, Corrine Griffith, Herbert Howe, Tom Mix, John Gilbert, and countless others live there. Each home boasts a different architecture.

Fred Niblo, the director, is building a house on the Hills just below that of Frances Marion.

"What style of architecture is it to be—Spanish, Italian, or Arabic?" he was asked.

"I am going to be very daring and original," replied Niblo. "I am building an American house." Now everyone is wondering just what sort of freak edifice it will be.

For all their rolls-royce royalty the kings and queens of Hollywood are not without the common touch. No one is really of Hollywood until he has consumed the celebrated corn beef and cabbage served by Lew Cody in the downstairs rathskeller of his bungalow. What is home without a rathskeller? Say the stars today, and every new home is boasting one.

Pola Negri confesses that when she first arrived here and was a very, very haughty queen, she used to steal off at night to the amusement park at Venice and shoot the chutes! Marion Davies loves the same hilarious place, particularly the chutes and the shooting galleries. And one evening the crowds were startled to behold the beautiful Alice Terry shoot out on to the pavement from Crazy Castle, a hot dog clutched in her queenly hand. While blessed are those who have attended Bessie Love's wiener roasts and heard her sing to the lilt of her ukulele. "Ah, Willie the Weeper."

STAGE IS SET FOR CUP SERIES

Petes and New Hamburg Meet at Niagara Falls To-morrow.

BURGHERS STRONG.

TORONTO, March 10 (Canadian Press). — With Peterboro winning the Senior O.H.A. championship last night and New Hamburg capturing the Intermediate honors, the stage is all set for the Allan Cup elimination series between the two successful teams. Peterboro and New Hamburg will play at Niagara Falls on Thursday, March 11, with the return game at the Toronto Arena on Saturday afternoon, March 13. It should be a thrilling series. New Hamburg this season has one of the strongest teams that ever won the Intermediate title. The Burghers are fast, good stick handlers, and in Bellemere and Lederman have a powerful defence. St. Pats are said to be after Bellemere for next season.

PETES TO VIEW JUNIOR FINALS BEFORE RETURN

Will Then Proceed To Niagara Falls For Game With New Hamburg.

HOME ON SATURDAY.

Celebration After Game Was Happy Occasion—Cheers For Everybody.

LONDON, Ont., March 10.—(Special.)—The Peterborough hockey team, newly crowned senior champions of Ontario, are leaving here shortly after noon to-day for Toronto, where they will be spectators at the Kingston-North Bay junior battle to-night and then get a good night's rest before leaving to-morrow for Niagara Falls.

The first game of the Allan Cup series with New Hamburg, the 1926 Intermediate champs, will be played at the Falls to-morrow night, with the second in the Toronto Arena on Saturday afternoon, and the Petes will not go home until after the series is over. The blue and white expect a tough battle with the Intermediate title holders and they are not making the mistake of holding the New Hamburg outfit too cheaply.

The team came through last night's tense battle without injuries, although Babe Bogardis and Ray Rose, who are suffering from colds, were sent to Victoria Hospital for the night by Dr. Wood, the club's physician, and will remain there until train time. These boys played under difficulties last night and deserve the greatest credit for their game performance.

The Petes celebrated their victory with an impromptu banquet at Wong's Cafe after the game, and with seventy-five rooters on hand to help in the rejoicing, there was plenty of noise and pep to the proceedings. Speeches were made by Mayor Holloway, who promised the Petes a great reception, J. J. Duffus, president of the Hockey Club, R. M. Glover, M. J. Rodden, the referee of the series and Irwin Bailey, captain of the Petes, while cheers were given for every member of the championship team, Shorty Burgess being included in the list, and for Manager Wright and the other officials.

It was a fitting outburst of rejoicing over a great win.

It was twenty years ago that Peterboro last won a championship, and it was an interesting coincidence that two members of that team of 1906, R. M. Glover and Ernie Wasson, saw last night's game, as did Bill Breen, who was the trainer that year. They are almost as happy over the Petes' success as were last night's winners themselves.

Telegrams of congratulations were showered upon Manager Wright and the Petes. Wires were received from a number of Peterborough fans, and from Bracebridge, Guelph, Kingston and other hockey centres. Among those who telegraphed congratulations was Father Gorman, of Kingston, who managed the Peterborough team while he was there.

Peterborough's City Council was well represented at the game, with Mayor Holloway and Ald. Phelan and Ackerman in attendance.

NEW HAMBURG NEW CHAMPIONS

Defeat Grimsby, Title Holders, Three to Nil Right in Grimsby.

SCORE ON ROUND 6-1.

GRIMSBY, March 10.— (Canadian Press.)— "The king is dead, long live the king." The local Peach King's reign over the Intermediate series of the Ontario Hockey Association came to an end last evening, when they were defeated by New Hamburg in the second of home-and-home finals by 3 to 0, the visitors winning the round 6 to 1, the title and the John Ross Robertson trophy. Last year the Peach Kings swept through the Intermediate series, knocking off the New Hamburg club by a margin of three goals in the semi-final round, and they went on to eliminate the famous Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds in the Allan Cup play downs. They were finally knocked out of the running by Niagara Falls.

LADIES' BASKETBALL

A special meeting of the executive of the Ladies' Basketball League was held last night.

Full arrangements were made for the final match of the season between the Y.W.C.A. Seniors and Normal School team to be held in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium on March 17 at 8.30.

Walter Perks has been appointed referee and J. Batten and Arthur McLeish umpires.

The Gordon Trophy has been held by the Y Seniors for the last two seasons and the Normal School team have held the Runners-up cup for the last two seasons. Whether the cups will change places remains to be seen as both teams are pretty evenly matched and an interesting game is anticipated.

After the game a social half hour will be held in the Green room. All the basketball teams of the league are invited. The presentations of the Gordon trophy, Harvey cup and Consolation cup will be made. The Westclock has definitely won the Consolation cup.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL BELL TELEPHONE

Fifty Years Ago To-day First Sentence Was Heard Over Instrument.

It was fifty years ago today that the first sentence was heard over the telephone. On March 10 1876, Alexander Graham Bell spoke into a crude instrument to his assistant, Thomas A. Watson, listening in another room. Watson heard the words: "Watson, come here; I want you," and promptly answered Bell's summons. Today all Bell Telephone works in Canada and the United States will celebrate the anniversary by wearing a blue button with the figure 50 printed on it, over an illustration of a modern desk telephone. Throughout the day, on the thousands of telephone buildings all over the continent, the regular Bell system flag will be flown.

"Before the first sound was actually heard over the telephone, there had been much profound thinking, endless planning and experimenting. It was at Brantford, Ontario, that the great principle of the vibrating diaphragm, suggested by the human ear had first taken shape in Bell's mind. Brantford was the scene of some splendid visions in the mind of the inventor of the coming triumph, and of some interesting early experiments that did much to make that triumph assured.

"But it was on March 10, 1873, at Boston, that the first sentence was actually spoken into a crude instrument and heard at a distance. From his laboratory on the top floor of an old house at 5 Exeter Place, Boston, Alexander Graham Bell telephoned to Thomas A. Watson, his assistant, in another room on the same floor, "Mr. Watson, come here: I want you."

"For fifty years now the telephone has brought into speaking communication countless numbers of people. Each year has seen an ever-increasing record of telephone conversations, increasing business and social co-operation. In time of sorrows and in joy, in time of sickness and in death, the telephone has rendered its priceless service. In truth it has made neighbors of the people of this continent."

BABE BOGARDIS IS IN HOSPITAL TO RECUPERATE

Petes' Brilliant Sub-Forward is Suffering From Severe Cold.

McDOUGALL CALLED.

LONDON, March 10—The Petes will likely be without the services of Babe Bogardis in their Allan Cup series with New Hamburg, at least the brilliant little forward will be out of the first game with the Intermediate champs. The new senior title holders left Bogardis in the hospital here when they entrained for Toronto today.

Medical advice was that it would be taking too big a chance to have him leave hospital today as had a cold and high temperature and accordingly he was left here to recuperate.

Manager Eddie Wirght sent for Mel McDougall of the Intermediates this afternoon and he will join the squad in Toronto tomorrow, dividing the subbing duties with Bruce Cox in the first game against New Hamburg.

Rose is in good shape again and the rest of the regulars are fit and well.

What London Says To-day.

(From The London Advertiser)

It took Petes two years to get it. Maybe London will be luckier next year.

* * *

Moore probably felt worse about that 5-second goal than any of the fans. It took something to come back against a break like that to work as well as he did.

* * *

Chatty Joe Dwyer talked faster the faster the pucks came last night. Joseph probably talked to keep his spirits up, as the pucks did all the whistling.

Moore stopped 35 shots, while Dwyer was getting in the road of 39 —stumbling into the road of some of them some of the more partisan fans thought. However, the sorrel-top seems to do quite a bit of lucky falling and stumbling during the course of a season.

Dwyer stopped the most in one period. He stopped 17 in the second and a thousand more whizzed by.

* * *

Goals didn't happen frequently, but they happened fast when they did come. Three all scored within a minute of the start of a period or the scoring of another goal constitute statistics which will take a worse beating than London took on the round.

Bailey proved to be the most consistently tricky man on the ice. Ranger and Collins were not far behind. They had the speed and the punch when they needed them most, and never less than two goals ahead, they could smile at the frantic and whirling Londoners.

* * *

Peterboro's defence did not impress as an offensive weapon though Rose proved dangerous at times, but on the defensive they pinched out practically every individual sortie, and they made the Londoners make good their feinted passes.

* * *

Petes fooled the fans into thinking thy were not on the defensive. With the speedy checking of their forward, they had an effective six-man defence practically all night. And they could shift gears.

* * *

Peterboro asked for a goal in the second period. Bailey's shot beat Moore cleanly, and Petes thought the puck circled the upper corner of the taut hemp. The puck, however, went to the left rail instead of back to the right, upholding the goal judge.

AT THE CAPITOL.

CONNIE TALMADGE AS MADCAP DANCER

Star in New Comedy, "Her Sister From Paris."

Constance Talmadge plays her most unique role in "Her Sister From Paris," which First National will present at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow. For the first time in her life, she acts the part of her own sister!

The story has to do with the exploits of a young and charming—although too thoroughly domesticated—wife who educates her husband into showing his love for her. To do it, she impersonates her own madcap sister from Paris, who has become famous as a dancer.

It was necessary to evolve for Constance a disguise which would so completely transform her that even her husband wouldn't know her, and at the same time retain enough of her real loveliness so that she looked like herself. Particular care was taken with her gowns, and dressmakers worked for weeks before Constance and Sidney Franklin, her director, were satisfied. In the early part of the story she appears as a meek little person in housewifely garb, and then suddenly changes into bizarre, loud, brazen young dancer.

In her first character she is unable to hold her husband's love; in her second character she charms him so completely that he even elopes with her, thinking she is her own sister!

Hans Kraly wrote the original story for Constance, and she is supported by Ronald Colman, George K. Arthur, Gertrude Claire and others.

AT THE REGENT

SHOW FILM OF PRINTER'S HOME.

Proves Realization of Trade Union Vision

The Boston Globe has the following to say on "His Brother's Keeper" which is coming to the Regent Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 15-16-17, as an added attraction to their regular programme:

"His Brother's Keeper" is the title of a film now showing at the Piedmont Theatre. It ought to have a sub-title, "The realization of a Trade Union Vision.'

"For in reality that is what it is—a vivid, picturesque portrayal of the vision of the early trade union printers, a half century or more ago when they founded the printers Home at Colorado Springs. There were some doubts of the wisdom of such an undertaking at the time, but doubters disappeared long ago when they saw what it all meant in health and happiness to the inmates and in pride and inspiration to all the members of the International Typographical Union.

The picture deals a little with the organization headquarters at Indianapolis, but three-fourths of the reel are devoted to that wonderful home out at the Rocky Mountains where the air and the scenery are unrivaled.

Like Beautiful Hotel.

The thing, however, that will most impress the ordinary observer of this film is the fact that this home must be something entirely new in the way of "homes" that are provided by philantrophies and charities. This is more like a beautiful hotel with splendid grounds and flower gardens all around it. This is accounted for by reason of the fact that the aim has been from the beginning to preserve the self-respect and independence of the inmates. The institutional spirit is missing, and it also preserves the spirit of craft-fellowship—that indefinable something which is part of the life and traditions of every craft.

"And it is a splendidly equipped home in all that pertains to health and comfort of the inmates. Here are splendid herds of cattle and thousands of hens; here are vast acres of pasture land and fine dairies. There are hot houses and beautiful flower gardens in charge of a printer who was sent there to die twenty three years ago—of tuberculosis.

Up-to-Date Hospital.

"He looks as if he had discovered the Elixir of Youth. The cooking and cold storage arrangements are perfect; the hospital is up-to-date and especially so in the equipment for the care of tuberculosis.

"There is wise provision for recreation—both indoors and outdoors. In a point of fact this home is in every way a model institution and its inmates seem as happy as were the officials of the union who figure in the reel. It is an inspiring evidence of a vision realized beyond the dreams of the pioneers who laid the foundation, and perhaps beyond the dreams of George W. Childs, who helped found it."

FINE NEW FEATURES ARE INCORPORATED IN GREAT TURF FILM

Chief among the radical departures was Norman McCleod, "gag" man from the Christie comedy studio, and the artist who draws the gay figures that adorn the sub-titles of Christie comedies. As "gag" man, it was his job to make the laughs flow frequently in "The Million Dollar Handicap."

During the World War McLeod fell in alphabetically abreast of Jack McDermott, the director. A Rhodes Scholar at Oxford, and a former student at the University of Washington and at McGill, McLeod had never heard of a "gag" man. After the war he became McDermott's assistant at the Christie Studio, and a month later began illustrating subtitles. Although many "gag" men have earned college degrees, McLeod is the first Rhodes Scholar to enter the field of laugh making.

The most unusual departure of all, says Vera Reynolds, the leading lady, is the sequence where McLeod suggested that she ride Roscoe, a bucking mule. Expecting a pampered leading woman, director Scott Sidney called upon the assistant camera man to ride Roscoe to show that he was tame. Roscoe cast a malignant eye on the assistant camera man and threw him for a fade-out.

To the astonishment of the director, Miss Reynolds hopped on Roscoe and the scene was acted to the bitter end before anyone realized that the camera men had forgotten to turn a crank.

Hon. G. N. Gordon Says Toronto Papers Besieged With Calls on Game.

Referring to the Peterboro-London game played last night the Hon. G. N. Gordon said that he had been speaking to a couple of Toronto men who knew hockey from beginning to end and that they had told him it was the best game they had ever seen. Collins getting the first goal, they said, simply took the heart out of the London fans and shook the confidence of their goal tender. Mr. Gordon said that in Toronto it was nearly impossible to get a phone message into either of the offices of the morning papers on account of the continual stream of telephone calls from those who were interested in the game.

ON TWO CHARGES.

KINGSTON, March 10.—(Special to tthe Examiner).—James Nellis, Macdonnell street, faced two serious charges in the police court on Monday—that of having a still on his premises and having liquor for sale. Police visited his home and confiscated a still and a quantity of mash. On the charge of having a still, the accused was fined $300 and costs and one month in jail and in default of the payment of the fine not less than six months. On the charge of having liquor for sale, he was fined $200 and costs and one month and in default of payment of the fine, three months in jail.

Brown, first vice-president; 4, Austin Hewson, second vice-president; 5, Charles N. Smith, third vice-president.

Several scenes of the motion picture, "His Brother's Keeper," produced by the International Typographical Union, which will be shown at the Regent Theatre here, March 15, 16 and 17, were laid at the new headquarters of the union in Indianapolis, known as "Typographical Terrace."

The headquarters property, formerly the estate of the millionaire Murdock family, comprises five acres of wooded and beautifully landscaped grounds in addition to the large stone mansion which houses offices of the union. It is on Meridian Street, the "Fifth Avenue" of Indianapolis. The union recently rejected an offer to purchase the unoccupied south half of its land at a price in excess of the amount paid for the entire property.

SPEAGER GAVE NEW CONCEPT OF JAPAN

Race Should Not Be Considered Entirely as Ominous Yellow Peril.

MILLBROOK, March 10—A special service was held in the United Church on Sunday morning, under the combined auspices of the Woman's Misionary Auxiliary, the Mission Circle, and Mission Band, at which Miss M. E. Allen, B.A., for twenty years a missionary in Japan, and now on her third furlough, gave a most interesting and instructive address.

"Outsiders are apt to think of Japan as a great military machine which menaces the supremacy of the white race ;or a a strong business organization affecting materially the mercantile enterprises of other countries; artists dwell upon Mt. Fuji and the background of cherry blossoms, and students on its history and traditions hoary with antiquity. All these things may be a small part of what Japan really means, but what makes her what she is, to my mind, is the people themselves."

In a brief, vivid, word-story Miss Allen introduced one of her little friends from the mission school, a clever student from a wealthy home, who invalided by a hopeless illness still does her bit for the Kingdom by having started a circulating library of clean, wholesome books which is functioning actively throughout a large section of central Japan.

"Prayer, time, and money devoted to educational work is one of the best possible investments.

"Public men in Japan are faced by some tremendous problems; some of these men are Christians, some have high ideals, though non-Christian; but the prayers of their Christian wives and daughters exercise a quiet, and a very real influence—as one of them said, 'I might have gone against God, but I couldn't go against God and my wife.

"Women in Japan are in nearly all the professions—doctors, dentists, teachers, reporters, artists, authors, and are found in practically all phases of mercantile life even controlling large commercial enterprises; there are 5,000 in offices in Tokio, 5,000 in the telephone exchange, they are street car and motor bus conductors, ticket sellers at railway stations.

Miss Allen's work is among the factory women and girls in a populous suburb of Tokio, conditions being most deplorable as these workers are virtually slaves and prisoners in the great majority of cases. Coming from very poor homes, the business agent makes many fair promises, advances their fare to Tokio while in return they must sign a three-year-contract and pay back the amount lent before they are free again.

"Conditions in some factories are unspeakably awful, while in others they are good considering the standards of the country; the latter are the kind tourists are allowed to see. The government is trying to do somthing but lust of money kills its efforts, and the hours of labor are so long that in factories where night schools and recreation are provided the girls are often too tired to take advantage of such privileges.

"The children are the most important factor, if we are going to do anything for the future of Japan. Our great trouble is lack of room. I wish you could lend us some land, or I could take back some of this wide space of country with me," said Miss Allen as she devoted her concluding remarks to an outline of kindergarten work, Sunday schools, boys' clubs, English classes, etc., her thought being expressed in the text, "Workers together with God."

Over $100.00 was received in the thank offering taken up by the three organizations specially interested in the service.

Miss Allen spoke again at night emphasizing the fact that newspapers are now busy broadcasting conditions morally and otherwise in business concerns and pointing out that missionaries standing in a place "where we may move the lever of public opinion though to change standards is a very difficult thing."

There has been a decrease of 2.5% in the number of clergymen ordained during the years 1915-1924 compared with the previous decade.

OBITUARY.

HUGH WIGGINS

MARMORA, March 10.—Word was received in town on Monday of the death in Belleville of Mr. Hugh Wiggins, a former merchant here. Deceased had been in poor health for several months and his end was not unexpected.

JAMES BRANDON

OMEMEE, March 10—Mr. James Brandon, an aged and much respected former citizen of Omemee, passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. McGovern, Toronto, on Thursday, March 4th, after an illness of seven weeks, at the advanced age of over eighty years. James Brandon was born in County Fermanagh, Ireland, and came to this country when a young man settling at Port Hope. Later, he moved to Reaboro, where he lived for many years, and finally settling with his son, William, at Omemee, where his wife predeceased him 13 years ago. Of recent years, Mr. Brandon spent the winter months with his daughter, in Toronto, while the summer season was enjoyed among old friends in Omemee.

The funeral was held on Saturday, following the arrival of the noon train. The service at the grave was in charge of Rev. E. W. Rowland.

Left to mourn his passing is one son, William, of Omemee; one daughter, Mrs. McGovern Toronto, and four grandchildren, namely Lillian and Milton Brandon, and Tom and Erward McGovern.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. E. McGovern and two son, Toronto; Mr. James Shaw, Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. C. Calvert, Mr. Thomas Little, Mrs. Downey, Messrs. A. Brown, R. Thorne, Thomas Skuce, D. McGovern, Vincent Pogue all of Reaboro.

MRS. T. J. MURRAY

The funeral of the late Mrs. T. J. Murray took place from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Begley to St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning.

Requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father McCauley, a cousin of the deceased. Those present were the sorrowing husband, the two sisters of the deceased, Mrs. Thayler of Providence, R.I., and Mrs. Wright of Toronto; the two brothers, Michael of Island Falls Junction, Canada, and Joseph of Brantford, also her daughter, Mazie White of a former marriage, and Paul and Eileen Murray.

At St. Peter's cemetery Fathers McCauley and Butler officiated.

The pallbearers were Ed. Hickey, Fred McFadden, Tom McCauley, Nagle Phelan, Joseph Begley and John Begley.

MRS. ROSE SULLIVAN.

A wide circle of friends were shocked to learn on Wednesday, March 3 of the sudden death of Mrs. Rose Sullivan that morning after only a few hours' illness. On Tuesday Mrs. Sullivan was in her usual health, but in the evening she was seized with an attack of heart weakness.

Mrs. Sullivan was a native of Cobourg, her maiden name being Mary Agnes O'Neil, being a member of a well known family of that city. About thirty years ago she married H. S. Rose, who was a descendant of a noble Scotch family. Shortly after their marriage they took up residence in Oakville and their lakeshore home was noted for its generous hospitality. About twenty years ago Mr. Rose died after a somewhat lengthy illness.

About five years ago the deceased married Daniel Sullivan of Peterboro, who survives, and the summers were spent on the lakes near that city and the winters at Mrs. Sullivan's pretty cottage in Oakville. There were no children, but the deceased was a foster mother to Mrs. Daniel McDermott, of town.

Mrs. Sullivan was a faithful and devoted member of St. Andrew's church, to which she gave generous support in many ways. Funeral service was held in that edifice on Friday morning with Rev. Father Savage conducting mass. Interment was in St. Andrew's cemetery.—Oakville Star.

MRS. CECIL MILLS.

OMEMEE, March 10. A deep gloom was cast over the village and countryside when news of the death of Mrs. Cecil Mills was learned on Thursday morning. Mrs. Mills was a young woman of sterling quality, and during her four years' residence in Omemee, when she came to the village a bride, had by her bright and winning disposition, won to her a large circle of new friends.

The late Mrs. Mills was a daughter of the late Michael and Mrs.. O'Connor of Ennismore. The deceased young woman contracted a severe cold over a year ago, which later developed into tuberculosis, from which after several months confinement to her room, where every attention that could be given was tirelessly meted out by loving hands in a vain effort to prolong life. She passed away at the early age of 27 years early on Thursday morning, March 4th.

The funeral which was held on Saturday afternoon, was very largely attended by a wide circle of sorrowing and sympathizing friends.

The service, which was most impressive, was conducted by Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Trinity United Church, who took for his text John 14:27: "Peace I leave with you, My peace I give unto you."

During the service two beautiful and appropriate hymns were softly sung by the gathering, namely "Rock of Ages," and "Asleep in Jesus."

Interment was made in the Emily cemetery the remains being tenderly borne to their last resting place by Messrs. W. Britton (Brantford), B. Richards, Millbrook; B. Davis, C. Davis, J. Davis and C. Casey.

Among the many beautiful floral tributes were a broken circle from husband; wreath, brother and sisters, Brantford; spray from sisters in East Emily; gates ajar, Mr. and Mrs. P. Mills and daughter; spray, Mr. and Mrs. L. Mills, Lindsay; sheaf, Trinity United Church; spray, Mr. Rootes and family, Peterboro, sheaf, Mr. and Mrs. A. Casey, Oshawa; spray, Miss Ida Graham and friend, Lindsay; wreath, employees Watson Mfg. Co., Brantford.

Left to mourn the passing of a loving wife and sister are the sorrowing husband, one brother and four sisters, namely, Mr. Hector O'Connor, Mrs. H. Freeburn, and Mrs. W. Britton, Brantford, Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Curtin, East Emily, to whom is extended the sympathy of a host of friends.

Among the out of town friends who attended the funeral were Mrs. H. Freeburn, Mr. and Mrs. W. Britton, Mr. and Mrs. H. LEAGUE COUNCIL TO SOLVE PROBLEM

Question of Enlarging Council Left To Private Sittings.

GENEVA, Mar. 10 (Canadian Press) — The signatories of the Rhine pact negotiated at Locarno decided today to transfer the discussion of the question of enlarging the Council of the League of Nations to a private sitting of the council.

The decision was the culmination of negotiations begun on Sunday and continued this morning at the hotel where Sir Austen Chamberlain British Foreign Secretary, is staying.

Some of the smaller countries are beginning to protest against adjournment of the assembly of the League without a new day of meeting having been fixed, and also are commencing to manifest resentment that the small group of Powers making up the council of the League is retarding the machinery of the League.

Members of the council met privately in the offices of the secretariat this afternoon to discuss ways and means of solving the council membership crisis.

HASTINGS COUNCIL

HASTINGS, March 9.—At the regular meeting of the Hastings Council on Friday evening representatives from the Public School Board were present for the first time this year. One of last year's requests of the school board was again presented to the council, that of the school board asking that in the future the school board be elected by ballot at the annual municipal election for councillors. Those appointed by the school board to meet the council were Messrs. L. T. Huycke and L. E. Kelley, both new members of the 1926 board.

After consideration, on the motion of Mr. McDonald and Doxsie, the above request was granted; so that in the future, every public school ratepayers will have the privilege of electing the school board.

The Horticultural Society sent two representatives of their society asking for the usual grant, and the usual grant of $50 was voted. The Society have received this amount since its organization and deserve much credit in the way the money is expended. The public flower beds throughout the town, around the Memorial Monument and by the canal and locks show each year by the profusion of flowers, much cheeriness.

A rebate of $2 was given Mrs. Sid Sharpe for dog.

By-law No. 672, confirming the appointment of the several officers, passed its first and second reading, Mr. Fowlds in the chair; moved by Mr. Fowlds and McDonald, that by-law 672 be read the third time; signed and sealed, the Reeve in the chair.

By-law No. 673 confirming the appointment of a constable under the O.T.A. First reading in open council, second reading Mr. McDonald in the chair. Moved by Mr. McDonald, seconded by Mr. Doxsee that by-law No. 673 receive its third reading. Signed and sealed, the Reeve in the chair.

The following accounts were read and ordered paid:

Canadian National Railways, watchman for January $16.67; A. V. German, for charity purposes, $5.06; D. E. Scriver for charity purposes, $3.50; Constable, phone, $1.85; Thos. Trinkwon, salary as constable, $30; Jos. Sherwin, streets, 60c; S. Stickles, snow off sidewalks, $13; Alex. Smith, streets, $3.50; H. M. Fowlds and Son fire dept., $16.48; J. M. Baker, charity purposes, $14; Gordon and O'Brien, legal, $2; Bell Telephone Co., fire chief, $1.85; Fowlds. Co., Ltd., electric lighting, $128.60; J. F. McCarthy, charity purposes, $7.45; C. P. Doughty, printing, $30.60; Bell Telephone Co., town hall, $2.59; Wm. Boyle, salary $8.33; George Lynch, salary fire department, $7; Wm. Scriver; M. Pearson, chimney fire department, $1.50; A. Maidens; S. Stickles chimney, $1; Wm. Scriver, H. Dodd chimney, $1; Wm. Scriver, J. Coughlan, chimney, $1; A. V. German, charity purposes, $5.78; Jas. Stock Takes Upward Climb After Decline Of Morning

NEW YORK, N.Y., Mar. 10 (Canadian Press)—Stock prices bounded upward early this afternoon after an early period of irregularity. A sudden outburst of strength followed publication of the February tonnage report of United States Steel Corporation, showing relatively small decrease in unfilled orders in view of the high rate of operations last month and raising of the Pere Marquette annual dividend from $4 to $6 with the declaration of an extra dividend of $2 Per Marquette common, which had been hammered down to 80 1-2 in the morning, on reports that no special dividend would be declared today, quickly advanced to 87 3-4, on announcement of the directors' action.

U. S. Steel common advanced a point. Heavy buying for both accounts took place in the general list.

Heavier Trading Shown On the Mining Exchange

TORONTO, March 10 (Canadian Press).—Firmness and a little heavier trading were shown on the standard mining exchange this morning, the first session being very quiet. Tough Oakes climbed 5 1-2 points at 5 1-2, and Vipond 5 at 166, and another of more the outstanding gains was McIntyre's 50 cent advance to 25.00. Dome advanced 2½ at 18.81, and Kirkland Lake 5 at 110. In silvers, Mining Corporation improved 2 at 337 and Keeley 2 at 152.

Wheat Has Heavy Downturn On Report Of Government

CHICAGO, March 10.— (Canadan Press.)—Influenced chiefly by the government report on the domestic farm reserve stocks, wheat today took a decided heavy down turn. On the decline, however, new commission house buying developed and much of the setback was overcome. A good deal of fresh buying apparently was based on the assertions that farm supplies calculated on a per capita basis are the lowest on record. Opening 1-2c. to 2 3-4c. lower, May (new) 155 3-4 to 156 1-2 and July 136 to 137 was folowed by a silght further drop and then by a general rally.

Corn and oats were governed largely by the action of wheat. After opening 5-8c. to 1 1-8c. lower, May 77c. to 77 1-4, corn sagged a little more and then recovered somewhat.

Oats started 3-8c. to 7-8c. off, May 39c. to 39 1-4c. Later the market became firmed.

In line both with hog values and grain, the provision market was easier.

TRAGEDY OF DUMMER TRAGICALLY RETOLD

John Dwyer Died of Meningitis Is Finding of Coroner's Jury; Witnesses Tell Terrible Story

Verdict is in Accordance With Medical Evidence—Doctor Who Conducted Post Mortem Examination Says Emaciation Caused by Under-nourishment—Others Agree.

BOYS MADE TO WORK IN WOODS ALL DAY WITH ONLY PORRIDGE AND BREAD TO EAT

Sole Food in Two Months Was Porridge, Bread and Apples, Mrs. Dwyer Tells Constable — Father of Accused Woman Tells of Beatings With Blacksnake Whip.

The Coroner's jury inquiring into the cause of death of John Dwyer, the twelve year old boy who was brought from Dummer township to Peterborough to die, heard a heart rending story last night of conditions in the Dwyer home, but brought in a verdict simply finding in accordance with the evidence of the doctor who conducted the post mortem examination. Coroner Dr. T. W. H. Young presided at the inquest, which opened in the city police court at 8 o'clock. The verdict was returned at 11.15, when the jury had deliberated nearly an hour.

Dr. I. H. Erb, who carried out the autopsy on the body last Friday night, presented his findings in concise form, and, as the principal medical witness, carried great weight in the inquiry Death, he found, was due to a form of meningitis induced by acute inflammation of the right middle ear, but in elaborating his report he declared the emaciation of the body could not have been caused by disease, but was the result of under-nourishment.

Other evidence produced at the inquest, which was called on intervention of the Attorney General of Ontario after the local authorities had refused to hold either inquest or post-mortem examination, showed that terrible conditions existed in the home from which John Dwyer came; that the boys were beaten with a blacksnake whip; that they had nothing to eat in two months but bread, porridge, and wizened-up apples; and that on this fare they had been compelled to work from daybreak until nightfall sawing pine trees into four foot lengths. The boys and Mrs. Dwyer had been kicked by George Dwyer, witnesses said; the house was ill-built and snow penetrated through the walls and doors; and there was only a cook stove to heat the living room and the single upper room in which the family of eight slept on two beds and a cot.

Th Crown was represented by Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., who examined the witnesses. F. D. Kerr, K.C., appeared for Mrs. Mary Dwyer, who is now charged with manslaughter, but against whom a charge of murder was to have been laid today; and George Dwyer, charged with murder, was represented by J. F. Strickland and B. E. Parks. Dr. De Courcy King, who represented the accused, Mrs. Dwyer, at the autopsy, was present watching the medical evidence. Inspector A. B. Boyd, of Provincial Police Headquarters, Toronto, was also in the court room.

The Verdict

"We find that on the sworn evidence submitted, John Dwyer came to his death on March 2, 1926, in Nicholls Hospital, city of Peterborough, from streptococcus meningitis, which developed from inflammation of the right middle ear."

Matthew J. Lytle

Matthew J. Lytle, aged father of Mrs. Mary Dwyer, said his home is on Lot 13, Twelfth Concession of Dummer. George Dwyer, whom he has known ever since he was a boy, had lived at Mount Pleasant until about a year ago, when he came to Dummer and settled near the witness. He lived at Lytle's home for about three months, and witness helped him build his house and in other ways. As instances, witness said he gave his son-in-law a cow on one occasion, and milk twice a day as long as the children came for it.

He helped Dwyer build his house, and it would have been a good house, witness said, had it been finished. It was cold because after Dwyer moved into it in July he did not compete it. The doors were not good and there was just a cook stove to heat the two rooms, with the stove-pipe going through the bedroom. The house was tar papered, with boards over it. The family of six children and parents slept in the upstairs room.

Mr. Lytle denied that there was any hardness between Dwyer and himself, but admitted he did not visit the Dwyer home often. Since Christmas he had seen the boys George and John, every day until John became ill. John was the boy who died. He saw them when they passed in the morning on their way to the woods to work. The boys sawed pine into four foot lengths, which their father hauled to Norwood for making into laths.

The party started out from the Dwyer home early in the morning, witness said, and stayed in the woods until night. Mrs. Dwyer went in the afternoon with a horse and cutter, leaving the younger children with her father. She helped in the work until night, when the whole party returned.

Mr. Hatton: What did they have to eat?

Witness: I know they didn't have much.

Mr. Hatton: How were they clothed?

Witness: They wore patched clothes, but they had no rigging for their feet. They wore men's boots.

What had they inside?

Well, they had to put enough of something inside or they couldn't keep the boots on.

Mr. Lytle said he first learned of the condition of little John Dwyer seven or eight days before he notified the doctor. When the boy became unable to go to the woods, Dwyer went alone. He took George one day after John became incapable of working.

Mr. Hatton: How did you know John was ill?

Witness: When I heard he was not able to go around the house I said to the woman 'We'd better go down and see.' I told George Dwyer he had better have Dr. Holdcroft at once. Dwyer said 'I owe him $25 and I don't want to go to him.'

The boy was unconscious at this time, the witness continued, and was greatly changed. "I wouldn't know him from the last time I saw him on the road," he said.

Mr. Hatton: Just eight days before?

Witness: Yes.

There was plenty of covering on the bed, Mr. Lytle thought, and the house seemed plenty warm.

After the visit, Mr. Lytle asked Dr. Holdcroft to visit the boy, and sent his daughter down to tell Dwyer the doctor would call next morning. Dwyer said in strong language that he would not pay for the visit, or the $25 he owed.

"A Very Cruel Man."

"George Dwyer was a very cruel man," Lytle continued. "I have nothing against him. He was cruel with his family and with his horses.

Mr. Hatton: Wasn't that only on occasions when he flew into a rage?

Witness: He took the rages very often.

Mr. Hatton: I'm told he was of a very quiet disposition.

Witness: I never saw it.

Mr. Hatton: Have you ever seen any evidence of actual cruelty to Jack?

Witness: I've seen him give him a lifter behind if he didn't do what he was told, and use the whip on him.

Mr. Hatton: What kind of whip?

MOTOR CRAWLER NEW TRANSPORT USED AT HUDSON

Delivery of Supplies to New Mining Camp a Big Problem.

140-MILE TRAIL.

Scarcity of Feed for Horses and Dogs—Depots Established.

HUDSON, Ont., March 11. — Canadian Press — The transportation of supplies from here to Red Lake, the scene of the new gold discovery, is one of the greatest problems confronting the scores of prospectors going in and those already at the camp.

Every conceivable means of trasportation has been adopted. Supplies have been taken in by airplane, dog team and horses, and yesterday snow crawlers were put into operation.

It is a difficult trail — A 140 miles of snow and ice—but with hurried construction work being carried on better conditions soon will prevail. Immediate supplies can be transported by aeroplane but with the necessarily small carrying capacity; the heavy supplies, including machinery, must be carried in by dog teams, horses or the new crawlers. Snow motors were put into service some time ago, but they proved unsuccessful. With the introduction of the crawler, which is constructed on lines varying greatly from that of the motor great results are expected.

Crawled 20 Miles

Depots are being established along the trail, and the first crawler to attempt the trip to the first depot, 20 miles from here, negotiated the difficult trail with success. The snow crawler has been successfully used in Manitoba mining areas.

With the construction of a passable highway, horse transportation for heavy hauls will be feasible. Already some prospectors have entered the field with their horses, but there is a scarcity of feed for both horses and dogs at the present time, and will be until better transportation methods prevail.

MONTREAL, Ont., March 11.—(Canadian Press.)— One hundred and fourteen dogs were killed in this city and nearby municipalities yesterday. Cats came in for their share of deaths also and 63 of these animals were destroyed.

Two cases of dog bites were reported yesterday. The victims were taken to a hospital and treated as usual as suspects. Other cases, recently treated have not yet shown any symptoms of rabies and it is considered that no serious developments will follow bites in any of the cases under observation.

ROBBERS BREAK FREIGHT TRAIN

Get Away With Several Truck Loads of Loot.

SEEKING ALCOHOL.

PEORIA, Ills., March 11 (Canadian Press). — A Minneapolis and St. Louis freight train was held up neare here early today. Robbers cut the train, allowing some cars believed to contain alcohol to roll back down hill, and forcing the engineer to proceed with the remainder, reports to the Sheriff's office said.

In a similar hold-up on the Rock Island Road near here several weeks ago, robbers obtained a large quantity of alcohol.

The train of 40 cars was cut by the robbers, at Eden, 22 cars remaining with the engine. Near Trivoli, the crew noticed that the load seemed lighter. A brakeman upon investigating was met by armed men who announced that they were seeking cigarettes and liquor and that they had enough trucks to haul away two car loads.

Holding the brakeman, the robbers searched 22 cars, hauling away much loot. The train then proceeded after being coupled together. It was said later that the train carried no alcohol.

JUDGE CHARGES JURY TO-DAY IN MURDER TRIAL

Insanity Mitigates Only When Nature of Act Not Comprehended.

WAR SERVICES.

Killing of Third Man Murder in Law, He Tells Moon Jury.

BELLEVILLE, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Insanity was mitigation of murder only when it was of such intensity as to preclude the accused from comprehending the nature and quality of his act, Mr. Justice Kelly said during his address to the jury today in the case of David A. Moon, charged with the murder of Clayton McWilliams and John McGie. His address was concluded at 11 o'clock when the jury retired to consider the verdict.

Referring to medical testimony that Moon had lost control of himself on the night of the shooting, Justice Kelly declared that it was not law to say a man was not guilty under these circumstances.

Concerning Moon's war record, His Lordship said that he could not regard services of that kind, however desirable, as being outstanding enough to exonerate a man for what he might do afterwards.

After pointing out that the relations between McWilliams and Moon had been strained, although there was no feeling between Moon and McGie, Justice Kelly said that the law was that when a man intending to do bodily harm to another killed a third man, even by accident, that was murder.

STATE OWNERSHIP OF MINES BUT NOT COMPLETE NATIONALIZATION PROPOSED BY COAL COMMISSION

British Subsidy to Coal Industry Flatly Condemned by Royal Commission.

REPORT ANNOUNCED

Scientific Mining and Use of Coal Declared an Essential Need.

LONDON, March 11 (Canadian Press).—State ownership of Great Britain's coal mines, but continuance of their development by private enterprise under Government supervision is recommended in the anxiously awaited report of the Royal Coal Commission, appointed six months ago to evolve schemes which would put the coal industry on a sound basis and eliminate the constant disastrous disputes between the miners and the owners.

At the same time the commission declares against nationalization as recommended by the Miner's Federation. The commission's finding on the question of nationalization was perhaps the one in which the whole country was most vitally interested. The report declares drastic re-organization of the coal industry necessary, and makes numerous recommendations in a document covering 2,000 printed pages. The report, which is unanimous, is signed by the chairman, Sir Herbert Samuel Sir William Beveridge, General Sir Herbert Lawrence and Kenneth Lee. All of these men are prominent in British industrial life but none of them is associated with the coal industry.

The depression in the industry, says the report, cannot be atributed to political unrest or restriction of output by the miners or inefficiency of management, but it disagrees with the view of the mine owners that the only practicable remedy is to reduce wages, lengthen the hours of work and decrease the railway rates by lowering the wages of the railway men.

Three Major Proposals

It says that the way to prosperity lies in three chief lines of advance, namely: greater application of science to the mining and using of coal, larger units for production and distribution, and fuller partnership between employees and employers.

With respect to nationalization, the members of the commission say they see in it "grave economic dangers"; they "contemplate accordingly continuance of the industry under private enterprise" but in the reorganization scheme they declare that "the error which was made in times past in allowing the ownership of coal to fall into private hands should be retrieved."

The state, it is recommended, should acquire coal by purchase, which it has a market value, and by a declaration of state ownership in case of unproved coal or coal at deep levels, which has no market value. A commission should be appointed to acquire and administer mineral property.

Merge Small Mines

Amalgamation of the small units of production is considered desirable, if practicable and closer connection of the mining with the allied industries should be promoted. A national fuel and power committee should be established to co-ordinate the national heat, power and light requirements. Great national advantages would ensue in the perfecting of processes of low temperature carbonization with the assistance of the state.

Co-operative selling agencies, in the opinion of the commissioners, should be formed to improve distribution, and local authorities empowered to engage in the retailing of coal. The standard length of the working day, which now averages 7½ hours underground, should remain unaltered. Profit - sharing should be made obligatory and other improvements effected in the condition of the miners.

Subsidy Condemned

The continuance of the Government coal subsidy, the commission declares, is indefensible and should never be repeated. The commission conside that the only way to avert impending disaster is to revise the wages fixed in 1924, a time of temporary prosperity. It recommends that representatives of the employees and the employees meet first, nationally then locally and reach a settlement on this question, it being strongly of the opinion that national wage agreements should continue.

Such a revision would necessitate the closing down of a number of collieries, and the commission recommends that the Government be prepared with plans and provide funds to assist in the considerable transfer of labor which would result.

Argument Over Payment For Beer May Yet Prove Fatal

MONTREAL, Ont., March 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Argument over payment for a 25-cent bottle of beer was at the bottom of the shooting, witnesses declared yesterday, when Giuseppe Sciafola stood trial on a charge of the attempted murder of a Finlander named Lendel Lernod on Feb. 28, in an alleged "blind pig" here.

The victim's condition was so precarious that Judge Perreault, presiding, adjourned the case till Wednesday next.

NO NEW TAXES FOR PROVINCE

Treasurer of Ontario Says Provincial Deficit Reduced.

LOW INTEREST RATE.

TORONTO, Mar. 11 (Canadian Press)—No new taxation, reduction of the Provincial deficit to $1,500,000 and a surplus of $2,000,000 on ordinary revenue and expenditure for the year were features of the budget speech of Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Treasurer, in the Ontario Legislature this afternoon. He also announced that the tax on soft drinks was being abolished. The deficit is on account of interest payments on capital expenditure.

The ordinary revenue for the year 1925 was $36,400,000 and the ordinary expenditure $34,200,000. Hon. Mr. Price declared that Ontario last year had paid the lowest rate in its history for money borrowed, the average being four per cent. The treasurer also informed the house that the provincial highways to date had cost $95,000,000 net and that the tax on gasoline and the revenue from motor licenses fell short of meeting the cost of road maintenance. The supplementary estimates amounted to $1,961,504, he announced.

Mr. Price said the interest payment for 1925 was $17,238,175, and interest revenue was $10,185,323, leaving a deficit of $7,052,852.

Capital expenditures on Hydro and Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway were responsible for the greater interest charges last year.

Mr. Price estimated that the uncontrollable interest account would increase at the rate of $500,000 a year.

Bank Reserve.

The Treasurer said that the government had decided to bulid up a reserve found for the Ontario Government Savings Bank, which last year had a surplus of $100,578, and which also wrote off $24,647 for depreciation.

At the end of the fiscal year the public had on deposit in these offices $19,220,000 as against $22,013,000 a year ago.

The Agricultural Development Board during the year loaned out to farmers $9,584,176. Mr. Price said that the total debt of Ontario to-day amounted to $319,000,000.

The Government had adopted the instalment annuity plan to retire the debt. By this plan $1,463,311 extra money is required to be raised in ordinary revenue, to pay the interest on retirements.

Mr. Price announced that he would lay complete plans of this debt retirement scheme before the House in a few days.

Mr. Price said that special audits of government departments were not yet complete.

Mr. Price presented the supplementary estimates to the amount of $1,951,500, explaining that there would be further supplementary estimates, but at present he could not tell what the amount would be.

Deficit Expected.

"I will estimate the revenue for the current year at $49,360,000. I estimate the expenditure at $50,859,300. This leaves a deficit of about $1,500,000," he said.

If we add to the estimated deficit of $1,500,000 the first installment for the sinking fund for debt retirement, there will be a total deficit for 1026-1927, of $3,000,000.

EUROPE'S HOMELESS WANT APARTMENTS

Fourteen Cities Promise Delegates To Enquire into Shortage.

GENEVA, March 11 (United Press)—An international conference of home-hunters has been summoned to meet at Zurich from May 21 to 24 to see what can be done about alleviating Europe's apartment shortage.

The countries which have promised to send delegations of renters and would-be renters, if they could find something to rent, are Switzerland, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, Denmark, Sweden, England, France, Poland, Italy, Roumania, Serbia, Germany and the free city of Dantzig.

Crown Attorney Would Withdraw the Charges Against George Dwyer

Nothing To Substantiate Either Manslaughter or Murder, Mr. Hatton Believes—Cannot Over-ride Attorney-General's Instructions and Preliminary Hearing Proceeds.

COURT ROOM PACKED TO DOORS; BIGGEST CROWD EVER SEEN

Peterborough County Court was never so crowded in the history of the city as when George Dwyer was arraigned this afternoon for the death of John Dwyer, twelve-year-old Dummer boy. Scores crowded the stairs and the lower hall, while the body of the court was so crowded that it was impossible for the spectators to sit and they stood in serried ranks along the bar, through the rows of seats, and packed tightly in the aisles. It was estimated that a thousand people thronged the court.

Dwyer Calm

Dwyer entered the court calmly and during a preliminary skirmish between lawyers he smiled.

The discussion was as to whether it lay within the magistrate's jurisdiction to reduce the chagre on which he would commit the accused for trial.

Fully a third of the spectators were women and many were from the country.

Magistrate O. A. Langley presided. The crown was represented by G. W. Hatton, K.C., Crown Attorney; and George Dwyer was represented by B. Parks.

Ready to Withdraw

George Dwyer was arraigned on the charge of murder at 2.45. Crown Attorney Hatton told His Worship all the evidence was produced at the inquest held yesterday evening. The verdict there was that the cause of death was meningitis as the result of an abscess in the inner ear.

That being so and not having received any further instructions from the Attorney General it seems a waste of time to hold this preliminary hearing into the charge of murder," he said.

"However," Mr. Hatton continued "I await your instructions."

Magistrate Langley: The man is before me charged with an indictable offense and it is my duty, I think, to hear the evidence and then deal with the case on the evidence.

Mr. Hatton: My own opinion is that the evidence regarding manslaughter will be the same as murder and there is really nothing there to substantiate either it or murder. I would have felt justified in asking for a withdrawal of the charge had it not been for instructions from the Attorney General's Department which have not yet been countermanded.

Rail Broken

During a stir among the spectators a section of the rail separating the spectators from the northern jury box was pushed over. Efforts were made by court constables in vain to keep back the crowd.

Dr. D. W. Clark, who attended John Dwyer, repeated the evidence he gave at last night's inquest.

He was corss-examined by Mr. Strickland.

Dr. C. B. Waite, Dr. G. Murray Fraser and Dr. I. H. Erb repeated the evidence they gave last night.

In addition to telling that the weight of the boy was 30 pounds or less when he made his examiation, Dr. Erb added that the normal weight of a child of 12 years is about 80 pounds, so that John Dwyer weighed 50 pounds less than he should have weighed.

(The hearing is proceeding.)

Faithful Veteran Is Dead After Long Service For City

Death claimed an old veteran in the city's service yesterday. The veteran in question had been a true and faithful servant for the last twenty years.

He started his career as a part of the fire fighting equipment under the late Chief Rutherford and served with them until the department was motorized.

He was then transferred to the Board of Works, where he performed his duties in the faithful manner of his kind until his demise.

Frank, the big chestnut horse will be seen no more on the streets of the city—he will be missed by the men who have been working with him, but he had the satisfaction of doing his share while active, in the service of the city.

NO CHANGE IN MILK BYLAW

Property Committee Decides Strict Adherence to Present Rules Enough.

MILKMEN PRESENT

The recommendation of the Board of Health that the fee for a milk vendor's license be raised, and the producers charged a fee as not acted upon by the Property Committee of the City Council, to which the matter was referred.

The vendors were represented by Messrs. Castle, Butler, Moncrief, O'Neill, Bradshaw, Hambridge and Heard, at a meeting last night.

The spokesmen for the milkmen all said that if more protection were given them the citizens would get better milk. They asserted that it was too easy for a man with a cow or two to start up with an old horse and wagon and 'scab' a route. When his extra supply of milk dwindles he sells the route he has built up by cutting prices at the expense of others.

The vendors felt that a higher license fee or other means that would make such a man invest more money in the business would result in the elimination of this unfair competition as any who went into it would be put to equal expense and would intend to stay in Among the suggestions was requiring the men to have their names blown in the bottles, which would require a capital expenditure which would be wasted if a man made only a short stay in the business.

It was finally decided that if the terms of the present bylaw were strictly enforced all parties would be given protection

JURY IS TO DELIBERATE TO-DAY ON FATE OF DAVID ARTHUR MOON CHARGED WITH DOUBLE MURDER

Lawyers For Both Sides Have Been Heard—Judge Delivers Charge.

STRAIN TELLING.

Moon Showing Effects of Trial and Lengthy Stand in Witness Box.

(By a Staff Reporter)

BELLEVILLE, March 11—David Arthur Moon will know his fate sometime today, whether he will be convicted of the murder of John McGie last April, found guilty on the lesser charge of manslaughter or declared innocent of the offence by the jury. Counsel on both sides have been heard, Mr. Justice Kelly will deliver his charge at 9.30 this morning and the jury that for three days has been listening to the evidence will retire to consider their verdict.

The strain of three days in the prisoner's dock listening to the evidence against him and in his favor, and the ten hours during which he stood in the witness box giving direct testimony and submitting to a grilling cross-examination by Crown Prosecutor Monroe for more than two-thirds of that time have had a visible effect upon the defendant Moon has slept badly and eaten little since the trial began last Monday. He looks pale and haggard and dark circles have formed around his eyes. Wednesday afternoon while Chief Counsel Hugh John MacDonald of Toronto was addressing the jury on behalf of his client Moon broke down and wept silently in the dock as the eloquent lawyer referred to the military record of the man now accused of murder, of the wrecking of his home and of the disgrace that had been brought upon his innocent children. Among members of the local bar Mr. MacDonald's address is regarded as one of the most masterly ever heard in the Belleville court house and Belleville has listened to some of the best pleaders in Ontario, either local members of the bar or outsiders.

The Morning Session

When Court resumed at 9.30 Wednesday morning, Crown Prosecutor Monroe kept Moon under cross-examination until the noon adjournment. The accused stuck to the story that he had told on direct examination, declaring that he had no intention of killing anybody when he went to Lattimer's drug store to see McWilliams and that the three shots fired had been accidental. Mr. Monroe in his questioning tried to make it appear that McGie, not McWilliams, had been the first man killed, and that the prisoner shot him in order to get at the other.

Doctors Testify.

When court resumed after the noon recess, three doctors were called to testify to the mental condition of the prisoner, the first of these being Dr. F. H. C. Baugh, of the Brockville Asylum. This witness said that he had listened to the evidence from the beginning and gave it as his opinion that a man who went through the experience Moon met with overseas his nervous system would be affected.

With Dr. Rynan, of the Rockwood Asylum, at Kingston, Dr. Baugh had examined Moon last October and the prisoner, he said, at that time told substantially the same story as he did while in the witness stand. After his war experience and his domestic troubles, the prisoner's power to tolerate, or to resist doing an improper act would be weakened and he would be inclined to be indifferent to the consequences of such action. The use of liquor would aggravate this condition.

Dr. Baugh said a normal man, if he had decided to kill anyone, would not tell anybody about his intentions but would be inclined to keep these a secret.

Dr. J. J. Robertson and Dr. Edward Ryan of Kingston agreed in the main with what Dr. Baugh had said. All three were briefly cross-examined by Crown Prosecutor Monroe.

Counsel Begin Arguments

After a 10-minute recess, Mr. MacDonald began his address for the defence, and spoke for two hours and 25 minutes, making an eloquent appeal to the jury to acquit the prisoner, as it had been shown that when he went to the drug store he had no intention of killing anybody, least of all John McGie. His object in going to the store was to ask McWilliams to stop talking about his wife for the sake of the children.

Every killing is not murder. The intent to commit murder is an essential ingredient in the crime.

Speaking of the insanity plea, Mr. MacDonald said the jury would have to decide whether a man who told that he was going to kill another was responsible for his acts.

Moon's record was good. He had an unblemished character during a residence of 37 years in Belleville. Witnesses said they could not believe that he would hurt a child. The police who arrested him said he had always been a decent citizen. He served four and a half years overseas without a mark against him. As soon as he returned he tried to get work and had secured a good job inside of a week. His one motive was to make a home for his wife and children. It was hard to believe that such a man would commit murder.

It did not matter which man was first shot. Even if McGie was struck by the second instead of the third bullet that did not make it murder. There could be no such crime except intent were shown.

"If in your jury room," continued Mr. MacDonald, "you quote the words, 'Thou shalt not kill,' remember to also quote the passage which says, 'Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife.' I believe if MacWilliams could come back from his grave and take his place in that witness stand he would ask you to declare not guilty the man whom he had wronged, and that he would himself take the responsibility for McGie's death."

An Evening Session.

An evening session was held during which Crown Prosecutor Monroe, who is only 24 years old, addressed the jury. He contended that Moon was responsible for the death of McGie, that he was guilty of murder if he killed him, even accidentally, while trying to take the life of MacWilliams. The defence had not proved that the prisoner was insane, so that that plea failed. If McGie was shot first, it was in order to let Moon get at McWilliams; if he was the last to die it was that Moon might make his escape. Drinking did not mitigate an offence, unless it could be shown that the accused was so drunk he did not know what he was doing.

Mr. Monroe reviewed every phase of the evidence in an address of one hour's duration, and warned the jury not to be swayed by sympathy but to render a verdict in accordance with the facts that had been laid before them.

BIBLE CLASS SHOWS PROGRESS IN YEAR

Report Shows Good Balance After Many Useful Disbursements.

BETHANY, March 11.—The annual meeting of the Adult Bible class of the United Sunday School was held in the class room on Monday night. The chair was taken by request of the president, Mrs. Crerar, by Mr. Monk. Mr. Jakeman offered prayer. The reports of the different officers were very satisfactory. After paying for the class supplies, $15 to missions, $75 towards the piano, and buying some new hymn books for the shcool, $10 was voted for church support. Over $65 remains still in the treasury. It is the intention of the class to use this money to help to decorate the interior of the church this coming summer. $30 was set aside to assist the annual bazaar at Christmas. Altogether the year has been most successful, more interest being shown and a greater increase in attendance each Sunday in class.

Teacher—W. A. Jakeman.
Assistant Teacher—Mrs. Poulter.
President—Mrs. R. L. Crerar.
Vice-President—Tom Jackson.
Secretary—Miss Sarah McMullen.
Treasurer—R. L. Crerar.
Auditor—Mrs. H. H. Ryley.
Visiting and Flower Committee—Mrs. Arnott, Mrs. Wm. Rowan and Mrs. Poulter.

The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Monk, eight members and one visitor being present. A number of important business items were disposed of and election of officers by ballot followed:

President—Mrs. Tom Jackson.
Vice-President—Mrs. Will Rowan.
Secretary—Mrs. Monk.
Treasurer—Mrs. Poulter.
Pianist—Mrs. Orra Thorndyke.
Superintendent Systematic Giving—Miss Lily Weatherilt.

It was decided to have an Easter meeting the last Tuesday in March holding the service in the church in the evening.

COUNCIL MEETING AT STIRLING

STIRLING, March 9. — At the meeting of the village council Monday March 1, the Beck Memorial was discussed and F. Sprental submitted a plan whereby, if all users paid their allotment, $228.75 would be raised. The council have since decided to make a personal canvas of the users for this great cause.

Mr. Sprental presented a statement of the electric light department as follows:

Residential light, $4,194.19, Commercial Light, $2,568.71; Power, $2,605.01; Revenue, other sources, $107.16; Street lighting, $968.04; total revenue for year $10.443.11; 1925 account unpaid, Jan. 1, $301.62. Residential light total customers, 228; average monthly bill including ranges, heaters, etc, $1.56; Commercial light, total customers, 78; average monthly $2.82; power, average h.p., 118.6; average cost per h.p. to customers yearly, $21.97; customers using power, 19; peak load h.p. 213.8. Surplus carried to reserves $182.56; total reserve and securities $12,727.45

School Board

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education, the property committee stated that 62 tons of coal had been placed in the High School and 43 in the Public School. The auditors' report for 1925 was presented and referred to the finance committee. The report showed that $20,266.93 had been received on account of the High School. There remains of this a credit balance of $7,158.81.

The Public School receipts were $6,878.01, and deducting the expenditures, there remains a credit balance of $1,012.47.

H. C. Martin and G. B. Bedford were appointed delegates to the Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, which meets in Toronto during Easter week. J. S. Morton and Dr. Walt were appointed alternatives.

To Hold Banquet.

Those in charge of the Agricultural Classes are planning to have the closing exercises end with a banquet, at which notable speakers, as well as the students will be entertained. The Ladies' Aid of St. John's Anglican Church are to prepare the supper.

Mrs. E. Sandercock has got settled in his new store on Front Street, and with the more commodious quarters will be better prepared to attend to his customers.

A largely atttended meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday evening after their ordinary business was completed; the following very interesting program was given:

1—A paper by Mrs. Robert Patterson on the "Short Course" Classes which are closing next week.
2—Instrumental Duet by Misses Hume and Spencer.
3—A paper by Mrs. R. P. Coulter, "Why Worry."
—Chorus, "'Tis the Little Things That Count," led by Mrs. (Dr.) Alger.
5—A paper by Miss Gena Spry on "Food Values."
6—Solo—"Danny Boy," by Mrs. Ray Chambers.
7—A paper, "Current Events," by Mrs. F. MacDonnell.
8—Chorus—"My Grandma's Advice." led by Mrs. R. H. Williams.

Mrs. Urbane Clancy, a visitor from Wellman's, gave an account of the work of their institute.

At the close, lunch was served, which completed a very enjoyable evening's entertainment.

Personals

Miss Florence Marshall, one of the staff of teachers at the Public School, was absent through illness during the week and Mrs. Harper Rollins officiated in her stead.

Miss Smith has accepted the position of organist in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Misses Edna Spry and Chrissie Simpson, students of Peterborough Normal School, were home for a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Bailey visited the former's sister, Mrs. Hay, in Peterborough this week.

Mr. Charles Y. Bailey was called to Marmora this week, owing to the death of her neice, Mrs. Pritchard.

Miss Rainnie of Menie is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Bissonnette, this week.

Mrs. W. L. Anderson visited her daughter in Peterborough this week.

Attacks Already Levelled at Ministry Because of Louis Malvy's Presence.

DEFEATIST IN WAR

Rriand Given Send-Off on Departure for Geneva Last Night.

PARIS, March 11 (Canadian Press)—Aristide Briand's ninth cabinet had only been formed a few hours yesterday and the formal ministerial declaration was still a week away, nevertheless maneouvers had already been started to make its life short, one with the attack centering on Louis Malvy, who holds the portfolio of Minister of the Interior.

Deputy C. Ybarnegaray served notice on M. Briand that he would interpellate the premier "upon the presence of M. Malty in the cabinet."

It will likely be a hard task for the Premier to attain a stable working majority, since the nucleus of the left center deputies forming the backbone of his supporters is insufficient and must be reinforced either from the right or the left.

M. Malvy had been minister of the interior under three different cabinets during the war and was called the "irremovable member of the interior." His name is coupled in the mind of the people with M. Maillaux as the two statesmen who were convicted of deefatism in war time and banished. He was reinstated by M. Herriot in 1924, and has once more become one of the ruling powers in French politics.

Personnel of Cabinet

The new cabinet as officially announced is as follows:

Premier and Foreign Minister—Aristide Briand.
Minister of Justice—Pierre Laval
War—Paul Painleve
Navy—George Leygues
Interior—Louis Malvy
Finance—Raoul Peret
Colonies—Leon Perrier
Public instruction — Lucien Lamoureux.
Public Works—Anatole De Monzie.
Commerce—M. Daniel-Vincent.
Labor—Antoine Durafour.
Agriculture—Jean Durand.
Pensions—Paul Jourdain.

Briand to Geneva

Having completed for the time being his cabinet work, M. Briand left for Geneva last night. He was given a big send off, most of his ministers and many senators and deputies, the Polish ambassador and the Swiss minister gathering at the station to bid him farewell. Senator Pams, the French supplementary delegate to the league, also proceeded to Geneva by the same train.

The "Geneva ministry" is the manner in which M. Briand's cabinet is described by the Right and Center groups, which prophesy a short term of life for the ministry, hinting that it may fall immediately after M. Briand's return to Paris.

"The cabinet's sole object is to go to Geneva with full authority," says the Figaro; "Another probably will be formed shortly to deal with the financial problem."

The Temps and Journal Des Debats bitterly attack M. Malvy, declaring that he will be the cause of Briand's early downfall.

FIRE DESTROYS BEWDLEY MILL

Fred Sidey Loses Saw and Shingle Mill During Busy Season.

BAILIEBORO, March 11.—Fire, caused, it is thought by a spark from the engine, totally destroyed the saw mill and shingle mill at Bewdley, owned by Fred Sidey. The fire broke out at about 8.30 last night.

This is the height of the busy season, with the farmers drawing in their logs to be sawn, and Mr. Sidey has a large amount of work on hand. He expects to fix up an old mill and finish his winter's work with it. The only salvage he hopes to get from the burned mill is the boiler, which it may be possible to repair.

OBITUARY.

MRS. MARIA DOUGAN.

MADOC, March 11.—The death occurred on Thursday, March 4, of Mrs. Maria Dougan at her residence on St. Lawrence street. Mrs. Dougan had a bad fall in the autumn and had not been well since then. She was born in County Down, Ireland, 82 years ago, and came to this country with her parents when a child. They settled near Prescott for a time, but soon removed to Madoc. Mrs. Dougan lived her married life on a farm in Madoc Township, but a few years ago moved into Madoc Village. One son and daughter still reside on the homestead, two sons are in the West, one in California, and a daughter, Mrs. Ted Hill, in Madoc Village.

Four sisters survive—Mrs. Wright of North Battleford, Mrs. Cassan of Toronto (formerly of Campbellford) and Mrs. Rollins and Mrs. T. Tumelty of Madoc.

The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Foster, assisted by Rev. Mr. Marshall.

LEAGUE ENTERTAINS NEIGHBORING YOUTH

Sociability and Good Fellowship Keynote of Joint Meeting.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11.—The young people of the Epworth League of St. John's United church entertained the young people of Zion church, Petherick's Corners, to a social evening on Monday night. There was a large crowd present and "Sociability and Good Fellowship" was certainly the keynote of the evening.

The meeting opened by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers", after which Rev. M. Elliot led in prayer. Mr. S. A. Maguire, as chairman, gave a short speech welcoming the visitors and all others who were present, after which the president of the Zion League, F. W. Barnum, gave a short address. Rev. Mr. Daniel then conducted a sing song of old hymns as "Neath the Banner of the Cross," "Leaning on the Ever lasting Arms" and "You May Have the Joy Bells", in which all heartily joined. Miss Gladys Simpson gave a recitation "Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight" and Spencer's Orchestra then gave several selections, which were heartily approved.

Miss Ruth Lawrence sang a solo "No, sir, no" and as an encore gave "Come in and shut the door." The male quartette, Rev. Mr. Daniel, Messrs. Anderson, Barnum and Fry gave a selection, "The Old Wayside Cross." Rev. Mr. Daniels then gave a short devotional and missionary talk taken from the eighteenth chapter of Kings. The Misses Audrey and Irma Rowe played a piano duet, after which Earl Fairman gave a reading entitled, "What ever you do, do with your might; things done by halves are never done right. Miss Hazel Brown then favored the audience with a recitation, "A portion in due season."

The next item on the programme was very entertaining and was exceptionally well done, showing that each participant had studied their part with extreme care. It was a debate entitled, "Resolved that chewing tobacco is worse than robbing hen roosts." This humorous debate was constantly interrupted by Earl Fairman, as president of the debate, who was very firm in his views for the affirmative side and then again for the negative which added greatly to the fun.

Rev. Mr. Daniels then sang a solo and the programme closed with a selection by the male quartette, "Steal Away to Jesus."

After the programme the young people played several interesting contests after which the young people of St. John's church served a very tasty and satisfying lunch to which all did ample justice.

Mr. F. W. Barnum on behalf of the Zion young people thanked the League of St. John's church for their hearty welcome and good time given to all.

St. Andrew's Endeavour.

The young people of St. Andrew's Endeavour held a St. Patrick evening on Monday night, in the Sunday school room. The rooms were tastefully decorated in green and white, as symbols of St. Patrick's day. Solos were sung by Mrs. Frank De Carrol, John Storie and Rev. Mr. Grier. Miss Lillian Hay played a selection on the mandolin and Miss Bertha Blue gave an interesting reading. Miss Hazel Atkinson, as convenor of the program, was in the chair. The young people played several contests, after which lunch was served, the jellies and salads being all in green and white.

I.O.O.F. Social.

The members of the I.O.O.F. Lodge held a very successful social evening in their rooms in the Ferris block, on Tuesday evening. There were twnty-six tables of progressive euchre. Mrs. James Potts won the ladies' prize for games, Alcide Jean won the gent's prize for games, Mrs. Ernest Cassan won the ladies' prize for lone hands, and Ernest Lee won the gent's prize for lone hands. The committee served a very nice lunch.

Mrs. Alan E. Haw left this week for Maniwaki, Quebec, where Mr. Haw has a position and where they will reside in future.

Friends of Mrs. S. J. Abernethy of Sebastapol street will be sorry to know she is critically ill at her home and will wish her a speedy recovery.

Andrew Govan returned to his home in Seymour West after spending the past month at Indian Head Saskatchewan. Mr. Govan was called to the west by the sudden illness and death of his brother.

J. P. Sedgwick of Peterboro was in town on Tuesday.

The firemen had two emergency calls on Tuesday to Victor Hay's residence and Meyers' Mill. Little damage was done at either place.

KINGSTON COUNCIL CONSIDERS BYLAW

Committee Named to Discuss Milk Supply With Board of Health.

KINGSTON, March 11—(Special to the Examiner).—The proposed milk by-law has been referred by the city council to a special committee to confer with the Board of Health. The Board of Health recommended that the council pass legislation calling upon all herds supplying milk in the city to undergo a tuberculin test, making the pasteurization optional. The city council is anxious to secure all the information possible and as a result asked Mayor Angrove to take up the matter. Ald. H. F. Price was made chairman of the committee and other members are Aldermen Laturney, Martin, Reid and Holder.

POLICE INQUIRE INT OFATAL FIRE

All Remains of Mrs. West Not Yet Found in Warkworth Ruin.

WARKWORTH, March 11 (Special, by Staff Reporter).—Provincial police are today investigating the fire in Warkworth in which Mrs. Stuart West and her two-year-old boy lost their lives on Tuesday. Constable Cousans is assisted by Inspector Gurnet, of Belleville.

So far the search for the remains of the child has been unavailing, and Mrs. West's head has not been found.

The first persons to arrive on the scene of the blaze were Charles Bowen, Tom Summers, George Wiggins, and H. L. Walker, who were aroused by the barking of a dog. They found Dr. West on the back porch in a fit, with only his shirt and trousers on. He had been subject to such spells since his return from overseas.

The fire was at that time confined to the room upstairs in which Mrs. West and the child were sleeping, which was a mass of flames. Dr. West slept downstairs. The house was ultimately completely destroyed.

Dr. West, who is unable to tell how the fire originated, is prostrated at the home of his brother, Charles West, two and a half miles away.

Further developments are expected.

WITH OPEN HEARTS AND HANDS.

The hearts of the people of Peterboro should be open, just now, to an appeal on behalf of unfortunate and orphaned children. The terrible tragedy that took one little life and left five other children without a brother whom they loved, is fresh in mind, and the thought that there may be many others in a similar plight in this county of Peterboro casts a shadow over the otherwise tranquil life of the Christian community that is its centre.

When, on Saturday, the Board of St. Vincent's Orphanage appeals to the people for help to carry on its work of succor, it should meet with an open-handed response. Not so much the thought that the denial of help condemns children to starvation or death should prevail as the hope that the provision of adequate funds may succor many and extend the good work of the association or society.

If the people of Peterboro, touched by the sad story of Jack Dwyer and his brother and sister, provide the funds on Saturday, there is no doubt that the arms of the orphanage will be lengthened to reach out and gather in others in equally pitiable condition.

The Examiner commends this week's appeal as a matter for the deep thought and earnest consideration and worthy response of the people of Peterboro.

CANADA'S NORTHLAND CALLS.

"The North—our once under-rated North—sends its meteors of gold and silver across the sky of Canadian opportunity." Thus opened a striking advertisement that appeared in the Examiner yesterday. It was particularly appropriate at this time, drawing attention to the possibilities of Canada's Northland and urging confidence and faith in the future of the Dominion.

Many times has the Northland beckoned, and always it has given of its store to those who were daring enough to penetrate its fastnesses in search of the pot of gold that rests under the flaming Aurora Borealis. The heart of the treasure has not yet been reached, but the pieces that have overflowed the pot show the richness of the hoard. Red Lake sends the latest call to adventurers, with its promise of rich reward, but already Canada is first in the world's nickle production and third in gold.

Not only those who take the northern trail should be stirred by the tale of the North, but every man and woman. For this is OUR Canada, from its richly veined Arctic reaches to its smoky border cities—a growing Canada, an expanding Canada, a country of which to boast. And if we do not boast openly, let us at least have that inward faith and confidence upon which the greatness of nations is built.

THE BEST TEAM WON.

Peterboro's hockey team won the Provincial honors on Tuesday night, and is now on the way to higher awards, though perhaps not to greater victories. It was a game fight that the local boys put up, and it was a singular triumph to reward a second-year senior team. The second game with London must have been a well-won battle, for "even the ranks of Tuscany could scarce forbear to cheer." The London sport writer who thought the referee was to blame for the first defeat, wrote yesterday: "The Petes deserved their victory."

With this verdict there will be accord in Peterboro, and everyone in the city, whether he be hockey fan or not, appreciates the honor the city has obtained through its first winning of the senior O.H.A. championship.

Just what the bringing home of the trophy in this case means in the way of benefit to the city is indicated by the newspapers coming to the Examiner office from all parts of Canada. Peterboro is blazoned far and near for this triumph—the name "Peterboro" is carried into every home in every city where a newspaper is published—on Tuesday night the name "Peterboro" stood out on every newspaper bulletin board.

Between the two—the triumphant hockey team and the newspapers—the name of the city has been brought to the attention of millions of people. When these people see the name on the product of a Peterboro factory a responsive chord will be struck. A way has been blazed for commerce to follow, making easier the task of selling Peterboro-made goods.

For the returning hockey team, which has done so much, there should be no stinted welcome. The City Council has already decided to hold a parade, with all the frills. Let the citizens turn out to greet the victorious players. Let the merchants make the first use of their newly-acquired street flags to pay tribute to the team.

And, while not forgetting that the victory has a dollar and cent value to Peterboro, remember that it was a sporting event in which the best team won.

TWO DOLLARS' WORTH OF FAITH.

There was once a man who refused to support a civic enterprise because he could not see where he would make anything for himself. It did not happen in Peterboro, of course, but is given as a terrible example. This man was looking for an immediate dividend on the two dollars he was asked to invest in the city's expansion.

He did not subscribe to the fund for—let us say an exhibition—and there were several thousand others who took the same attitude. As a result the needed funds were not obtained, the new buildings were not erected, and much required improvements were not made. Exhibits fell off; visitors said it was a "dead" town; manufacturers planning expansion laughed at efforts of the Chamber of Commerce to attract them; business declined; and ultimately the man who refused to subscribe two dollars to boost his city lost his job.

Who was to blame? The exhibitors who refused to show their wares? The visitors who spread the bad reputation? The manufacturers who refused to be attracted to a town without civic spirit? General depression, the ever-ready excuse for all that is out of order? Or the man who had not two dollars' worth of faith in his community?

The Examiner has, for the past month, boosted the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition and urged every citizen to become a partner in the enterprise that is endeavouring to put the city more definitely on the map. Peterboro has some of the biggest plants in Canada, many that are runners-up for record size in competition with the world, and all are good. Peterboro County has as good farmers as are to be found anywhere in the Dominion, and as good cattle, horses and crops. This is the centre of one of the best dairying districts in North America.

To tell the world all this is the object of Peterboro Exhibition. The principles of advertising are well established. To sell goods, tell about them. To sell the city, boost it. To expand the factories, sell more goods that they make.

And this leads back to the starting point. Once upon a time there was a man. . . . .

The list is still open; the fifteen hundred have not yet been secured.

PUTTING THE FRENCH PLATTER TOGETHER AGAIN.

In public life no man is indispensable, but some men are very convenient to have around when there is a governmental crisis. One such in France is obviously Aristide Briand. He may not be the "necessary man," but he is a highly useful one. His readiness now to form another Government so plainly traces to patriotic motives that he cannot be accused of overweening personal ambition. No one knows better than he that the thorns will soon be in his cushion. But as there is no other statesman in sight able to worry along even for a short time with a discordant and distracted Chamber of Deputies, he reluctantly undertakes, in his own phrase, to put together the pieces of the platter which they had smashed over his head. The charge that he hopes to make himself a dictator, a kind of miniature Mussolini, is so out of keeping, not only with French political conditions but with Briand's character, as to be absurd.

It was reported to be a common saying among French peasants at the time of the political disorders prior to Napoleon III becoming Emperor, "We need a master." What France needs today is not a master but a better system of government by party, with a Chamber which is willing to submerge personal animosities in meeting the imperative demands of the financial situation in France.

It is because these demands are so well understood, and the peril of rejecting them is so clearly appreciated, that there is hope for the new Briand Cabinet. The Premier must have required and obtained assurances of support in the Chamber which failed him before. He is now like one leading a forlorn hope, to fire upon whom in the back before his task is accomplished would be almost treason. The French budget must be balanced. The necessary taxes must be levied and collected. Inflation and repudiation must be shunned like the plague. It would seem that financial circles in Paris, which bore up so well under the unexpected shock of the Briand defeat last week, confidently count upon the needful measures being somehow got through Parliament. Briand can get them through if anybody can.—New York Times.

ALL-AMERICAN CANAL.

As a rival to the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence ship canal scheme, Congressman S. Wallace Dempsey of New York suggests an "all-American" canal, but the proposal is not meeting with any degree of enthusiasm, although the United States Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Herbert Hoover, in his speech in Chicago yesterday, seemed to stress the advantages of development in the Mississippi valley. The project is regarded as a jingo proposition, for which there is no justification. If there is to be a canal large enough to enable the big ocean-going steamers to enter the ports of the Great Lakes, it is admitted that, on engineering grounds and from the point of view of cost, the arguments in favor of the St. Lawrence route are overwhelming. The alternative plan is regarded merely as a device to defeat the international project. The port of New York naturally does not want to lose any of the tonnage which it at present receives, and it looks upon the St. Lawrence scheme as a menace to its prosperity. Much of the freight which is now unloaded in New York, it is feared, will be sent down the St. Lawrence direct to the mid-western ports. The convenience of the shipper does not enter into the calculations; the only concern is that tribute should continue to be paid to the port of New York. A great international undertaking of this kind cannot be satisfactorily considered, and still less settled, on narrow, selfish grounds.

One reason stressed in the Dempsey scheme is the military advantage to be derived from the construction of such a canal through territory exclusively American. But what is the necessity for it? There is no possibility of military agression to justify the enormous expense involved. What that expense would amount to is estimated by the Canadian Engineer at $500,000,000, for a 21-foot canal, and $700,000,000 for a 27-foot canal, as against only $252,000,000 for the St. Lawrence deep waterway scheme. It is thought that a maximum saving of $15,000,000 a year would result from the building of the all-American channel, whereas interest on the 21-foot project would be $20,000,000, a net loss of $5,000,000.

The Grand Rapids Herald, commenting on the Dempsey proposals, says the Congressman represents the New York sentiment "which doesn't want the tremendous mid-western tonnage of freight for ocean shipment to be lost to the port of New York. He wants Duluth wheat, Chicago beef, Detroit automobiles and Grand Rapids furniture to pass through the port of New York. He is less interested in improvement of the Erie, a purely canal proposition, than in defeating the St. Lawrence project, which calls for only a very short canalized distance. He'd as soon that the mid-west would continue to do without any canal and continue to ship by rail through New York. By scattering the shot, he expects the force of the whole waterway battle to be lost."—Hamilton Spectator.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

MORE'S THE PITY.

Though impatience is the antithesis of procrastination, it cannot be called a virtue. But do you, who are young and expectant, and you who are old and resigned, realize that the reaction of impatience is quite as evil, if not more so, than that of procrastination?

Procrastination prevents, impatience destroys. Abilities are crippled by procrastination, powers are wasted by impatience.

By God's will nature's wondrous law of Time is irrevocable.

The procrastinator may try to disregard this Law and the impatient may fail to respect it; but the one can no more delay Time than the other can drag Time along by force of furious intolerance.

Impatience is a passion that brings tumult to the soul, procrastination, like an opiate, dulls the mind.

You and I who are older grown can look back over the years that are gone, and see, oh, so clearly, that what we believed was enthusiasm was often nothing more than impatience, that failure of attainment was as frequently the result of intolerant activity as of any habit of procrastination.

Procrastination cannot steal Time, nor can impatience hurry it. In our hearts we know that Time is something no human agency can control; yet this is one of the most difficult facts of life for us to understand and accept, and most of us do not accept it until we have been well chastened by time. More's the pity.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 10 (Canadian Press).—Despite temporary sharp setbacks, the wheat market today scored a material advance. Buying for houses with eastern connections became notably active, and export demand for North American wheat broadened out. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1-4 to 1 3-8c net higher; May (new) $1.59 3-4 to $1.59 7-8 and July $1.39 1-4 to $1.39 3-8, with corn 3-8 to 7-8c up; oats at a shade to 3-8c gain, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA March 10 (Canadian Press).—An easier feeling is reported at some of the larger receiving centres due to the continued importations of United States fresh eggs and the prospects of increased local fresh receipts.

Toronto—Wholesale fresh extras 39 to 40, firsts 35 to 36, seconds 30 to 31.

Montreal—Market unchanged in tone and prices. Local receipts slightly heavier.

Winnipeg—Steady, market lower. Prices unchanged.

Calgary—Egg market uncertain. Good weather causing heavy receipts. Dealers ofering extras 26 to 27, firsts 22 to 23, seconds 19.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Mar. 10 (Canadian Press).—The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was quieter today, the demand being only for odd cars for local account, and spot prices were unchanged.

Eggs were again easy today and prices scored another decline of 1c per dozen, which was due to the increased supplies. The demand was good and an active business was done, with sales of extras at 40 to 41, firsts at 34 to 35, and seconds at 30 to 31c per dozen.

Receipts today were 3,212 cases.

The undertone to the market for potatoes was firm. The demand however was more or less small and a moderate amount of business was done in Quebec varieties at $2.75 per 90 lb. bag, ex-track.

The tone of the market for chese remains steady, but the volume of business continues small with sales of small lots of Western fancy white and colored at 25c per pound, and Quebec 20-pound cheese at 21 1-4c per pound for local account, and winter made cheese was quoted at 19 1-4 to 19 1-2. Receipts were 196 boxes.

Closing prices for sugar locally were: extra granulated 6.20 per 100 pounds in bags; extra ground 6.40; powdered 6.30 per 100 pounds in barrels; parts cut loaf at 6.80 per 100 pounds in barrels.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Mar. 10 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:
Sterling demand $4.87 3-8.
Sterling cables $4.87 7-8.

SMITH COUNCIL

The members of the municipal council of the township of Smith met in the County Council Chamber, Peterboro, on Saturday, March 6, 1926, at the hour of 10.30 a.m.

All the members were present with Reeve Middleton in the chair.

Mr. Bailey of the Cement Co., Lakefield, was present asking Council to pass a submitted by-law authorizing the Cement Company to build and operate power lines on the township highways.

Moved by Councillor H. D. Coons and seconded by Deputy Reeve Simpson that the by-law be referred to the township solicitor for examination. Carried.

Moved by Deputy Reeve Simpson and seconded by Council H. D. Coons that the Reeve and Councillors Fitzgerald and Mann be a committee to visit Braden's Point next week and examine as to the advisability of cutting any more brush thereon.—Carried.

Moved by Councillor Mann and seconded by Courtillor Fitzgerald that the clerk notify M.O.H., Dr. Morgan and Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., president of Chemong Park Association of the next council meeting, asking them to be present to discuss the garbage by-law for Chemong Park. Carried.

The clerk was requested to write a letter of appreciation to Mr. J. J. Cocks, expressing council's thanks for the use of his home in which the Hydro meeting was held.

Moved by Councillor H. D. Coons and seconded by Deputy Reeve Simpson that the following accounts be paid:

Dr. Deyell $6; Peterboro Examiner, $1.50; Councillor A. B. Mann, $8; Salvation Army, Toronto, per Mr. Charles Sowton, $10.

Council adjourned to meet on March 27.

Fellowship of Prayer

Read Jn. 12: 31-36. Text 12: 32. And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men unto myself.

Meditation—In Christ is the redemption of the race as of the individual. The world is a neighborhood and a very quarrelsome one. It must become a brotherhood or it will be an Inferno. Where shall we find a loyalty powerful enough to lift each of us above the irritating selfishness of his desires? Unless we have a compelling motive for unselfish living and co-operation, civilization will sink into the abyss. This is the judgement of this world with its worship of fighters and force — this world has failed to unite those it has crowded together. If we lift Him up till all men—all sorts and conditions—can see Him up as He is, He will draw all to Himself. Thus is humanity to be redeemed by the power of Christ.

Prayer—O Father of our Spirits, perfect us in love as He was perfect. Help us this day to follow Him all the way, till we find life glorified in kindness, mercy, humility and friendship. Amen.

WATER STEAL IN UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT

Chicago's Counsel Contend Court Has No Jurisdiction for Decision.

BATTLE OF STATES

Diversion Detrimental to Greater Number—Prominent Lawyers Engaged.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(Canadian Press.) —The supreme court devoted most of its session on Wednesday to arguments on the question of whether it has authority to go into the merits of the quarrel over diversion of water from Lake Micihgan at Chicago.

Sustained by all the lake states with the exception of Illinois, Wisconsin contended that it had raised questions within the jurisdiction of the court to decide, while the Chicago Sanitary District and Illinois, supported by Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee and Louisiana, asserted that the diversion was proceeding lawfully under a permit granted by the secretary of war, within his powers, granted by Congress.

The gravity of the controversy was pressed home by Attorneys for the lake states, who declared that had such a dispute developed between nations it might have resulted in war.

Prominent Lawyers.

Counsel for the various states crowded the limited space available for lawyers, but the burden of the argument was borne by Former Solicitor General James M. Beck and Assistant Attorney General Hugh S. Johnson, of Illinois, for the sanitary district, and by Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, and Attorney General Ekern of Wisconsin for the lake states.

While the effect of the diversion of water by the sanitary district was described at some length by both sides, most of the time of counsel was devoted to the question of the court's jurisdiction.

Counsel for the lake states pictured the serious effect upon navigation which they asserted was incidental to the present diversion, declaring that 39,000,000 people, interested in maintaining the commerce and industries of the Great Lakes, were opposed by 17,000,000 along the proposed inland waterway from the lakes to the Gulf.

They insisted that the present diversion was not in aid of navigation, asserting that there was practically no commerce whatever upon the sanitary canal, and challenged the right of the secretary of war to grant the permit under which the water is being diverted.

Lake Levels Lowered.

Admitting that the diversion had effected the lake levels, counsel for the santiary district insisted that the court had no jurisdiction. The federal government, it was pointed out, was not at present complaining of the impairment of the navigation of the Great Lakes, and Chicago was operating under a valid permit which had been issued after the decision of the supreme court in the suit which the government had brought, and in which the court had explicitly stated should not impair the right of the secretary of war to permit the withdrawal of a larger quantity of water than was covered by his first permit.

ROSENEATH GIRL'S BURNS WERE FATAL

Ola Montgomery Succumbed After Accident in Oshawa.

ROSENEATH, March 11.—On Monday this village was shocked by the news of the sudden death of Ola Montgomery of Oshawa, who met her death by being seriously burned and succumbed a short time after. Particulars of the accident are not yet known. Deceased is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Montgomery. The remains will be brought to Roseneath for burial. Funeral to be held from Mr. John McMillans on Wednesday afternoon at 1 p.m. Interment to Centenery cemetery. The Montgomery family lived in this village for many years and their many friends express heratfelt sympathy to the bereaved ones.

"Cheap?" says Grandpa. "It's a gift!"

"I've figured it out. Kruschen at a half a cent a dose is from 4 to 16 times cheaper than any of those fizzy drinks that protest so noisily.

"And then think what you get for your half-cent. Not just a single salt. Kruschen is a perfect blend of those six natural salts which are vital to your bodily well-being. Every day you must have these salts, or things go wrong inside you.

"The analysis is on the bottle. There are sodium and magnesium to clear away the waste matter that clogs your system and poisons your blood. Besides, they increase the flow of the fluids that stimulate the organs of elimination. To feed your tissues, there's the tonic potassium."

You will do well to listen to Grandpa. So long as you get the right proportion of these salts each day, your blood is pure and virile, your system is kept clean, your tissues have their proper allowance of oxygen. But once the supply fails, when your system is overtaxed through lack of fresh air and exercise, errors of diet, and a sendentary occupation, then you become a prey to all the little ills that make life just not worth while.

As much as will cover a ten cent piece every morning, tasteless in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea, makes good every deficiency. It sends clear, vigorous blood pounding gloriously through every vein, priming you with a tingling vitality that you have never known before — that "Kruschen feeling" of which you've heard so much.

A 75c bottle contains 160 morning "pinches." Get a bottle at once and start to-morrow. You'll feel many years younger before you're many days older.

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10 cent piece. It's the little daily dimeful that does it.

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

A 75c bottle of Kruschen Salts contains 160 doses—nearly enough for six months—which means bounding health for less than half a cent a day. The dose prescribed for daily use for adults is "as much as will lie on a 10 cent piece," taken in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea. Every druggist sells Kruschen. Get a 75c bottle to-day.

VOICE OF BRITISH DOMINIONS AT GENEVA SUPPORTS ADMISSION OF ONLY GERMANY TO LEAGUE RANKS

Long Session of League of Nations Council Climax to Recent Thrills.

GERMANS ADAMANT

But Not Unfavorable to Eventual Admission of Spain If Council Enlarged.

GENEVA, March 11 (Canadian Press).—"M. Briand will push us over the line to an accord," declared M. Paul-Boncour last night at the end of a tense private session of the League of Nations Council, which lasted nearly four hours, and which served as a climax to the most hectic of Geneva's thrilling days since the beginning of the present crisis over the reorganization of the Council raised by the entry of Germany.

The pinnacle of the crisis was attained yesterday because Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann courteously, but none the less decisively, informed the allied representatives, who, with the Germans, constitute the so-called Locarnoist-Rhine pact group, that their mandate from the Government and the people of Germany did not permit German acquiescence in the creation of other permanent seats in the Council simultaneously with the election of Germany.

With the knowledge of the German statesmen the entire problem was threshed out Wednesday afternoon at an unofficial session of the members of the Council. It is understood that the increasing movement to have Germany enter alone was considerably strengthened by the attitude of the British dominions, representatives of which conferred again with Lord Cecil. In this connection it is learned that the Irish Free State strongly denounced the existing contentious atmosphere as bad for the welfare and usefulness of the League of Nations. Ireland favored fulfilling the programme for which the assembly had been convoked, namely, the election of Germany, and putting off the question of the reorganization of the Council for later study.

"Situation is Ripening."

As he emerged from the Council Chamber on the arm of M. Loucheur, Paul-Boncour said that it would only be deception to the people of the world to declare that matters had been arranged.

"The situation can best be described," he added, "by saying that it is ripening. I expect that M. Briand will return to Geneva today, and I feel convinced that his will be the intervention which will lead us to an agreement, and thus permit another meeting of the assembly and the election of Germany. The ground has been well prepared for concord."

Afranio Mello Franco made a brilliant argument for the election of Brazil as a permanent member of the Council, while Count Quinones De Leon set forth the justice of the Spanish claim.

Consider Spain Later.

The indications are that Germany will enter the Council unaccompanied, with the probable appointment later of either a sub-committee of the Council or a commission of international justice to study the problem of Council reconstruction. Germany has vaguely given it to be understood that she would not be unfavorable to Spain if the Council were enlarged.

The promotion of Spain would mean a vacancy in the non-permanent ranks, for which Poland would undoubtedly be a strong candidate. A diplomat said last night:

"It is erroneous to imagine that we are necessarily hostile to the appearance of Poland in the Council, but we do not want Poland or any other country thrust on us at this moment."

STUDENTS EXHIBIT DISLIKE FOR COOK

Assailed His Nostrils With Odors and His Ears With Cat-calls.

LONDON, March 11.— A. J. Cook, general secretary of the Miners' Federation, ventured into King's College, University of London, Tuesday night intending to address the students on the subject of mines.

The students, however, showed a disinclination to listen to Cook and no sooner had he announced his subject than they began a demonstration against him. They showed their disapproval of the miners' secretary by setting off offensive chemicals which immediately permeated the atmosphere and as soon as Cook began to speak they indulged in cat-calls and other noisy interruptions.

Cook retreated from the building inconspiciously.

KINGSTON AFTER TANKS

Board of Works Again Advises Tax on Gasoline Pumps.

KINGSTON, March 11.—(Special to the Examiner).—The Board of Works last year recommended the Council to pass legislation calling on all owners of gasoline tanks and pumps to pay a tax of $20 a year, but the council took no action. This year the Board has made a similar recommendation.

PLANE SIGHTS SEALS.

Sealing Fleet Has "Eyes" Of Its Own.

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., March 11.—(Canadian Press.) — A message from the sealing fleet last night states that the aeroplane carried by the Beothic sighted a patch of seals eight miles long and four miles wide within twenty miles of the greater part of the ships. Provided weather does not scatter the patch, it is anticipated that by Monday when killing is permitted, all the ships all be in striking distance and the carnage will begin in real earnest.

RYKOV WOULD BAN MUNITIONS

Addressed Soviet on Russian Attitude Toward Disarmament Plan.

WOULD PREVENT WAR

MOSCOW, March 11.—(United Press).—Soviet Russia would limit or completely abolish industries devoted to the manufacture of war munitions, according to M. Rykov, who addressed the Leningrad Soviet today on the subject of Russia's attitude toward the League of Nations disarmament plans.

If the Soviet participated in the conference her delegates would propose decisive measures to prevent war, he said.

Moscow, according to Rykov is the only European capital capable of shaping a foreign policy independently of the United States.

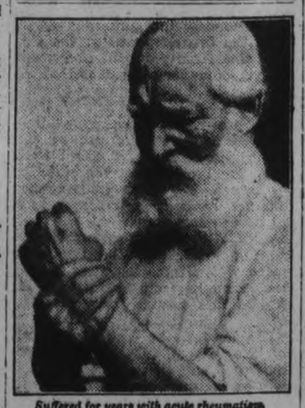
MURDER ALLEGED IN DRINKING BOUT

Preliminary Hearing at St. Stephen, N.B.

ST. STEPHEN, N.B., March 11.—(Canadian Press.)—The preliminary hearing of Lloyd Johnson, of Deer Island, Charlotte county, charged with the murder of James Linwood Lord, of the same place, started yesterday before Magistrate C. N. Vroom. Earle B. Smith, of St. Stephen, is appearing for the prosecution and J. B. McNair, of Fredericton, for the defendant.

The alleged shooting took place at the residence of the accused on the morning of December 6 and, according to testimony given at the inquest, Lord was shot in the right side by a bullet from a .32 calibre revolver in the hanids of Johnson. Lord died in the Calais hospital some 20 days later.

Several witnesses for the prosecution were hsard yesterday. According to the evidence there was a party of four at Johnston's house. There had been some drinking previously in the evening. Johnson, the evidence showed, took down a revolver from the shelf and said to Lord, "You have insulted me," and fired at him.



Suffered for years with acute rheumatism

HAD RHEUMATISM FOR YEARS— FOUND HELP AT LAST

Tells how simple home treatment brought relief

Thousands of rheumatic sufferers who have tried remedy after remedy in vain, report that they have got quick, complete relief from a very simple home treatment.

"I have suffered with acute rheumatism for years," writes a man from Winchester, N. H. "After having tried various remedies, Sloan's Liniment was recommended to me, and it stopped the pain. I am quite old—past sixty years."

A little Sloan's patted on lightly—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood is sent tingling through pain-ridden tissues. No rubbing! The medicine itself does the work.

Soon the swelling and inflammation go down. The aching stops. Almost suddenly you find yourself really free from pain, really comfortable at last. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

PREMIER RYKOFF SOUNDS WARNING

Warns Nations Against Russia Being Forced to Adopt Policy of Inflation.

LENINGRAD, Russia, March 11.—(Canadian Press):—Premier Rykoff yesterday sounded a warning against Russia being forced to adopt a policy of inflation to extricate itself from the present economic crisis. M. Rykoff admitted frankly that the buying capacity of the ruble had decreased abroad, whereas the demand for gold and foreign currency within Russia had increased.

"This is nothing less than inflation," declared the Premier, "and if it continues it will bring general crisis in our nation. That is the reason why the Government has taken most relentless measures against flooding the market with bank notes.

CONSERVATIVES TO OPPOSE MINISTER

Candidate to be Nominated Against Hon. Mr. Elliott.

STRATHROY, Ont., March 11 (Canadian Press).—The West Middlesex Conservatives have decided to contest the election of the Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Labor, at the bye-election which is to be held on March 29.

The nominating convention was set for Monday next March 15, in Strathroy. This was the decision arrived at after some considerable discussion at the executive meeting Wednesday. President Robert McKellar, Glencoe, presided.

To contest this election in the Conservative interests the candidate would probably be Thomas Elliott, ex-Reeve of West Williams, who ran in the last general election. He will probably obtain the nomination if he desires it.

There is some rumor that R. V. Lesueur of Sarnia who was defeated in the last general election in West Lambton by W. T. Goodison, M.P., will be imported to contest the election. Some mention is also made of Manning Doherty.

GARBAGE RATE LESS

Kingston Council Sets Tax at Half a Mill—Surplus on Hand.

KINGSTON, March 11.—(Special to the Examiner).—Kingston's garbage tax this year will be one-half mill on the dollar. The Health Committee at first recommended that it be fixed at one mill on the dollar, but the committee had a surplus of $10,700 and after further consideration came to the conclusion that the ratepayers should have the benefit of the surplus, and so recommended that the rate for the collection of the city's garbage be fixed at one-half mill on the dollar.

HALL STORE

The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago, where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Chicago and later is attacked by two men but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy accuses her of marrying for money.

Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but they recognize his police picture as that of IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness causes her to break their engagement.

Olga, at lunch with Jimmy, tells him that Church, because she had refused to have anything to do with him, had persecuted her to the extent of causing her to lose several jobs. Jimmy suddenly realizes that Olga is in love with him, and is keenly troubled.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVII.

A long silence fell on them. The orchestra was playing that most passionate of love songs, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from "Samson and Delilah." Neither of them could utter a word; neither of them dared.

It was Olga who broke the spell cast by the music. She shrugged her shoulders and raised her hands in an airy gesture to utter a platitude. "Oh well, live and learn, Jim."

But she dabbed at her eyes with a handkerchief, and something in the action—something very brave and at once so pitiful—caught at him and wrenched him.

Then he leaned forward and held her eyes with his, talking very fast. "Olga, if I do nothing else, I'm going to see that you get a real chance after—after things are cleared up. I've got one or two things against Sam Church myself. I think I'll make it a point to meet him and see if I can't pound a few respectable notions into his hand."

"No, don't do that, Jim," she said in alarm. "It won't do any good. Tell me what you have against him."

"Nothing that I have a right to speak about just now," he answered. "You know," he said hastily, "your experience is something like the one I've just been through."

Then he told her the circumstances under which he had lost his two positions since coming to Chicago.

"What do you make of it?" he asked. "Do you think somebody was behind it?"

"If I knew that Sam Church could possibly benefit by it I'd think he was behing it," she said positively.

"Well, I can see that perhaps he thought I was in the way the first time, but I can't understand how he could get any satisfaction out of causing me to lose this latest job."

She told him that he was being mysterious. "Why don't you explain, Jim? Can't you trust me?"

"It's just this," he said, with an attempt at lightness. "I imagine that Church regarded me as a possible rival when I was working in the railroad office."

"A rival? You mean for a girl?"

He nodded. "But there was no reason why he should continue to worry about me. He's engaged to the girl now."

She said slowly, touching his hand with hers: "And you—cared for her?"

It was some time before he answered her. "Oh, well," he said miserably, "yes, I did care." He waved his hand. "But it's all over now."

"Jim, was it the girl I saw you with that night?"

His silence told her that it was.

"I saw her on the street yesterday. She stopped when she saw me and looked as if she was about to speak to me."

An eager light leaped into his eyes, at sight of which she clenched her hands till the nails left deep red marks in her flesh.

"She did?" he asked.

"Yes, but apparently she changed her mind."

A new hope charged him, and he grasped it as a starving man clutches at a piece of bread. He thought, "If she was going to speak, it was to find out—to get the explanation I never gave her."

But as swiftly as the thought had come to him he dismissed it. "She's engaged," he reasoned, "and to a man that's not good enough to be shot. There's nothing I could do." He felt as helpless as a swimmer carried along on a relentless tide.

He rose. "Come," he said to Olga. "I'll take you where you're going." He managed to laugh. "Thanks for the lunch. It's been a new experience."

"I'm going home," she told him.

"Then I'll walk home with you."

* * *

He would have left her at her door, but she urged him to come into her apartment.

"You've never seen it, Jim. You can tell me what you think of it."

He went in with her and looked around him and admired it.

"You've got uncommonly fine taste," he told her, and failed to notice that she was trembling and biting her under lip, as if to keep herself under control.

He stuck out his hand. "Well, I'll toddle along."

"Can't you stay a while? You're in no hurry, are you?"

"I have an appointment with Barry Colvin," he lied—for the appointment was for dinner.

Olga had moved very close to him, and she laid her hands on his arms, let them creep upward to his sho The scent of her hair was in his nostrils, like a sweet, vagrant breath of flowers on an April night.

He closed his eyes, throwing back his head, and he clenched his hands tightly, conscious that no matter what he did he was bound to hurt her.

"He's made life pretty bitter for both of us, hasn't he, Jim?" she half whispered, and raised her face to his. . . .

And as he bent down to her kiss, his arms pressing her closely to him, he saw himself again as some cruel blunderer smashing the toy of a little child.

Before Mary Lowell's eyes the keys of her typewriter, manipulated by her nimble fingers, clicked off the sentences as she translated them from her shorthand notes.

And yet as she stopped occasionally to read them over, two words, born of a troubled mind, kept dancing before her vision. They were JIM RAND.

And in her fancy she could still see his erect, broad-shouldered figure, his smooth brown hair and level eyes, his close-cropped mustache and beside him, always, was a slender, beautiful girl—a girl with light-gold hair and violet eyes that were cool. A girl with long black lashes and black, high-arched eyebrows and delicately fashioned nose. . . .

Her every waking thought was of those two, and her dreams, most of them, of him.

The thought rose to taunt her that but for her unconquerable pride, he would have been hers. . . . Happiness had been within her grasp, and she had let it go, and that was the greatest tragedy that life contained. . . .

She fashioned bitter thought into words: "And he said I was marrying for money . . . selling myself for a mess of pottage. He was cruel he tramped on me with his heel he didn't care or he wouldn't have hurt me so."

Of a sudden she rose, passing her hand nervously across her forehead, and took her work into Mr. Hilton's office and laid it on his desk.

When she came back she sat a while in thought, the back of her hand pressed tightly against her lips. . . .

"If only I had it to do over again," she said. "I would never let it go again."

And then: "If it is not too late, God, please don't let it be too late."

Hurriedly then, before she could change her mind, she wrote him a letter, her cheeks the while as bloodless as the paper she wrote on. And the letter was a complete surrendering of the last vestige of her pride. . . .

Abjectly it told that she loved him . . . . that she had broken with Sam Church . . . that she would wait for a reply. . . .

She sealed it and stamped it—a two-cent stamp and a special delivery—and, fearing that she would change her mind before she could reach the letter box, she rang the buzzer for the office boy. . . .

"Paul," she said when he appeared before her desk, "will you drop this in the mail box?"

"Yes, ma'am!" Paul was emphatic.

"Thank you," she said, and walked swiftly to the window, where she stood and gazed with unseeing eyes at the clouds that hung over the buildings of Chicago.

Paul left her office, the letter in his hand. Halfway across the outer office a masculine voice, deep with authority, hailed him.

"Paul, come here right away. I want you to help the porter move these desks around."

"Yes, sir, Mr. Barnett." Paul stuck the letter in the inside pocket of his coat and quickly and quite completely forgot all about it.

* * *

Jimmy met Barry Colvin by appointment and the two went to dinner together.

"How about a show, Jimes?" suggested Barry when they left the restaurant and were walking along the street. "Something lively to cheer us up."

Jimmy was willing. His mind was filled with troubled thoughts. All through the dinner he had sat, wordless, as Barry chatted. He talked of the law business. He had had a busy day he said. And Jimmy sat without hearing.

Barry said, looking intently at him as they stood in front of the theater: "I hope the show is good. It will have to be darned good to get you out of the dumps you seem to have fallen in."

"Oh, excuse me, Barry." Jimmy forced a smile.

Barry strolled to the window and bought the tickets. "Jed Black's here, Jim. He's my favorite comedian. I think he's the greatest master of pantomine on the stage today."

"Fine," said Jimmy, quite without enthusiasm.

"I've got a tough job ahead of me," went on Barry. "If I win this case, I'll have to be pretty good. I'm up against keen competition."

"Quite a feather in your cap if you win, eh? Well, here's hoping Barry." There was a returning interest evident in Jimmy's voice.

"Yep. I met a smart lawyer today, Jim. A heck of a smart lawyer. His name was, lemme see. I'm not much good at names. Oh yes, his name was Church—Samuel Church. A smart baby, Jim."

SKATE AND DANCE BY COSMOS CLUB

Blocked Roads Prevents Large Attendance, Hurting Finances.

MILLBROOK, March 11.—The dance held in the Town Hall on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Cosmos Club, was a most enjoyable affair, though attendance was lessened by the unfavorable state of the roads, and the very cold weather.

The floor was in excellent condition, and the music furnished by Stewart and Moncrief orchestra gave every satisfaction.

A number drove in from Cavan, but the majority of the guests were from the village on this occasion. The refreshments were provided by the local ladies and supper was served about 12 p.m.

Dancing began at 9 o'clock, and provision was made for having both square and round dances.

Previous to the gathering at the Hall the orchestra was at the Cosmos rink from 7 30 p.m., and a fairly large number of skaters took advantage of the opportunity to skate to music—a chance which is all too rare locally. Miss G. Gray kindly allowed the club the use of her piano thus making it possible to have the orchestra at the rink.

Financially Friday night's venture did not bring in sufficient returns to cover expenses.

F. N. Alcorn has been made president of the Cosmos Club taking the place of R. Hutchison after the latter's removal from the village. Mr. Alcorn was formerly vice-president of this live organization.

"Ingleside", the Vance property on King street, has been purchased by Dr. Young, of Peterborough, and will be occupied by his son who intends beginning the practice of his profession in Millbrook in the near future.

Winners of the lucky number contest at Lambert's confectionery on Saturday were: First, V. R. Hunter, Cavan, and second, Mrs. David Lunn, also of Cavan, the numbers being 6 and 39, respectively. The first prize was $2 worth of bread tickets, and the second a 60 cents box of chocolates.

NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL

The regular monthly meeting of the North Monaghan Council was held at the Court House, Peterborough, Monday, March 8, with all members present

George Whitfield was present and presented a plan and profile and also a letter from C. A. Warren, district superviser of drawing of the department of Agriculture, Kemptville.

Considerable discussion developed regarding the drainage question and the matter was left over for consideration at a subsequent meeting.

The township road question came up before the meeting again, as regards going into the provincial system of abolishing statute labor or commuted statute labor and also in regard to setting off a certain area for special levy. This question was allowed to stand for further consideration until Saturday, March 13.

The clerk was instructed to offer the following lots for sale: 73, 74 and 75, plan 56 now under the township of North Monaghan and facing Rose avenue a short distance from Monaghan road. These lots will be sold for taxes and costs plus the cost of deed and carrying charges.

The following bills were passed for payment:

Archie Moore, $2.25; J. A. McKone, $20; A. Paterson, $7; Municipal World, $11.34; Peterborough Examiner, $35.01.

By-law number 881 was introduced, read and finally passed, appointing John MacIntosh assessor at the salary of $225.

The treasurer was also instructed to pay to the treasurer of the township of Smith the sum of $150.67, being the amount of the account due them for work on the Smith boundary, less the amount done by the township of North Monaghan in the year 1925.

The meeting then adjourned. A special meeting will be held on Saturday afternoon at the Court House.

ANNUAL MEETING OF UNITED W.M.S.

Presentation to Mrs. T. C. Ivory, Secretary Ever Since Founding.

OMEMEE, March 11.—The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church, was held on Thursday afternoon, March 4, at the home of Mrs. G. N. Earle with 42 members and visitors present. The meeting was conducted by the President, Mrs. Rowland, and following the opening hymn, Mrs. William Brandon and Mrs. W. J. Kennedy offered prayer.

A letter of thanks and appreciation from Miss Agnes Rutherford for the many acts of kindness and the numerous visits from members of the society during her prolonged illness, was read by the secretary, Mrs. Bradburn.

The corresponding secretary was advised to order the suggestive programme literature; the subscription having expired.

The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Lillian Race, followed by the devotional leaflet, "Answered Prayer," by Mrs. Robert Wilson.

A duet, entitled "Tell Somebody Today," was rendered by Mrs. C. L. Morcombe and Mrs. L. Mahood, which was well received.

The Heralds of The Watch-tower responded as each country was called by the president, and proved quite interesting.

A short business session followed in which the treasurer, Mrs. T. C. Ivory, gave a partial report of the year's work. On account of the year not closing until the end of March a full report could not be given and the report of "The Cent a Day Band" was also held over until all money had been received. An itemized statement of the year's supplies, etc., was given by the corresponding secretay, Mrs. Widdis.

The committee appointed to arrange the quilt strips, Mrs. Charles Ivory, Mrs. E. Bradburn, and Mrs. S. Wilson, reported that strips for six quilts were ready to be sewed together, and soon enough ladies had volunteered to do this work.

Owing to illness, Mrs. S. T. Wilson will be unable to stake charge of the missionary topic in the Sunday School the first Sunday in March, so Miss Marjorie Connell was appointed to take her place; Mrs. Wilson to be responsible the first Sunday in April.

It was unanimously agreed to contribute $10 to the Rest Fund as in previous years.

At the close of the business session, the election of officers, which was conducted by the pastor Rev. E. W. Roland, took place, as follows:

President, Mrs. E. W. Rowland; first vice president, Mrs. J. Bushnell; second vice president, Mrs. H. Lamb; recording secretary, Mrs. E. Bradburn; assistant secretary, Mrs. L. A. Mahood; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. Widdis; treasurer, Mrs. T. C. Ivory; superintendent of mission band, Mrs. Rowland; assistant superintendents, Mrs. Morcombe and Mrs. R. H. Williamson. Four other officers to be elected were held over until the April meeting.

Lamp Presented.

The presentation of an electric floor lamp was then made to Mrs. T. C. Ivory, who has been the esteemed treasurer of the society for the past 31 years, by the only two other charter members in the society, Mrs. Charles Ivory and Mrs. A. Scott accompanied by the following address, read by Mrs. Rowland:

Omemee, March 4, 1926.

Mrs. T. C. Ivory.

Dear Mrs. Ivory.—We, the members of the Women's Missionary organization, have met today for the last time as an auxiliary of the missionary enterprise of the Methodist Church. For the past nine months, we have been shaping our work to pass onward and upward into that great Divine merger which under God is being cemented and which we believe will strengthen the bulwarks of His Kingdom at home and abroad. Henceforth, our endeavor will be under the direction of the United Church of Canada.

It is but natural that on this occasion we look backward and think of the associations of the past. Many changes have taken place in the last three decades, and the thought sobers us, but let us take courage and say "The best of all is God is with us."

With happy hearts we congratulate you, Mrs. Ivory, on your long record of faithful service in our beloved society. You are one of the charter members of the local W.M.S. and it is cause for gratitude to the Heavenly Father whose grace has been vouchsafed to you through the years and brought you to the present. Thirty-one years ago, in the month of February, at the home of the late Richard Connell, the W.M.S. of the Omemee circuit came into being. At that meeting you were elected treasurer of the society which office you have held with honor and service without interruption to the present. We are well aware how often you carried the work when it was difficult and discouraging, but with patience and hope, you stood to the task and God has made you an inspiration and a blessing to your associates.

It is impossible for any of us to forecast the future. All that is wisely hidden from our view but humbly pray that in the untrodden paths Eternal goodness may be your portion and may you be spared many years to labor in the Master's vineyard beneath the banner of this important branch of church activity.

As a mark of our love and esteem, we ask you to accept this floor lamp and may its subdued light often awaken in your heart, fragrant memories of your W.M.S. associates. Signed on behalf of the society: Ila A. Rowland, president; M. E. Bradburn, secretary.

Mrs. Ivory, although taken by surprise, rose to the occasion and in a few words thanked the society for their kindness in remembering her. Rev. E. W. Rowland spoke a few words, and the meeting closed by singing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds," and the Benediction.

L.O.L. Presentation

A most enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. Walter Reeds, who resides about three miles west of Omemee, where the members of L.O.L. No. 820 with their wives and numerous friends had gathered to receive the presentation of a beautiful silver cup, donated by M.W. Bro. Judge J. H. Scott of Perth; Rt. Wor. A. A. Gray of Toronto, and Rt. Wor. Bro. Carey of Toronto. This cup was won for proficiency in the initiatory degree work by the degree team of the Reaboro lodge ,and was presented by Mr. James Naylor of Otonabee; W. M. Elwood Smith received the cup and responded on behalf of the lodge; followed by several other members of the lodge.

The Reaboro Lodge also took the occasion to present Mr. James Naylor, the past master, with a past master's jewel, accompanied by a well-worded address. After Mr. Naylor had replied, a splendid programme of music and games was enjoyed and refreshments were served by the Reaboro ladies, after which dancing was resumed.

FOOD AND FUN FOR MARMORA YOUTHS

Young People's League Sponsored Hilarious Evening in Town Hall.

MARMORA, March 11.—Fun at a high pitch marked the Food and Fun Social which was held in the Masonic Hall on Friday evening under the auspices of the Young People's League. The Rev. F. J. Horwood made an ideal traffic manager and called into action the following events.

Balloon ball between sides captained by Dr. A. H. Curtis and Mr. E. C. Prentice. Result: A goalless draw.

Rival car salesmen—Messrs. Jack Grant, Magee, Sanderson, Norman Narrie and Donald Marett.

Rats and ribbons.

Musical arms.

Rabbits and Hutches.

Paper race.

To add to the fun of these numbers, many accepted the invitation to come attired in hard time attire. Admission was charged each individual attending at the rate of an half cent for every inch of stature.

The attendance brought in door receipts of approximately thirty-five dollars. First class refreshments served at ten o'clock wound up an evening of hilarious merriment.

TWEED NEWS

TWEED, March 11.—Mr. Edward Rath returned from Victoria Memorial Hospital, much improved in health.

Mr. Jas. Quinn was operated on in Hotel Dieu, Kingston, recently. His left leg was amputated above the knee. Mr. Quinn is a prominent business man of town.

Trudeau Bros. have purchased two lots on the east side of Victoria street betwen the Jas. Quinn Co. and Wm. Collins stores and will commence the erection of a garage at once. They were obliged to vacate their present premises as the property was sold to Lesage Bros.

Mr. Wm. Pipe was painfully hurt while at work at his shingle machine.

Mrs. Jas. McGowan has returned home from visiting Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rutherford, Napanee.

BENSFORT W.M.S. ANNUAL MEETING

Officers for Coming Year Elected—Pastor Present.

BENSFORT, March 11.—The W.M.S. of the Bensfort United church held its annual meeting on Tuesday, March 2, at the home of Mrs. John Emberson. The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. W. C. Wood, assisted by the Rev. W. H. Foley, who was present for the occasion. Miss Marjorie Emberson favored the meeting with a solo and Miss Berniece Barnard gave a reading on prayer.

The Watch Tower was taken up and excellent reports given by the heralds from their various fields. The chapter from the study book was very ably dealt with by Miss M. J. Emberson, after which the Rev. Mr. Foley made a few very interesting and encouraging remarks.

The following officers were then elected for the new year: President, Mrs. W. C. Wood; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. S. Robinson and Mrs. W. Andrews; Recording Secretary, Mrs. F. Morrison; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. W. C. Dawson; Treasurer, Mrs. E. Barnard; Assistant Treasurer, Mrs. T. Dawson; Superintendent Systematic Giving, Mrs. W. Walter; Mite Box Superintendent, Miss M. Nicholson; Strangers' Secretary Committee, Mrs. Edgar Wood, Mrs. H. Nicholson, Mrs. Collins, Mrs. Caddenhead; Watch Tower Heralds (Africa) Mrs. Everett Wood, (India) Mrs. G. Whittington, (China) Mrs. Edmund Dawson, (Ruthenian) Miss M. Nicholson, Indian Work, Mrs. Barnard; French Work, Mrs. G. Nurse and Mrs. T. Dawson; Oriental, Mrs. Robinson; Japan, Mrs. W. Emberson and Mrs. W. McAllister; All People's Mission, Mrs. J. Emberson, Mrs. Caddenhead; Convenor Flower Committee, Mrs. George Beebee; Group Leaders, (A) Mrs. W. C. Dawson, (B) Mrs. E. Dawson, (C) Mrs. S. Thompson, (D) Mrs. W. McAllister.

At the conclusion of the election of officers the meeting was closed by singing the well known hymn, "Oft in Danger, Oft in Woe," and the Benediction.

Refreshments were then served by Mrs. Emberson, assisted by members of Group C, and a social half hour was enjoyed by all present.

W.M.S. THANK-OFFERING

Returned Missionary Discoursed on Very Interesting Topic.

NORWOOD, March 11.—The annual Thank offering service of the Woman's Missionary Society and the Young Woman's Auxiliary of the United church was held on Sunday morning. The ladies had charge of the service. The centre seats of the church were occupied by members of these societies and of the C.G.I.T. and the Mission. The choir was composed of ladies.

Mrs. E. C. Squire, president of the society, presided and the following programme was given:

Invocation—Rev. F. Stillman.

Prayer—Mrs. R. G. Lawlor.

Quintette — Mesdames T. M. Wesley and A. G. McDermott, Misses B. E. Pearce, L.T.C.M., Lillian Hugill and Ona Finlay. The solo parts taken by Miss Finlay.

Responsive reading, Psalm 46, led by Mrs. (Rev.) F. Stillman.

Scripture reading —Romans 10, 1-13, Mrs. R. G. Lawlor.

Recitation—Miss Margaret Brethen, Mission Band.

Quartette — Margaret Marks, Helen Dickson, Eleanor Marks and Vera Rogers, Mission Band.

Address— Mrs. (Dr.) Mortimer Clarke.

Offering.

Benediction—Rev. Stillman.

Mrs. Clarke, who has lately returned from a mission field in China, took her topic, "Some Things We Should Be Thankful For." Mrs. Clarke, who is a very fluent speaker, was listened to with very marked attention by the large congregation.

Six of the young women took up the offering.

The programme throughout was of a very interesting and inspiring order.

Mrs. Leo Haynes (nee Annie Golloher) received a telegram on Wednesday last from Detroit informing her that her husband was seriously ill in that city. Mrs. Haynes immediately left to be with him. On Sunday afternoon word was received that Mr. Haynes had passed away. The young wife has the sympathy of a large circle of friends

The March meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held on Thursday afternoon at three o'clock at the home of Mrs. John Weir.

The many friends of Major F. A Webb will be sorry to hear of his serious illness.

Preparatory service was held on Friday evening in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The sacrament of Our Lord's Supper was dispensed on Sunday morning, Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, officiating. Mr. Bennette, pastor of the Norwood congregation took Mr. Thompson's work in Hastings.

Witness: A blacksnake whip he used on the boys.

Mr. Hatton: Didn't he use it on the wife, too?

Witness: No. I think he used his feet on her.

Asked as to the disposition of the wood which the boys and Mrs. Dwyer cut, witness said Dwyer hauled it to Norwood. He was buying a team of horses, witness believed, and al the money went to pay for them. "When I figured out what he made, and what he had spent on horses and feed and other things, he didn't have more than $25 this year for the house."

Dwyer obtained some medicine for John, Lytle said, but no medical attension was given to George. There was a lapse of two nights and a day between the arrival of the medicine and the time Dr. Holdcroft came.

Mr. Maher (foreman of the jury): Did you have any strained relationships? Did he use the whip on you?

Witness: No. There was never a Sunday they were not all at my place.

Mr. Maher: Did the children ever complain they had not enough to eat?

Witness: Yes. They asked me for something to eat until Dwyer found it out and told them to stop. They got milk until they stopped coming for it when the boy was ill.

Mr. Kerr: Why did they stop coming for the milk?

Witness: Because he was angry at me for getting the doctor. He said I was sticking my nose into his business.

On one occasion, Mr. Lytle said, Mrs. Dwyer took the cutter and met Dwyer on the road, to tell him of the condition of John and ask him to go for a doctor. He told her to turn around and go home, adding that John had just taken a bad turn.

Dr. Clark.

Dr. D. W. Clark, 291 Charlotte Street, said he was in attendance on John Dwyer in Nicholls Hospital from 10 p.m. February 24, until he died at 12.30 on the morning of March 2.

On his first visit he found that the boy had been in hospital from 4.30 in the evening, and was being attended to by nurses. He was lying with his eyes partly open, coiled up on his right side, with his knees drawn up half way to his chin, and his head retracted. He was unconscious. If his head was moved he groaned, so he had some sense of pain, but no audible word was obtained from him. "He was terribly emaciated," Dr. Clark said. "His little cheek bones were sticking right out, and his arms and legs were practically nothing but skin and bone. His neck muscles were perfectly tight and his head could not be moved. His pupils were widely dilated. Another sign of the suspected trouble was in a test made on his foot. When the sole of his foot was scratched, his toes turned down—a sign of meningitis. His temperature was 101, as compared with the normal of about 98½; his pulse was 125, and his breathing 20.

He had had milk offered, but couldn't or wouldn't drink it, and the nurses had spoon-fed him milk and water. I listened to his lung condition and couldn't find anything out of normal except on the right side, where there was different breathing on the front of the right lung. I didn't think it pnumonia, but his breathing was rough.

I noticed that his feet had sores, and learned later that they had been frozen; a red mark on his right hip. I judged, was caused by his lying on that side, and the thinness of his little body. There was a mark on his head where there had been some kind of infection; this was healed but was rough underneath the skin.

In reply to the Crown Attorney, Dr. Clark said there are different causes of meningitis, and he could not say to what cause this case should be ascribed. He had obtained some spinal fluid from the boy's back and had it examined. The laboratory report said "no" to tubercular meningitis, but did not indicate anything else. It was a negative examination and did not tell anything.

In Dr. Clark's opinion the disease would have to be very severe to cause all the emaciation evident in this boy.

The Coroner: Did you find any marks of severe injury on the head?

Dr. Clark: No, just the one mark.

Dr. C. B. Waite.

Dr. C B Waite, 296 Stewart St. who was in attendance as pathologist at the Nicholls Hospital, said he had examined the boy at Dr. Clark's request. "It appeared evident that he had meningitis, and it was quite evident that he was dying. His arms were quite blue.

The Coroner: Did you agree with Dr. Clark as to the cause of death?

Dr. Waite: Yes; it looked like meningitis.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser.

Dr. G Murray Fraser, Director of the Provincial Board of Health Laboratory, in Peterboro, said he had seen John Dwyer on the morning that Dr. Clark drew the fluid from his spine The report of the laboratory test had been prepared, and Dr. Fraser described a peculiarity in the sample taken. Nothing was proven by the test.

Mr Hatton: Do you agree with the other medical men as to the cause of death?

Dr Fraser: Yes, but I am unable to say what cause it came from.

Mr. Merrill (a juryman): Might it have been caused by neglect?

Dr. Fraser: I can't say.

Mr. McCann (a juryman): Would it be possible for a well nourished boy, fit to work, to be afflicted with a disease that would leave him in that emaciated condition in eight or ten days?

Dr. Fraser: I would not think a healthy boy would go down that quickly.

Dr. J. Holdcroft.

Dr. J. Holdcroft, Havelock, said he was called to the Dwyer boy on February 19 by Matthew Lytle. He went to the house and found the boy seriously ill. There was no chance to give him proper treatment there, so he gave him a mixture to reduce the fever and reported the case to Magistrate Langley. The boy was very thin and emaciated.

"The boy looked as though he had been starved for a long time—slow starvation," Dr. Holdcroft said.

Answering the Crown Attorney, the witness said the Dwyer house is not at all a warm house, but there are lots in the back country not any warmer. The boy was lying on a cot and had lots of covering. He couldn't hear or speak.

Asked if he had any further evidence to volunteer, Dr. Holdcroft explained how he came to attend the case. He had been talking to Mr. Lytle a few days before, and Mr. Lytle told him the boy was going to die unless something was done. "The next day or so," Dr. Holdcroft said, "Mat Lytle came to my office and said, 'I want you to see that boy and I'll pay for the trip.' I went out there, and asked Mrs. Dwyer how long John had been in that condition. She said about ten days. She said he took a spell and couldn't either hear or speak, and I think she said Mr. Dwyer got some medicine from Dr. Sutton. The boy's temperature was 102 and his pulse 130. I left a mixture and reported the case to Magistrate Langley. I thought the best place for him was a hospital, for there was no chance there for nursing or care.

Mr. Kerr: It has been sworn here by other doctors that this boy died of meningitis. Is it an affection of the brain?

Dr. Holdcroft: There are different kinds.

Mr. Kerr: Does meningitis, working for some time in some cases take that form?

Dr. Holdcroft: Not generally, but it might. There's no particular time-table to it.

Asked as to the emaciated condition of the boy, the witness said: "I couldn't see that illness of that length of time, with the boy lying perfectly quiet, would make him as thin as that. I formed part of my opinion by looking at the brother. They looked pretty much alike. I judged both had insufficient food."

Lytle told him, Dr. Holdcroft continued, that the child was starved. He said the boys came to his place and he would give them half a loaf of dry bread and they would eat it, because they were starved. Then Dwyer found out and stopped them. Dwyer's wife was afraid to say anything because he would abuse her.

Dr. Holdcroft said he has known Mr. Lytle 25 years and would trust him as far as anybody he knew. "Anything he told me, I could depend upon," he concluded.

Dr. N. F. Sutton.

Dr. N. F. Sutton, Norwood, did not know the Dwyer family, and had never seen the Dwyer home. On February 17 George Dwyer obtained from him some medicine for the boy, saying his 12-year old child had pains in his ears and he was afraid of gathering. "I told him," Dr. Sutton said, "if the child was not better in a couple of days to take it to hospital in Peterborough. In two days' time he came back and said the child was better, and the ears discharging.

Dr. I. H. Erb

Dr. I. H. Erb, pathologist of the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, who conducted the autopsy on the body of John Dwyer last Friday night, presented his written report. He had found the body well developed, but extremely thin. It was four feet three inches long but weighed only thirty pounds or less. "The body presented a picture, literally, of skin and bone," he said. "The eyes were deeply sunken in their sockets, and the cheeks were quite hollow. In the scalp were a number of small sores, filled with matter, and on the left side of the head was a healed scar half an inch by quarter of an inch. The fingertips of both hands, the tip of one thumb, and both feet were frozen, and the frost bites were partly healed. The organs in the chest and abdomen were healthy, except for some congestion. In the brain I found extensive meningitis, and the germ, on culture, showed hemolythic strepticoccus. There was acute inflammation of the right middle ear."

Dr. Erb had prepared his findings shortly under seven divisions, presented as follows: (1) The immediate cause of death was strepticoccus meningitis; (2) The meningitis was associated with, and apparently developed subsequent to and as a result of the acute inflammation of the right middle ear; (3) Inasmuch as strepticoccus meningitis is an acute disease of comparatively short duration, the extensive degree of wasting cannot be attributed to the meningitis; (4) Neither can the wasting be attributed to any other disease, since the remaining organs were in healthy condition; (5) This leads to the conclusion that the wasting was the result of undernourishment; (6) The frost bitten hands and feet were indications that the child suffered from undue exposure to cold and frost; (7) The extent, if any, to which the undernourishment and exposure may have contributed to the development of the middle ear disease and the subsequent meningitis and death cannot be determined from the post mortem findings.

Mr. Hatton: Can you say positively that this was not traumatic meningitis?

Dr. Erb: Traumatic meningitis is meningitis from injury; meningitis developed without any germ. There was no evidence of it. The inflammation spread from the middle ear inside the skull, causing the meningitis.

John Edgar

John Edgar, acting Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society in Peterborough, said he visited the Dummer house with Provincial Constable Maker on Monday, February 22. He found a cook stove the only means of heating the house. There was not much furniture. The door facing the west had large cracks, nearly wide enough to put a lead pencil through. He found the boy who was ill, lying on a cot in the upper room, near the wall under the slope of the roof. He was apparently cold, and was moaning in pain. Mrs. Dwyer said he was very hard of hearing and she couldn't make him understand. He appeared to be unconscious.

There were five children; three were apparently well looked after. Mr. Edgar noted that the clothing of the three younger children was better than that of the others, and the three younger children were in apparently healthy condition. George (the boy who is now in the hospital) was hiding behind the stove. Mr. Edgar did not know whether Mrs. Dwyer had tried to keep him out of the way or not. The father said this boy had not a sore foot, and both father and mother tried to answer for the boy. George admitted he had a sore foot, and on his boots, five or six sizes too large, being removed, it was found that the big toe on one foot had been apparently frozen off, and a piece of cloth tied around the stump.

After advising the parents to get medical aid, and impressing upon them their duty as parents, Mr. Edgar left. Not being satisfied that the Children's Aid Society had done all it should, he took the matter up with the President, and communicated with Dr. Holdcroft. The Doctor said Mrs. Dwyer had been in the village with George, but John had not been brought in.

Ultimately, he boys were brought to Peterborough and placed in Nicholls Hospital.

Boy Was Starving.

Mr. Hatton: There's no doubt in your mind but that the boy was starving and under-nourished?

Mr. Edgar: You had only to look at him to see that.

Answering Mr. Winterbottom, (one of the jurors), Mr. Edgar said he found dinner was ready on the table, but he did not see much to eat, certainly nothing adequate for five children and two grown up people.

Mr. Carson (one of the jurors): What did you see? What you think a poor meal might appear a good one to us..

Mr. Edgar: There were some wizened-up apples, dry bread and a pot on the stove with a mixture of something in it. It wasn't stew or meat. It held about two quarts.

Mr. Kerr: It was neither attractive looking nor nourishing looking?

Mr. Edgar: It didn't look appetizing or nourishing to me. There was very little bread. There were plates set around the table.

Mr. Kerr: The building was extremely poor?

Mr. Edgar: I have been in worse.

Mr. Kerr: Was it a home that represented poverty in the north country?

Mr. Edgar: The home was pretty poor looking.

Mr. Kerr: Furnishings scarce?

Mr. Edgar: They were.

Mr. Kerr: And poor at that?

Mr. Edgar: Yes.

Mr. Kerr: The food was poor also?

Mr. Edgar: It appeared to be.

Constable N. F. Maker.

Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker said Dr. Holdcroft expressed the opinion that an investigation should be made of the Dwyer home, especially in connection with the boy. He went to the house and saw Mrs. Dwyer and five children. Two of them ran behind the stove. Upstairs he found the boy, John, on a cot, covered with two patchwork quilts. He was lying on his left side, shaking, and seemed to be in pain. The Constable covered the boy's hands with the quilt. His hands were cold. George Dwyer, the father, said the boy had taken a weak spell, and the doctor had been there.

"I asked the boy George if his feet were alright. He didn't answer. The parents said his feet were in perfect condition. I insisted on the boy's boots being taken off, and then Mrs. Dwyer said she thought one of his toes had been frozen. She took off the boots and two pairs of socks with a lot of holes in them. She said the boy had had no medical treatment.

I said there would be trouble if they didn't get medical treatment, and I would arrest them.

Dwyer said: 'If you come out here to arrest me you'll find me just as bad as the rest.'

I told him I could take him or anyone in Dummer if I wanted to.

We came back to Havelock on the parents promising to give the children more attention. Dr. Holdcroft advised me to try to get the boys to Peterborough hospital.

A warrant was issued for Dwyer and on Wednesday the child was brought to Nicholls Hospital and on Thursday I arrested Dwyer on a charge of neglect. On Tuesday the child died and a warrant was issued on instructions of the Crown Attorney for Mrs. Dwyer on a charge of manslaughter, and the four other children were brought in and placed in the Shelter.

The house consisted of two rooms. In the upstairs room the six children and two grown-ups slept. A small part was partitioned off with a blanket. There were two beds and a cot. The room was not too clean. Downstairs there was a cook stove a buffet, a wash stand, and three chairs. There were two doors, and you could look through them. They had been built of green timber, and it had dried out. The house is of rough board, patched all over. In some places there is tar paper and in some places none. The stove pipe leads between the beds upstairs.

I think George must have slept with John, else I don't know where he could have slept. Snow blew into the house through the cracks."

Crust, Apples—Meal.

"I searched for food," Constable Maker continued, "and found a tin with a little oatmeal in it and another with a little cornmeal. Another had salt. There were just a few crusts of bread, and a few apples. There was no cellar, and I looked in all the cupboards.

I enquired what the boys had to eat, and Mrs. Dwyer said they had porridge before leaving at daylight, and they carried dry bread for the mid-day meal. Sometimes the bread would freeze and they would throw it away and leave it there, because they couldn't eat it. Then they had porridge again at night.

They had only had meat once in the past two months, Mrs. Dwyer told me. They had had no sugar and no vegetables. Dwyer's oldest daughter came on a visit and he gave his wife some money to buy a little meat for the occasion. All the family had in the past two months, Mrs. Dwyer said, is porridge, apples and bread.

Mr. Kerr: And butter?

Constable Maker: They have had none, only what she made out of one cow. When she used the milk for that, all they had was dry porridge without milk.

Mr. Kerr: Any fat?

Constable Maker: Just a little grease in a saucer. It had been there for some time, and looked old.

Mr. Kerr: Was there anything you and I would call nourishing food?

Constable Maker: Nothing at all.

Mr. Kerr: Did you see anything that would keep sould and body together—other than the dry bread?

Constable Maker: I wouldn't like to be put there myself and left to live.

Mr. Kerr: It was a picture, as you saw it, of starvation and heart-rending poverty?

Constable Maker: Yes.

Mr. Kerr: The home and surroundings showed extreme poverty?

Constable Maker: Yes.

There was other clothing in the house for the children, very much patched, the witness admitted, in answer to questions by Mr. Kerr. This has been brought to the city as evidence.

This concluded the hearing.

The Jury

There were on the jury, called and marshalled by County Constable Frank Pratt: Michael J. Maher (foreman), George Evans, William J. Martin, William H. Roberts, Albert J. Throop, John Gillespie, Herbert S. Routley, John J. McCann, William S. Merrell, Robert W. Carson, J. G. Winterbottom, Robert J. Matchett.

Good Health for All the Family

Mrs. Mary Fourgere, Larry's River, N.S. writes:—"I was troubled with constipation for years." At last a friend suggested that I try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so and must say that they have given me more relief than all the medicine I have taken during the last ten years."

The newest idea in medicine is to prevent serious disease by looking after the "minor ills."

Since about ninety percent of serious diseases develop from constipation and torpid action of the liver and kidneys the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to arouse the action of these organs is the most effective of preventives.

Backaches, headaches, indigestion, constipation, etc., soon disappear when this great regulating medicine is used.

Menus for the Family

DELECTABLE DISHES OF SOUTHERN COOKS

Old Southern and Creole cookery always has a fascination for those who have tasted it in their travels. Many of the dishes are of French extraction and a number are made from native products unknown to Northerners. But those we can use are well worth trying and the following recipes for them are tried and to be trusted.

Okra Soup.

Chop two onions fine. Fry the onion in a little butter until soft. Put a can of tomatoes into a saucepan. Add three quarts of water, a seeded pepper, the liquor from two dozen freshly opened oysters. Cover and boil gently for two hours, add three tablespoonfuls of well-washed rice and seasoning to taste, also two tablespoonfuls of butter. Twenty minutes before serving, add a can of prepared okra, boil up once and then drop in the oysters, boil one minute more and the soup is ready.

Flounder a la Orly.

Fillet a thick, fresh flounder in four, or six pieces. Take bones head and trimmings and put in a saucepan with a minced onion, a minced pepper, some chopped celery, half a bay leaf, pepper, salt, a can of tomatoes and a pint of water. Boil for a half hour, strain and reheat, thicken to the consistency of cold honey and add a tablespoonful of capers. Set the sauce aside, keeping it hot over hot water. Beat an egg with a small cupful of light cream, let the fillets stand in this for five minutes, then roll in very fine crumbs and fry delicately in butter. Serve on a hot dish garnished with parsley and lemon quarters. Serve the sauce in a sauce boat.

Veal and Ham Pie.

Get a small veal brisket and cut in small pieces, add to it a slice of ham, also cut in small pieces. Put in a small stew pan and cover with water. Add pepper, salt, a chopped pepper, a tablespoonful of minced celery and half a bay leaf. Stew very gently until the meat is done. Line a deep dish with pastry, prick the bottom with a fork and bake it. Slightly cool the stew, then fill the dish, covering with three thinly sliced potatoes and rounds of the crust. Bake in the oven until the potatoes and crust are done. Thicken the left-over gravy and serve with the pie.

Rice Fritters.

To one cup of boiled rice add three beaten eggs, a half cupful of sifted flour, a teaspoonful of sugar, a saltspoonful of salt, a level teaspoonful of baking powder and a tablespoonful of cream. Drop by spoonfuls into hot lard and fry a delicate brown.

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori

We can safely say that the day of the severe straight-plastered coiffure is passing. This type of hair arrangement reigned for a time, but it has been found wanting for the majority.

Whether the hair is long or short, the severe, moulding coiffure should be attempted only by the very pretty woman, or by the woman who has very distinctive features that can stand emphasizing? For the latter type may achieve striking effects, even if she is not exactly pretty.

But, having weighed straight hair in the balance and found it wanting, we now turn to the various methods of coddling curly hair.

If you have naturally curly hair, or if you have a water wave that you know how to keep successfully curled, you are lucky indeed. A few gentle waves are wonderfully softening to the features, and we find it truly remarkable what a successful coiffure can do to make an otherwise plain woman really quite attractive.

Now I am going to tell you briefly the most successful way to keep a natural curl at its most effective state of curliness. This is known as the water-wave method. But let me warn you that in placing your fine-toothed combs in position to give this wave, you must be sure that they consider the inclination of your natural curl, and only serve to accent it. Do not try to train your natural waves into other channels than the ones in which they fall, or you will not benefit your curl.

Small combs from three to six inches long, very fine-toothed, are the kind to use. First run your regular comb, slightly dampened, through your hair. This will prepare it to receive the wave and hold it.

Next, part your hair in the way that you wear it. Now begin placing the combs in along the lines of the undulations. Place them by combing down with them from the part, then thrusting them up and sideways with a swift movement. This catches the comb in your hair and helps it to stay there.

The combs are placed about two inches apart, just along the lines of your regular wave. To keep them in, tie up your head in a wide-meshed veil. In this way the air can get in to dry your hair, and the veil makes the combs tighter, so that they set the wave for you.

Wear your hair this way for an hour or more before you go out.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

The engagement has just been formally announced at her mother's villa, "Kasbeck," Cannes, South of France, of Miss Florence Mulock to Mr. Bertram Johnston of Toronto. The marriage will take place in St. George's Church, Cannes, on March 4th. The bride-to-be, whose photograph is shown above, is the younger daughter of Mrs. Thomas Moss, a granddaughter of Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario. She was one of the present season's debutantes. Last season Miss Mulock, together with her mother, was presented to Their Majesties at the Court of St. James.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A PICTURESQUE EVENING FROCK

Pam has a lot of ability along the line of designing clothes, and she is always helping less talented friends with their wardrobes.

"What are you doing tonight?" I asked her yesterday, thinking we might go to the theatre together.

"Oh, dear, I must go do some painting for a young friend, though I don't feel much in the mood for it," Pam answered.

"Painting?" I queried.

"Yes," answered Pammie, "painting flowers on black taffeta to make an evening frock."

"Of all things," I commented, "It wouldn't take much to make me offer to help you out of such a dilemma."

This was hint enough, and in a minute I had made an engagement with Pam to have dinner and then go to her young friend's apartment to help her on the dress.

We arrived there about 8, and I found an enthusiastic young thing of about 18, surrounded by yards of black taffeta.

She was laboriously binding the scalloped edges of a full black skirt, on which Pam had painted lively yellow flowers, with a few black dots on the petals of each to bring the two colors together.

The young girl greeted us with pleasure.

Then she explained to me that this was the first party frock she had ever attempted and that it was only cause of Pam's assistance that she had been able to make it.

Then I fell to gathering the frills for the neck and sleeves of the frock, while Pam painted the last flower on what was to be the fitted bodice.

I thought the dress so stunning that I have sketched it in my diary, and I am planning one for myself just like it, only in a different color. I've about decided on light blue taffeta with big pink roses, and Pam thinks it will be adorable.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeannette Norton

LENTEN EGG DISHES.

The digestibility of the egg depends upon its freshness and manner of cooking. The white of the egg consists of eight-tenths water, the rest being principally protein and mineral matter. The yolk is half water, one-third fat, one-sixth protein and twice as much mineral matter as the white, such as calcium, phosphorus and iron. The egg yolk is a valuable source of fat-soluble and water-soluble vitamines.

The correct temperature for boiling eggs is 160 to 180 degrees Fahrenheit. This renders the white tender, soft and jellylike and in an easily digestible state. Cooked at rapid boiling point, the white is apt to be tough and leathery and is difficult to digest. One egg of average size is 60 calories in food measurement. Keep the eggs in a cool, dry place and wash them before cooking.

Baked Eggs.

Butter a deep earthen dish and break into it carefully six fresh eggs. Dust with a little pepper and salt and dot with little lumps of butter. Place in the oven and cook until the whites are set. Serve garnished with sprays of parsley.

Nested Eggs.

Break six eggs into separate saucers, separating yolks from whites. Butter six slices of toast. Beat stiffly the whites of the eggs and heap a nest on each toast slice. Make a hollow and slip a yolk into each nest, then place in the oven to cook for three or four minutes.

Hot Egg Sandwiches.

Boil six eggs hard, cool, remove the shells and chop fairly fine. Add pepper, salt, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, the same of chopped capers, a tablespoonful of butter, a level teaspoonful of cornstarch dissolved in four tablespoonfuls of light cream. Heat and stir until blended and slightly thickened. Have ready slices of carefully toasted and buttered bread on hot plates. Fill and cover sandwich fashion with the egg and mask with a little cream sauce or a good drawn butter. Garnish with sprays of parsley.

Italian Egg Dish.

Take half a package of spaghetti and break it into short lengths. Drop the paste into fast-boiling salted water and cook for fifteen minutes. Drain. Have ready a rich, highly seasoned and smooth tomato sauce and pour enough onto the paste to moisten well and then turn into a buttered baking dish. Break six eggs on top. Dot with butter, dust with pepper and salt and sprinkle with grated cheese. Put in the oven to cook until the eggs are set. Serve a little extra sauce with the dish.

Deviled Egg Salad.

Boil six eggs hard, cool, shell, cut lengthwise and remove the yolks and devil them. Add juice of an onion, a teaspoonful of chopped olives, a teaspoonful of chopped white celery leaves, a teaspoonful each of chopped gherkin pickle and washed capers and a teaspoonful each of Worcestershire sauce and catsup. Add enough melted butter or heavy cream to blend the mixture. Refill the egg whites, place them on crisp lettuce leaves and mask with mayonnaise. Garnish with olive curls spread with anchovy paste. Serve one egg to a portion.

We opine that girls in colleges are really learning something these days when tolerance succeeds intolerance, and when individual points of view about individual things are conceded as due and fitting.

The movie of Fannie Hurst's "Mannequin" is exactly what you would expect from the story. Entertaining bosh.

HER OWN WAY

by A GIRL of TODAY

KEAN AND RILEY, INC.

"Now, Mother," answered Mamie wearily, "you must let me do this one thing as I want to. I like Julie Kean and can't you see that what she pays for her room will help to pay some of the bills to keep Rosie at the School."

I was glad I overheard this, for if I knew I was helping Mamie, I would have slept on a shelf instead of a nice bed, and listened to the perpetual growling of a tiger instead of Mrs. Riley's complaints.

When I went to the restaurant the next morning, I found that the "management," which meant Sterns, was trying to change my shift so I would not work at the same time Mamie did.

We'd just put on our aprons and gotten ready for the lunch hour when a typewritten notice was handed to me, which said, "Miss Kean will alternate her shifts with Miss Riley after today. Signed, The Management."

I meekly showed the note to Mamie. She turned pale and then her face was suffused with red.

"Do you think you can take care of things for about ten minutes, Julie?" she demanded.

"I'm sure I can," I answered.

Mamie said nothing more and made for the manager's office.

In a few minutes she came back triumphant.

"Well, that's once Mr. Sterns had to come down a little," was her remark as she put on her apron.

Neither of us said any more about it until we both got home that night and I asked:

"What happened?"

"Plenty, my dear Julie, plenty. Sterns looked at me as I entered his office with a smile that ought to have frozen me stiff. He asked:

"'Why have you left your station?'

"'I have just come to tell you, Mr. Sterns, that Julie Kean and Mamie Riley work together or not at all.'

"'Pardon me, Miss Riley. Are you managing the affairs of this restaurant?'

"'No sir, I'm not. But, I am running the affairs of Kean and Riley.'

"'Well, that being the case I'm afraid we'll have to dispense with Kean and Riley. We did not hire them as a firm, you know.'

"'We're a firm now, Mr. Sterns, and you'd better get substitutes for the hat-checking station where we are. We're leaving as soon as I can get back to Julie and tell her we're being fired.'"

Ard Theis Rejects His Motion Favoring Republican Representation.

DUBLIN, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Eamon de Valera the Irish Republican leader, has resigned the presidency of Sinn Fein, folowing the rejection by the Ard Fheis, or Republican general asembly, of his motion favoring Republica nrepresentation in the Dail Eireann and Ulster Parliament.

BODIES OF TWINS FOUND IN SATCHEL

STREATOR, Ills., March 10—Bodies of twin boys, infants not more than a week old when they died, were found wrapped in a satchel in a locker at the railroad station here, and turned over to Coroner Lysten Howe today for investigation.

The gruesome discovery was made when odors attracted the station agents and the locker was pried open. Inside the locker was found a large black satchel. It was opened and disclosed the two little bodies, wrapped in cloth and apparently suffocated to death, at least three weeks ago. Examination of the bodies indicated they had been no more than one week old when they were stuffed into the suitcase.

The bodies were taken to the coroner's office and an inquiry held. The verdict stated the infants had come to their death "from unknown causes."

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'E CROSSWORD PUZZLE

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NUMBER EIGHT—A CAN OF GREEN DYE.

Old Grandaddy Frog had hopped into Scrub-Up Land, and now he was all finished and ready to hop out again.

Not that he ever needed much barbering! For Grandaddy has neither hair, fur nor feathers to be trimmed, and he has no beard or mustache to be barbered, or a tail to be combed and clipped.

About the only thing that Grandaddy does need is a new coat. But when he's ready to go to the Land-Where-Spring-Is-Coming, he does need that badly. I am sure if you had to hide deep down in the mud at the bottom of the pond and stay there all winter to keep from freezing, you'd need a new coat, too, by spring.

But Rubadub, the fairyman of Scrub-Up Land, doesn't even have to find a new coat for him. Mind you—the old frog gentleman gets it himself! He doesn't buy it, or steal it, or find it, or borrow it, either. He grows it, right on his back!

He just peels his muddy old brown wrinkled coat right off his back and there's a new one underneath, as fresh and green as new grass—and a new white waistcoat also, right up to his chin.

But this year there had been a rusty spot on Grandaddy's new coat. He rubbed it and scraped it with his finger, and did everything he could, but it wouldn't budge.

So he had hopped into Scrub-Up Land to see if Mister Rubadub, the fairyman, could take it off with turpentine or Fairyland Special Cleaner or something.

But still it wouldn't budge, so Mister Rubadub said, "I'll just put a drop or two of green dye on it, sir, and that will fix it all hunky-dory."

So he put the green dye on it and Grandaddy's Frog's coat was fixed, and off went the frog gentleman as pleased as Punch and as proud as Judy.

And that was the end of him, for this story isn't about him at all.

It's about the can of green dye that Mister Rubadub forgot to set back on his shelf exactly where it belonged.

Scarcely had Mister Frog turned the corner by the little secret bush that marked the place where Scrub-Up Land ended and the rest of the world began, when along came the March Hare and his first cousin, Mister Benjamin Bunny, esquire. After that came the Twins, who always went along with the March Hare to help him, in case some of the customers didn't behave well and refused to be spring-cleaned.

But nice old Ben just said, Ts-ts-es-ts-! How time flies! Is it really time for me to get my ears barbered, and my coat brushed up and the mud cleared off my shoes? I'm all ready then. Come on, friends."

"Sit right down, sir!" said Mister Rubadub, motioning to his big barber chair, when they arrived.

So Mister Bunny sat down, and Mister Rubadub covered him up with a big white cover, and then he reached around for the shaving-soap to lather Mister Bunny's ears and nose and all around his whiskers.

But instead of getting the shaving powder, he grabbed the can of green dye, and shook it all over the shaving brush.

He was talking so hard (most barbers do, you know, even fairy barbers) that he never noticed what he was doing, and before anyone could stop him, he had dyed Mister Bunny's ears and whiskers green.

They worked all afternoon, Nancy and Nick and Mister Rubadub and the March Hare did, trying to get that dye off.

But come off it didn't, and if you see a rabbit with bright green ears and a green mustache anywhere this spring or summer, you'll know just who it is and exactly how it happened.

Session Of Quiet Trading Prices Have Small Volume

TORONTO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Prices again were firm on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, and the session was another one of light trading. Outstanding were the gains of 2½ at 57½ in Tough Oakes, a gain of two at 321 in Teck Hughes, and an advance of four at 113 in Kirkland Lake. McIntyre sold ten higher at 25.25, and Beaver and Mining Corporation each one higher at 77 and 390.

Liverpool Prices Influence Chicago Wheat Advances

CHICAGO, March 11 (Canadian Press)—Fresh upturns here in wheat prices today resulted from higher quotations at Liverpool and from further buying by houses with Western connections.

On the upturn, May went to about 7 cents a bushel above yesterday's bottom figures. The opening, 3-8c to 2 cents higher. May 161 to 161 3-4 and July 139 3-4 to 140 1-4, was followed by a decided further gain.

The selling from yesterday's buyers made the corn market easy. Better weather also was a bearish influence. After opening unchanged to 1-2c up, May 78 5-8 to 78 3-4, corn sagged all around to below yesterday's finish.

Oats were firmer, sympathizing with wheat. The opening was unchanged to 1-8c net higher, May 39 7-8 to 40 and the market held near to the initial range.

Quiet Session At Toronto Trading Light In Volume

TORONTO, Mar. 11 (Canadian Press)—Prices on the whole were firm during this morning's quiet session of the Toronto Stock Exchange, though a few soft spots were shown. Trading was again light in volume. Canada Steamships Lines preferred opened with a five point loss at 62, but later recovered to 64, a net loss of three and three-quarters. Brazilian at 92 was unchanged, and Smelters at the noon close of 199 1-2 was 1 1-2 higher. It touched 202 during the session. British Columbia Fishing firmed one at 71, and British Empire Steel first preferred a half at 7, while Sugar was also higher. Twin City softened 3-4 at 76 1-4.

Government's Last Report Keeps Trade on the Level

CHICAGO, March 11 (Special to The Examiner).— Trade sentiment in grains was more friendly at the close last night. It was said that all bearish factors likely to appear for the present have come out and been fairly discounted, also that the markets have been sold out and unless they are down to a level where they will respond to new buying. In the face of all bullish talk there were close observers who predicted a decline in values from Wednesday's advance. To the average corn specialist the market acts sold out. They figure that the large farm reserves and all ther factors are well discounted in the prevailing prices. For several days the market has resisted efforts of the traders to force and hold a lower level of values. With all these surroundings various prices have not yielded to their influences, which creates the impression that they are around the bottom until present holders get tired and sell out. A large local operator who has been bullish of late says he regards the government report as the most bullish ever issued. Those bearish on wheat take the position that the export demand is too small and milling trade are not the kind to make the bull market. The trade on the whole is more mixed than for a long time. There are 84 000,000 bushels on the farms in the leading states east and west of the Rockies compared with 101,000,000 bushels a year ago, and an average of 134,000,000 bushels. Supplies are smallest per capita that the trade has known.

Railroad and Oil Shares Lead List On Upward Path

NEW YORK, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Constructive forces were again at work in to-day's Stock Market, with the result that the general list swung upward under the leadership of railroad and oil shares. Chesapeake and Ohio issues were outstanding features, Common climbing five points to 132, and the Preferred 3 3-8 to 132 3-8, both record high levels; on buying, influenced by the belief that, regardless of whether "Nickle Plate" merger went through, stock-holders were entitled to substantially higher payments on the basis of current earnings. Heavy accumulation of oils reflected an advance in crude prices in California.

FEWER COMMERCIAL FAILURES IN DOMINION DURING JANUARY

184 Listed by Bureau of Statistics—270 in January Last Year.

LIABILITIES MORE

OTTAWA, March 11 (Canadian Press) — Commercial failures in Canada numbered 184 in January, a considerable reduction from the 270 reported in January of last year but an increase over the 177 reported for December 1925. Liabilities of the assignors were $2,388,787 in January last; $2,300,162 in December 1925 and $2,263,489 in January 1925.

Commercial failures in the different districts according to the Bureau of Statistics, compare:

Maritime Provinces — In January there were 26 assignments in the Maritime provinces as compared with 20 in December 1925 and 21 in January, 1925, an increase of 19 p.c., in the latter comparison. Liabilities in January 1926 were about $101.000.

Quebec—Commercial failures in January numbered 80 as compared with 63 for December 1925 and 116 for aJnuary 1925, a decline of 31 p.c. in the latter comparison. Liabilicember 1925, and 86 in January 1925, a decrease of 37 p.c., in the latter comparison. Liabilities aggregated about $841,000.

Prairie Provinces—In the three Prairie provinces, the failures decreased from 26 in December 1925 to 31 in January 1926, and may be compared with 41 for January 1925 —a decline of 49 p.c., in the latter comparison. Liabilities were in the neighborhood of $178,000.

British Columbia—In the Pacific province, commercial failures numbered 3 as compared with 9 in December 1926 and 6 in January 1925, a decrease of 50 p.c., in the latter comparison. Liabilities were about $15,000.

Eczema On Hands For Two Years Cuticura Healed

"For about two years I suffered with eczema on my hands. It started with small scales and then turned to a rash and was very sore and red. It itched terribly at times and kept spreading until my fingers were covered with it. I could not put my hands in water nor do any work. I did not get much sleep at night on account of the irritation.

"I used other remedies without much success. I saw Cuticura Soap and Ointment advertised and sent for a free sample. After using it I purchased more and in a month's time I was completely healed." (Signed) Lawrence Chauvin, West Chazy, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1924.

PROTEST REPORT OF COMISSION ON BRITISH COAL

Miners and Operators Both Object To National Ownership.

OTHER GRIEVANCES.

Withdrawal of Subsidy and Seven Hour Day Condemned.

LONDON, March 11 (United Press).—Miners and operators today protest the Royal Commission's report recommending national ownership and private operation of British coal mines. The commission sought to prevent a general strike of railwaymen, transport workers and miners. It is estimated that the acquisition of proved and unproved coal deposits in Great Britain would cost the state $500,000,000. Miners and operators join in protest against the recommendation that the Government's coal subsidy be withdrawn, while the owners object to the maintenance of the seven-hour day and the miners object to the proposed revision of wage standards.

Officials of both groups were busy to-day studying the voluminous report.

STEAMSHIP LINE MERGES WITH TWO COMPANIES

Canada Steamships Buys the Great Lakes Fleet and George Hall Stock.

HAS NOW 119 SHIPS.

Members of Two Companies Added To Directorate of Merger.

MONTREAL, March 11 (Canadian Press).—The Montreal Gazette this morning publishes an interview with W. H. Coverdale, president of the Canada Steamship Company, wherein it is announced that the merger of the Canada Steamship Lines with the Great Lakes Navigation Company and the George Hall Coal Company is an accomplished fact, and that the agreement with the Playfair interests (the Great Lakes Navigation Company) was signed on Saturday, while that with the George Hall Coal Company was made on Friday.

The merger takes the form of the purchase of the fleet and other properties of the Great Lakes Navigation Company and of all the stock of the George Hall Coal Company first and second preferred and common.

Mr. Coverdale stated that there was no intention on the part of the company to pay a dividend of any sort on the preferred shares at the present time. Negotiations had been going on for about three months to this end, said Mr. Coverdale, but at the time the story appeared some days ago saying that the deal had been consummated the denial of the officers of the company was quite in order, as it was only at the end of last week that the necessary agreements were made.

The deal involves about $12,000,000, said Mr. Coverdale, for which temporary financing has already been done with permanent financing left to be decided on later.

The purchase will add to the Canada Steamship Lines 42 vessels in the Great Lakes and River trade, and this will bring the number of ships in the C.S.L. service to 119.

Steamships directors yesterday authorized the purchase of the Great Lakes Transportation Company together with the dock of the Midland Shipbuilding Company and the 4,000,000 bushel elevator.

James Playfair and James Richardson, the latter of Winnipeg, will become directors of the Canada Steamship Lines.

22 Aliens Have As Much Publicity Claim As Countess

WASHINGTON, March 11 (United Press) — Immigration authorities turned back 22 aliens this year for their crimes involving "moral turpitude" before Vera Countess Cathcart came along.

This number was excluded in January, Labor Department figures today showed. Twenty-four aliens were deported for moral turpitude under the immigration act.

NO DECISION BY MANUFACTURERS

In Accord, However, With Principle of Price Maintenance.

DOUBT FEASIBILITY.

TORONTO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—While unanimously in accord with the principle of price maintenance in all departments of trade, representatives of manufacturing concerns were unable last night to give to the convention of Ontario Retail Merchants' Association any combined decision as to their support of the scheme. After a prolonged committee meeting of the manufacturers, seven firms declared themselves party to the scheme. There is a question in the minds of many of the representatives whether the plans as outlined in resolutions passed by the Retail and Wholesale Sections of the convention are feasible, and whether in cases of dispute they would stand in a court of law. A lively debate resulted, the retailers and wholesalers expressing their determination to carry the policy through while the manufacturers asked for more time to consider the question.

POULTRY MEN HEAR INSTRUCTIVE TALK

T. P. Gleave, of Leicester, Speaks About Young Chickens.

T. P. Gleave of Leicester, England, one of the greatest experts in poultry raising, addressed the local association last night, on "Incubation, Hatching and Rearing Chickens.

Mr. Gleaves' address was illustrated by lantern slides, which made the subject very interesting.

All the stages of development in the egg were shown and many interesting hints thrown out.

Mr. Gleave began by asking "How is an egg made?" He continued by saying that when a chick is hatched it contains as many eggs as it ever will lay. Poultrymen are just beginning to learn that a hen's life of value is longer than two or three years.

"If you want eggs, you must keep the hen on the jump," he said. "That is, always have her busy scratching in the daytime. In egg making in a hen, it takes from three or four weeks to form the yolk and about six hours to form the white and shell. A hen can hold an egg for almost any number of hours. Thus, when selling eggs the rooster should always be done away with."

Mr. Gleave showed slides showing fertile and unfertile eggs in the different stages of incubation. The unfertile egg was still good to cook after seven days of incubation. Mr. Gleave was sent to the Peterborough Poultry Asociation by the Blachford's poultry food company.

Some of the helpful hints thrown out to the poultrymen are:

1—In incubation turn eggs as much as possible.

2—A good green food for chicks is onions.

3—Never test eggs for fertility by putting them in water.

4—You get what you give the hen. She is the most honest manufacturer in the world.

5—Sprouted oats are good green feed for winter laying.

6—Nothing is so hard for a chick to digest as the hull of an oat.

7—Hens must have plenty of fresh air and the floor dry. Fresh air is worth hundreds of dollars to the poultryman.

8—Hens should have plenty of oyster shells and grit in winter, for oyster shells will not grind the grain.

9—Yellow on the beak tells a poultryman that the hen is eating eggs.

10—Sunlight is one of the greatest factors in raising chickens.

PILE SUFFERERS

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why cutting and operations fail?

oD you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID, now by McDermid & Jury and druggists everywhere, that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause, by freing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. Don't delay. Try HEM-ROID today. It will do the same for you.

BRIAND ACTIVE WITH LEADERS TO SAVE LEAGUE

Working Hard To Prevent Present Crisis From Wrecking League.

ENTRY ACCEPTED.

Political Committee Recommends That Germany Be Given Membership.

GENEVA, March 11 (Canadian Press).—With Premier Briand of France back from Paris and in active consultation with other leaders in a desperate effort to prevent the Council reconstruction crisis from wrecking the League of Nations, the outstanding development this forenoon was the unanimous adoption by the Assembly's full political committee of the sub-committee's report recommending Germany's admission to the League. In adopting the sub-committee's report, the Assembly's political committee smashed precedent by renouncing the right to convoke representatives of the German delegation to give information concerning Germany's international status and her desire sincerely to conform with her international engagements.

M. Paul-Boncour, French delegate, to-day voiced the bitterness felt by the Locarnoist powers over yesterday's events in the unofficial meeting of the Council of the League of Nations.

"We thought when we came to Geneva that there was merely some difference between France and Germany over the Council problem," he said. "This has been dispelled, but now we find a crisis threatening not only the Locarno pacts but the League's very life, and the thwarting of Germany's entrance actually menacing world peace."

The Council decided to convoke the next Assembly session for 11 o'clock to discuss the budget area matter and the erection of a new assembly hall.

The Council was meeting in public session this afternoon to discuss routine and non-controversial matters on the agenda. Afranio Mello-Franco, Brazilian representative, called on Chancellor Luther of Germany this afternoon and explained that he was not adopting a hostile attitude toward Germany in insisting upon voting for permanent Council seats for both Brazil and Germany.

PRESBYTERY OF LINDSAY MEETS

Nominated Rev. Dr. Banks Nelson as Moderator of Assembly.

CALLS RECEIVED

LINDSAY, March 11. — At the meeting of the Lindsay Presbytery held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church here, Rev. Dr. Banks Nelson, Hamilton, was nominated as Moderator of the next General Assembly.

The report of the Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society on the activities of the Society, told a story of marked progress during the year.

Rev. Dr. Eakin was nominated as Principal of Knox College; Dr. Morrow of Ottawa, to the chair of Systematic Theology; Mr. Bryden of Woodville for Church History; Dr. Cunningham of Welland, for New Testament Exegesis.

The Presbytery also overtured the General Assembly to pass legislation to enable adherents who contribute to the church's finances to vote on all matters affecting temporalities.

It is understood that Rev. Mr. Scott of Cannington, and formerly of Omemee, had received a call from Kildonan, Manitoba Presbyterian Church, but was not likely to accept. Rev. Mr. Berkholder had also received a call from Morrisburg.

THAWING OUT BASINS.

Harry Evans Has Men Busy Preparing for Spring.

Spring is on the way, at least Street Commissioner Harry Evans expects it, as he has men busy thawing out the catch basins in the streets in order that they may be ready for action when the water begins to run. He said that he had men digging out the creek at Hunter and Downie Streets, also at Ashburnham. He anticipates that this move will banish the troubles that have been caused in this connection in previous years when the water overflowed to the inconvenience of householders in these neighborhoods.

Literature is the thought of thinking souls. —Carlyle.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

M. C. H.—You have a friendly, sympathetic, free disposition, without much efficiency. You have an animated and convincing style of conversation and a strong, well-knit body. You are naturally kind and loving, but are liable to extremes of rage and are very sulky when offended, being quite sensitive where your honor or dignity are concerned. You have a liberal nature and adapt yourself easily to circumstances. While not studious, you are keenly observant and learn readily in this way. You should have considerable musical ability. You will find your greatest happiness and success in life will come to you through serving others, in the service inspired by real love. You should try to control your inclination to take strong dislikes to others without a real cause and also to criticism. You may not think you are given to criticism, but if you watch your conversation closely, you will catch the tendency to comment on small matters in a critical spirit. You will not want to do this, because you are the type who does not like criticism of yourself. Be careful also of what you eat, to keep your stomach in good condition. You were born on Monday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are yellow and violet.

E. T. D.—You have rather a conservative nature, disinclined to embark upon new enterprises and inclined toward the study of the occult and the mysterious. You will be a good judge of human nature as you grow older, and can be relied upon to judge a person's honesty very quickly and easily. You will be a good mixer, and, if you strive to obtain a broad and thorough education, you may stand high in public life some day. You acquire information readily, know an opportunity when you see it, and have a magnetic personality. The service of self will never get you anywhere, however. The success you will achieve later in life will come to you when you have learned that the service of others comes first. You will have to learn to love and to understand people, and, with your conservative nature, this will not be easy. But, in your case, it will be extremely worth while for you to work constantly for a broad, generous-hearted understanding of humanity in general. You can capitalize your many gifts and have a very worth while life if you remember that you are endowed with great possibilities but that you belong to a class that is characterized as among the strongest and weakest in the world. You may easily bury your higher self by materialism and indolence and by neglecting a steadfast regard for perfect honesty and truthfulness. Study yourself for the instant you become aware of your own inherent powers, you may succeed in anything you decide to do. You would make a good doctor or lawyer. Think carefully along the line of your particular talents, select a path in life, then never swerve from it. Marry a girl born in October, January or June. You were born on Thursday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are steel and purple.

NO RESTRICTIONS UPON TRADE BETWEEN PROVINCES DESIRED

Declaration of Quebec Minister of Lands and Forests.

NO WOOD EMBARGO.

QUEBEC, Que., March 11 (Canadian Press).—There must be no restrictions in trade between the different provinces of Canada, declared Hon. Honore Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests, in the Quebec Legislative Assembly yesterday when the question of wood cut in this province and masufactured in New Brunswick was before the House.

The matter arose on motion by Jules Langlais, Conservative, of Temiscouata. Mr. Langlais said that most of the wood cut in Bonaventure and Temiscouata Counties went across the Baie Des Chaleurs to be manufactured in New Brunswick, and he wondered whether something could not be done in the matter. Was it not possible, asked Mr. Langlais, that the leases granted to companies could be re-drafted with a provision that in the event of the wood being sent to other provinces, the leases should terminate? In this way, said Mr. Langlais, the wood cut in the province would be manufactured here.

Hon. Mr. Mercier said that the suggestion of Mr. Langlais did not carry weight. It was too difficult a remedy, and the end of such a project was hard to find, especially under existing conditions. Many companies held leases during a long period of years, and such leases could hardly be taken away on the ground that the wood cut was not all manufactured in this province. It was not well, said Mr. Mercier, that there should be raised a barrier between the provinces, since this would constitute discrimination in trade between the provinces. He cited the Ottawa River case. There were companies which held forest limits in this province and manufactured their wood in Ontario. To prevent the export of the wood from Quebec into Ontario would mean in such cases that many citizens of that province would be deprived of employment and would flock back into Quebec. To adopt an embargo between provinces as suggested by Mr. Langlais, would lead to disastrous consequences, said Hon. Mr. Mercier.

Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Quick Way to Build Up Weight

This new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food, but not until we perfected "Ironized yeast"—which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast Tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore, they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. If you are under weight, do not enjoy good health, lacking in energy and force, "ironized yeast" tablets will pick you right up, and if they fail, you get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Canada.

TORONTO, March 11 (Canadian Press)—Premier Ferguson announced today that Ontario would not go into the scheme to bring coal from Alberta on the basis of the $9 freight rate unless the Railway Board ruled that the coal could not be hauled for less.

HUNTERS HEARD.

Fish and Game Committee Heard Deputations About Game.

TORONTO, March 11.—(Canadian Press.)— The fish and game committee of the Legislature this morning heard requests and recommendations from the Ontario Hunters' Fish and Game Protective Association. The deputation asked that the committee recommend that several new game sanctuaries be created in the older settled parts of the provinces. They also asked further protection for partridge and pheasants.

TRUCKS COLLIDE.

Broken Lamps and Radiator Extent of Damage.

Shortly before five o'clock yesterday two trucks were the principals in an accident on Charlotte street. The damage done was to one car, and consisted of broken headlamps and radiator.

W. Minicolo was proceeding east. He slowed up in order to pass over a lateral rut in the street, when W. G. Morrisey, driver of the Lindsay Pure Bread truck, crashed into the rear end of the vehicle.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

PATSY RUTH MILLER Charming Screen Star Notice her beautiful hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified Cocoanut oil shampoo, which is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

FRIDAY, MARCH 12.

Although the predominant sidereal operations point to a lively and in many respects a successful day, yet there are signs of complications and disquieting conditions. These may be due to intrigue or treachery, for which it would be well to be prepared. Contracts and all writings should be signed with more than ordinary prudence. There may be some delays or postponements, possibly chargeable to a lowered physical condition, or to mental depression or suspicion.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a lively year, with much stirring, but they will be beset by peculiar conditions, probably through intrigue, suspicions, conspiracy or subtle undermining. With caution affairs may be turned in the right direction. Care for the health. A child born on this day will have many enterprising qualities and will succeed in employment, but it will be inclined to intrigue and subtilty. It will have a peculiar nature requiring much wise direction.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

It is with pleasure that I take the opportunity, along with so many others, to speak a few words of encouragemest, also to give my mite, and become a real member if a live association, even though the hardest pull seems to be over.

The association has grown from a small beginning, which was started by a few of the best citizens, who have since passed away, which today has become a large one anually, and requires an able executive with vision, such as you have at present. Every citizen of the county should give their support to carry on to a Greater Exhibition.

I have a suggestion to offer, which, I think, would help a whole lot, viz., "If it could be so arranged that our civic holiday would come on one of the days of the fair, and so make a feature of that day annually, for a Citizens' Day of Recreation and Sport. Just as Port Hope and Cobourg have, I am sure that the people would prefer to stay at home, and others would come from the outside to take part.

Give this your consideration, please.

JOSEPH CROWE.

EXTRAS WON GAME FOR PETES SAYS ADVERTISER WITH CREDIT GIVEN EVERY MAN OF CHAMPS

Extra Speed, Extra Weight, Extra Polish and Extra Knowledge.

VICTORY DESERVED

Team Play and Superb Defence of Winners Admired.

This is what "C.S.G." of the London Advertiser says about Tuesday's game:

Peterboro holding London to a 3-3 tie here last night, won the round 7-5 and the senior O.H.A. championship.

London would have had the satisfaction of having the round tied but for the fastest opening counter probably ever scored in senior O. H. A. finals. Collins scored it from the face-off in exactly five seconds of play, and this gave the Londoners a heart-breaking three-goal lead to overcome instead of the two counters, which appeared plenty mountainous enough to start the evening off.

The locals rose to desperate heights in the first period and smothered the Petes under the ice for minutes at a stretch, and they came on in the second with even more desperation, and in 48 seconds had counted another goal, which would have meant a knotted-up round and a chance. But here they were clearly outlucked, for though they swarmed all over the Petes, hemmed them in their own goal area, rained all sorts of shots from all sorts of angles at Dwyer, and whirled and wheeled in a mad frenzied attempt to pare down the round margin, no goals came.

The home customers were seeing the Miners throw their k.o. punch, but it didn't land. Petes' blow did, and out of one scramble, when 14 minutes of the torrid session had ticked away, Bogardis and Ranger crashed the defence together and the former sank the puck in behind Moore as he dived and the disc slithered away from him.

It marked the end of the London fans' store of hope which had risen loyally to the grim situation caused when Collins' rolling puck hopped nimbly over Moore's stick in the first period before the gasp of the crowd which always accompanies the opening face-off, had died away.

Leamy's Attempt Futile.

Bogardis' goal was the giant muffler which caused the ear-splitting pandemonium which had accompanied the precedinging 15 minutes of this stirring, pulse-moving phase of the struggle, to die away to silence in the space of a few seconds.

Bogardis got the credit for this goal which found Leamy stretched out full length across the London net behind Moore in a futile but brainy attempt to keep the goal out.

From then on there was little hope left. Cheering became sporadic as the O.H.A. title receded farther and farther into the distance with each passing moment.

It receded into the dark depths of a jet-black background when Bogardis scored the Petes' third goal. Keeling's tying counter one minute later brought one last sustained roar from the crowd, but it was more defiant than triumphant.

Deserved Victory.

The Petes deserved their victory on the play of the two games and left little doubt in the minds of even the most partisan of London fans why they should be senior O.H.A. champs. They had that extra fraction of speed, extra ounce of weight, extra brush of the polish brush and that extra knowledge of hockey technique and team play which makes champions of teams. And besides all this, they had the poise which the years of experience give—and Joe Dwyer.

Dwyer played sensational hockey in the second period when London threw the best they had into the game and everything but their boots and skates at the sorrel-topped veteran in the Petes' nets. But he had wonderful support out in front of him all night. Rose and McLeod played a sound, rugged defensive game, and the former even added his puck-carrying ability to the constant scoring threat that the Petes' snarpsnooters presented.

The pair were not feinted apart more than five times all night, and both individual and combined attacks were derailed around to the side.

Leamy Comes Back.

London's first two counters were goals that would have come against any defence. Both were featured by the remarkable return to form of D'Arcy Leamy, who had more luck slipping through the undergrowth of checking that the Petes laid down than any man on the London team with the probable exception of Somerville.

The later snared both counters, but it was Leamy who worked in for the shot and put Dwyer off balance. They were perfect plays and Dwyer had no chance against the two-foot rebounds which Somerville flashed in to get.

The Petes' defence, good as it was, failed as the outstanding factor against the Londoners, except as they played their experienced part in the onslaught of the second period. It was the quick-shifting forward line, never seemingly on the defensive but interpolating destructive checking into the London attacks at critical junctures and then wheeling like a flash and in formation for the London goal.

They had an uncanny ability to hunt in pairs yet keep every man covered, and yet with a speed that did not look blinding.

Bailey Stands Out.

Time and again they broke out on the offensive when it seemed that they were effectively smothered. Bailey was more outstanding than he was in Toronto. Ranger dominated there. Collins also looked better than he did on the big Queen City sheet. He was an effective check and engineered his plays smartly. The subs were both good, though they weakened the Petes more than the London switches weakened the locals. Bailey managed to be the outstanding man on the ice, and demonstrated why he is considered the best right wing in the O.H.A.

As in Toronto, the locals did not appear to be at their best, but it was the work of the Petes undoubtedly that put that complexion on the two games.

In spots the team as a whole rose to unusual heights, but those heights were not high enough. Moore had an unlucky night, the end of an unlucky series for the youngster, but he made many fine saves afterwards. The defence never worked much better nor much harder, and had a wide margin on the Petes' pair as an offensive threat. Starkings was much nearer his real form last night than in Friday night's game. He earned a goal in the first period when he succeeded in bumping McLeod and Rose apart, and then skidded to lose out.

All in Vain.

Up front they did everything they knew, threw everything they had into the struggle, and on the play probably had more possession than the Petes' forwards, but were edged by a slight, a very slight and tragic margin. Somerville, Leamy and Lowrey played superbly in the hectic second, and, as a front-line trio, were not shaded all evening. Keeling and McPherson both kicked in with splendid efforts, and at times played some of the best hockey of the season.

But despite all this, the Petes had their margin distributed all over the team and expressed in team-play, and that, with goals, was enough to decide the argument.

FRANCIS OUIMET—USE YOUR INDIVIDUALITY

To my mind a golfing instructor should build up that which a pupil shows him and not tear it apart with a view toward trying to do something which, because it is unnatural, is going to be hard to do. It is, of course, a splendid thing to imitate, but if the imitation is not anything like the real thing it is better not to imitate.

Golf champions are champions because they have watched others and have carefully developed a game they have found to be the best for them. There is always a bit of individuality about champions in all sports and probably more so in golf than other games. Not one of the topnotchers swings the same as another, yet there is a similarity that comes to all if the foundation is being built carefully.

Chick Evans, Bobby Jones, Gene Sarazen and Jess Sweetser play golf in entirely different ways. Would these athletes be the same drawing cards they are if they all performed in identically the same way? I think not. Each one has his own peculiarities which makes his work appeal to the spectator.

MANY STITCHES ON NASAL APPENDAGE

Professional Hockey Player Has Many Exploits in Career.

CALGARY, March 11—(Canadian Press).—Seventy-eight stitches, the greater number of which decorate his nose, testify to the active service record in the arena of professional hockey, of Carol "Cully" Wilson, dashy forward of the Calgary Tigers professional hockey club.

During his hockey career, Wilson has sported the spangles of six different clubs and has participated in many a desperate battle during his 14 years as a paid performer in the ice sport.

Except for his nose, Wilson is not greatly disfigured by the scars. It was largely during his early career that "Cully" was so freely carved about the face. He was a daring athlete, taking a chance in tearing in for goals that other players would not attempt. In 1918 it was reckoned that he had received about 48 scars. He started his professional hockey in the winter of 1912-13 when he went to Toronto from Winnipeg Monarchs, an amateur team.

Wilson has not been able to keep an accurate account of all those who contributed to his slashed and battered countenance but he has figured out something like this, with some assailants missing before 1916: Pitre, Canadiens, two stitches; Cy Denennay, Shamrocks, five stitches; Steamer Maxwell, Winnipeg, four stitches; Feheller, Vancouver, five stitches; Art Ross, Wanderers, one stitch; Gonge, Victoria, two stitches; Monty McKenzie, Kenora, four stitches; Girard, Ottawa four stitches,; Ronan, Ottawa, five stitches and some Winnipeg player five stitches.

Since 1916, he was cut by Lloyd Cooke of Vancouver for seven stitches; Barney Stanley, Vancouver, for five stitches; Dick Irvin, Regina, four stitches, and Crutchy Morrison, Edmonton, last season, for one stitch.

Wilson has had more than a dozen stitches in his legs and besides that he had suffered two ribs broken, knees smashed and shoulder broken.

During his second year with Toronto Wilson abandoned his reckless tactics and retaliated quite frequently when the opposition became 'rough.' He was penalized so often that he became known as the "badman" of the National Hockey League. He received two match penalties; eight major penalties and 26 minor banishments. In addition he was fined an aggregate of $182.

However, that was the big scoring year for Wilson. He led the Toronto club in scoring averages with 22 goals and five assists.

In the fall of 1915, Wilson was a member of the group of eastern hockey stars that went to the Patrick fold on the Pacific coast. He was in the Western loop for just one year, returning to Toronto. Subsequently Wilson played for Montreal and Hamilton. In 1924 he was bought outright by Calgary.

TOMMY MILLIGAN FORFEITS TITLE

Unable To Make Weight To Fight Walker.

NEW YORK, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Tommy Milligan, of Scotland, welterweight and middleweight champion of Europe, yesterday withdrew from a proposed title match with Mickey Walker when he informed the State Athletic Commission that he could not make the 147-pound weight limit of the division.

As a result of this withdrawal the commission recommended to Matchmaker Jess McMahon that he match Willie Harmon, of New York, and Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, Md., for a bout at Madison Square Garden May 7 to determine the challenger for the welterweight crown. The commission said it would recognize the winner as the outstanding welterweight and inform the champion to accept his challenge.

William Ames, manager of Milligan, told the commission that it weakened the Scotchman too much to fight at that weight, and at the same time he said Milligan will renounce the European welterweight championship. Milligan was selected recently as the logical welterweight challenger and Walker had been informed to meet him at the Garden May 7. Milligan, Ames said, will confine his boxing to the middleweight division during the remainder of his tour in this country.

Permission to fight Paul Berlenbach, world's light - heavyweight champion, was denied to Tiger Flowers, middleweight king, in keeping with the commission's policy to force champions to fight within their division.

OUTLAWS SURE OF FINAL ROUND

Defeated Clerks 7-2 in Campbellford Town Hockey.

A GAME TO-NIGHT.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11. — The Outlaws assured themselves of a place in the play off for the town league championship by defeating the Clerks 7 to 2 at Covert's Arena Tuesday night. While the better team won on the night's play the score is hardly a fair comparison of the merits of the two teams. Fox had a bad night in the Clerk net, and he looked very bad on some of the shots that beat him; Wood and Parsons were the only Clerks to play up to form. They caused the Outlaws more worry than any of the rest of the Clerks, and were in on Stewart a number of times, but the veteran outlaw goalie refused to be beaten. McArthur was the most effective Outlaw, with Blue and Brown turning a very useful game.

It was 2 to 1 for the Outlaws at the end of the first period, and 4 to 2 at the second rest. The Clerks forced the play at the start of the third but were unable to hold the pace, and when they faded the Outlaws ran in 3 more to make victory certain.

The Hydro and Clerks clash tonight at Coverts' Arena at 8 p.m., and the winners play two games with the Outlaws for the championship.

The line up:

Clerks: Fox, goal; Flint, r. defence Lucham, l. defence; Parsons, centre; Lebrash, r wing; Wood, l. wing.

Officials, Saunders and Cowell.

A mixture of Cloth Co. and Hydro players opposed a similar aggregation of Junior Colts and Menie in the other half of the double attraction and the Menie-Colts sextette scored an easy win 6 goals to 2:

Hydro and Cloth Co.: Cochrane, goal; Cowell, r. defence; Wilks, l. defence; Hall, centre; Reynolds, r. wing; Reid, l. wing.

Menie and Junior Cots: Goal, Irwin; r defence, Davidson; l. defence, Ingram; centre Newsome; r. wing, Rannie; l. wing, Hume; sub, Hay.

Referee, T. Stewart.

KINGSTON WINS FROM NORTH BAY WERE 3 BEHIND

Strong Finish in Last Period Ties the Game and the Round.

PLAY OVERTIME.

Each Team Scores Two in 20 Minutes' Extra Play.

TORONTO, Mar. 11 (Canadian Press)—Kingston and North Bay played ninety minutes of thrilling and spectacular hocke at the arena last night and the O.H.A. champions pulled out a 6 to 5 victory and a 10 to 9 decision on the round in the Memorial Cup elimination series. One goal divided the sensational junior teams in the two games, the first battle between the two on Monday night having ended 4-4. Pat Patterson scored the winning goal for Kingston forty seconds after the start of the last five minutes of the final overtime period. The game was one of the hardest fought ever witnessed in Toronto. It was a gripping contest that had 6,500 fans on their feet cheering madly from start to finish. The Trappers led 3 to 0 at the start of the third period and as on Monday night appeared sure winners.

But again the stout hearted Kingston lads became fighting giants and in a wonderful tally beat Clarke three times to tie the score, the last goal coming less than a minute before the end. Reid bulged the twine for that mighty goal after Voss had carried the puck in on the North Bay defence. Wick Barclay was serving a penalty at the time.

With the Trappers appearing to be fading badly everything pointed to a Kingston victory in the first overtime period but contrary to expectation the N.O.H.A. champions came on the ice and proceeded to skate the white shirted team dizzy as they did in the first two periods.

North Bay was the best team in the opening period of the game. They outskated Kingston and outgeneralled them. And they held the upper hand for ten minutes of the second only to gradually weaken as their opponents came on in an effort to score. However, the Trappers managed to hold them, and entered the final period with what appeared to be a safe lead. But the team that overcame the five goal lead of Parkdale was not to be denied and the O.H.A. champions gave a great exhibition of their fighting spirit.

RANEY'S QUESTIONS ON LIQUOR PLAN OF GOVERNMENT RULED OUT

Opposition Leader Contended Government Had Evaded Questions—Corn Borer Legislation is Made Compulsory By Hon. J. M. Martin.

INSPECTORS MUST BE APPOINTED.

TORONTO, March 11.—After a discussion in which W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, and Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, quoted at length from authorities on Parliamentary procedure and gave precedents from the British House of Commons, the Speaker in the Ontario Legislature yesterday ruled that certain questions asked from the Opposition side as to the policy and intentions of the Government with respect to the liquor problem were out of order. Mr. Raney contended that Mr. Speaker had taken as his guide in the matter the words of Speaker Lowther of the British House, that the Opposition could ask any question but that the Government was not obliged to answer. He said that the Ontario Government had not declined to answer the questions but had answered them in an evasive manner which was not according to the Speaker's recent decision.

Mr. Speaker corrected Mr. Raney's impression of his recent decision, saying that Mr. Lowther had meant that the Opposition could ask any question except, of course, those which were barred by long custom and procedure in Parliaments. He ruled that the questions about Government intentions were not allowable. Mr. Nickle, during the discussion, challenged Mr. Raney to produce a question of intent in the British House of Commons to which exception had been taken that was ever answered. Mr. Nickle further added that the responsibility of allowing questions was placed directly on the Speaker by all Parliamentary procedure.

Put Teeth in Bill.

Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, introduced a bill which makes the corn borer legislation of last year compulsory instead of optional by the substitution of the word "shall" for "may." It means that municipalities in affected areas must appoint inspectors who have power under the Act to order farm lands and corn fields cleaned up. W. G. Willson of Niagara Falls introduced a bill giving municipalities the right to assess for taxation property owned by public utilities, including Hydro property. Mr. Nickle got first reading for the bill to prevent fraud in companies relinquishing charters of corporation.

In reply to questions, the House was informed that the total amount of fire insurance carried on Government property was $12,000,000, and the premiums paid were $154,000 last year.

Breweries Prosecuted.

E. C. Nixon (Brant) was informed that two breweries at Smith Falls and Fort Frances had been prosecuted on charges of selling overstrength beer. J. W. Widdifield (North Ontario) was informed that eleven 4.4 beer permits were issued in North Huron. John Joynt, the sitting member for that riding, was not consulted about the matter. The Attorney - General informed the House that since the time doctors were limited to 30 prescriptions a month, that only 67 had given more than that number. Mr. Nickle said that when it was considered that there were more than 4,000 doctors in Ontario, the record was a splendid one.

"It is a remarkable record and I congratulate you," said Mr. Raney.

"Don't congratulate me. Congratulate the doctors," replied Mr. Nickle.

"I do. I congratulate both parties. It is splendid," returned Mr. Raney.

Hon. Mr. Henry said that 1,788 farmers had applied for refunds under the gasoline tax and that $19,650 had been refunded to them.

BRILLIANT ADDRESSES MARK LIFE UNDERWRITERS' MEETING

J. G. Parker, of Toronto, is Speaker of Evening at Banquet in Empress.

INCOME INSURANCE.

Many Policies But Only One Service Mentioned in Instructive Evening.

Last night at the Empress the local branch of the Underwriters Association held the most successful banquet since its formation ,members of all branches of the insurance business being present, to the number of more than one hundred and fifty, while representatives from many other professions were interested listeners to the very informative address presented by J. G. Parker, actuary of the Imperial Life, Toronto.

William Boulton, divisional manager of the Confederation Life Association, acted in the capacity of chairman, introducing the various speakers. A. J. Reynolds, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, gave an exceedingly interesting account of his dealings with the first insurance agent of his experience. Embodied in his remarks there were also several suggestions which he thought might be of value to the men in the insurance business. It was expected at first that W. H. Hopper and W. F. Wright, both of Newark would be enabled to speak, but it developed that both gentlemen were wearied by a long journey and, as they had already addressed meetings elsewhere, they wished to be excused. Sedgwick's orchestra added much to the enjoyment of the evening and accompanied the singing, which formed a large share of the programme.

J. G. Parker.

Mr. Parker's introduction was a happy one and met with an enthusiastic response from his listeners. "There are three things," he said, "of which Peterborough should be proud of. The first is the hockey team (at this juncture a wild burst of applause showed that the audience agreed). The gathering of life underwriters here tonight is the largest I ever saw in any city, irrespective of size. Also, the work of the Association in winning the totem pole and the Reid cup prove that there is a real live branch in this city."

Mr. Parker then proceeded to deal with the subject which he had prepared—Income Insurance—and as many declared afterward, presented many new angles which were certain to be valuable in future work. The speaker contended that the lump sum which comes by the usual policy arrives at a very strenuous time in the life of the beneficiary. The widow is usually distracted by her bereavement and was, as a result, incapable of handling the money to advantage, becoming in many cases a prey to wild-cat development schemes. He pointed out that the husband did not give the wife a lump sum of $1,000 for a year's household expenses. Why then should this be done when the husband is no longer available to give advice as to the administration of the funds which are so suddenly made available to her? Mr. Parker then proceeded to outline several plans of insurance which would meet the requirements of families in varied circumstances. Charts which he had prepared illustrated his ideas plainly.

A. J. Reynolds.

Mr. Reynolds said that he had been so many times backed off the map by importunate insurance salesmen that he had welcomed the opportunity of speaking to them, knowing that out of common courtesy they would have to keep quiet while he did the talking. Before proceeding further he paid a glowing tribute to the Petes, and called for three rousing cheers and the usual tiger. The cheers were given with a will.

Insurance.

"I have always found insurance men to be a most agreeable class of fellows," Mr. Reynolds said. "They have to be or they would not qualify for the profession that requires so much tact and such knowledge of human nature, and, while bankers as a class may not be such "Hail-fellow-well-met' sort, yet there is a certain sympathetic relationship between the banking profession and that of insurance. They both follow broadly the same lines, that is, the gathering in of the savings of the people for re-investment in commercial and other purposes at a higher rate of interest than is paid the savers; the profits, of course, going for operation expenses, dividends, etc. There is, however, this difference between the insurance field and the banking. The bank's deposits are essentially of a temporary nature because they are at call by the public. Consequently, the bank's loans must savour of a like character, hence by law in Canada a bank is forbidden to deal in real estate, mortgages or any investments that would tie up its floating capital in any manner that would prevent its ready demand by the depositor. Insurance companies on the other hand receive their deposits of "premiums," as they are called, over a pong period of years and they are not called upon to pay these premiums back until a stated time (excepting, of course, in case of death, the ratio of which is calculated very closely by actuaries). Consequently they must have their monies loaned out on long term periods, and therefore the field for insurance investment is rather of the mortgage loan or bond issue type. I am pleased to say that the history of insurance companies in Canada is a very creditable one indeed and I cannot at the present time recall a single instance of a line company facing trouble in my lifetime. It has been perhaps a little different with fraternal insurance which was not founded on sound principles and you cannot give people something for nothing.

Group Insurance.

"Now, looking at your business as an outsider, I have noticed the growing tendencies recently of the group insurance plan. This is possibly a style of insurance beyond the acquisition of an agent working a lone hand and is possib y more within the line of the district agents or head office, but it would seem to me that in a place like Peterboro it should be possible to introduce the idea into some of our manufacturing concerns or business houses, the low rate of premium being certainly a very strong inducement, besides the stability of employees who are once insured in a group plan to suggest heavy policies. Possibly $300-$500 policies would appeal to many concerns more than, say, the $1,000-$3,000 denomination. I notice that the bank I represent in the last year insured 3-4000 of its employees in this manner, and another large bank also took the same step just about a week ago. It is a principle well worth considering, for the senior men, at least, in the insurance business.

Collateral Insurance.

"Another policy I have noticed coming to the fore is that of collateral life insurance whereby the heads of concerns are insured with policies payable to their company or their bankers in case of their death in order to prevent any loss that might be temporarily occasioned in a business through the sudden removal of an efficient officer. In my own practice, I have had occasion to take three of these policies during the past two years for quite large amounts. This policy also is possibly beyond the general canvas system because the agent has to know the inside history before he can work on it.

Insurance for Married Women.

"There is another class of insurance that I often wonder why the agents do not make more headway with and that is insurance on married women. Whether the agent as a rule has not the winning ways to get it or whether he is too shy or what it is I do not know. I know, of course, the woman when first canvassed will likely tell him that she must consult her husband. It would be a good suggestion to ask her to consult some other husband's widow. Her advice would be more pointed, or, perhaps to avoid complications, tackle the husband first himself. When a wife and mother dies, there is usually a large bill of expense immediately thrown on the average family, generally a sick bill, funeral expenses, redisposition of the children and if a family ever needs money and the consolation that a little ready money brings, it is in a situation like this. I am sure, if these factors were forcibly placed before the average man, in many cases he would not longer hesitate to insure the wife of his life—or I mean the life of his wife, which is the same thing.

Liquor Law.

"I notice you still carry the liquor clause in the medical examinations. I had once thought since the advent of prohibition that this clause would be abandoned but on consideration I think it best to leave it. In the old days when we would go on to the sawdust floor and put our feet on the brass railing and the genial bartender, wiping off the mahogany, would jokingly say, "Well, gents, what's your poison?" we used to think it a harmless joke. Nowadays, when the bartender or the bootlegger, who is his logical successor, says "Gents, what's your poison?" the question is pregnant with significance.

Now I have not attempted to give you a speech, just a few rambling suggestions and remarks on things which you possibly know as well as I do but hearing them from an outsider they might gain, perhaps, a little additional interest. That is always a banker's objective anyway. I will, therefore, now follow the advice of a certain famous orator, when asked by his pupils for the secret to his success as a public speaker. He stated "It is all very simple. All you have to do is to stand up, speak up and shut up."

W. R. Widdess and John I. Allen presented a motion of thanks for the speakers and Dr. A. Moir, in co-operation with Dr. A. W. MacPherson expressed appreciation to the Association for the opportunity of attending the banquet and hearing the informative messages of Messrs. Reynolds and Parker.

Theatre

AT THE REGENT

"HIS BROTHER'S KEEPER"

In regard to "His Brother's Keeper" which is being brought to the Regent Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 15, 16 and 17, as an added attraction to their regular programme, Harry L. Goldberg, manager of the World Realty Company, Omaha, Neb., operating the World Theater, Moon Theater, Sun Theater, Empress Theatre and Muse Theatre in Omaha, known as one of the sherwdest and most successful motion picture exhibitions in the country, to James Lynch, says:

"Having just finished a week's run on your picture, founded on the Typographical Union's Home in Colorado, I wish to say a few words regarding same.

"When you first spoke to me about this picture I was under the impression it might be purely propaganda for your organization, but after viewing it in the screening room I had no hesitancy in running it at our World Theater, which we consider to be our finest house.

"This little picture gave me a very much better idea of what your union stands for and the work that it is doing, and I feel sure that it had the same effect upon our patrons.

"I enjoyed the picture very thoroughly and have no hesitancy in recommending it to any one in the business."

"His Brother's Keeper" is receiving high praise wherever it is shown. Two weeks ago it played to over 30,000 people at Lowe's Theatre in London, Ont., where it had a run of one week. Last week it was shown to great crowds at Pantages Theater at Hamilton. It is highly received wherever shown and should prove a great attraction for the patrons of the Regent Theater, where it will be shown the first three days of next week.

VERA REYNOLDS HAS EXCELLENT ROLE IN BIG RACING PICTURE.

Popular Player Rides Spirited Horse in "The Million Dollar Handicap."

Not since her appearance in "Feet of Clay," which brought her into prominence, has Vera Reynolds had such a wide variety of roles since she became a Cecil B. DeMille player.

In "Without Mercy" she was compelled to dive from a large ship and swim ashore at night. In "The Road to Yesterday" she encountered many new phases of motion picture activity which were new to her—and which she mastered.

Now comes the stellar role in "The Million Dollar Handicap," which will be presented at Regent theatre to-day and wherein Miss Reynolds rides one of the most thrilling races ever shown on the screen.

For many days, prior to her starting on the production, Miss Reynolds could be seen in her riding habit seated on a spirited horse, dashing along the Beverly Hills bridle path and other courses taken by film folks who are learning to ride as well as by those who already have mastered the art.

In "The Million Dollar Handicap," Miss Reynolds finds herself in mighty fast company, so far as jockeys are concerned, but due to her freshness and knowing her mounts, managed to ride and win.

Edmund Burns, Ralph Lewis, Tom Wilson, Rosa Gore, Ward Crane and Clarence Burton appear in support of Miss Reynolds.

But don't think that the picture is all race track material. It isn't There are thrills aplenty—a few peeps behind the scenes of horse racing and comedy touches supreme. In other words, it is a production made for entertainment. Scott Sidney directed.

LARGE PICTURES TO BE UNVEILED

Presented By Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cox To Art Association.

FROM COLLECTION.

An interesting event on Saturday afternoon will be the unveiling at the studio in the Conservatory of Music of the two large pictures recently given to the Woman's Art Association here by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cox, of Toronto. The former, a son of the late Senator Cox, and his wife presented The Grange in Toronto, with twenty-five pictures from their collection, and the room provided for the purpose being large enough to hold only twenty-three of the paintings, the other two were given by the owners, who have some close friends in Peterboro, to the local Association. The pictures will be hung in the studio at the Conservatory of Music.

One is an example of the work of Madame Peyrol (nee Juliette Bonheur), a sister of the famous Rosa Bonheur, and a member of trio of talented children of Raymond Bonheur. Juliette, who was taught by her father, was born in Paris on July 19, 1830. She was an assistant of her sister Rosa, at the Free School of Design, Paris, where she was the recipient of many medals and honors. This picture is entitled "Sheep in Heather," and was one of the favorite possessions of Mr. Herbert Cox's mother, wife of the late Senator Cox. It was purchased by her in Washington some twenty-five years ago.

The second picture is entitled "Turnberry Castle," and is a representation of an abandoned castle, supposed to be the birthplace of Robert Bruce, situated on the coast of Ayr, in Scotland. It was painted by John Thompson, born in Ayr, in 1778, and acclaimed as one of the greatest painters of his day and generation. He was a son of Thomas Thomson, minister at Bailly, in Ayrshire, was educated in Paris, and then sent to Glasgow to studyd for the ministry, the profession followed by his father, his grandfather, and great grandfather. But he went to Edinburgh later and there studied art, proving to be one of the greatest of Scottish painters.

An interesting programme has been prepared in connection with the unveiling ceremonial.

EXTRA FROM POVERTY ROW WINS CHANCE FOR FAME

By NEA Service.

HOLLYWOOD, March 11.—Georgia Hale, the extra girl of Poverty Row, whose flight to fame is one of Hollywood's most glamorous chapters, has been placed under a long-term contract with Paramount that will put her name in electric lights the world over.

B. P. Schulberg and Hector Turnbull, associate producers of Paramount, announce the signing of this girl of "The Salvation Hunters" and "The Gold Rush."

A little over a year ago, Georgia Hale was an extra. She went unnoticed —a Cinderella in the throng applying at the windows of the casting offices.

Then one day a young but ambitious director decided to make a picture. Scraping together what money he had and borrowing what he could from his friends, he at last obtained a sum which was barely sufficient to meet his needs. The total was $4000—one of the smallest sums ever expended on a picture of feature length.

The director was Joseph Von Sternberg, and the picture was "The Salvation Hunters." Von Sternberg, in a moment of inspiration,choose Georgia Hale; a mere extra, as leading woman.

The rest is history. "The Salvation Hunters" has been called the most "successful failure" of the industry. Critics raved over it, but the public turned "thumbs down."

However, Charles Chaplin had seen it. Seeking out the girl he signed her to a long-term contract, and made her his leading woman in "The Gold Rush."

Hollowed out for use as a water main, a section of an oak-tree recently dug up from beneath a London street is estimated to be 300 years old.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. Apply it with the fingers. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

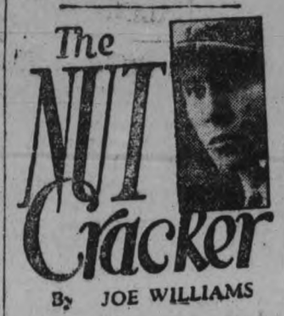
BOXERS THROUGH TRAINING FOR BOUT

Tunney and Stribling Meet To-morrow Night at Miami.

MIAMI Fla., March 11 (Canadian Press).—Gene Tunney and W. L. (Young) Stribling, contenders for the heavyweight crown, today finished training for their 10-round no-decision bout, scheduled at Hialeah Park for tomorrow night. Promoter Jess Baugh said Stribling is to gather in $35,000 and Tunney will get $50,000.

Both Stribling and Tunney declared that they were in good condition for the fight. Stribling in a workout showed remarkable fast footwork, and his hitting was harder than ever before. The Georgia boxer has developed a tremendous punch in his left and his right has always been strong.

Both men are expected to weigh in around 175 pounds.



We see where Jimmy Goodrich lost a fight the other night....Jimmy will be remembered (by close friends and relatives) as the former nominal lightweight champion.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothes and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CARPET BOWLING.

Visitors From Eastern Star Lodge Win At All Saints'.

Eastern Star L.O.B.A. paid a return visit to All Saints' Men's Club recently. The two organizations met in a friendly competition, consisting of carpet bowling, the final score being 44-37 in favor of the Eastern Star.

President Wiggins of All Saints welcomed the visitors, and Mrs. Huffman and Mr. Sproats responded.

At the close of the bowling a social hour was enjoyed by those present, and the event was said to have been a real success by those in charge.

REFEREE NAMED.

He predicts he will be in New York next month after a flight over the Arctic wastes from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen.

Two airplanes for the enterprise have been assembled here.

Her Face Was Covered With Large, Red Pimples

Miss Greta Carlisle, 23 Leonard St., Brantford, Ont., writes:—"A short while ago, my face was completely covered with large red pimples, and it seemed that it was almost impossible for me to get rid of them, as nothing I took seemed to do me any good.

One day I noticed an advertisement of

and I will never regret the day I bought it, as, now, my face is entirely cleared up of blotches and pimples of every kind."

For the past 47 years B.B.B. has been put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A MUCH APPRECIATED FUND
The benefit plan established some years ago by the Bell Telephone Company to take care of employees and their dependents in case of sickness, accident, retirement and death, continues to deal each year with a great many cases. During 1925, sick, accident and death benefits, as well as pensions were paid under the plan in 2,492 cases, and the total outlay amounted to $260,108. Letters of appreciation from employees and their dependents who have experienced the benefits of the plan are among the treasured possessions of the telephone company.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY
Is offered Peterboro folks to enjoy some especially high class music in George street church on Monday night, the 15th. By turning to the advertisement of the Hall Store tomorrow night you will find the programme printed in full. You will note by this that Edith Whittaker MacAlpine is the leading artist, and will be assisted by Mignon Telgmann, Violinist, and Ruth Burt Samson, Pianist.

The "Morning Call," of Allentown, Calif., has the following to say about the Soloist:

"In her recital at Cedar Crest Mrs. MacAlpine gave an impression, not only of a splendid artist, but also of a rich and generous personality. Her voice has a lovely lpric quality of wide range, rich and colorful; her diction is exquisite, her interpretive ability equal to her superb technique. The Old English selections were sung with all their quaintness and simplicity; the Bellini "Ah, non credea" was beautifully done; Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught me," was especially adapted to the flexible light ...s of Mrs. MacAlpine's voice. The song "To hear the Gentle Lark" given with ease and fluency, made a perfect conclusion. Mrs. MacAlpine was very generous wi'h her encores to the delight of her warmly appreciative audience. 1d60 656

REPORT CAUSE OF EXCITEMENT

Rumor in Brussels That American Bankers Have Made Loan.

TRIP POSTPONED.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Excitement was caused in political and financial circles yesterday by a report that a loan of $100,000,000 to Belgium had been made by American bankers on the essential condition that their agents take over control of the finances of the Belgian Congo. The incident has necessitated postponement of finance Minister Janssen's trip to London, England.

KEENE MAN ENTERS HIS NINETIETH YEAR

Archibald Bryve Surrounded By Members of Family on Birthday.

Mr. Archibald Bryce, of Keene, Ontario, celebrated his 89th birthday on Friday, the 5th instant, when members of his family gathered from Toronto, Peterborough and Sherbrooke, Que., and joined in a birthday dinner party, with Miss Margaret Bryce, who lives with her father in Keene, as hostess.

Hearty congratulations were extended to Mr. Bryce by those present, and by telephone messages and letters from absent friends, in reference to his entrance upon his ninetieth year, and he was the recipient of a number of presents.

Mr. Bryce was born in Linlithgowshire, Scotland, on March 5th, 1837; came to Canada in 1857 at the age of twenty, where he secured employment in different parts of Otonabee, and finally settled permanently in Keene, where he for many years carried on his business of carpenter and building contractor.

Mr. Bryce is hale and hearty and in the enjoyment of all of his faculties; he has built up an enviable reputation for integrity of character and retains the respect of a host of friends in the community, where he has resided for so many years.

BRITAIN REDUCES ARMY ESTIMATES

Engineers Concentrating on New Gun and Ammunition Designs.

LONDON, March 11 (United Press). — Progress in defensive technique against gas attacks and the development of a new type of light tank are announced to-day in a memorandum accompanying the British Army estimates for 1926. Britain will pay $212,500,000 for her army this year, a reduction of $10,000,000 from 1925, and a reduction of $99,000,000 from 1922, when Europe still was shivering with remorse of war.

Army engineers, the memorandum discloses, are concentrating on the development of a new gun and ammunition designs.

The present strength of the army as 159,000 enlisted men.

FRENCH DEBT IS UNDER DISCUSSION

Opening of Negotiations Depends on Action of U. S. Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 11 (Canadian Press)—M. Berenger, French Ambassador, and Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, have been in conversation concerning funding of the Fernch War Department of four billion dollars, it was learned today.

It is believed re-opening of negotiations on the French debt will depend to some extent upon the action of congress on the Italian agreement now under fire in the Senate.

MOHER—PARKER.
A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on March 10 at St. Vincent De Paul Church, Toronto, by Rev. Father L. Minehan, when Laura Marion Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Parker, Peterboro, was united in marriage to M. Harry Moher, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Moher, Parkdale Road, Toronto.

CARNAHAN—MALOTT.
In Bridge Street United Church of Canada, Belleville, on Thursday, March 11th, at 11 o'clock, the wedding was solemnized of Margaret Alice, eldest daughter of Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott, and Edmund Hayne Carnahan of Buffalo, New York, son of William E. Carnahan of Toronto. They were unattended. Although the wedding was strictly a family affair, the church was thronged with friends of the bride and her parents long before the organ had pealed forth the opening notes of the wedding march.

Dr. Malott was formerly pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, Peterboro.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Many Useful Gifts Presented To Webber Turner.

Webber Turner had a birthday yesterday and a number of his friends, feeling that they could not let the happy event pass without some recognition on their part, assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Hungerford, 543 George Street. In some manenr known only to themselves they arranged for Mr. Turner's presence and presented him with a bouquet of spring flowers consisting of a cabbage head centered with parsley and celery, a fish landing net for use in his various excursions during the summer and an alarm clock, so that he might get up in time when the different parties called for him.

PREMIER BRIAND IS MAN OF HOUR DURING CRISIS

United States Expected To Intervene in Preventing Disaster.

U. S. MAY INTERVENE.

To Prevent Diseaster That Might Interrupt Post War Rehabilitation.

LONDON, March 11 (United Press).—There is speculation here regarding the likelihood of the United States informally intervening at Geneva to prevent a disaster which might interrupt post war rehabilitation. Europe is considered to be facing her gravest post-war crisis and Premier Briand of France is mentioned as the world's man of the hour.

Reports of economic reprisals already are reaching London. Spain is believed to be ready to boycott Swedish timber in retaliation for Sweden's stand against her election to the League of Nation's Council at Geneva.

GIVEN LAST RITES.

AROUND THE CITY.

The bank clearings for the week ending to-day amounted to $695,734.

The fire brigade received three calls yesterday. Two of them were chimney fires, one at 227 Bethune Street, and the other at 387 Mark street. The third fire occurred at 11 o'clock last night, at Green's foundry, and was caused by some hot metal escaping from the moulds. The damage was very silght, stated Chief Gimblett this morning.

NINE DOLLAR FEE FOR COAL HAUL

Tentative Rate Set at Conference Yesterday—Stands Till Cost Found.

ADJUSTMENT THEN.

OTTAWA, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Agreement on a tentative rate of $9 a ton for hauling coal from Alberta to Eastern Canada was reached at a conference yesterday between Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior; Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways; E. J. Garland D. M. Kennedy, and L. H. Jelliff, representing the Federal members from Alberta and four coal operators. The $9 rate is subject to approval by the provincial governments interested. In the meantime, and until their approval is gained, the Dominion Government will guarantee the two dollar difference.

After the Railway Commission gives a decision on the cost of hauling coal from Alberta, an adjustment will be made between the provinces, federal government and the Canadian National Railways.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST DWYER REDUCED TO CULPABLE NEGLECT; FATHER SMIRKED AT TESTIMONY

Preliminary Hearing Opens Before Magistrate O. A. Langley in County Police Court.

CHAMBER PACKED.

Unprecedented Rush and Crowding—Dwyer Laughed at Adverse Evidence.

At the preliminary hearing of George Dwyer yesterday on a charge of murder in connection with the death of his son, John Dwyer, Magistrate O. A. Langley found that not sufficient evidence was produced to warrant committal for either murder or manslaughter, and sent the accused for trial on a charge of "neglect." Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, who had laid the murder charge on instructions from the Attorney General, informed his worship that he did not consider the evidence sufficient to support a murder committal, and asked that Dwyer be sent for trial under sections 242 to 244 of the Criminal Code.

Mrs. Mary Dwyer, wife of George Dwyer and stepmother of the boy who died, was arraigned on a charge of manslaughter, and the hearing opened late yesterday evening. There is also a charge of neglect pending against Mrs. Dwyer.

J. F. Strickland and B. E. Parks represented George Dwyer, and Mr. F. D. Kerr, K.C., appeared for Mrs. Dwyer. The evidence was practically the same as was produced at the inquest on Wednesday night.

Unprecedent Scenes.

Mob scenes such as have never taken place within the memory of court officials marked the opening of the cases yesterday afternoon. Long before the time set for the opening of court the public gallery was crowded; and when the Magistrate took his seat on the bench in the large court room the aisles were packed with people and those in the rows of seats were standing in a crowded mass. A city police constable was requisitioned to stand behind the prisoners to guard them from being jostled by the crowd that pressed close to the box. The box was at one time pushed off its base so that the door was difficult to open, and the rail that separates the public section from the court floor was pushed over.

Down in the lower hall scores of people hung around all afternoon, unable to gain admittance to the court room but reluctant to leave the building. Some made their way by side sairs to the jury boxes, while others stood on chairs behind them and peered over the top. Another party gathered on the steps outside the court house, and others came and went continuously.

Dwyer Smiled.

Among all the crowding, jostling mass, Dwyer was apparently the most unconcerned. He sat throughout the arraignment for murder with a smile coming and going on his face; he smiled when witnesses mentioned the boys hunger; he smiled and winked at someone in the northern jury box when a witness declared the boys were failing every day; he laughed when a witness said he saw the accused beat John, the boy who died; he smiled when the Provincial Constable declared there was nothing in the house but two crusts of dry bread, porridge, and apples. And along the rail and in the jury boxes sat or stood dozens of people whose eyes never left his face.

Mrs. Dwyer was the cynosure of all eyes as she was led into the court and while she sat in the prisoner's box. She sat composedly through the heaing, nodding in recognition once to her mother, and smiling slightly. Once, when her counsel asked the ages of her children, she answered in a firm, deep voice, her brow knit in a puzzled frown as she eneavoured to recollect the dates of their births.

The Evidence

Only one significant addition was made by Dr. I. H. Erb yesterday to the evidence he gave at the inquest on Wednesday night. In testifying at the hearing of George Dwyer on the charge of murder, before it was withdrawn, he was asked by Magistrate Langley: "Was the wastage in the boy sufficient so that it alone might have endangered life?"

Dr. Erb replied: "A child in as wasted a condition as this boy would certainly be more susceptible to contract some disease than a child well nourished."

Pressed for a more definite answer, Dr. Erb added: "I admit it was getting close to the point of endangering life."

Matthew Lytle, father of Mrs. Dwyer, repeated substantially the same evidence he gave at the inquest, as did the other witnesses. Dr. Holdcroft, of Havelock, who attended John Dwyer in his home at Dummer, added that he had been through the slums of New York and Chicago and he had never seen a boy so ill-nourished. A child in the emaciated condition of John Dwyer had no vitality to stand any disease.

At the conclusion of the presentation of evidence, J. F. Strickland addressed the court, suggesting that no grounds had been shown for a charge of murder. The medical testimony, he said shows that meningitis was the cause of death. For the same reason, no case of manslaughter could be made out. Mr. Strickland submitted also that the Magistrate could not send Dwyer for trial on any charge arising out of the evidence presented, and that, having been charged once with neglect, and the charge withdrawn, Dwyer could not now be again charged under that count.

Mr. Hatton declared there had been enough evidence produced to warrant sending Dwyer for trial on a charge of culpable neglect. He could not see that the evidence warranted a charge of murder, and there was not sufficient to support a charge of manslaughter. "I think the evidence shows death was the result of neglect," he said.

Following discussion, Dwyer was committed for trial under sections 242 to 244 of the Criminal Code, alleging neglect to provide the necessaries of life while under a legal duty as parent to do so. The trial will be at the Spring assizes, opening on June 2.

Mary Dwyer Charged

As Mary Dwyer was led into the court room the two or three hundred women present craned their heads for a glimpse of her wan face, framed in its rather smart, but bedraggled, bob.

She was arraigned on a charge of manslaughter, and the evidence of the medical witnesses presented in the previous case against her husband, was accepted as far as it applied to her. Matthew Lytle, her father, was the only other witness examined before court adjourned last night, and he testified substantially the same as at the inquest and again in the hearing of George Dwyer earlier yesterday. He had not seen Mrs. Dwyer punish the children, he said, and they all seemed to be fed alike and used the same. He explained the difference in the appearance of the children of the two marriages by saying Mrs. Dwyer's own children were cared for by her mother, and were made more comfortable. There was no difference, that he could see, in the children's appearance in regard to feeding.

M. Hatton: Did you know anything about George being hit on the head with an axe handle?

Witness: No.

Mr. Lytle was cross-examined at length by Mr. Kerr, appearing for the accused.

The hearing resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

NOW, HONESTLY—

One of the easiest things to do, is get sore at a cop—

And the next easiest, is to forget that he is on the job for our own benefit.

Autoists knock traffic regulations for a goal, and feel insulted if the law smacks 'em on the wrist.

Pedestrians ignore safety first tips, and blame the lack of protection if they're swiped by an auto.

Which is the reason we have traffic officers—to protect all of us.

The average cop is looking out for your interest—that's what he's paid for. It's to your interest to help him earn his dough.

Lady Boxer Lays Charge Attendant Blacked Her Eye

NEW YORK, March 12 United Press).—Jean La Mar says she is the feminine featherweight champion of France, but in France the masculine boxers don't mix it with the ladies.

Jean had John Russo, a coat room attendant, arrested for handing her a black eye in a cafe misunderstanding. In the magistrate's court Thursday, Russo's lawyer maintained that some one in Miss La Mar's party had given her the shiner and that Russo's efforts were solely those of a peace-maker. The court proposed the hearing to enable the defence to produce witness to support their contention.

ASK ABOLITION OF INCOME TAX

Confiscating Capital and Frightening It From New Industries.

WAIT ON PREMIER.

OTTAWA, Mar. 12 (Canadian Press)—A delegation representing the Retail Trade Bureau of Canada waited upon Premier King and members of the cabinet this afternoon and requested that the Dominion income tax be abolished. The delegation, headed by Alderman E. D. Lowe, Ottawa, declared that one of the chief causes of trade inactivity "is the fact that the present Dominion income tax is not only confiscating capital that is required to extend our industries, but it is frightening capital out of industry and preventing new industries."

DUTY ON BUTTER NOW FOUR CENTS

One Cent Under Australian Treaty—Three Cents Under Dump Clause.

BOIVIN ANNOUNCES.

OTTAWA, Mar. 12 (Canadian Press) — Shipments of butter from Australia within the past few days have been accepted upon payment of a duty of four cents per pound. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, announced that this represents one cent per pound under the Australian treaty and a further duty of three cents on each pound under the dumping clause.

NEW RED LAKE ROUTE.

Easier Trail From Malachi, Ont.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Another route into Red Lake gold fields, which is speedier and easier than the Hudson trail leads in from Malachi, Ont., just over the Manitoba boundary, according to J. B. Simpson, a trader, who is here to-day.

Mr. Simpson says the route lies about half over lakes and half over land, approximately 120 miles. For a part of the way there is an eight foot road which would permit team and tractor haulage, and it makes a perfectly feasible water route in summer. It could be travelled by big freight canoes capable to carrying loads of 1,800 pounds. The distance from Hudson to Red Lake is 140 miles.

PROVINCIAL TREASURER'S BUDGET ESTIMATES DEFICIT AT $1,500,000 BUT NO NEW TAXATION THIS YEAR

KIWANIS SPEAKER.

R. B. Morley
General Manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, who addressed Peterborough Kiwanians today.

Hon. W. H. Price Reviews Finances of Ontario — "Pop" Tax Cancelled.

RESULT OF AUDITS.

Claim of $11,600,000 Net Improvement Under Present Administration.

TORONTO, March 12.—Ontario begins this year the plan to wipe out its indebtedness in forty years, according to Hon. W. H. Price, K.C., provincial treasurer, in introducing the budget for 1926 in the legislature Friday.

This year the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission will pay off $1,470,000 of its debt to the province the first of forty yearly payments of that amount, which will wipe out the whole Hydro debt to the province, which at present stands at $127,198,146.

In 1926 the province will make its first payment of $200,000 on the 40-year retirement plan, a sum much under the annual needs to retire the debt in forty years; but in 1927, Mr. Price declared, the province will make its first full annual payment of $1,488,544, which will be sufficient to pay off the non-Hydro provincial indebtedness of $185,511,454 within the period named. This will mean that in 1926 the repayment plan will be fully under way.

Will Mean Big Saving

In the course of his address the provincial treasurer made the statement that "is 40-year retirement plan would save the province $128,059,165 over the 40-year period.

The 1926 deficit is estimated at $1,500,000, while a surplus on revenue and expenditure account of $2,200,000 is shown for the fiscal year of 1925. The 1925 deficit is a little under $5,000,000, as announced some time ago.

No new taxation is announced, and the tax on soft drinks is taken off. The estimated ordinary receipts for 1926 are $49,360,500, and the capital receipt, $4,588,000. The estimated disbursement for 1926 are $50,859,300 ordinary expenditure and $3,682,300 capital.

"We have tried this year somewhat closer financing than at any time in the past," said the treasurer, referring to the consolidated revenue fund. "Often at the end of the fiscal year there has been anywhere from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 in the treasury. We have, however, this year taken advantage of the low rate of interest for short-date money and placed entirely temporary loans. This has enabled us to use the moneys which we had on hand, and at the same time, to save a considerable amount on our interest rates, our new money this year being borrowed on a temporary basis averaged about 4½ per cent. The saving accomplished ran to about $250,000."

Makes Comparisons

"In 1923 the province received $25,776,320.86, whereas it paid out $35,322,429.67. This means that exclusive of interest payments and receipts the province paid out $9 546,108.81 more than it received. This was the condition of affairs as far as ordinary revenue was concerned when this government came into office.

"In 1924, the first year of the present administration, the figures were: Revenue, $30,819,715.23; expenditure, $32,692,970.45; a shortage of revenue of $1,873,261.22.

"If you will turn now to the year 1925, you cannot help but be struck with the tremendous improvement that has been made. The revenue

TO CALL LYONS ABOUT BUSINESS DONE BY FIRM

Public Accounts Committee Is To Probe Accounts With Government.

RANEY'S SURPRISE.

Progressive Leader Says He Is On Trail of More "Legals."

TORONTO March 12 Canadian Press).—W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, sprung a surprise on the public accounts committee of the legislature this morning when he claimed to be on the trail of some more of the "legals" or $1,000 bills which were so prominent in political history a couple of years ago.

He claimed that a now defunct publication known as "Rural Canada," in a special edition in October, 1919, published an advertisement which was paid for by a Conservative Asociation. "The advertisement cost $5,000, and was paid for by a cheque for $2,500, two $1,000 bills and $500 in smaller bills," said Mr. Raney.

A. W. Gray (Conservative, Simcoe) also objected. Mr. Raney agreed to leave his motion calling a certain witness in connection with the matter over until the next meeting.

There was a raft of motions put in concerning the relations of the Lyons Fuel and Supply Company of which Jas. Lyons M.L.A., former minister of lands and forests, is president, with government contractors and others.

W. Finlayson (Conservative) moved that the firm of Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, chartered accountants, be retained to investigate the Lyons firm accounts as far as they relate to the Ontario Government and report to the committee. The motion carried. A motion by the same member calls Jas. Lyons as a witness for the next meeting, and also a dozen others connected with the Lyons firm, Northern Ontario construction companies and the department of lands and forests.

The committee voted on the question as to when Mr. Lyons should be called, Mr. Sinclair moving that the next meeting should be on Monday night, while Mr. Finlayson thought Wednesday morning soon enough. Sinclair persisting, Finlayson moved an amendment to meet on Wednesday, which was carried by 22 votes to 10. In pressing for the meeting on Monday night, the Liberal leader said he was prepared to examine Mr. Lyons immediately. Questions concerning the Lyons company had been asked in the legislature three weeks and, therefore, there was no reason for delay.

Mr. Lyons said he wanted to get some papers from Sault Ste. Marie. He expected to be subjected to close questioning and therefore, wanted to familiarize himself with the business with which he had not been in touch with for some time. The vote on Finlayson's amendment was then taken.

Mr. Sinclair in motions presented asked that the following men be called to testiiy before the committee in connection with the Lyons enquiry: Mr. Lyons; E. L. Bedford, Sault Ste. Marie; H. D. McNamara and George A. McNamara of the McNamara Construction Company, Sault Ste Marie; and the president and secretary of the Walsh Construction Company of the same city. These men will be required to testify regarding specific incidents in the Lyons administration.

In connection with his motion to investigate the payment of $5,000 to "Rural Canada," for an advertisement inserted by a Conservative organization, Mr. Raney wishes to call the following to give evidence: S. Squire, deputy minister of highways; F. W. Harris, W. Stewart, G. L. Dyer, R. G. Shenstone, W. J. Clysdale and A. N. Nash. The motion will be considered at the next meeting.

Alex. Lewis (Conservative, North Toronto) was chosen chairman of the committee for this year.

Fewer Protests Against Nudity on German Stage

NEW YORK, March 12. Canadian Press. — Complete female nudity on the stage causes less protest from German theatregoers than when the actresses are three quarters or seven-eighths nude, Dr. Albrecht Claus, head of the Berlin police, said to-day on his arrival on the liner Bremen.

"When women wore very little clothing we received many complaints," he said. "Since they are appearing with no clothes at all we have received very few complaints; women appear to be as interested as men in the female form as presented in some of the Berlin theatres."

BITTER BATTLE OVER DRY LAWS

Straw Vote Favors Wets, But Dry Leader Belittles Its Value.

LIQUOR IN CAPITOL.

NEW YORK, Mar. 12 (Canadian Press) — Sentiment for and against modification of the United States Prohibition Law yesterday brought the following developments:

A national poll conducted by newspapers shows a strong feeling to date for modification and light wines and beer.

Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel general for the Anti-Saloon League, told a radio audience straw ballots are useless as a straw hat in a blizzard "and that only a minority of the people wanted beer and wine."

Senator Blease, Democrat, South Carolina, charges liquor is sold daily under the very dome of the capital" and is willing to prove it.

Dry leaders appealed for a conference with President Coolidge in connection with their plan to stem wet sentiment.

The United States Senate turned over to a sub committee suggestions for a national prohibition survey.

United States Attorney Buckner of New York reiterated his demand for a state referendum on beer and wines.

A bitter battle is impending in the New York state legislature over prohibition enforcement legislation.

Banishment from Congress of members who drink in violation of the Volstead Act would leave no quorum, in the expressed opinion of Congressman La Guardia, of New York.

SPECIAL TRAIN TO BE ARRANGED

So That Petes Can Return Early Saturday To Receive Plaudits of Fans.

TRIP TO TORONTO.

If 115 fans express their willingness to go, there will be a special train to Toronto for the game on Saturday afternoon, and it will be possible for the Petes to return home on Saturday evening. If no special is run they will have to wait for the train which arrives here at 1.50 a.m., which will be rather too late for a reception.

As it is the earnest desire of every fan in Peterboro that the players should be given a reception in keeping with the great honor they have won for Peterboro, there should be no difficulty in arranging for this train. The Burghers feel that they were outlucked at Niagara Falls last night, as they had most of the play, and promise to turn the tables at the arena to-morrow, providing a game that will be well worth the trip.

Tickets for the game are on sale at McLeod's and Bond's drug stores, and hockey fans are asked to get them to-night or the first thing in the morning so that there will be time to arrange for the train.

The game is called for 3 o'clock, and the special would leave about 12.30, returning to the city about 9.00.

TWO CHILDREN GIVE EVIDENCE FOR CROWN IN CASE AGAINST STEPMOTHER, MRS. MARY DWYER

Kathleenu and Nellie Dwyer Admit They Were Sometimes Hungry.

"NEGLECT" ONLY.

Accused Breaks Down As Her Hard Work Is Admitted By Girl.

The manslaughter charge against Mrs. Mary Dwyer in connection with the death of John Dwyer, 12-year-old Dummer boy, was dropped by the Crown today, and it is probable that she will be committed for trial on a charge of neglect as was her husband yesterday.

The conditions in the house were the saddest that have ever come before the courts of Ontario, F. D. Kerr, K.C., said, pressing for dismissal.

Theer was not so great a crowd present today, and the spectators had a greater proportion of city people than yesterday. Much better order was maintained, the gossiping of yesterday evening being prohibited and even a crying child being expelled.

The feature of the day was the examination of Kathleen and Nellie Dwyer, 15 and 13 years respectively, step daughters of the accused. They told of being hungry and unable to get enough food at regular meals in the Dwyer house. They also told of seeing th boys beaten at times.

Magistrate O. A. Langley presided, and the case was conducted for the Crown by Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., assisted by Provincial Police Inspector A. B. Boyd of Toronto. F. D. Kerr, K.C., represented Mrs. Dwyer, and B. E. Parks, who is assisting J. F. Strickland in defending George Dwyer, watched the case.

Kathleen Dwyer

The first witness called was Kathleen Dwyer the 15 year old stepdaughter of Mrs. Dwyer. Magistrate Langley asked the girl if she knew what an oath was and the witness answered "no."

Magistrate: You know what it is to speak the truth?

Witness: Yes.

Magistrate: Do you know what would happen to you if you did not speak the truth.

Witness: I would not go to heaven.

Magistrate Langley then administered the oath.

In answer to the Crown Attorney witness said that she lived with Mrs. Matthew Lytle. All the family used to live there, but she stayed on when they left. Witness said that she used to visit her father's place once in a while. In answer to the Crown Attorney she said that her brother John had come over to Lytle's for some oats about two weeks before he took sick. He stayed for dinner when he came for the oats. Witness stated that the stepmother gave John a licking for staying. The Crown Attorney asked witness what the stepmother licked the boy with. Witness replied "a gad."

Crown Attorney: A dry or green one.

Witness: I think it was a green one.

Witness stated that the stepmother struck the boy any place at all and that he cried as if he was getting murdered.

Crown Attorney: Did you see your stepmother in the presence of Mrs. Lytle.

Witness: Both Mr. and Mrs. Lytle

Billion and Half Due On Auto Instalments In U.S.A.

NEW YORK, March 12. — The American people at present owe a billion and a half dollars in instalment payments on automobiles, an average of almost $15 for every man, woman and child in the country.

More than three billion dollars' worth of new cars were sold on credit in 1925, according to a survey made by C. C. Hanch, manager of the National Association of Finance Companies. The sale of used cars reached one third that sum, he said.

About three-fourths of all cars sold are bought on deferred payments, the survey shows.

ALLIES DISCUSS LEAGUE TROUBLE WITH GERMANY

Issue Communique After Session Saying Suggestions Had Been Made.

TO MEET AGAIN.

Participants Give Impression That Situation is Now Brighter.

GENEVA, March 12. — (Canadian Press.) — Representatives of the Allied Powers and Germany met for two hours to-day and discussed the difficulties which have arisen over the plan for Germany's admission to the League of Nations and elevation to the League Council.

At the end of the sesion, a communique was issued, stating that various suggestions had been made by one side or another and that the delegates would meet again after a time for reflection. The participating statesmen gave the impression that the situation was brighter.

Trouble With Sweden.

The controversial situation over the League Council became further envenomed late last night when Sir Austen Chamberlain issued a statement denying that he had used menacing language toward M. Unden, the Swedish Foreign Minister, in the Council session yesterday.

The British delegation apparently tried to induce M. Unden last night to make a public repudiation of the reports emanating from Swedish circles that the British Foreign Secretary had attempted to intimidate him.

M. Unden merely issued a laconic communique, in which he confined himself to saying that he had not authorized any statement to the press.

PARIS FOLLOWS GENEVA CRISIS FEARING LEAGUE COLLAPSE AND SEEING BRIAND FALL AS RESULT

Veteran Premier's Ninth Cabinet Unlikely to Survive Failure at Geneva.

PRESS COMMENTS.

Peace Structure Tottering From Disagreement That May Not Be Settled.

PARIS, March 12.—The political world of France, with Premier Briand away in Geneva, had its eyes turned towards Switzerland last night. The friends of M. Briand feel that his presence at the League Council is the silver lining in the cloud which menaces French internal politics. His enemies exult in the thought that should M. Briend fail at Geneva his ninth cabinet will probably fall on his return. Thus, for the first time in the history of the third republic the fate of the French cabinet hinges on negotiations at Geneva.

M. Caillaux in an interview on Thursday explained that he had refused the portfolio of minister of finance because, in order to obtain satisfactory results, the minister of finance must also be premier. He declared he had a finance plan so comprehensive that it had gone beyond the frontiers of the ministry of finance and even national territory, and upon it would depend the entire mechanism of public life.

Mortal To League.

"Will M. Briand save the League of Nations in peril?" asks the Intransigant, shifting the gravity of the situation from Paris to Geneva.

The Temps is of the opinion that the crisis may prove mortal to the league, but that France will survive, because the whole policy of peace was in danger and the world was not yet ripe for the policy of the Geneva and the spirit of Locarno.

The Journal Des Debats says the signatories of the Locarno agreement concluded peace for only part of Europe, overlooking the rest of the world, from which they were now trying to obtain acceptance.

Thus there has been relief from French internal political strife, with the international questions now being discussed at Geneva taking the upper hand.

PROVINCIAL TREASURER'S BUDGET ESTIMATES

for 1925 rose to $36,417,479.84, while the expenditure was $34,224,002.72. This actually meant a surplus of $2,193,477.12.

"In short, these figures show that, from the last year of the previous administration the ordinary revenue of the province changed from a deficit of over $9,500,000 to a surplus of nearly $2,200,000, a change for the better of over $11,700,000.

"Members will readily say that if we have a surplus of ordinary collectable revenue over expenditure, then how can we still have a deficit of around $5,000 000? The reason for this is that the interest bill of the province occasioned by the increase in our debt caused more particularly by the expenditure on roads, which have been non-revenue producing as far as the province is concerned as more than counterbalanced what we have otherwise saved."

Mr. Price, stressing the importance of finding a way to deal with the public debt and have it retired over a fixed period of years, pointed out that the interest deficits in 1923, 1924, and 1925 were $5,176,816, $6,452,384 and $7,052,852 respectively.

"The interest bill is to a certain extent beyond control except as it may be altered by reduced capital expenditure. When, however, it comes to the receipts from taxes and the moneys paid out to run the province for the year, then I think it is fair for the government to take credit for the improved financial conditions.

Points to Improvement

"Where we collected over $25,500,000 in 1923 and nearly $36,500,000 in 1925, the figures speak for themselves. This means an improvement of nearly $11,000,000 in the collection of revenue. It means an improvement of between $8 500,000 and $9,000,000 excluding any new taxation it means at the same time that this was done without increasing our ordinary expenditure over the year 1923. In fact, our ordinary expenditure is over $1,000,000 less in 1925 than it was in 1923, notwithstanding the fact that we have had to institute aduits, maintain prosecuions, improve administration and reuild many of the public services, while an intensive collection of revenue was being established. This has been done also at a time when the general business of the country had reached its lowest ebb. If the province is favored with improved business, then the reevnue of the province could probably be further increased without putting on new taxation.

"When the present government came into power they adopted an accurate system of public accounting and charged a great many things against ordinary expenditure that had previously been placed as a part of capital expenditure. This system showed the following deficits—Drury regime: 1920, $2,988,428; 1921, $3,654,114; 1922, $2,662,060; 1923, $15,195,226 making a total of deficits for the previous administration of $24,499,828.

"This was a very marked change, because it had been claimed that there had been the following surpluses: 1921, $681,789.41; 1922, $1,064,325.26.

"The present administration has gone on to still further tighten up the accounting, and quite a number of other items of expenditure have been changed from capital to ordinary. This has made it extremely difficult for us to make as good a showing as our efforts entitle us to have.

"In this connection it is interesting to note that if the present government had framed their public accounts on the same basis as the Drury administration did for 1922, instead of having a deficit today of over $5,000,000, it would have been down to less than $1,000,000.

Additions to Public Debt

Mr. Price gave the following comparative figures showing the net addition to the public debt upon which no interest is received: 1923, $37,775,837; 1924, $16,315,458; 1925, $12,825,376.

"The fact that there is a deficiency on capital account plus the deficit in each of the years 1923, 1924 and 1925, adds to our interest bill just in proportion to the amount," said Mr. Price, pointing out that the interest on the above amounts at 5.30 per cent would mean $2,002,075, $864,729 and $679,745.

The province, on the advice of the finance controller, did not take up any succession duty free bonds during the year, said the treasurer. The price to be paid for them would only yield the province a little better than 3 per cent. and money would have to be borrowed to buy in the bonds at an interest rate of 5 per cent. The loss to the province during the balance of the life of the bonds would probably be more than any saving that could be effected by taking in the bonds.

Referring to the provincial savings offices, the treasurer reported a surplus of $100,578. At the end of the fiscal year the deposits totalled $19,220,000 as compared with $22,013,000 the previous year, which he considered was a very favorable showing inasmuch as the rate of interest had been reduced from four to three per cent.

Under the agricultural development board there was loaned out to farmers the sum of $9,684,170, as compared with $7,206,442 a year ago.

Provincial Roads

From 1915 to 1925 the province has spent $110,933,615 on provincial, county and township roads, colonization roads and roads in Northern Ontario. Repayment from counties and townships and subsidies from the dominion government totalled $16,122,689, leaving a total net expenditure of $94,810,926, which should be retired over the life of the road.

The total requirements this year for roads was estimated by the treasurer at $10,569,911. The revenue to offset this would be motor and truck license fees, $5,638,933, and gasoline tax $1,074,434, a total of $7,613,427. During last year receipts had been about $1,000,000 short of requirements and no sinking fund had been provided.

"I am hoping next year that our full year's revenue from the gasoline tax will bring us another $1,400,000, and that the licenses may increase this a further $300,000. This would leave us $700,000 to apply on a sinking fund. Of course, we must remember that it may be required that there be more expenditure on the maintenance of roads next year as more of the trunk highways are getting old and will require more attention. It will also follow next year that the roads constructed in the present fiscal year will require some repair and attention. It is further quite evident that it wil be a number of years before we have sufficient revenue to carry our roads and at the same time provide a fair sinking fund to retire the bonded indebtedness.

"There is nothing more important than the retirement of the public debt," said Mr. Price, outlining the report of the special committee which had been appointed to bring in a feasible plan for the retirement of the public debt over forty years. This committee, said the treasurer, are now about ready to report and he hopes to lay their recommendations before the house in a few days.

How Debt Has Increased

Mr. Price gave the following figures on the growth of the funded debt.

"In 1916, the funded debt stood at $52,000,000, and we paid in interest about $2,000,000; in 1919, the debt stood at $81 000,000, and we paid in interest about $3,000,000; in 1923, the debt stood at $255,000,000, and we paid in interest about $12,5000,00; in 1925, the debt stood at $277,000,000, and we paid in interest about $15,000,000.

"In each case of course, there was a floating temporary debt which had not been funded. As a matter of fact, out total debt today, less bonds held in sinking fund, runs about $319,000,000, and the interest paid last year was $17,250,000. In 1923, the actual debt was probably $25,00,000 more, and the interest had reached $13,500,000.

"With such a tremendous debt what provision have we made for its retirement I am not going into an extensive record of these sinking funds except to say that in 1925 they stood as follows: Hydro-Electric sinking fund investment deposits $4,812,000; sterling inscribed stock sinking fund, $1,927,063; general sinking fund, $6,077,100; a total sinking fund of $12,86,163. This sinkig fund established today is 4.626 per cent of the funded debt of the province.

"I doubt whether the sinking fund provision by the province was necessary on the sums advanced to the Hydro, but it seems unfortunate that the province wet along at such a tremendous rate without consideration of the retirement of the debt.

"Admiting the desirability of providing sufficient funds yearly from the ordinary revenues to reduce the capital debt, what is the best scheme for accomplishing this end? The committee have given very careful consideration to the three methods which might be adopted, namely: First sinking fund plan; second, instalment serial method; third, instalment annuity method.

Commenting on the audits undertaken, Mr. Price said that proper cash books have been installed in the offices and these have to be balanced mothly. Greater efficiency pertains throughout the whole service in regard to the collection of revenue.

Collections Increased by Audit.

"The special audit conducted in the highways' department was fruitful of good results. At the time these audits were undertaken, various municipalities were in arrears over $4,000.000 without any penalty attached for non-payment. The accounts of the department were in a very bad shape and, owing to the destruction of vouchers, a new system had practically to be installed. This new system, and the work entailed, has convinced the provincial auditor that the province actually made it posible to collect $1,000,000 which would otherwise have been lost through lax book-keeping and the billing of the municipalities.

"In the treasury department the collection of corporation taxes had never been audited, but, through the careful checking of corporation returns and audits, the pdeartment has been able to collect additional sums over $40 000."

A partial list of other monies which Mr. Price had no doubt came in on account of audits totalled $250,719.

Discussing taxation he said that when state or provincial taxes were compared, Ontario's taxes per capita are only $5.16 as compared with $15.86 in Australia and $8.51 in the United States. "It will be noted in this connection that the provinces in Canada have given to the municipalities a tremendous field of taxation. The result is that they collected $23.33 per capita over four times as much as is collected by the province."

Declaring that the Government has been considering the possibility of eliminating double taxation, Mr. Price said: "The elimination of double taxation will mean some immediate loss of revenue but it is felt that an equitable treatment of the taxpayer will tend to do away with avoidance and evasion of the tax and that the immediate loss of revenue would be ultimately overcome."

No New Taxation.

Announcing that there is to be no new taxation, Mr. Price said: "The Government have been waiting for a turn of the tide, the betterment of business conditions in Canada and throughout the province. We have hesitated to place any additional taxation, but have rather been feeling that good business conditions would bring somewhat increased revenue in the various departments."

The gasoline tax has been a very productive one, said Mr. Price. In a full year it is anticipated that there would be collected about $3,400,000. For a little over five months of the past period of the year, there was collected about $2,003,000. The collection on this tax up to January 1, amounts to $2,500,000 and there are still four months to go.

The luxury tax on wines, beers, and carbonated drinks for a period of five months, brought in the sum of $375,000. The tax on carbonated drinks produced somewhat over $80,000.

"We have decided to abandon the tax on carbonated drinks. This is done partly on account of the small revenue received and the extreme difficulty found in collecting this tax."

MOON GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Jury Deliberates Six Hours Before Arriving at Verdict.

SENTENCE DEFERRED.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., March 12. — Canadian Press. — "Guilty of manslaughter" was the verdict returned by the Assizes Court Jury yesterday evening against David Moon, in connection with the shooting of Clayton McWilliams and John McGie, in a drug store here, on April 6th.

Moon had been tried on a charge of murder. The jury deliberated for six hours on the evidence. Sentence on the prisoner was deferred by Justice to Kelly till Saturday morning.

FREEMASONS' TOUR HAS BEEN PLANNED

Will Make Month's Journey To British Isles This Summer.

A thirty day summer holiday embracing an ocean trip and a tour of the British Isles has been planned for Freemasons and members of their families, from North America.

Leaving Montreal July 9 on the Anchor Donaldson Steamer "Athenia", they are due to arrive again August 7, on the Cunard Liner "Alaunia."

In the interim an interesting tour of Ireland, for those of the party who wish to disembark at Belfast, has been arranged, and the main party is scheduled to proceed to Glasgow and thence tour the Trossachs, Burns Country and the haunts of Rob Roy MacGregor.

Later, a short trip south through England embracing some of that country's beauty spots, and places of historic interest is planned.

After three days in London the party is due to embark at Southampton July 30, for the return journey.

This is the first time, it is claimed, that an excursion of this nature has been planned for members of the Masonic Oder to sail via the St. Lawrence Route.

CARNIVAL HELD.

Burns Bridge Club Had Enjoyable Outing on Carlow Rink.

DOURO, March 12.—A very succesful carnival was held on Monday evening by the Burns Bridge Club on the "Carlow" skating rink. It provided a delightful affair, the ice being in excellent condition, and the numerous varied costumes added to its success. Handsome prizes were awarded the following:

Girls' half mile race—Raymond Armstrong.

Partner's race—Della Tucker, Aleck Carlow.

Hurdle race—Pete Bowen.

Potato race—Roland Tedford.

Darkey's step dance— Kenneth Cavanagh.

Much credit is due the judges, Messrs. P. Bowen, Rae Carlow and Fred Fitzgerald.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD SHEEHAN.

DOURO, March 12.—The funeral of the late Richard Sheehan took place on Saturday morning from his late residence, Lot 4, Con. 2, to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery and was largely attended by neighbors and friends. Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. P. Butler. The pallbearers were four sons of deceased, Francis, Richard, Thomas and Joseph Sheehan, and two nephews, Michael Sheehan and Patrick Haynes. Those from a distance who attended were: Miss Mary McDonald, Norwood; Miss Margaret Haynes, Peterboro; Mr. John Haynes, Smith; Messrs. Patrick and Michael Haynes, Peterboro; Mrs. Michael Towns, Warkworth; Mrs. Patrick Crowley and son James, Hastings; Richard and John Walsh, Hastings; Frederick Barry and John McFadden, Hastings; Redmond and Stafford Walsh and Thomas Roach, Asphodel, and Rev. J. J. Garvey, Lakefield.

The late Mr. Sheehan was a very highly respected and popular resident of the township, and his passing is regretted by a large number of friends and neighbors. He was seventy-eight years of age and has always resided in the township of his birth and is another of the splendid pioneers who helped to build up a splendid agricultural community. All of his children were at his bedside, except his son Daniel of Regina, Sask., who was unable to be present, but who visited his parents at Christmas time.

Mr. Frank Sheehan left on Monday for his home at High River, Alberta, having been called home owing to the illness of his father.

One Of Twin Calves Has Horn Between Eyes

KINGSTON, March 12. — (Special).—On Tuesday, a Holstein cow, owned by Mr. B. Veley of Perth Road gave birth to twin calves, one of which had a well-developed horn in centre of its head, directly between its eyes. Unfortunately it did not live for more than two hours, but the other calf is alive and healthy.

Veterinary surgeons state that it is a very unusual case, and assign the early death to the fact that the horn would interfere with the brain and cause death a few hours after birth. The calf resembled, to some extent, a unicorn and was healthy and strong, being the more robust of the two.

PIE SOCIAL PLANNED.

Pontypool L. O. L. To Hold One on March 17—Pie Eating Contest.

PONTYPOOL, March 12.—L. O. L. 82 intends holding their annual pie social on March 17. Two Peterboro comedians have been engaged for the occasion, and that, along with some good local talent, should assure the people a good concert. Local business men are giving several prizes for the ladies pie which brings the largest amount, and also to the gentlemen who purchases the same. A pie eating contest will also add to the evening's sport.

The lodge held another social evening in their hall on Friday night and a large number of the members and their lady friends were present, and a good evening was spent in progressive euchre and dancing. The committeemen in charge were: Bros. Bert Richardson, Delbert Bowins, Albert McMahon and H. M. Richardson, W.M.

Y. P. L.

The Y.P.L. met in the United Church on Tuesday evening, under the leadership of the Missionary Department, Mr. John Payne. The Scripture reading was given by Miss Ruth Richardson, followed by prayer by the pastor. The program was:

Reading on missions — John Payne.

Recitation—Olive Jessop.

Reading—Miss Lily Barwell.

Duet—Messrs. J. Payne and L. Wannon.

A collection was taken up for missions, after which ten minutes was spent in games, under the leadership of Miss Iva Shaw.

Personals.

Mrs. Jas. Richardson is home again after visiting with friends in Toronto.

By all accounts Pontypool is going to boom this summer if rumors are true. Mr. H. M. Richardson is erecting a new house in the east ward. The building is to be of cement block, and Harry, no doubt, will make it a very attractive one. Mr. Roy Killett is also contemplating building a new woodshed and garage at his residence in the east ward.

Richardson Bros., Chevrolet agents, are also moving their present garage and erecting a new cement block one in front of it.

The Memorial Park Society intends building a grandstand in the park.

MARMORA NEWS.

MARMORA, March 12.—Miss Goldie Jones is spending a few days in Campbellford with her sister, Mrs. John Simmons.

A case of small pox having been reported in this district, many are taking precautions in being vaccinated.

Mr. Harold Nayler suffered misfortune with his car near Bonar Law station on Monday morning, breaking a couple of springs.

She needed more than beauty-parlor beauty

WHAT a forlorn figure she is . . . haunting the beauty parlors . . . eternally brooding . . . wondering, worrying. Where had her beauty gone? Her glorious complexion?

There are millions of women in the world today who need much more than beauty-parlor beauty—who need only to correct that great affliction—constipation. What a blessing it is that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure, safe, permanent relief from this vicious disease.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure relief because it is 100% bran. As it journeys through the body its fiber remains unchanged. Doctors call it a bulk food.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief from constipation or your grocer refunds the purchase price. In chronic cases, eat ALL-BRAN with every meal. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone or with fresh or preserved fruit; sprinkle over other cereals or cook with hot cereals; use in soups, or in the recipes given on every package.

Insist on Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Kellogg's is the original ALL-BRAN. At all grocers. Served in leading hotels and restaurants.

MILLIONAIRE SEEKS ADVENTURE.

The inherent boy in every man never grows up. Millions of them age and die without ever realizing that early ambition of riding off to the sky-line on a spring day in the conductor's seat of a railway freight van.

But here's George Eastman, the Rochester multi-millionaire camera manufacturer and philanthropist, yielding at length in his seventy-second year to an old and persistent urge to vagabond through African jungles with a camera, taking pictures, motion and still, of wild life and of the flora and fauna along the way.

What a human touch that is? It brings Mr. Eastman that much nearer to every one of us in whom still yearns that spirit of romance born of reading "Swiss Family Robinson" and "Robinson Crusoe" in idle boyhood hours.

The business of piling up millions long since lost its attraction for George Eastman, and he has given free play to his keen sense of public duty with subsidies to the university, music, parks and other public institutions.

Now adventure beckons him and the undimmed spirit that sends him forth is proof against disappointment.

SOCIAL INEFFICIENCY.

Isn't it discouraging that, with all the agencies for good in Peterboro, Lakefield, Norwood and Havelock, such misery as that disclosed by the Dwyer inquest could have been possible so near at hand!

Municipal councils, church societies, secular associations, all presumably eager to promote human welfare, and especially to assist and protect children, would no doubt have been glad to share in assisting such a family, in helping them to escape from a poverty which in its ultimate effects is too often brutalizing.

Perhaps no one, no society, in this community was actually neglectful of little John Dwyer, but what shall we say of our social efficiency when such conditions as those which existed in the Dwyer household are discovered—too late?

Every one seems to have known in a general way of the so-called "bad lands" of Dummer Township, but apparently it was regarded as beyond the pale.

This community may feel at least some remorse, some communal compunction that its charity missed such a chance so near at home, while other needs afar off were voluntarily and generously relieved.

VICTORIES COME EAST.

Rarely has Eastern Ontario raided the Provincial Hockey Association's valuables with such notable results as this season. Of the three hockey trophies two have come east of Toronto.

While the only senior O.H.A. team in this part of the Province was carrying off the crown in its series, bringing it for the first time to Peterboro, Kingston captured the junior series, and gilded their new laurels Wednesday night by snatching a one-goal victory in two games and three extra periods from the North Bay juniors, in the play-offs for the Dominion honors.

That left only the intermediate crown to New Hamburg, representatives of the Western area of the O.H.A. jurisdiction.

Our brimming satisfaction and justifiable pride is shared with our neighbors east of us in Jas. T. Sutherland's city. Kingston has an enviable reputation as a hockey town, and its youth of today are ably maintaining the traditions of their series.

Eastern Ontario towns and cities generally lack the material facilities boasted by their rivals in the Western half of the Province, nor are they as populous, but there is a compensating excellence of ability and courage that has been particularly evident this season.

Many of our young go West under the impulse of its attractions, but the East still has its paladius of the athletic arenas.

THE DUMMER CASE.

The Dummer tragedy is before the courts, and now that it is on the way to a full investigation, it would be impertinent and unfair to both prisoners and the crown to discuss it.

But there is one point that has so far escaped notice, that the Examiner believes should be kept in mind. Whether the terrible stories of ill-treatment are true or not, it must be remembered that this is but one instance. There are, according to the latest census, 1,505 persons in Dummer Township, and only eight of them were involved in this lamentable case. There are, in Dummer, several thriving villages, populated with citizens of the highest type. There are on the farms in Dummer agriculturists of hardy stock and high principles.

The entire township must not be lumped in a sweeping condemnation.

Evidence produced by the Grand Jury in 1916 indicated that there exists in Dummer Township a tract known as the "bad lands," and it is here that unhealthy conditions are said to predominate.

If there is such a section, and the present case is not an isolated one, then the plain duty of the people, acting through constituted authority, is to weed it out. If, within the bounds of Peterboro County there is a tract of land unfit for farming, where so low living conditions exist as have been told of during the last few days by reputable witnesses, then the plain duty devolves upon the people to insist that missionary work be done here at home. If, thirty miles from this modern city, it is necessary, in order for the parents to live, that children of tender years go to work in winter in the woods, missing their schooling, it is high time to find a remedy.

Not a sweeping condemnation and a holding up of hands in a "holier than thou" attitude is needed here, but a practical alliance of church and education, law and society, to eradicate the evil and make life worth living for the unfortunately situated people and thrice unfortunate little children.

THE MILK BYLAW.

The members of the City Council were probably well advised to move warily in the matter of changing the milk bylaw. A recommendation that the fee be raised for milk vendors' licenses, and that producers be charged a fee, was made by the Board of Health.

It is very easy to change bylaws to suit factions and re-vamp them to suit the year's mode, but chopping and changing lead to disruption in enforcement and uncertainty for the much-lawed people.

Some of the suggestions made to the Property Committee, as reported yesterday evening, appear to be purely matters for a milk dealers' association. The blowing of the name of the vendor in the bottles, for instance, cannot benefit the citizens, but would only protect the trade.

The difficulty with licensing systems is that the license soon becomes merely a vehicle for the collection of taxes, and loses its character as a governing measure.

If Peterboro's milk supply is impure or faulty in any way, then the Board of Health is in position to check up the erring dealers through the monthly tests. And if the purity of the supply is guaranteed in this way, as it has been so excellently maintained in the past, purely internal business arrangements may safely be left to the dealers themselves, without civic interference.

VOICES ACROSS THE SEA.

After much conversational small beer, chiefly about the weather and prohibition, the first public telephone talk across the Atlantic developed an amazing cynicism, says the New York Times. "The better people know each other," said Mr. Harper of the London Daily News, "the more apt they are to quarrel." Trouble-makers were even then at hand. Eavesdroppers in Berlin made remarks for publication on "the perfect drawing-room tone" and the dullness of English speakers as contrasted with the eager restlessness of American accents. German feminists declared that if they could only "catch the voices" of American women, they would be able to pull off a revolution and emancipate the Hausfrau. It is very sad. Yet it may be noted that the tactful French absented themselves, or at least made no public comment. They have a proverb worth a dozen of Mr. Harper's Shavian cynicisms. "To understand all," they say, "is to pardon all."

Beyond question, understanding is abroad among nations. Progress from the mechanically stuttering dots and dashes of the Morse code to the instant give-and-take of live voices perfect to the accent is only an index, and an imperfect one, of what has been going on for half a century in every sphere. We live in a new world, which as yet we dimly comprehend. The nations are held in touch by ties at once stronger than the electric current and more subtle. If we had "really understood" the crisis of 1914, should we not have seen from the start that the war was "our war"? A few of us have learned that peace also is our peace, but the old spirit of isolation dies hard. Our representatives in Congress have lately acknowledged, though with manifold misgivings and reservations, that world justice is our justice; but through wide regions even that gospel has yet to be understood. In material science we have gone forward amazingly; we have conquered the impalpable air, the imponderable ether. But toward that other understanding which pardons and aids to a more helpful living we have made only faint advances.

Many observers, and among them minds of the best, look to telepathy as the hope of spiritual regeneration. After studying it for a lifetime with keen critical acumen, Frank Podmore put a crucial question. Is it the beginning of a new faculty, slowly evolving, which will put us in close touch with one another and with eternity? Or is it the vestigial remains of a primitive faculty that has been dying of disuse since we learned articulate speech—the faculty that makes every worker bee and their queen a slave to the spirit of the hive? We cannot say with certainty that, even among insects, there is such a thing. Yet this we know: In the new world in which we live, our nearest needs and most sacred fortunes, like articulate speech, have become telepathic.

INFLUENCE OF PUBLIC OPINION.

The influence of the press and of public opinion has been further illustrated by the action of the Attorney-General's Department in ordering a thorough inquiry into the death of young Dwyer of Dummer Township, near Peterboro. The young lad's body was in such a condition of emaciation that the doctors and nurses of the Peterboro hospital, where he was brought from his home, are said to have wept as they attended him in a futile attempt to save his life. Although twelve years of age, he weighed only 27 pounds. It is now charged that he died from lack of the necessaries of life.

The case must not be prejudiced by comment in advance of the investigation; but it is well to know that the Attorney-General's Department has taken the matter in hand with an evident determination to get at the facts.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

There are just as good roads lead into Peterboro as lead out of it.

If you don't think Peterboro is the best town in the world for you, it is time for you to move out and leave room for a man who does.

Honesty, merely because it is the best policy, is a species of dishonesty.

Another link with the past is broken, since the firehorse, Frank, died. So pass the glories of our youth.

Toronto Star: When all else fails France in an international argument she can always stall the issue by defeating the Ministry.

Ottawa Journal: In that manner, therefore, it came about that the lambs in the stock market were fleeced on one of the coldest days of the winter.

Kingston Whig: A small Western college has closed because it could not pay expenses. Perhaps the stadium was too small.

Hamilton Herald: One hundred and sixty-one thousand dollars is a large sum for the people of Ontario to pay for the unsuccessful attempt to bring to justice those who were mainly responsible for the wrecking of the Home Bank.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE COWARDICE OF COMMON SENSE

Many of the most interesting and worthy women that I have ever known have been unmarried. They have not considered maternity as a meal ticket, nor the offer of a home as a bargain that could be accepted.

The old idea of pronouncing a bachelor girl passe is indicting your own intelligence and the spirit of fairness.

The unmarried woman or the bachelor girl understands that matrimony is either the bloom or the blight of happiness.

The bachelor girl knows from the thousands of lessons before her that matrimony is a sea where there are pearls and treasures, or, mayhap, monsters and storms.

She realizes that a fond husband and a faithful wife is a heaven here, but she has also observed that an unfaithful husband and a frivolous wife is hell here.

The unmarried woman or the bachelor girl has the courage to be independent and often the cowardice of common sense.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, March 11.—A few medium to good handyweight butchers sold at $6.50 to $7 a cwt. and one export bull sold at $5.50 a cwt. Rogers and Maybee have two boats next week and will need upwards of 1,000 head for export of which they have 40 on hand. Only about half a dozen butchers' cows were on sale. One cow barely good sold at $5.25 and just mediums brought $4 and $4.25 a cwt. Two loads of mixed butchers' cattle, which arrived late may have to be carried till Monday.

This morning's few calves were quickly disposed of at steady prices. Two real good calves sold at 14 cents a pound and mediums were around 11½ cents.

Four nice spring lambs were bought by Fred Dunn for Wallers at $16 each. Medium ewe lambs sold at 13½ cents a pound.

Hogs close the week at $12.75 a cwt. f.o.b. and this was the price decided on for Wednesday's supply.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, March 11 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.87 1-8.
Sterling cables $4.87 5-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Active buying which appeared to be largely of an investment character, brought about a sharp advance in wheat values today. Traders gave much attention to reports that bordered on the sensational regarding the inferior quality of the Argentine crop as a whole. Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1 5-8 to 3 1-8c net higher, May (new) $1.62 3-4 to $1.62 7-8, and July $1.41 3-8 to $1.41 1-2; with corn at 1-2c decline to 3-8c gain; oats 1-8 to 3-8c up, and privisions varying from 10 cents setback to a rise of 22 cents.

According to some authorities, as much as 40,000,000 bushels of Argentine wheat is of a grade, so poor that the test weight is less than 55 pounds to the bushel. A decided upturn in Liverpool quotations was associated with this circumstance and was a additional influence toward higher prices here. Houses with eastern connections took a prominent part in the puchasing movement, and with offerings light, the market readily moved upgrade especially as a fair export demand for North American wheat was in evidence.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Local receipts on Canadian markets are increasing. American fresh spot quotations are slightly higher.

Toronto — Easy, wholesale fresh extras 39 to 40, firsts 35 to 36, seconds 30 to 31. Only 9 cars of American fresh arrived this week.

Montreal — Good demand, prices unchanged.

Winnipeg—Market steady, receipts increasing. Country dealers selling extras 32, firsts 28, seconds 20. Prices to retailers extras 39, firsts 35, seconds 28.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 11 (Canadian Press).—The local cash grain market displayed more activity today, there being a marked improvement in the demand from exporters and millers. In addition to this there was also demand for oats and barley for export and local account and on the whole a very fair amount of business was done. The trade in car lots of oats was rather quiet and prices were unchanged.

Marked improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for spring wheat grades featured the flour market and it was reported that quite a large volume of business was acomplished. The tone of the market was steady and prices closed unchanged.

There was no change in beans to note, prices being still quoted at $2.45 for choice white hand-picked in car load lots and $2.65 a bushel for smaller quantities.

A steady feeling continues to prevail in the butter market and prices showed no further change. Receipts were 12 packages.

There was no change in the condition of the cheese market. Receipts today were 57 boxes.

WOOLER PERSONALS

WOOLER, Feb. 12.— Mrs. Kate Gould, of Colborne, sister of the late Mrs. Anderson, is spending a few days with Gordon Anderson.

The sewing class, which has been carried on in the past two weeks by Miss Taylor, of Brockville, had its formal closing on Tuesday afternoon. Prizes being awarded to the member who accomplished the best work. Miss Edith Mutton won first prize, a china sugar bowl and milk pitcher. Miss Edna Richards, second prize, china jar.

The class presented Miss Taylor with a box of bon-bons. After the humorous programme lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Wessels are entertaining their friends this week.

Miss Frances Terrill is gaining very slowly, but it is hoped that she will be able to be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Scott, of New York city, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Scott.

Mr. Jas. Anderson, of Cleveland, Ohio, is home for a short time.

A young son came to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Scott.

Mrs. Ewart, of Toronto, spent a couple of days with her sister, Mrs. Dr. Anderson.

Mrs. E. M. Wessels is home again from Kingston hospital.

Her Liver Was Bad And She Felt Tired and Depressed

Mrs. M. Siefert, Grosswerder, Sask., writes:—"I was greatly disturbed with pains in my liver, and felt tired and depressed most of the time.

One day I read about

Milburn's

LAXA-LIVER PILLS

and the next time I went to town I bought four vials of them.

I have used them regularly, and after two months' use I feel like an entirely different woman.

Now, I always recommend them to any of my friends who are troubled as I was."

There's only one "Laxa-Liver Pill", and that's the one put up, for the past 32 years, by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Fellowship of Prayer

Read Jn. 13:1-16. Text 13:14. If I then, the Lord and the Teacher, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet.

Meditation—The uniqueness of his person and the greatness of his mission did not deter him from menial service. At all costs love seeks to supply another's real need. No fear to lose prestige hampered his impulse to help. "I serve" is a princely motto. Jesus' ideal centered in inward worth rather than in outward dignity. The example of the towel-girded Christ, if accepted by the youth of this decade, will make of them the happy and capable citizens of the next.

"A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich;
A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong;
Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense
Of service which thou renderest."

Prayer—O God, who comest to us disguised in lowliness to seek Thy dwelling with the humble, may false expectation not deceive us, nor pride shut Thee from our hearts. If Thou comest as Duty, Plain, drab and undesired, grant that we may not turn from Thy commands. Often the homely figure has called in vain, and only when it passed we saw its glory, glory as of the God begotten. Amen.

DESPAIR RISES AMONG DELEGATES OF NATIONS AS LEAGUE DEADLOCK CONTINUES WITHOUT COMPROMISE

Crisis Solidified By Obduracy of Statesmen Contending Over German Issue.

AIR OF PESSIMISM.

Final Appeal Friday To Germans To Alter Their Position.

GENEVA, March 12 (Canadian Press). — M. Briand's first day in Geneva since his return to the Premiership of France failed to bring any solution of the League Council crisis. For three hours Thursday the members of the Council wrangled over the supreme issue as to whether, in resistance to Germany's ultimatum, the Council's permanent membership should be simultaneously increased by the election of Spain and Brazil.

Neither Count Quinones De Leon nor Afranio Mello Franco would retreat a hair's breadth from the position assumed by them Wednesday in behalf of Spain and Brazil respectively, while M. Unden, Sweden's tenacious Foreign Minister, was equally unyielding, declaring that there should be no enlargement of the Council beyond the admission of Germany.

The Spanish and Brazilian diplomats insisted that their countries must be given seats at the same time as Germany.

Appeal to Germany.

In view of the continuing deadlock it was decided to make a final appeal to Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann to recede from their position that Germany must enter the Council alone, and this will be attempted at another meeting of the Rhine pact signatories to-day.

M. Paul-Boncour and M. Loucheur, of France, were appointed emissaries to inform the German statesmen of this programme and urge their presence at to-day's gathering. After their departure from the Council chamber, Premier Briand, who had previously delivered a long and impassioned speech for concord, and also for enlargement of the Council, made another personal appeal to M. Unden not to vote enlargement. But the Swedish statesman remained obdurate.

Chamberlain Gloomy.

Senhor Mello Franco, reiterating his demand for a permanent seat and not modifying his position that if he voted for Germany he must also vote for Brazil, went into a lengthy exposition on the Brazilian viewpoint, virtually as it was set forth in a special memorandum sent by Rio Janeiro to all the governments' members of the Council in 1925, and he requested a more careful scrutiny of this Brazilian thesis by all the members.

For the first time since the beginning of the crisis, Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, last night manifested profound pessimism, while M. Briand told friends that the situation loomed up dark indeed. This gloom is shared by all the members of the Council, and the day ended with a growing sentiment of consternation gripping all Geneva.

U. S. Tariff Commission To Be Investigated By Senate

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(Canadian Press). — Investigation of the Tariff Commission, and of charges that President Coolidge and others have sought to influence it, was ordered yesterday by the Senate.

There was little opposition to a general inquiry as originally proposed by the Democratic leader, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, but the proposal to investigate specifically all efforts to influence the official acts of the commission met stubborn resistance from administration senators.

This proposal was put forward as an amendment by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, who recently laid before the Senate a series of letters from members and former members of the Commission alleging efforts at executive influence. The Senate approved it, 38 to 30, with a combination of Democrats and Republican insurgents constituting the majority.

EDWARDS CLAN MISS FORTUNE

Claimants in Lindsay District To Many Millions Hoaxed.

ESTATE A FRAUD.

(Special to The Examiner)

LINDSAY, March 12—Keen disappointment fittingly describes the feelings of relatives of the "Edwards" clan in Lindsay and district who had visions of a portion of $50,000,000 coming their way from the "Edwards Estate of New York City." The announcement has been made, after thorough investigation, that the "estate" is either a fraud or there is not sufficient evidence to substantiate the claims.

So-called "heirs" of the "Edwards" family in Lindsay, Manilla, Cannington and other centres in this district were deeply as well as financially interested in the "estate" because of the fact that they contributed sums of money as "heirs," as they really believed they were the descendants of a certain Robert E. Edwards, a Welshman, who died years ago, leaving land which is now in the heart of Greater New York. One or two claimants from Victoria County actually made a trip to New York to investigate for themselves the existence or non-existence of this estate. They never lost hope until the announcement was made a few days ago that the bubble was pricked and that the "estate" was a hoax as hollow as the famous "Spanish Prisoner's letter."

The story of the "Edwards Estate" originated about a quarter of a century ago and created considerable excitement among the alleged "heirs," who formed associations and groups in order to prosecute their claims. The story is told out around Manilla that one of the "heirs" disposed of a team of oxen in order to contribute his share to the fund.

Down in the Ottawa Valley and in Carleton County several hundred people dreamed of the $50,000,000 coming their way, but it turned out to be nothing but a dream.

The "estate" it appears has been the subject of discreet inquiries made by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

CAVAN PERSONALS

CAVAN, March 12 Mrs. (Rev.) Totten and daughter, Leafa, who is convalescing after a severe attack of whooping cough, have gone to Stouffeville to visit Mrs. Totten's mother, Mrs. Warrener.

BALDWIN URGES CAREFUL STUDY OF COAL REPORT

British Premier Met Deputations of Miners and Owners in Conference.

DIFFICULT TASK.

Miners Will Resist Proposed Revision of Wages—Keep Open Mind.

LONDON, March 12.—(Canadian Press).—The Government foresees an exceedingly difficult task ahead of it in determining its coal policy and reconciling the many conflicting interests involved, which have been stirred up by the publication of the Royal Coal Commission's report.

This was indicated Thursday when Premier Baldwin took the unusual course of calling deputations from both the owners and miners to a conference in Downing Street. His sole purpose was to urge upon them the immense importance of giving earnest study to the contents of the report, and promising them the same judicial and deliberate consideration by the Government itself before a decision was reached as to what action it would be advisable to take on the report.

Herbert Smith, representing the miners in reply to the Prime Minister's brief statement, said that in his opinion the question rested solely between the owners and the Government, and until the Government's decision was known, the miners would keep a more or less open mind.

Royalties Inject Difficulties.

The commission's report, which recommended state ownership of mines, but development under private enterprise supervised by the Government, and which opposed the Miners' Federation plan for nationalization, has been the subject of meetings of the various parties concerned. It is already evident that the chief difficulties arise over the proposal for state purchase of mining royalties, which it is estimated would cost the country £100,000,000, on the cessation of the Government subsidy, which the miners declare impossible and on the commission's recommendation in favor of a revision of the wages as fixed in 1924, a period of prosperity, which the miners will also resist.

In connection with the subsidy rumors were current yesterday that the Government may decide to continue the subsidy in the shape of loans.

"Fill thou my heart with gratitude today
For every friendly word and kindly smile,
And e'en the smallest blessing 'long the way
That cheers my saddened heart a little while."
—Greenleaf.

PROHIBITION VOTE BY U.S. NEWSPAPERS

Modification of Volstead Act Favoured By Nine-To-One Lead.

NEW YORK, March 12. — The country is now engaged in the most extensive referendum on a question of national policy ever attempted—the newspaper polls on prohibition.

More than 400 newspapers from coast to coast and from Canada to Mexico are taking straw ballots in their communities to sound out sentiment.

Dry leaders have warned prohibitionists not to vote, charging the poll is not representative; that it is dominated by "wets" and that "repeating" by interested voters is not prevented. Wet leaders point to the balloting, in which their cause thus far has a dominating lead, as proof that the country is tired of prohibition.

Friday the vote stood:

For modification or repeal of prohibition, 171,303.

Against changing present law, 19,034.

These figures give those favoring either repeal or modification of the present law a 9 to 1 lead. New York has shown a poll of more than 40 to 1 in favor of changing the existing conditions. California, a wine-producing section, is about 10 to 1, according to the newspaper figures, in favor of a change. The supposedly dry districts of the middle west, in their newspaper polls, are represented as overwhelmingly in favor of changing the law.

Against Repeal.

It is significant, however, that in almost every case the vote is heaviest in favor of modification, complete repeal being less favored in the tabulations.

Results of the poll have drawn from the drys bitter comment.

W.C.T.U. MEETING AT CAMPBELLFORD

Record Attendance at March Session—Business Discussed.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 12.—The regular monthly meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Sperry, Queen street, on Tuesday afternoon. There was a record attendance. Mrs. Richard Weston as President had charge of the meeting. Mrs. Robert Moore took the devotional period, and Mesdames Hall, Ford and Bell gave an interesting drill. Mrs. Thomas Free and Miss Essie Cassan sang a duet, which was heartily applauded. Several business matters were discussed and others were left over for the next regular meeting, which will be held in April.

According to official figures recently published, there are 877,298 married women in London.

AID FOR WIDOWS.

Bill Provides Provision By Husband.

TORONTO, Ont., March 12. — (Canadian Press).—Harold Fisher (Liberal, West Ottawa) introduced a bill in the Legislature yesterday, amending the Widows' Relief Act. It provides that when a man dies leaving a will and does not make reasonable provision for his wife, the court may, on application, make provision out of the estate for the widow.

1926 BUDGET FEATURES.

TORONTO, March 12. — Among the features of the budget introduced into the Legislature Friday, were the following:

No new taxation.

Luxury tax on pop abandoned.

Deficit for 1926 estimated $1,500,000.

Improved method of treating accounts.

Interest accounts separated from revenue and expenditure.

Refunding moneys separated from actual capital and ordinary expenditures.

Public accounts better indexed.

A surplus of $2,200,000 hown on revenue and expenditure account, 1925.

Ordinary revenue and expenditure for 1923 were $35,700,000 and $35,300,000, respectively, showing deficit of $9,400,000 for 1925, the figures were $36,400,000 and $34,200,000, showing surplus of $2,200,000.

Savings office and agricultural development board's reserve fund firmly established.

No succession duty free bonds purchased under new legislation.

Provincial roads have cost $95,000,000 net.

Gas and license revenue still fall short of carrying road debt, maintenance and sinking fund.

Double taxation elimination well under way.

The cost of borrowed money to the treasury for 1925 was only 4¼ per cent., the lowest in the history of the province.

Taxation reforms promised: a survey of ways and means.

CUSTOMS PROBE PERJURY TRIAL IF PROOF FOUND

R. L. Calder, K.C., Prepared To Initiate Proceedings If Facts Warrant.

EVIDENCE NEEDED.

Counsel For Parliamentary Committee Desires Thorough Investigation.

MONTREAL, Que., Mar. 12 (Canadian Press)—R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the Parliamentary committee investigating the fraud chages in connection with the Department of Customs and Excise, is prepared to initiate proceedings against witnesses who might incur the charge of perjury.

"The issue of dealing with perjury," he said yesterday, "has been very properly raised by R. P. Sparks, President of the Commercial Protective Association. As far as I am concerned I am prepared to recommend and initiate proceedings. It must be remembered, however, that there is some difference between just knowing that perjury has been committed and proving it Perjury is one of most difficult offences to prove, as a large degree of corroboration is required. Many escapes are made from jeopardy of conviction through the interpretation of discrepancies in statements."

When the Parliamentary committee resumes its sittings on Tuesday morning Mr. Calder expects to proceed with the investigation into the traffic in seized and stolen cars. Following this he hopes to develop another phase.

Must Be Patient

"The public must not get impatient," he stated, when commenting on progress so far. "All deep inquiring must start and develop slowly. Dead fish investigations usually start with a bang and end with a smell. During the past two weeks," he continued, "the members of the committee have been securing the production of documents on which the work will largely be based. Several hundred files are now under examination, and all those relevant to the scope of the inquiry will be put before the committee by the best primary evidence available.

"Some criticism has been made of what is called 'legal quibbling.' This criticism is chiefly levelled at the barring of hearsay evidence. It must be evident to any person who thinks that the rules of proof must be followed if justice is to be attained. If you prove anything with the strictness required by courts the "accused" has no alibi or avenue of escape afterwards, and if prosecutions follow they are securely built up.

"It is my intention to clean up issues raised by the Duncan report about which there has been so much curiosity, and then to bring before the committee certain classifications of customs infractions and laxity.

Use Relevant Facts

"Personally I am prepared to lay before the committeee any provable relevant fact no matter what source it comes from or whose head is hit. There is a chance that the inquiry may be defeated by that good old campaigner, general apathy. This is the appropriate time to clean up and reform, and all critics should, in the phraseology of the book of common prayer, "speak now or forever after hold their peace.'"

CANADA WHEAT EXPORT LIGHT

Purchases During February Small—Using Native Supplies For Needs.

ELEVATORS FULL.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., March 12 (Canadian Press).—Following is the report of E. A. Ursell, statistician to the Board of Grain Commissioners, on the movement of Western Canadian grain crops during February:

"Conditions surrounding the marketing and movement of Canadian grain during the month of February remained almost exactly similar to those obtaining during January. The demand from European importers is quite light, native supplies in Europe being utilized to the fullest extent possible, while good quantities of Argentine and Australian wheat are arriving, which will furnish the bulk of the immediate import requirements. Beyond certain quantities of high-grade wheat, necessary to millers producing strong flour, there does not appear to be any prospect of a change in the situation, for the present, at least.

"The movement of Canadian wheat into consumptive and export channels continues very moderate in consequence. From the head of the Lakes the rail movement to the seaboard is extremely light. The unloading of winter storage cargoes afloat at Canadian lower lake ports for movement to the seaboard for export has also been slow, almost 3½ million bushels still remaining to be disposed of, while at Buffalo and other U. S. ports the total represents another 2½ million bushels. At Vancouver a steady shipment continues, averaging 1¾ million bushels received and shipped each week.

Ocean Rates Low.

"The small movement from Atlantic ports has made it difficult, at times, for liners to obtain 'bottom' cargoes and rates have fallen most markedly. Tramp steamers are reported to be taking full cargoes to Hamburg at as low as 8 cents per 100 pounds, while parcels have been reported at as low as 6¼ cents per 100 pounds. Such rates are ample evidepce of the dearth of shipments by this route.

"At the Head of the Lakes and interior terminals the elevators are full or practically so, and any quantities shipped are immediately replaced from the slowly increasing amounts in cars awaiting unloading.

"The drying of all 'no grade' grain, grading 3 Northern or lower, at present in store, will make room for more grain of the same grades to be unloaded from cars, and with a large percentage of all grains grading 'no grade' for excess moisture still, it is imperative such be unloaded from cars with the least possible delay.

Month's Inspection.

"Inspections during the month totalled 15,302 cars of all grains, as compared with 20,938 a month ago and 12,544 a year ago. Wheat accounted for 12,451 as compared with 17,487 a month ago, and 8,974 a year ago, while of these 4,658 or 38.3 per cent. graded contract grades, as against 3,366 or 37.6 per cent. a year ago.

"The distribution of all-rail shipments of wheat for the months of December, January and February were as follows: To Canadian Atlantic ports, 292,712 bushels; to U.S. Atlantic ports 2,974,311 bushels; to Canadian domestic points, 2,683,382 bushels; to U.S. domestic points, 127,035 bushels.

VIEWS AT RED LAKE

ADDRESS ON INDIA

OMEMEE, March 12.—The following is a summary of the address given by Miss Reid at the thank-offering meeting of the Omemee W.M.S.:

"India has always been a land of peculiar charm. Few countries in the world make a stronger appeal to the romantic instinct than does India. From the days of Alexander the Great, who invaded North Western India in 327 B.C., down to the present, it has had a fascination for the peoples of Europe and the West. It was this which led Columbus over unknown Western seas to find a waterway to India. Then it was the desire for her silks and spices, her gold and precious stones, which drew the merchants of Europe to her shores. Now, it is India's place in the Empire that claims our attention and makes her welfare deeply interesting to the people of Canada and the British people everywhere.

"India is about two thousand miles at its widest and about two thousand miles at its longest. It is sometimes called the continent of India, for it is bounded and guarded on the north by the Himalaya which seeprate it from the rest of Asia, and it is separated from the rest of the world by the Indian Ocean. Three hundred and nineteen million or about one-fifth of the world's population, three quarters of our Empire live in this huge peninsula.

"More religions have had their origin in India than in any other. Buddhism was at one time the faith of most of the Indian people for Buddha was an Indian. Today only a few are Buddhists. Hinduism claims 23,000,000 followers in India and is not found outside of India. This faith has laid upon the country the curse of the caste system and has given to the people their numerous gods. In India there are 67,000,000 Mohammedans. There are many other sects, not forgetting Christians who number about 5,000,000 (Roman Catholic and Protestant). The native religions are one of the outstanding hindrances to Christianity.

"'Ye men of Athens,' said Paul, as he stood on Mars Hill, 'I perceive that ye are in all things very religious', and the same thing might be said to the people of India who are indeed 'very religious.' If we were to travel about India we would never be far from temple or mosque or wayside shrine, and we would witness the ritual washings in tank and river. The religious observances of the people would have a fascination and appeal from which we would not readily escape.

"Let us visit the largest temple in India, situated near Trichinopoly. The outer wall is several miles in circumference. The temple consists of seven courts, one within the other, separated by massive walls pierced with four great gateways and surmounted by towers averaging about 200 feet in height. The towers and walls are covered with figures of gods and goddesses and sacred animals elaborately carved in stone. In the centre is the Hall of Columns, the flat roof of which is supported by a thousand pillars, each carved from a single block of granite and covered with grotesque figures. The principal idol is kept in the central shrine under a golden dome.

This temple must have cost millions of rupees. It is said that kings and princes have emptied their coffers and given their revenues for the completion and extension of its many towers. Men of every rank have parted with their treasures for the adding up of column after column, misers have yielded up their hoards for the decoration of its images.

"No other country has such temples, yet the great majority of the people of India exist on about twenty dollars a year. Ninety-seven per cent of India's people live in houses made chiefly of mud and thatch, the doorway admitting all the light there is within.

"Why does this nation build such splendid temples? Of all the people on earth, Hindus think the most of religion. They are devoted to their gods. The great religion represented by the temple which has been described is deeply rooted in the hearts of the people, and it regulates every detail of daily life. Religion is everything to the Hindu.

"We shall converse with one of the religious teachers within the temple. What he says represents multitudes of the more thoughtful Hindus. Why do you worship these idols made with men's hands?' we ask. 'Do you think that I worship that image? I merely have the idol before me when I worship to remind me of my God who is invisible.' Then pointing to the people around the shrines we ask, 'Are they not even now worshipping those idols?' 'Yes', he answers, 'the common people are without understanding their minds cannot rise to spiritual truths. They are ignorant. 'Why do you read this book about those very gods?' 'The gods are true', he replies, 'it is the idols that cannot help. I read that I may discover Him. We do not know Brahm, but we search after Him. We cannot see Him, but we search after Him. For years I have meditated and sought to understand God. But we are children lost in a forest and we cannot find the way.'

"What is ambition? A consuming desire to achieve some object or purpose. What is a statesman's ambition? What is India's ambition? To know God and to understand Him.

"Wishing to find God, a girl of fifteen, Chundra Lela, set out to visit the four great shrines in India: Kali Ghat, Jaggan-Nath, Ramarath, Krishua. After worshipping here, she crossed the burning plains of Upper India and climbed the Himalayas to its sacred source. After performing her worship, she descended barefeet cut and bleeding. She had travelled more than 3000 miles and it took seven years to accomplish it, but she had failed in the object of her search. Still unsatisfied, she became a Sadhu. She suffered all that could be required of mortal without avail. At last, she took her idols to a woman of low caste. She said 'You may worship them if you like, I will never worship them aagin, there is nothing in Hinduism or I should have found it.'

"Chundra Lela sought an interview with a missionary. She definitely joined herself with Christ's people. She was as earnest in Christ's service as she had been in the service of the Hindu gods.

"Christ said, 'If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross daily, and follow me.'

"From the story of Chundra Leld we gain some vision of the inspiration which Christian India might give to our average, easy-going Canadian Christians.

"Christianity has brought many changes to India. Women are gradually gaining their proper place, the old religions are not enough to meet human needs, the mass movements, it happens that whole communities are moved to cast away their idols and turn to Christianity. The moving of these multitudes is not of man but of God. A heavy responsibility rests on the church, to be ready to cope with these movements. She dare not baptize without having a reasonable hope of being able to shepherd and educate as well these masses.

"Very briefly, let us take a backward look and learn a little of our early missionairies in India. William Carey, the cobbler preacher, was the first Protestant missionary.

"Dr. Duff, Scotch missionary visited Canada in 1854. By his fiery eloquence he stirred the churches to a recognition of their responsibility to India. Two missionairies were sent out, but after a short time, a violent outbreak of cholera and the Indian mutiny made it necessary for them to resign. It was 15 years before interest in India was again revived in the West, then two young ladies went in North India under the American Presbyterian board, though supported from Canada.

"In 1875, the union of the Canadian Presbyterian church, took place and our mission was begun in India. Dr. Campbell and Rev. J. M. Douglas, minister at Cobourg, were sent out.

"Today, in our Central India Mission we have 17 central stations and 90 missionaries. We have accepted the responsibility of the evangelization of 3,000,000.

"To former Methodists and Congregationalists, India is a new field. There is not only abundant opportunity for work but India is in a plastic and formative condition, so that impressions, good or ill, which it receives, are likely to affect its future for centuries to come. The Christian task in the world is not to spread abroad abstract ideas and general percepts but to build up a fellowship. It is not to get men to believe truths about God, but to love God and loving Him to love their brothers also. We must not forget that Indians and Britishers are of the same parent stock, we are all Aryans; we have all come from that 'roof of the world' in Asia.

"India has a national claim upon our Christian sympathy. Upon the Christian churches of the Empire, lies the responsibility of giving to India, the message of the gospel of Jesus Christ. From India, hands are stretched out in supplication across the seas to brethren in Canada. It surely cannot be that they will call in vain."

As a closing, Miss Reid recited the poem "Eating Our Morsel Alone."

RUDOLPH WAGERS HE WILL NOT WED

Denies His Rumored Engagement To Pola Negri.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., March 12—Rudolph Valentino, the film actor, whom Pola Negri said three days ago she would marry—perhaps—denied yesterday that he was to wed the Polish actress.

"We have not even discussed marriage," Valentino said. "If I get married before 1930 it will cost me $50,000." He explained that he had made a bet with S. Manuel Reachi, of Paris, that he would not wed before that date.

"Both of us have lots of work ahead of us," Valentino continued. "We are not engaged. I do not like the word 'engagement.' It sounds too much like a contract one has to perform by a certain date."

Miss Negri, after describing Valentino as her ideal—the perfect man—said that she would marry him if her love for him stood the test of a four months' separation, which will occur soon when she leaves for Europe.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

Benny.— You aaveacheerful nature and should aim t all times to cultivate the happy spirit within you. It does not always have full sway in your daily life, where circumstances sometimes cause you to worry about non-essentials.

You will find your greatest success and happiness as you go through the world in serving others, with a service inspired by love. You have a great variety of disposition, sometimes appearing rather reserved and retiring, and again being quite dramatic in your imitation of others and their actions. You have a receptive, intuitional nature and are very persistent and competent in the performance of your duties. When angry, you are capable of making very cutting remarks. Your conversation is usually marked by a simplicity of style, but when imitating or describing the actions of others, you are prone to exaggerate. You like excitement and speculation of every kind. You have remarkable foresight and can usually be guided by your intuition, especially in the buying and selling of commodities.

You were born on Wednesday. Your color is black. The day you ask about, a Saturday, is one for reading informative books and articles and collecting information. Do not engage in any important business enterprise on this day.—Not being a fortune-teller, I cannot aswer your question.

L. D. S.—You have a jovial, sympathetic nature and a friendly disposition. You have a very natural bearing and are a good talker. You are naturally kind and loving but are capable of great rage and are very sensitive where your honor or dignity is concerned. You are inclined also to criticize others and to take strong dislikes to people without any real cause that you can give. You can adapt yourself to manners and customs quite easily and are quite imitative. You will find your greatest success in life by associating yourself carefully with others in any enterprise and never trying to stand alone. Although you have a great respect for law and authority, you do not like to be commanded in any way by others. You make many friends, some of whom impose upon you. You are honorable in your intentions, but are frequently misunderstood. You have a friendly expression of the eye and walk with a quick, buoyant step. You should guard against undue excitement and hard climbing. Your stomach will bother you at times, as you are fond of rich, highly-seasoned foods. You like to do things in your own way. January and October are your good months. Sunday your lucky day. You were born on Wednesday. Your color is black.

Mae A.—You have a very sympathetic, rather emotional nature. You would make a good nurse, and are also a good housewife. Service is your watchword and will be through life—service to others that is rather plodding in its nature at times. You have a saving disposition which may lead you to become penurious as you grow older. Your feelings are easily hurt by unkindness, and the physical and mental condition of those around you influences you very much. You have strong likes and dislikes in the choice of companions and are sometimes changeable in this way. You judge others by your own friendly feelings, and in this way can be misled by a show of good fellowship. Your opinions are very determined, when once formed, and you like reading novels. You wish to be respected as being thoroughly competent in the duties of your state of life. You should have a pleasant, mellow voice.

You were born on Thursday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are gold and violet.

Joy.—You have a peace-loving, kind nature, not especially businesslike. You have to work quite hard and probably always will, if you wish to attain any measure of happiness or success. You are earnest and sincere in your ways and have an active brain. You are energetic and are very fond of music and dancing. When once you set your hand to do a thing, you refuse to be balked. You have strong ideas of what is right and wrong and are independent, refusing to be swayed by the opinions of others. You are apparently stubborn at times, being influenced through your reason only. You should always have harmonious surroundings, as contrary conditions cause you to have sick headaches. At these times, you should have rest and quiet until restored. You do not work for others as well as for yourself, having your own ideas as to how things should be managed. You are fond of elegant surroundings and luxurious furnishings. Brain work appeals especially to you and you should always guard your head, which is liable to accidents and disease. You were born on Saturday The day you ask about is past. Your colors are gold and white. May and June are your good months, Saturday your lucky day.

Eliza.—You have great vitality and a healthy temperament, capable of much physical and mental endurance. You have much natural dignity and capability, with a friendly, agreeable knack of conversation and an ability to make friends when you wish. You feel that your own interests take up most of your time, but when your sympathies are aroused you are kindly disposed. You have a natural aptitude for matters involving commercial and financial enterprises, and one thing at a time is your motto. Fits of exceptional activity alternate with you with periods of laziness when you wish to, do absolutely nothing until the next energetic mood strikes you. You are capable of much, if you will but stick at one thing long enough. You are impatient of results, are rather proud and conservative and have much reverence and respect for persons in authority. When angered, you have a high temper and should guard also against a tendency toward jealousy. While you are quite practical, you have an undercurrent of sentiment in your nature that you are ashamed to show. You like music of a weird type and are very fond of moving water.

You were born on Tuesday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are blue and cream.

H. E. B.—You have a strong, healthy physique, with a good deal of creative power and tenacity and are thoughtful, industrious, sensible and persevering. You are very fond of acquiring knowledge and sometimes ask a great number of questions in your search for the truth. You are logical and positive in your opinions, and while apparently submissive and yielding, are really very determined in the accomplishment of your plans, which are usually the result of long and careful deliberation. You exact a reason for everything, sometimes being irritating in this regard. You should have high intellectual aspirations, but there is an element in your nature that will keep you down to a very material plane, if you do not guard against it. Try to cultivate this acquisitive mind of yours so that your pursuit of knowledge will lead you to higher things than may attract your attention at the present time. You have good mechanical ability and belong in the manufacturing sphere of life. You are not quite self-assertive enough for your own advancement. You are sympathetically minded, but are inclined at times to be nervous and exacting. Marry a girl born in July or November. You were born on Saturday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are blue and silver.

Sockas (M.D.)—You have a thoughtful industrious nature, and a great liking for occult and spiritualistic matters. Do not delve too deeply into these things. Exercise your natural bent for acquiring knowledge in other ways that will benefit you more. You ask a great many questions and are interested in many things. You have a pale complexion and a sensitive skin. You are given to excessive drinking of tea and coffee and should guard against this at all times. You are very sensitive to surroundings and to changes in the weather. You are logical and positive in your opinions and like to give and exact a reason for your own actions and those of your friends. You should strive to excel in your mental faculties, otherwise inclinations may lead you to a more materialistic and grosser form of life. You are inclined at times to be nervous and exacting and are anxious about provision for the future. Service to others—the service inspired by love—should be your watchword through life and the path that will lead to greatest happiness for you. You belong to the type that is called the parents of the race. A certain amount of travel would be beneficial for you to overcome your innate restlessness. Cultivate also more self-esteem. Marry a man born in September, October or July. You were born on Tuesday. Your colors are purple and brick shades. You do not ask about any particular day in June, only mentioning the month itself. May and June are your good months, and Saturday your lucky day.

Undine.—You have a rather mild disposition, with a certain amount of charm and affection, but without much initiative or efficiency. You should be successful in any avocation connected with business or finance and would make also a good teacher, as you are capable of making very fine distinctions in all things. You have a cool, confident bearing and a discriminating mind that is capable of acquiring much knowledge. You have a good memory. Inharmonious and discordant conditions in your daily life annoy you and affect your appetite and general health. You are rather selfish and self-centred and are conservative in your opinions. You are inclined to be quite critical of others and have also a rather unattractive pessimistic tone of mind. Why not look for the good in others rather than the opposite? The good qualities are always there, even if you cannot discern them. Do not be so set in your own opinions and do not be bigoted. It doesn't pay, and besides, the very best people (and you are fond of blue blood) are the most broad-minded. Cultivate individuality and self-reliance and—a friendly outlook on life and others about you. Marry a man born in March, May or August. February and November are your good months Wednesday your lucky day. You were born on Wednesday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are gold and white.

E. M. B.-You have an earnest, sincere nature, and a very active brain. Naturally, you are inclined to like pleasure and good times and incline to music, singing and dancing. You have an element of change and uncertainty in your makeup that does not always spell happiness for its possessor. You are intensely individual and impress your personality on all with whom you come in contact. When you enter a contest, nothing can induce you to back out. At times, an inspirational current strikes you, and you may give vent to a burst of eloquence that seems entirely out of keeping with your natural flow of conversation. You love order and harmony, and contrary conditions annoy you and often cause you sick headaches. You work best for yourself, as you like to accomplish things according to your own methods. You are a lover of the elegant and are keenly appreciative of luxurious surroundings. The motive-mental temperament is your type.

You were born on Saturday. Your color is black. The day you ask about, a Saturday, is one for accepting any responsibility offered you, for putting nothing off and for cheerfulness and generosity. Play no games of chance on this day.

Toots.—I am sorry that you neglected to give the date of your birth. You have mentioned the year only. It is impossible to give you a reading without this information.

Meagan.—You have a strong, active personality, logical and daring, but inclined to disregard the rights of others and to domineer whenever you have a chance. You are self-centred to a degree. However, you have unusual understanding and sympathy for others, when it is aroused, and if you cultivate this element in your nature, you will have a worth-while life, and will live up to the expectations of others with regard to you. You are rather emotional and are quite liberal with money. When offended, you will sulk for some time. You have a natural, free bearing and readily adapt yourself to the manners and customs of those about you. You are not naturally studious, but are very observant, learning most in this way. You walk with a quick, buoyant step. Being guided by your impulses and emotions, you are frequently imposed upon. When surrounded by refining influences, your feelings and sentiments will always be of the best. Guard against undue excitement or hard climbing, as your heart is your weak point. Marry a man born in September, October or December. January and October are your lucky months, Sunday your fortunate day. You were born on Monday. The day you ask about is past. Your colors are the many variations of flame.

MINISTER OF LABOR

DOG TRAIN TRAVEL

Nelson River Rapids Could Supply Western Canada With Power.

"This is a view taken along the Hudson Bay railway, showing a store and across the way a sleeping and eating place. Steel is already laid for 332 miles, and the grade is made for 92 miles more. I have travelled along it scores of times, by gas car, and when the rails end, by dog train, in the work of my parish."

The illustrated lecture given in the Anglican school house on Wednesday evening, by Rev. H. J. Walters, M.S.-C.C., missionary at Split Lake, Diocese of Keewatin, on his work among the Indians and Esquimaux, was full of interest and information.

"I was married in this church," said the speaker, as the old Christ Church at the Pas, where the Hudson Bay railway begins, was thrown on the screen. "The furnishings were made by the relief party sent out to find the remains of Sir John Franklin. During the winter spent here the officers, to keep the men employed, set them to making the church furniture. The Indians have since sold it to the whites, and have built themselves another church across the river on the north side of the Saskatchewan."

Going on to explain that the head of the diocese of Keewatin is Bishop Dewdney, an uncle of Rev. D. R. Dewdney, assistant to Rev. Canon Allen in the parish of Millbrook and Cavan, Mr. Walters showed some pictures of pioneer conditions in the Rainy River district where he spent a year in 1913, on his way to Split Lake.

"It was nearer then to come to Toronto by way of Chicago than to go round by Fort William. The people feel there is so little interest and sympathy between old Ontario and the newer western and northern part there has recently been something of an agitation to break away and form a separate province."

Ignorance Abounds.

"All along the railway line there are small settlements, sometimes in connection with adjacent mines, where the people are without any religious services. I, myself, have driven 90 miles by dog train in winter to conduct worship at a point where only twice on Sundays was there a service held during many months. I know of regions where for three hundred miles children are growing up in ignorance of Christian teaching.

"Our nearest doctor, in my parish at Split Lake, is 300 miles away, and that is not far in comparison with workers in other remote stations, who are 700 and even 800 miles from medical aid."

The everyday life of trappers, traders, and missionaries was made very real as their long journeys by dog train, canoe, or on snowshoes were pictured and incidents told. The Hudsons Bay Company kindly lends Mr. Walters a dog team for pastoral visiting, and one journey to Manitou was recalled when the speaker and an Indian from his parish drove 45 miles, with a head wind, when the thermometer was 42 below zero, the storekeeper meeting them with the demand, "Are you men trying to commit suicide?"

"Split Lake, where I labor, is three miles long, and from two to fifteen miles in width. One hundred and fifty Indian families live in my parish, and there are only two white families besides my own. My wife often misses the company of her own sex, and the pleasure of at least looking in a store window.

"This picture has been shown all over Canada," said the speaker, as a dog team, "the Henry Ford of the North," was thrown on the screen, eleven puppies belonging to the Hudson Bay Company, and only six weeks old, composing the one shown, the difficulties encountered while getting them harnessed being amusingly recalled.

"It is estimated that the swift, deep rapids of the Nelson river, on its long journey from Lake Winnipeg to James' Bay, could generate millions of horse power of electric energy, enough to supply the whole of Western Canada."

Food Comes High.

Owing to difficulties of transportation a bag of flour costs $50 at Trout Lake, and at Fort Churchill the annual visit of the supply steamer is eagerly looked for. Should the deer and partridge fail, and if anything hindered the steamers arrival, the danger of starvation would be quite real. As it is scurvy has more than once broken out for lack of fresh meat. "I once asked the steward on the supply vessel for a meal, and as fast as he put it out I put it down. I never really knew what hunger was until that time.

"If any of you have friends interested in the proposed railway from Cochrane to James Bay, tell them to hurry up and build for there will soon be practically no bay there," Mr. Walters said, as he explained that tons of silt are annually deposited by the rivers emptying into this body of water, the view showing Eskimo women carrying huge loads of freight on their shoulders which had to be brought to land by small boats from the steamer, as the latter cannot now come into the harbor on account of shallow water.

Eskimos Obnoxious.

"An Eskimo tent, in warm weather, smells like about one hundred skunks, well irritated, an equal number of dead dogs, and a few dozen other highly scented objects thrown in," the speaker stated as he showed one of these dwellings with a line of seal meat drying in the sun, and with offal scattered for yards around. "The way they live, and the things they eat, are most disgusting. Yet we hold services in their tents, or out of doors near by, and try to teach them of the Saviour."

Baptisms held by the river side, and even confirmation services out of doors because the church was too small for the number of Indian converts being received, led to the remark, "We must get away from the idea of associating religion with a building. We workers in these northern fields, near Hudson Bay, have had Spirit-filled gatherings, and have seen wonderfully changed lives in consequence, when our meetings have not been in a church at all."

The Cree language is used entirely in Mr. Walters' parish, his sermons, and pastoral visits with his people, being in this tongue. Many of the Indians and Esquimaux become devoted Christians, one evangelist, "Joseph," whose picture was shown, having walked 2000 miles for the privilege of attending a communion service.

Mr. A. H. Barnes presided at the meeting in the absence of Rev. Canon Allen, who was ill and unable to be present. M. Gray had charge of the lantern.

MEMORIAL TO UNION FOUNDERS

The picture reproduced above, presented to the Trades and Labor Council of Toronto, shows the memorial to the "Tolpuddle Martyrs," founders of the Grand National Consolidated Trades Union. The inscription on the left reads: "Erected in honor of the faithful and brave men of this village, who, in 1834, so nobly suffered transportation in the cause of Liberty, Justice and Righteousness and as a stimulus to our own and future generations." On the right appears: "We have injured no man's reputation, character, person or property. We were uniting together to preserve ourselves our wives and our children from utter degradation and starvation.—George Loveless."

DEFENSE ARGUMENT IN VANCOUVER CASE

Methods of Crown Prosecutor Attacked in Nash Trial.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 11 (Canadian Press).—Attacks on the methods adopted by the Crown in the prosecution of his clients, featured the remarks of McLeod Sinclair, K.C., of Calgary, in concluding his address to the jury yesterday, on behalf of 53 defendants on trial for conspiracy in produce transactions.

E. J. Howson, Toronto accountant, and Lewis Duncan, commissioner, who investigated the Nash business, was taken to task by defence counsel. "Never in my experience have I seen such witnesses," exclaimed Mr. Sinclair, "who spoke with such animus and attempted to strain the case against the accused. That is not the way justice is administered in the British Empire," Mr. Sinclair stated that the attitude of Mr. Duncan, "the young lawyer from Ontario," and Mr. Howson showed that they were very vindictive.

ROSENEATH WOMENS INSTITUTE MEETING

Plans Made For Social on St. Patrick's Day.

ROSENEATH, March 12.—The Woman's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Ingham and was fairly well attended. After discussing the social which is to be held on St. Patrick's night, March 17th, and other business transactions the programme was very interesting. Readings were given by Mrs. G. Mouncey and Mrs. R. Creago, instrumental music by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe and a solo by Mrs. M. Davey. The most noted feature of the programme was the singing by little Gwendolyn Varcoe, a tot of four years, who has a wonderful voice for her age. Her singing was a treat and very much enjoyed by those present. The contest was working a buttonhole. This gave considerable fun and laughter. Luncheon was then served by the hostess assisted by Misses I. Brown and M. Braithwaite and Mrs. G. Mouncey. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Joe Robin's home in the village.

Miss Annie Swan went to Belleattending the millinery openings.

Miss Annie Swai went to Belleville on Saturday to attend the funeral of her brother-in-law, Mr. Robert Foster, who passed away on March 5th.

Mrs. A. Brown, Detroit, Mich, is visiting friends in the neighborhood as the guest of Mrs. John Baxter.

RECENT OMEMEE SOCIAL AFFAIRS

A.Y.P.A. Meeting and Entertainment By Mission Band.

OMEMEE, March 12—The A.Y.P.A. meeting on Monday, March 8, was something of an innovation with its varied programme. Although the inclemency of the weather accounted for a decrease in the usually excellent attendance, those present appreciated the enjoyment afforded.

Miss A. Stephenson began with a reading on English and Scotch written by an Irishman. It proved interesting with a touch of humor increasing its interest. Miss L. Curry presented an excellent paper on the value of the prayer book. The item following was a paper on Canadian Literature by H. W. Hill. Miss L. Curry was then requested to give a second reading on the history of Christ church. She willingly complied, with the reading of a letter by one, Canon Street. It was a very absorbing and gave a vivid picture of early days of Omemee. All together the evening was one of interest.

On Friday evening, under the careful training of Mrs. E. W. Rowland, superintedent of the Wide Awake Mission Band, the annual entertainment was given before a fair sized audience in the auditorium of the church. Rev. E. W. Rowland was the chairman for the evening and after a varied entertainment by the younger children of the Band. A sacred cantata entitled "The Challenge of the Cross," was presented by a number of young girls robed in white. To describe the cantata would be impossible, suffice it to say it was most impressive and arrangements are being made to have it repeated Easter Sunday evening. Those taking part were; the Misses Elda Overholt, Christina Connell, Lenore Jamieson, Jane Earle, Mildred Williamson, Mary Weir and Madeline Gray, assisted by the choir.

The Mission Band quilt for which tickets had been sold netted the neat sum of $20. The quilt had been made and donated by Mrs. Robert Williamson and when the lucky ticket had been selected by a tiny tot in the audience, the quilt was found to belong to Mrs. G. W. Ruth, of Roland, Man., who had written to the effect that should she chance to be the lucky winner the quilt was to be handed it again for auction. Accordingly the quilt, was finally sold to Mr. Vaughan for the sum of $5.

Following is the programme presented by the junior members:

Opening chorus—"Come With the Joyful Singing."
Chairman's remarks.
Dialogue—Evelyn Morcombe and Lloyd Rowland.
Recitation—Howard Vaughan.
Recitation—Doreen Morcombe.
Piano selection—Jean Earle.
Loving Helpers—Junior members.
Recitation—Herbert Norton.
Solo—Mildred Williamson.
Dialogue—"Bag of Wishes", Elsie Day and several junior members.
Boys' chorus.
Recitation—Arthur Weir.
Exercise—Junior members.
Recitation—Fred Weir.
Dialogue—Meta Magee, Arthur Williamson.
Piano selection—Lenore Jamieson.
Recitation—Will Weir.
Dialogue—"If I were you", by Elsie Day, Mildred Williamson.
Song—"I am growing and I'm sowing", group of girls.
Exercise—Months of the year.
Camp scene and songs by group of boys.

The Mission Band are to be congratulated on the proceeds of their entertainment which amounted to $50.

Prizes were given to those selling the most tickets for the quilt, Mildred Williamson having sold 58 tickets received a book. Arthur Williamson sold 42 tickets and received as his prize a box of chocolates.

Skating Party.

A jolly skating party was held on the Omemee rink on Thursday evening, by the High School pupils and their teachers, Miss G. M. Meredith and Miss Keough. The party numbered about forty-five and the air rang with merriment throughout the evening. A programme of races, consisting of mixed couples, girls' singles, boys' singles, girls' relay, 2 groups of 4 each, boys' relay, 2 groups of 4 each, keg, needle and thread, were run off, after which a hockey match was played by the boys, the score at the finish being 5-5. Mr. S. Tripp acted as referee.

After all had enjoyed to the fullest the entertainment provided, an abundance of eats were served in the dressing rooms and an evening of pleasure brought to a close.

On Tuesday evening a studio recital was held at the home of Mrs. Percy Parsons by some of the piano pupils of Miss E. Isobel McKee, A.C.A.M. of the Peterborough Conservatory. An enjoyable programme was given, during which Miss McKee spoke on the life of the celebrated composer, Beethoven. This is a novel idea for the young musicians of Omemee and the pupils were greatly elated over their success.

After the following programme had been given refreshments were served by Miss McKee and Mrs. P. Parsons and a social time enjoyed:

Tulip, Audrey Weir; Daisy, Jean McGinness; First Sorrow and Merry Peasant (Schumann) Daisy Duguid; Skating (Klein) Floyd Parsons; Joyous Maytime, (Lichuer), Edna Morton; The Wanderer's Return (Lange) and Golden Dreams Reverie (Preston), Ethel Stephenson; Heller's Curious Story, Emily Mitchell; Beethoven Sonata Op. 49, No. 2, Lenore Jamieson; Spring Love (Merkel and Mozart), Sonata in G, Jane Earle; Sereneta (Moskowski and Merkely's Butterfly) Marion A. Dickson.

TO BE PRESENTED AT COURT.

Miss Nancy S. Reid, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander T. Reid, of Toronto, whose name is included by the Lord Chamberlain among the young ladies from Canada who will probably be presented to Thei Majesties at the Court of St. James this season.

SCENES AT NEW GOLD FIELD.

Above are four of the first pictures to be taken of the famous Red Lake gold rush. On the upper left is the Hudson Bay post at Hudson Station on the main line of the Canadian National Railway, the jumping-off place for prospectors going into Red Lake. Upper right is the Hudson Bay post at Lac Suel, the half-way house on the trail in. Lower left is a typical prospectors' camp at Red Lake. Lower right shows Jacob Davidson, an old Northern Ontario prospector, who made the trip to Red Lake with the dog team shown in picture. Food for dogs and men is scarce, says Mr. Davidson, and unless precautions are taken many will starve to death as they did in the rush to the Klondike.

LADY DOCTOR

Miss E. Fleming, daughter of the late R. J. Fleming, of Toronto, who is one of eight women in the 1926 graduating class of the faculty of medicine, University of Toronto.

VIOLINIST GOES HOME

Chief John Bigwin, who visited Osgoode Hall, Toronto, in full hunting costume to ask Chief Justice Sir William Mulock to assist him in determining the ownership of 4,000 acres of land at Rama which he claims as chief.

SEEKING PREACHERS

Rev. D. T. L. McKenal of Toronto who will shortly proceed overseas to negotiate for the coming to Canada of a number of British preachers to fill some of the vacant Presbyterian pulpits in the dominion.

COUNSEL FOR COMMITTEE

R. L. Calder, K.C., of Montreal, who will probably be appointed counsel for the whole committee conducting the customs administration enquiry.

SEEKS MAYORALTY.

Mederic Martin, for nine years mayor of Montreal, has announced his candidature for that office once more.

EXCHANGE OFFICIAL.

N. C. Urquhart, new first vice-president of the Standard Stock Exchange, Toronto.

THREE BEARS SHOT

Five-year-old Canadian black bear with its two grow-up cubs shot by Arthur N. Dudley, who cites them as an example of his contention that bears do not attack human beings, except when wounded or cornered with their young, but make for cover.

POISONER.

Mrs. Laura Christy of East Liverpool, O., was arrested and charged with murder in the death of her fifth husband, Rev. William Christy. Three of Mrs. Christy's five husbands are dead. She is said to have confessed poisoning Rev. Christy because he suffered from indigestion and asked her to give it to him.

LIBERAL LEADER.

Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair, leader of the Liberal opposition in the Ontario legislature, who in his opening speech of the present session assailed the Ferguson government's vaccilating liquor policy.

LECTURER COMING.

Joseph Laing Waugh, Scottish author and lecturer, who is coming to Canada to lecture. In the world of literature Mr. Waugh is accorded a high place, being said to have done for his native heath. Thornhill Dumfriesshire, what Sir James M. Barrie has done for Thrums. He is a great out-of-doors man.

BODY. MUTILATED.

Emil Halmdahl, American citizen and soldier of fortune, has been arrested in connection with the work of mysterious ghouls, who opened the grave of the once notorious General Francisco Villa (above) and severed the head from the body.

BUILT FAIRY PALACE

Sir Neville Wilkinson, creator of Queen Titania's Palace, which has taken him 25 years to build, is shown with the tiny grand piano, the world's smallest, which belongs to the palace and which he has just completed.

ROUTE IN DISUSE.

The map shows the route of the Transcontinental Railway from Winnipeg, through Hearst and Cochrane, and also the route of the C.N.R. via Port Arthur and Sudbury Junction. According to views expressed at Ottawa, high freight rates are debarring the Transcontinental line from filling the purpose for which it was constructed — the hauling of Canadian grain to the Atlantic. As a result, Canadian grain is being shipped over American railroads and from American ports, at an estimated loss to the Dominion in transportation revenue of $20,000,000 annually.

OPPORTUNITY DAY - SATURDAY - AT CRESSMAN'S

OPPORTUNITY, presenting itself in many ways, beckons you to the busy Cressman Department Store on Saturday, there to grasp the opportunity of viewing the bright new Spring merchandise in every section—Millinery, Accessories, etc. Opportunities to purchase lines at price savings that cannot be equalled. Your last opportunity to take advantage of the Consolation Sale of Silks.

JOYOUS SPRING MODES!

A Word to Smart Women "Wear the Cape"

Fashion says the Cape's the thing. Let her have her way and you'll be the smarter for it. And what is lovelier for spring than this lightsome, carefree mode? The circular cut makes it new and more stunning than ever. A tweed Cape will be jolly for daytime wear or for hikes into the country.

Cressman's—Second Floor.

HATS Tinier Than Before

It may be a wee bonnet, but it's huge in chic. Have you seen the crocheted Straw Hats yet? They are one of the smart new spring modes we have to show you. $5 up.

And Larger, Too

This spring brings us some picturesque Hats for afternoon wear. Their large brims do much to increase one's feminine charm. $10 up.

Cressman's—Second Floor.

The Two-Piece Scores Again with New Versions

When, oh when, will that little frock stop running things? In less sophisticated days we fondly termed it the Jumper, but could you call an evening gown by such a nonchalant name? No wonder it's such a prime favorite when it offers us so many charming new variations. For sports its freedom of movement makes it perfect. In street, afternoon and evening models its youth makes it adorable. $15 up.

Cressman's—Second Floor.

The Coat This Spring Modifies Its Flare

Did you ever hear of a godet falling from the back of the shoulders? Or of tiny folds placed just below the pockets? These are some of the clever ways Paris designers have of achieving the silhouette of the mode while still maintaining a conservative style, thus keeping our Coats from becoming too extreme. It's hard to imagine any more stunning fabrics being created, but along comes the Spring Coats, revealing several new triumphs. Taffeta in quilted design fashions some charming dress wraps. Priced from $28 up.

Cressman's—Second Floor.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

HENRY RAND, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

JANET RAND, his daughter, breaks her engagement with BARRY COLVIN because of the "disgrace." JIMMY RAND, his son, goes to Chicago, where the theater is. The stub is traced to OLGA MAYNARD, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with MARY LOWELL. Later he encounters Olga. She faints at hearing police want her for murder. Mary, out with SAMUEL CHURCH, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives mysterious warnings to leave Chicago, and later is attacked by two men but escapes.

With Jimmy and Mary estranged, Church gets Mary's promise to marry him. Jimmy accuses her of marrying for money.

Jimmy and Olga, out one night, see a man they both recognize—she as the man who got the stub, he as one of his assailants. The man escapes, but they identify him by his police picture as IKE JENSEN.

Church, motoring with Mary, runs over a dog. His heartlessness causes her to break their engagement.

Olga tells Jimmy that Church, because she had refused to have anything to do with him, had caused her to lose several jobs. Jimmy realizes Olga is in love with him and is deeply troubled. She offers her lips and he kisses her.

Mary writes Jimmy a letter, explaining that she had broken with Church. The office boy sticks the letter in his pocket and forgets it. That evening Barry tells Jimmy he met a smart lawyer that day. "His name," said Barry, "was Church."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

"Good Lord!" Jimmy exclaimed at the mention of Church's name. "Everywhere I go I hear nothing but Church—Sam Church."

Barry regarded him in bewilderment. "Why, what's wrong with you?"

"Oh, go ahead, Barry. Don't mind me. You said you had met him today? How come? Explain."

"Well, I'm representing a client with a big damage claim against the Z. and R. Railroad. I've got a good case, too. This fellow Church is the attorney for the railroad. It seems he defends all, or nearly all, of their damage suits.

"I met him today, and he had a proposition for settling out of court, but it wasn't big enough money for me and I told him so. I'd rather take a chance on fighting him, but as I say he's a smart baby and he told me today how he could throw a lot of obstacles in my way and even keep delaying the case until we get ready to throw up the sponge."

"Watch him," cautioned Jimmy. "I've heard he was a jury fixer."

"What? A big lawyer like him? Why, he's known all over the state."

"I'll tell you a few things about Sam Church, Barry. Listen."

"Can you imagine a skunk low enough to persecute a girl the way he did Olga Maynard?" Jimmy finished.

"Well, why doesn't somebody get after him? Why doesn't she tell that story to the police?"

"You make me laugh, Barry. Who'd believe her. And how could she prove anything. My boy, Sam Church makes his money do a lot of loud talking for him."

"How do you know that Miss Maynard was telling you the truth?"

"Don't be such a skeptic, Barry," said Jimmy wearily. "Do I look like a fool?"

"I think you're a fool to be staying here, with people taking pot shots at you out of the dark. And I think if the lady is charming enough, and according to you she is all of that, why, you might be willing to give her something better than an even break."

"Oh, you're an utter fool. Won't you ever get any sense?"

"Sure you haven't fallen for her, Jim?" Barry was grinning broadly.

"You fat slob." Jimmy was laughing in spite of himself. No one could resist Barry Colvin's grin. Jimmy raised his fist threateningly. "If it was anybody but you, I'd take you by your fat neck and choke you."

He grabbed Barry's arm and tried to "talk sense" to him. "Now listen. In the first place, I'd believe anything about Sam Church—O'Day told me an earful and I know by my own limited experience with him that he's a regular snake in the grass.

"And in the second place—oh, well, what's the use of talking about it?"

"And in the second place," grinned Barry, "there's no sense to what you're saying in the first place. You sound like the fellow who was arrested because his dog had bitten a boy. He told the judge his dog wouldn't bite in the first place, didn't have any teeth in the second place, and in the third place he didn't have any dog in the first place."

"You're hopeless, you good for nothing shyster." Jimmy laughed outright, and then, more seriously, he asked, "By the way, if you were up at the Z. and R. offices today did you see a girl by the name of Lowell?"

"Saw a lot of girls, Jim. Some of them were knockouts."

"Did you see Sam Church talking to any girl?"

"No. Did I miss anything by not seeing Miss Lowell? Who is she, anyway?"

"Mary Lowell is the most wonderful girl in the world, Barry." The words came unchecked from his lips before he could think.

"You're a liar," grinned Barry, jabbing him in the ribs with his elbow, "the most wonderful girl in the world is your sister."

But he looked at Jimmy with a keen, appraising eye and detected the expression of pain on Jimmy's countenance. "Why, what's the matter, Jim? Is it as bad as that? What did she do to you?"

"I'll feel better if I unload my troubles on you, Barry. In your ignorant way you asked me if I had fallen for Olga Maynard. No. Perhaps I'd be better off if I had. I fell for Mary Lowell, and I fell hard. And now she's going to marry Sam Church."

"Well," commented Barry bluntly, "the young lady seems to know what side her bread is buttered on. Sam's got the heavy dough, I hear."

"You wouldn't say that, Barry, if you knew her."

And then he told Barry the whole story, beginning with his first meeting with Mary. . . .

"And so you see, Barry, Olga in a way is the innocent cause of the whole mixup."

"Well, why don't you go to Mary and explain the whole thing?"

"Not now, Barry. It's too late."

"Why, you darn fool, are you going to sit back and see her marry this mucker Church, and not do a thing about it?"

"Barry, you fool, you don't understand. I can't go to her, crawling, and tell her where she's making a mistake. What kind of a position does that put me in?"

"Well, if you don't speak up for the things you want in this world, you don't get them. You're mooning about the fact it's the thing that's out of reach that we want most. Go on and grab it. If you don't, I'll go to her myself and spill the whole story. Suppose I had curled up and quit when Janet broke off with me. It's your darn stubbornness. . . . You're even more stubborn than—than Janet.

"And, by the way, I might as well tell you now that you're the only thing that's standing between me and Janet right now."

"Why, what do you mean, Barry? I don't understand."

"Just this. She compromised with me. She's so worried about you and wants you to come home so badly that she agreed to marry me if I could persuade you to come back with me. Of course, I wouldn't do it—I wouldn't take advantage of her, under the circumstances. I'll wait until she's ready. But I still think you might listen to reason and pull out before someone bumps you off.

"Janet still insists on working in that orchestra, and I've insisted on taking her home every night, especially since the night some fresh cake-eater tried to pick her up—"

"Good night, Barry! You—"

"I know; it doesn't sound very nice, does it? But it's true. One of the men in the orchestra is acting as escort while I'm away, and she doesn't like it—thinks she's putting herself under obligations.

"And another thing. I didn't mean to worry you with this, but I'm going to tell you while I'm about it. Janet got one of those letters, too. It was meant for her. Told her she needn't think she wasn't being watched—"

"Barry, you're lying."

"I'm telling you the truth. You're not only risking your own neck by staying on here, but you're bringing all this on Janet and your mother."

"Barry, the whole thing's so unbelievable. It sounds like some medieval poison plot. That sort of thing doesn't happen in the twentieth century. It's—it's ghastly. For the love of heaven, tell me why any one should be so anxious for me to leave Chicago as to go to the extent of exterminating me and my family."

"They wanted your father out of the way, and they killed him."

"Yes, and Dad was in Grafton; he wasn't here. If they want me badly enough, they won't stop when I go home."

"Yes, they would. They simply think that with you here they're in danger of being found."

"Well, I'm sticking, Barry. I'm sorry." He raised his hands and let them fall again to his side. "Until I see it through."

"Well, maybe I can see your side of it, Jim." Barry laid his hand on the other's shoulder. "But," he declared through compressed lips, "if anyone tried to harm Janet, I'd kill him."

"I know you would, bless your old heart. I said once before, and I repeat it now. If it's the last thing I do on this earth, I'm going to kill the man who murdered my father."

The fog that hung low over Chicago streets when they went in the theater had lifted by the time the performance was over, and they walked out into a clear and starlit night.

In the midst of a discussion that centered about two love-sick young fools they heard sharp cries some distance up the street. Promenaders turned their heads inquiringly and then hastened toward the swiftly gathering crowd.

"Come on, Jim." Barry grabbed his arm. "Maybe it's a fight. Maybe someone's getting pinched."

It was a fight. Standing on tip-toe on the outer fringe of the crowd they could see two struggling figures locked in a desperate clinch as they scuffled near the curb. They fought silently, with grim intensity, wholly oblivious of the crowd that hemmed them in.

Then suddenly there was a parting of the two forms and a sudden darting in of one of them, a swift feint and then the sickening sound of the impact of fist on jaw. One of the figures dropped—dropped like a log, his head striking the curb with a resounding smack. He lay still.

"Did you see that?"

"Good Lord, what a sock!"

"He's killed him!"

The mutterings of an idle, curious crowd. . . . Then there was a quick movement, a swift shuffling of feet and bodies tensely straining.

Someone in the crowd set up the cry "Stop him! Stop him! There he goes!"

RED LAKE VISTAS

The first actual views of the new Red Lake mining camp are shown above, the photographer taking them being the first passenger to take advantage of the newly-established aerial service. At the left, Bob Hemmell, well-known Toronto mining man, is shown with a 23-pound trout, which he caught in Red Lake, and which he prized so highly that he paid $1 a pound freight rates to bring it out by airplane. The centre picture shows a close-up of the gold vein at the bottom of a trench on the Howey area, the original Red Lake "strike." At the right is shown the office of the mining recorder and of the Provincial Police outpost, which was opened in Red Lake last week. In the doorway H. E. Holland, mining recorder, is shown on the left, and Provincial Constable Carr on the right.

HUGE ARTIFICIAL LAKE PLANNED BY CANADIAN ENGINEER TO COVER 50,000 SQUARE MILES IN ONTARIO

C. Lorne Campbell Explains Project in Chicago Address —Supply Great Lakes.

OFF ALBANY RIVER.

Two Dams Required—Huge Increase in Electric Energy.

CHICAGO, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Plans for a great new lake covering 50,000 square miles, capable of maintaining the original level of the Great Lakes and providing an income of more than $15,000,000 from water power alone, were described before the Isaak Walton League of America here last night by C. Lorne Campbell, Canadian engineer.

By the construction of two great dams, one on the Albany River which flows into the Hudson Bay and the other on the Igoki River, main tributary of the Albany, Mr. Campbell estimated that the lake formed thereby would have a watershed of more than 100,000 square miles. A cut from the basin to the south into Lake Nipigon which empties into Superior, would assure the Great Lakes a yearly minimum flow of 20,000 cubic feet of water a second. At flood period the flow would be 30,000 feet a second.

The speaker, who said he had no connection whatever with any political, provincial, national or international body, declared that the new lake, which would be north of Lake Superior, in addition to eliminating the dredging problem facing cities on the Great Lakes, would increase Hydro-Electric capacity at the St. Lawrence probably 500,000 horsepower; at Niagara in excess of 350,000 horsepower; at the Sault Ste. Marie, more than 50,000 horsepower, and on the Nipigon 200,000.

125-Mile Railway.

To make possible the lake, Mr. Campbell said a railway 125 miles long would have to be built to transport machinery. The cut from the new lake into Lake Nipigon he estimated would be four to five miles long and 180 to 190 feet deep. The dam on the Ogoki River he figured would be 7,000 to 8,000 feet in length and 130 feet high at the highest point. The Albany River dam he estimated would be in the neighborhood of 9,000 feet in length and 145 feet high. It might be necessary to construct embankments at low-lying points, Mr. Campbell said, to prevent dissipation of water.

"Precipitation over the area, which is known as the Patricia country," said the speaker, "is intense. There is very little surface soil in the Patricia country and scarcely any seepage, making all the water available for diversion.

"The boundaries of the Patricia district are, on the south, the Canadian National Railway; on the west, the provincial line of Manitoba; on the north, the Hudson Bay and James Bay, and on the east the provincial boundary of Quebec, comprising an area of about 300,000 square miles, all within the Province of Ontario."

MINE OWNER DEAD.

W. G. Trethewey of Weston, pioneer prospector in Northern Ontario, and discoverer of the Trethewey mine, who died Saturday while spending the winter in Florida.

Word has come to Mr. Patrick O'Brien of the death of his niece, Mrs. John Ford, at Highland Park, Illinois. Deceased was a daughter of Richard O'Brien and had been ill for some time.

Miss Annabel Carlow, Mrs. John Sullivan, Mrs. John Condon, Messrs. Maitland and David Forsythe, Alex. Carlow, Thomas Fitzgerald, Jeremiah Mahoney, etc., were among those who attended the sewing, millinery or agricultural classes at Warsaw.

Born—On Thursday, March 4, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bolton, a daughter.

Mrs. Richard Condon has been seriously ill. Nurse Hanna Devlin is in charge.

Mrs. William Allen held a quilting "bee" one day last week when about a dozen of the neighboring ladies were present and a splendid amount of work was done.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sheehan returned recently from Downeyville where she was visiting her daughter, Mrs. Dennis Begley.

DOURO PERSONALS

DOURO, March 12.—Mr. Mastine Moher left Monday for Madisson, Sask., after an extended visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Moher.

Mr. Thomas Cavanagh of Detroit made a short week-end visit with his mother, Mrs. Mary Cavanagh and other friends here.

Mr. Michael Leahy is holding an auction sale of farm stock and implements on Wednesday, March 16, and Mr. Frank Kennedy's sale will be held on Thursday, March 18.

WOLVES ARE BOLD NEAR CROTCH LAKE

Reeve of Oso Township Reports Many in the District.

KINGSTON, March 12.—(Special.)—Members of the Frontenac county council who are in session here this week, and who live in the back of the county state that wolves have been very bold in that district this winter. G. Melville Drew, reeve of the township of Oso, stated that wolves had been seen at Crotch Lake which is about sixty miles from this city.

Norval Lennox, who has been employed during the winter cutting timber for William Kennedy, near Crotch Lake, saw a large wolf and before the animal could make its escape, he killed it. The skin was sent to Toronto and Mr. Lennox received a bounty of $15 for it. Robert Boles, who lives in the same locality, killed a wolf which measured six feet six inches from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail.

PRESS ANGERED 'PAPA' LENGLEN

American Papers Alleged Champion Lacked Sportsmanship.

MISS WILLS WINS.

NICE, France, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Helen Wills won another easy victory on the tennis courts yesterday when she advanced a step in the women's singles of the Nice tournament by defeating Miss Joan Ridley, a member of the British Wightman Cup team, 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Wills, after winning the first set, did some little experimentation with her service, and lost the first two games of the second set. Then she went on and won out as she pleased. She has sixty victories out of 64 games to her credit in the past forty-eight hours, notwithstanding the fact that she is suffering from a severe cold.

'Papa' Lenglen, father of Suzanne, is somewhat wrought up about comments on the great French champion's temperament appearing in clippings from United States newspapers.

Having given vent to his wrath, he declared yesterday: "From now on Suzanne will refuse to grant interviews to American reporters."

Mlle. Lenglen's father had reference to certain charges that Suzanne lacked physical courage and sportsmanship, which, he said, warmly, all those close to Suzanne know are unfounded.

Mme. Lenglen was less perturbed. She denied reports that her daughter was returning to Nice Sunday for an exhibition game, which is considered the only way of saving the tournament financially.

WELCOME W.M.S.

Thank Offering Services at Two Churches of United Circuit.

WELCOME, March 12.—The Women's Missionary Societies of Welcome and Morish held their annual thank-offering services on Sunday, March 7, instead of on Easter Sunday as in previous years.

At Welcome Mrs. Bewes, English teacher of Port Hope High School, was the speaker of the morning. Mrs. Bewes' subject was "Christianity as the Solution for the World Problems of Today." First she spoke of the problems of the day, national, international, social and personal. Then she touched on the heathen countries, showing past conditions and the influence of the spread of Christianity, and lastly, she gave the various ways the missionary influences the people. Some of these were: The medical doctor, the example of true home life, the distribution of literature, an adviser and teacher to the people.

Special music was rendered by the choir.

The Morish auxiliary held two services, one at 2.30 p.m., when the pastor, Rev. D. R. Clare, preached, and at 7 p.m., when Rev. Mr. Myers of Port Hope preached. The Welcome choir provided the music at the evening service.

ROSENEATH NEWS

ROSENEATH, March 12.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Devincy and sons, Garnet and William, of Toronto, attended the funeral of the late Johnny Braithwaite on Wednesday; also Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastle of Cobourg and Mr. and Mrs. Walker of Warkworth.

The funeral of the late John Braithwaite took place on Wednesday afternoon and was largely attended. The pallbearers were his school chums, Earl Waldie, Clarke Lapp, James Eddington, Ednel Blodgett, Arthur Carew and William Legge.

The church officials met on Tuesday afternoon to discuss the hour of service for each church. Having four churches on the circuit, it was not fully decided until further consideration.

Menus for the Family

By Sister Mary.

Breakfast—Grape fruit, cereal, thin cream, fish and rice on toast, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Tomato rarebit on toast button radishes dried apple pudding milk, tea.

Dinner—Broiled porterhouse steak, mashed potatoes, parsnip patty cakes, kumquat salad, whole wheat bread, queen of puddings, milk, coffee.

The fish and rice dish suggested in the breakfast menu is planned for schoolchildren and is supposed to be the "left-over" from the immediately preceding dinner. The fish and rice are combined with milk and reheated.

Tomato Rarebit on Toast.

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 4 tablespoons cream, 1-2 cup strained tomato jiuce, 1-16 teaspoon soda, 2 cups grated cheese, 3 eggs.

Melt butter, stir in flour and when perfectly blended, stir in cream. Dissolve soda in tomato and slowly add to first mixture, stirring constantly. Add cheese and cook over a low fire stirring constantly until melted. Add eggs slightly beaten and cook over hot water until mixture coats the spoon. season with salt and pepper and serve on triangles of hot toast.

KIDNAPPED GIRLS.

District of Siberia Terrorized By Youths Abducting Young Girls.

MOSCOW, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Young criminals in Irkutsk district of Siberia are kidnapping young girls and selling them to the Chinese, says a despatch to Young Communist Truth from Irkutsk.

In one instance a youth kidnapped a seventeen-vear-old girl and took her across the Chinese border, where he sold her to the Chinese for $25.

Fearing the same fate, girls of that district now refuse to go on the streets after dark.

He that has light within his own clear breast
May sit i' the' centre and enjoy bright day;
But he that hides a dark soul and foul thoughts
Benighted walks under the mid-day sun. —Milton.

HER OWN WAY by A GIRL of TODAY

A GOOD BLUFF

"I turned toward the door of Mr. Sterns' office, when he called me back.

"'Here, I didn't say for you to go immediately,' he shouted.

"'Well, that's the way we're going, I answered composedly.

"At that, he came off his high horse, for he knew I was the best hat checker in town and had more friends than any other girl in such a position. He also knew you are the prettiest girl he had ever had at his place. We both meant money to him and he wasn't going to let us go.

"'Oh, Mamie, be yourself. Go back and take care of your little forlorn chicken if you want to, but remember that the first complaint I hear of either of you, out the "firm" goes'."

After that things went along fairly smoothly. Mamie acted as a buffer to me at the restaurant and I helped her out when her mother's complaints nearly drove her wild at home. I grew in time to be what Chuck would have called "hardboiled." The tinseled clink of silly compliments meant nothing to me and I was able either to ignore or turn aside with an irrelevant remark the too obvious flatteries of the masher.

It was impossible, however, to act at all times as though I did not understand the advances of Horton, Sterns' friend, and I wou'd not 'et Mamie interfere as she wanted to when others of our patrons' speeches and actions were too obnoxious. I cou'd not 'et her 'ose her job even if I did mine.

I kept congratu'ating myse'f that I had never seen anyone in the restaurant who had known me before coming here, for, a'though I was making considerab'e money with my wages and tips, I knew I was going to 'eave the p'ace as soon as possib'e. I did not like, it in any way.

I grew to hate the ordinary "man about town"—the "lobby lizard," as Mamie called him. The difference in his attitude to the young women he brought to luncheon and dinner and the girl employes of the restaurant, was an insult to womanhood. I have known fathers and sons to make remarks to Mamie and me who would knock a man down for making the same remark to their womenfolk.

For a long time I had managed to pass this sort of thing over, but one evening the climax came.

TOMORROW: Discovered.

A PARTY FOR LOVERS' DAY

(By Sister Mary.)

The hostess who likes her parties to be remembered as "red-letter days," does well to honor the good Saint Valentine. The refreshments can be as "hearty" as preferred and the whole affair made most interesting by keeping the valentine idea in the foreground.

Hearts, roses, violets and Cupids are symbolical of this day, and the kind of party you want to have determines to a large extent which symbol you will choose as favors.

Hearts for a bridge party. Cupids for an announcement luncheon or tea, roses with a rose color scheme for a rather formal luncheon or tea, and violets with tiny corsage bouquets as favors for a dinner, are suggestions for fitting the function and the emblem.

If sandwiches are served cut them heart-shaped for a bridge party. Bake cake if wanted with an ice in thin sheets and cut with a heart-shaped cutter and use a red color scheme throughout the appoinements.

If salad is wanted, one of gelatin can be molded in heart-shaped molds and served with a garnish of hearts cut from beets or pimentoes.

Individual molds of the heart-shaped cutters are used to form the hearts for desserts.

If a jellied salad is chosen, do not use a jellied dessert, since two jellied dishes should not appear on the same menu.

The following menu is suggested for an afternoon tea. It can be served buffet fashion from the dining room or at card tables after an afternoon of bridge. The dining table, all dressed up like an old-fashioned valentine, adds much to the occasion. "Lace" is made of white crepe paper, a low centerpiece of flowers or a pair of quaintly dressed dolls, with a judicious scattering of hearts cut from crepe paper makes a charming table decoration at small cost.

MENU

Assorted Sandwiches
Olives Salted Nuts
Crab Meat Salad
Heart Cakes Bonbons
Strawberry Bavarian Cream
Coffee

This menu can be used for an evening party quite as well as an afternoon affair.

Sandwiches filled with cream cheese and nuts, cream cheese and preserved ginger and a fancy sandwich bread are a good assortment to serve with a crabmeat salad. Care must be taken that the sandwich is not too highly flavored.

The salad is mixed in the following proportions: two parts of crab flakes to one part of diced celery and 2 hard-cooked eggs for each quart of the mixture. About half as much mayonnaise as the salad mixture is needed.

The Bavarian cream is rather out of the ordinary and not at all difficult to make.

Strawberry Bavarian Cream.

One quart canned strawberry juice, 2½ tablespoons granulated gelatin, ½ cup cold water, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup candied pineapple cut in dice, 1 cup candied cherries, 1 cup broken nut meats, ¾ cup granulated sugar, 1 pint whipping cream, ½ cup powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few grains salt.

Soften gelatin in cold water for 15 minutes. Bring strawberry juice to the boiling point and stir in softened gelatin. Add sugar and lemon juice and let stand until cool. Stir in fruit and nuts.

Whip cream until stiff and flavor with powdered sugar and vanilla and salt. When jelly is beginning to set fold whipped cream into it. Turn into a mold and let stand at least three hours to become firm and chilled.

If the lunch is served buffet fashion both the salad and the dessert are served in large molds and add to the beauty of the table. The salad is quite pink and the dessert has a decided rosy hue.

The salted nuts are most attractive served in tiny containers placed on a tray. Small heart-shaped baskets, cup-shaped baskets made of rose petals cut from crepe paper, or the woven gilt baskets with gauze bows of red or rose make attractive, inexpensive favors.

CHECKS AGAIN FAVORED FOR SPRING WEAR

At the Right Is an Ensemble of Black and White Check Woolen. At the Left is a Frock of Brown and Tan Plaid.

COATS, SUITS AND FROCKS OF SMALL CHECKS ARE TO BE IN FASHION.

By Annette Bradshaw.

The woman who sponsors the smartest new things for spring must include in her wardrobe at least one garment that exploits small checks, of the type shown above.

At the right is shown a most effective light weight woollen costume in shepherd's plaid. the small black and white check pattern that never fails in smartness of appeal. The slim frock worn beneath has red bone buttons down the front, by way of color contrast. The coat reaches almost to the hem of the frock, and is cut on slightly flaring lines. Red velvet faces the collar, and the tailored hat is black felt banded with red.

The delightfully youthful frock is also of checked material, this time of brown and tan. Cream crepe makes the collar and cuffs, which are removable so they may be laundered easily. The suede belt is a wide one of brown and the tiny hat is cream felt banded with brown velvet.

Checks are exploited in the smart shops on the Avenue, in both crepe and taffeta, so the woman who is clever with her needle can make a checked frock at minimum cost.

An attractive costume is shown in black kasha and black and white checked taffeta. The frock is similar to the crepe one shown here and the black kasha cape is slightly circular, reaching almost to the hem of the frock, and is lined with taffeta to match the dress. The latter has tiny red buttons on its vest and a wide red suede belt.

The Home Kitchen

By Jeannette Norton

SOME LIGHT AND DAINTY DISHES.

These light and dainty dishes are planned for four people. Tiring of the heavier roasts and broils, we are glad to turn to lighter dishes for a change.

Halibut Au Gratin.

Pick the cold, boiled halibut from skin and bones and flake enough to make a cupful and a half. Chop the whites of three hard-boiled eggs and mash the yolks. Make a cupful and a half of good cream sauce, add the eggs, pepper and salt, a saltspoonful of sugar, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley and a teaspoonful of onion juice. Fill buttered ramekins with the mixture, cover the tops with buttered crumbs and bake a delicate brown in a medium oven.

Chicken in Ramekins.

Mince enough cold, boiled chicken to make a cupful and a half. Make a cupful and a half of good cream sauce and add to it the juice of an onion, a minced hard-boiled egg, a tablespoonful of washed capers and the seasoning. Add the chicken and fill buttered ramekin with the mixture. Cover the tops of the ramekins with buttered crumbs and bake a delicate brown in a medium oven.

Escalloped Oysters.

Drain three dozen freshly opened oysters from their liquor. Butter deep pudding dish generously and sprinkle with crumbs. Lay in a layer of oysters, then a layer of crumbs, dust with pepper, salt and dot with butter. Put in another layer of oysters, then crumbs, then seasoning and so on until all is used, making the crumbs the top layer. Pour over a half cupful of the oyster liquor and a quarter cupful of heavy cream and bake in a medium oven for about thirty minutes. Serve hot.

Chicken En Casserole.

Joint a young and tender chicken as for frying. Dust the pieces with flour. Make a savory dressing and place in the centre of a buttered a casserole dish, place the chicken around it and cover with a cupful and a half of rich stock. Cover and bake in the oven for an hour and a quarter. Serve in the casserole.

UNKNOWN SUICIDE.

Man Leaped From Fort Erie Ferry Boat Into Niagara River.

BUFFALO, N. Y., March 12. —(Canadian Press).—An unidentified man committed suicide last night by leaping from the upper deck of the Fort Erie ferry boat into the Niagara River. His body came to the surface once and then sank.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

SOME STATIONERY HINTS

Judging people's character and breeding by their stationery is not always a wise proceeding. There is a standard of correct stationery, but, unfortunately, it is not always the same in all countries. General usage has a lot to do with the selection of papers. For instance, it has become an almost universal habit to use the thin onion-skin paper with a light weight envelope, lined, for foreign use. The first reason is to save postage, for so many pages may be used with but the ordinary postal rate. Then it is reasonable in price. Neighborliness of nations has made its use general, therefore correct.

England for many years considered bond paper the correct thing to use. Changes in shapes and sizes of envelopes changed the manner of folding but it was still bond.

For those who wish to be conservative and therefore fairly correct, they should stick to white or cream linen paper of medium weight and in the medium-sized envelopes of rectangular shape. The crest or monogram should be in the centre of the paper and on the left-hand upper corner of the cards. The envelopes may be lined with tinted tissue to match the color of the sealing wax used.

Strongly colored papers of extraordinary sizes, with startling envelope linings are eccentric, sporty, and cause comment, and they are not considered in the best taste. Paper with gilt or scalloped edges is not desirable. Paper of the parchment type, with torn edges, is rather attractive and is not in bad form. Ready-stamped envelopes, with pad paper, may do for semi-business use, but not for regular correspondence.

Men's paper in cream or pale gray has a large rectangular envelope and a single sheet of paper that folds twice or a double sheet that folds once. This, in the linen or a heavy, smooth paper, s always in good form. Most men prefer the return address on the evnelope flap. The address is usually put on in the popular raised type.

It saves one a great deal of anxiety and, in the end, money to decide on his stationery and stick to the chosen kind, buying it in sufficient quantity to have a continual supply on hand.

MILK SUPPLY ASSURED

It is a rare household that does not occasionally find itself without a drop of milk if it is entirely dependable on the milkman. Storms and other happenings are responsible for the non-delivery of supplies quite often. Many housewives make sure always to have pure, fresh milk in the house by keeping a reserve supply of Borden's St. Charles Milk. Using this convenient milk "wherever the recipe calls for milk," they find it is the most satisfactory for all baking purposes. Its rich creaminess adds a new flavor to dishes. Each tall size can contains four cupfuls of full cream milk when diluted with an equal quantity of water. St. Charles Milk can be used as it comes from the can if preferred to have it so rich. It is also undiluted in coffee and cocoa, and on cereals.

Men live best on little. Nature gives all men happiness if they only know how to use it.

—Claudian.

Dahlie Red Makes This Effective Frock of Simple Design.

All the shades of red promise to find great popularity this Spring, despite the fact that red is usually considered more of a Winter shade.

The smart little model for the growing girl above is of dahlia red rep. There are groups of inset pleats, topped by covered buttons. Both pleats and buttons are smart trimming treatments of the moment.

The neckline is softened by a crepe de Chine collar, ending at the front in a becoming bow tie.

This is also charming in poudre blue, with tan trimmings, or in navy blue and red.

It is a greater thing to know how to acknowledge a fault than to know how not to commit one.

USE YOUR CREDIT

Our new Confidential Credit Department is a boon to those who find it necessary to buy carefully and yet want, perhaps, a better quality at a higher price than they feel warranted in paying at the time of purchase.

We now have the facilities to handle this end of the business, and are pleased to extend the necessary accommodation to worthy customers.

Ladies can now dress to suit their taste by making only a small cash outlay at first and then arrange for regular pay-day payments.

Also, we have added a nice line of good quality House Furnishings, especially for this section of our Store, and invite inspection at this season when both spring garments and other home needs are required.

A FEW CHOICE WORDS!

Considerable ado about the tarrying of Vera Cathcart without our nation's gates! Perhaps rightly. But somehow I can't get nearly as much wrought up over any injustice sustained by Vera as I can over the spectacle of hundreds of thousands of shawl-headed immigrant wives and daughters of men in this country sent back to the homeland every year because "the quota is filled."

But, although our nation's laws have deliberately wrecked the family which, in theory, it recognizes as "the unit of society," no one got much excited about it until recently. They do say the new law, which will not include the quota women folks of men already in this land, will go through! Here's hoping!

Ford is going into the cloth business. He is starting a factory which will manufacture upholstery cloth for his famous vehicle. Hordes of women who can't afford a spring suit hope that Henry can get in on this sartorial problem and help a little!

The average soft coal miner in America earns $1300 yearly. The average miner's family is six. A New York lady complains that she cannot even clothe herself "decently" on a yearly alimony of $100,000.

POLITICAL

Our nation's educators marched to the White House demanding a secretary of education in the president's cabinet. Not such an unreasonable request, it would seem! After all, we do have as many children of school age in this nation as hogs and cattle, and a cabinet officer for the express purpose of fostering livestock is not considered unreasonable at all!

The governor of the state of Ohio starts an investigation of the rumored state prohibition department's use of women as "decoys" to "get" a man. Much ado about it. Perhaps rightly so. But for the sweet sake of consistency, why not tirade against the practice in all departments of justice? The police departments of all our large cities nab a large majority of their suspects by the use of the woman "decoy," as the poor persecuted "movie lizard" will testify!

BOOKS TALKED ABOUT

The "Outline" craze which began with H. G. Wells' "Outlines of History" and was followed by outlines in science, literature, and the arts now adds an "Outline of Christianity," which purports to be "the whole story of civilization," by 100 authors. Five volumes. Worth several club programs.

"Hans, they expect too much. And that makes me afraid for them." So says the interesting wife Cynthia to her husband in what I prophesy to be spring's best seller, "Hounds of Spring," by Sylvia Thompson. The progeny are the subject of discussion. "We must somehow make them realize that there may be difficulties; that they can just bask in the sun and enjoy themselves." Now, you parents, go on and lick it up!

YE STYLE!

A woman might as well be dead as out of style, some prehistoric wise cracker commented. We warn, therefore, against any untimely demise by offering these sartorial tips:

Knitted duds for spring are aces. Knitted jumper frocks, sports coats, sweaters, and skirts.

High-hatting will be the popular outdoor sport this spring. Hats are higher than anything but the Woolworth building. Wee, brimless high hats of faille or grosgrain are to be very popular.

THE SECRETS OF CHARM

By Lucrezia Bori.

There are many beauty specialists in the world, and consequently there are many beauty methods of treating the same ailments.

There's the question of blackheads, for instance. Some beauty specialists advise steaming the skin to rid it of these ugly little black places, while other specialists throw up their hands in horror at the very mention of such a thing as steaming the face.

These latter claim that steaming loosens the skin by weakening the tissues and making the muscles flabby.

I am inclined to advise other methods for removing blackheads than steaming, as I do not think that very hot water is ever good for the complexion. And, of course, steaming is done by applying hot towels or holding the face over a bowl of steaming water.

Now, I am going to give here, a lotion that a certain beauty doctor has compounded for the purpose of cleaning and softening the skin so blackheads can be removed with ease.

The formula is as follows:

Tincture of green soap, 1 1-4 ounces. Borax, 1 1-4 drams. Alcohol, 2 1-2 drams.

You can have this lotion mixed by your druggist and bottled. Then, before using it, you must remember to shake the bottle well.

Apply the lotion by saturating a bit of soft cheesecloth with it and rubbing the cheesecloth all over your face as if it were a wash cloth. Then rinse your face in warm water, not hot. Next apply a liberal amount of olive oil to the parts affected with blackheads and leave the oil on about ten minutes. Remove the oil with a Turkish towel.

In this way most of the blackheads should be wiped off when you use the towel.

If you find that a few stubborn ones remain, proceed as follows, first procuring the second lotion:

Alcohol, 2 1-2 ounces. Spirit of lavender, 2 1-2 drams.

Apply this lotion to the most stubborn of the blackheads, then proceed to press them out with a special little instrument made for the purpose which you can buy at the drug store. It is a long piece of metal with a hole in one end. Place the hole over the blackhead and press gently to remove it.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

NUMBER 9—HOW THE CRACKNUTS GOT SPRING CLEANED

Now everybody knows that Mister Cracknuts is the neatest person in the world.

The March Hare didn't have to pull him out by the tail to get him to go to Scrub-Up Land to be spring-cleaned. No sir! He walked right off like a gentleman and hunted up the path by the secret bush that led to the little Fairyland country where Mister Rubadub lived, and got himself all fixed up as slick as a new shoe.

He had a Turkish bath and a shampoo and a hair-cut and a shave and a manicure and everything they give you in Scrub-Up Land. And he had his clothes brushed and oh—just everything!

Then he went home and showed himself off to his wife.

"You look fine, Daddy," said that lady proudly. "I'm all ready, too." And indeed she did look as glossy and bright as the other new shoe. Ladies know how to fix themselves up, someway, my dears, without having to traipse off to barber-shops.

"But Scamper is a sight!" she declared. "And I can't get him up. Here you and I are all ready for our trip to the Land-Where-Spring-Is Coming, and we can't go a step with him looking as he does."

Just then there was a knock at the door, and Mrs. Cracknuts opened it.

There stood the March Hare with his big book. Beside him stood the Twins, always ready to help if they were needed.

"Let me see," said the March Hare. "This is where O. D. Cracknuts lives, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir!" said the squirrel lady promptly.

"And his wife?" said the March Hare.

"Yes, sir! That's me!"

"And are there any children over six and under sixteen?" went on the March Hare.

"Yes, sir. There's one here, and one over at his aunt's for the winter, and one over at his—" Mrs. Cracknuts started to say, when the March Hare interrupted her. "I'm just after the one here," he said. "He has to go and get spring-cleaned at Mister Rubadub's house in Scrub-Up Land before he can go to the Land-Where-Spring-Is-Coming. It's the Fairy Queen's orders."

"Don't I know it," cried Mrs. Cracknuts. "But I can't get him up. What am I going to do?"

The March Hare thought for a minute. "I have a plan," he said. "Let us see your little boy, Mrs. Cracknuts, will you? But be sure and call me 'Doctor' when I'm in the room."

"Certainly," said Mrs. Cracknuts.

So they all went into the Squirrel's house and up to Scamper's room.

There lay the little squirrel boy in bed with the covers up to his chin.

The March Hare went up to the bed and put his hand on Scamper's forehead.

"He's got a fever, Mrs. Cracknuts," he said. "A high fever."

"Dear me, Doctor!" said Mrs. Cracknuts.

"Stick out your tongue, young fellow," said the March Hare.

Scamper stuck out a red tongue.

"Bad, very bad!" said the hare. "I think he has appendicitis and pneumonia and whooping cough and typhoid fever and mumps. Give him six spoonfuls of castor-oil and keep him in bed two months."

Scamper bounced out of bed in a hurry. "I'm not sick at all!" he shouted.

"Then come along and get your neck and ears washed, my boy," said the March Hare.

It took four people to get him there, but he went.

GAS IN THE STOMACH IS DANGEROUS

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble, Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid" indigestion.

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis, accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

WHEN THE DAM BROKE

One morning Billy Beaver opened his eyes to find that the pretty pond in front and back of his little wig wam was almost dry.

He rubbed his eyes with his front feet to make sure he was awake, then he ran to his doorway. Some one had broken through the dam and there was only a tiny ribbon of water where the lively pond had been the evening before.

Billy Beaver hurried out the doorway and down the bank to his nearest neighbor's house.

"Did you break through the dam?" he cried shaking his neighbor. "Some one has and the pond is dry."

"Goodness, no; it wasn't I," cried his neighbor jumping out of bed and peering out of his window. "I'm mighty glad you called me. We'll go and see what old Bobby Chuck has to say. I saw him around there yesterday afternoon." So together the two friends ran for Bobby Chuck's house.

"Of course, I didn't break through the dam," said Bobby Chuck, "Maybe Tommy Muskrat did it," he suggested. "I'll go with you to find out."

By the time the three friends reached Tommy Muskrat's house they were quite angry, and, without a word of warning, they all three began to pelt Tommy Muskrat with stones.

"What would I tear down the dam for?" Tommy Muskrat cried when he could get the angry neighbors to step throwing and listen to him. "I enjoy that pond as much as any of you." voice, as Billy Blue Jay sailed down beside the four friends. "I'll tell you who did that. It was Bobby Eel but he didn't do it on purpose," I am sure."

"You Broke the Dam."

"Did I hear my name mentioned?" questioned another voice, as a slick head poked up from the mud of the pond. "Did some one call me?"

"We did," cried the Beavers together. "You broke down the dam."

"Really, I didn't mean to," cried Bobby Eel, shaking in his boots. "I only made a tiny little hole, just large enough for me to get through. I'm dreadfully sorry. If I could I'd fill it up again for you."

"I'll bet you will be more careful next time with our dam," cried Billy Beaver. Then, with the help of his friends, he carried Bobby Eel back to the dam, where they made him stick his tail into the hole in the dam and keep it there until they had mended the big sand bank.

Needless to say, that was the last time Bobby Eel ever broke through that dam.

After that when he wanted to go over on the other side he swam out to the middle of the stream and floated over.

SONNY.

I constantly envy, like all other men, a youngster of eight, or of nine or ten. Down there in the age where all life is a grin, where youth has its fun, 'ere the worries come in.

There's something concerning all kids that I know, that makes me feel bad when I know they must grow. I guess after all, if you hit at the truth, we all feel that way when we're drifted from youth.

A grown-up can thrill o'er the pep of a boy who lives in a world that is made up of joy: who's reapin' the best that he possibly can, yet missin' a lot—as he'll find when a man.

You never appreciate bein' a child, an' runnin' through playdays a little bit wild, until you are grown—then it's always too late to live it all over—the working of fate.

I wish I could tell every lad in the land, the meaning of youth so he'd well understand, and get all the fun and the pleasure, but gee, they'll never find out till they're grown up, like me.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Yesterday a friend of mine pulled out a big bottle of aspirin and said: "Is this stuff good for deafness?"

I was somewhat startled because I have heard this drug recommended for everything else in the world, but never before for deafness. But we learn something every day!

Josh Billings, I believe it was, said: "The trouble with some folks is, they know so many things that ain't so!"

In the matter of medicine the average citizen is a routinist. Just "on general principles," he takes a cathartic, a "liver pill," some bicarbonate of soda, or a tablet of aspirin.

I have no objection to the use of any one of these drugs, provided there is a well understood reason for taking it, but, unfortunately, for the human family, and, fortunately for the medical profession, there is no cure-all. Some one, perhaps it was Voltaire or Dr. Johnson, once said that "the practice of medicine consists in putting into the body of which we know nothing, medicines of which we know less." Of course, I shall not admit that this saying is true of doctors, but it certainly is true of the majority of laymen.

The idea that aspirin can help deafness is ridiculous. This powerful drug should not be carelessly taken. Indeed, no powerful drug should be carelessly taken. Anyhow, never take medicine "on general principles." You should be more sensible, if not more scientific, than to do such a thing.

It is amazing how many people go about with a pocket filled with bottles and boxes of medicine. Even lawyers do this and yet they would sneer at a doctor who bought a dollar "Handbook of the Law" and proceeded to be his own legal director.

Every sensibly brought up individual knows a good deal about domestic medicine. Benjamin Franklin used to tell a good story about the London Medical Society. He said they had a debate over whether the medical profession has done more good than harm. Franklin said his friend Dr. Priestly declared it all depended on whether the "medical profession" included the old women. "If it does," he said, "doctors have done more good than harm. Otherwise the medical profession has done more harm than good."

This is a joking way of stating that the woman who has grown experienced by the bringing up of a large family and helping to care for the sick neighbors, has acquired a lot of real knowledge of how to treat the sick. I believe this, too, but I do protest against ignorant drugging. Talk with your own doctor about your ailment.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

L. C. Q.—What will cure a curvature of the spine?

A.—This condition should have the attention of a physician, who will prescribe the necessary treatment.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SATURDAY, MARCH 13.

A moderately active and favorable day is the augury, based on the ruling astral forces. In business, affairs should move in progressive channels and the financial returns should be satisfactory. It should be an auspicious time for making new contracts, for general correspondence and for transacting business with publishers. Heart and home affiliations should also thrive and bring happiness. This fortuitous state of affairs should not be spoiled by irritability or contention.

Those whose birthday it is are under excellent prospect for a satisfactory year, with things developing in progressive and harmonious channels. This happy condition should be enjoyed in domestic, social and heart affairs as well, but it should not be marred by contention and irritability. A child born on this day should have many excellent traits, despite a slight tendency to rash and quarrelsome acts. It should be ambitious, generous, accomplished and popular.

Chinese Interrupt Food, Water and Telephone—Want Nationalization.

HONG KONG, March 12.—(United Press.)—The Communist Chinese authorities in Canton have cut off the American Presbyterian Hospital there from food, water and telephones, according to a telegram received here to-day.

Refusal of the hospital authorities to permit nationalization of their institution caused the Chinese to act. The electricity supply of other hospitals already nationalized is threatened according to the report.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

EDWARD H. HARRIMAN—THE RAILROAD KING

"When E. H. takes the track," said one of Edward H. Harriman's subordinates, "it is the throttle in the last notch and all the main track cleared with the switches spiked."

There you have the man who, beginning his career as a broker on the floor of the Stock Exchange in 1870, became a railroad Napoleon, creating a railroad kingdom without a parallel in history. Though he was supposed to be the representative of groups of powerful capitalists, Harriman was, in fact, their leader. He completely dominated companies with invested capital of $5,000,000,000.

"I am not a ten-per-cent man," said he. "I want something that will grow." So he took his chances where he could make one thousand per cent. In 1883 when Stuyvesant Fish became vice-president of the Illinois Central, he got his friend Harriman elected to the Board of Directors. Right there Harriman flung his spur into the railroad arena. One of the things in his career which merited condemnation was the ruthless fight he waged against Fish whose social position and influence had laid the foundation of his fortune, and whom he ousted from the Illinois Central. No wonder that in the end he stood a monarch, but terribly alone.

The history of Harriman is a history of battle, and he always got what he was after, except when he locked horns with Daniel Reed and the Moores, trying to get control of the Northwestern. Among the many spectacular fights of Harriman's career was the wrangle with James Hazen Hyde when he sold the mighty Equitable Life, in which Harriman was a power, to Thomas F. Ryan, Harriman's financial foe; and along about 1907 the bitter war with President Roosevelt's administration; and his never-to-be-forgotten fight with Hill.

The Union Pfficific was in the hands of receivers when that astute financier, Jacob Schiff, undertook its reorganization. Harriman, at first an inconspicuous member in the syndicate, was soon the dominant figure, and Harriman-Kuhn-Loeb became the most powerful and unbeatable combination this country has ever known. Then the big mergers began.

Following the death of Collis P. Huntington, the financial world was startled by the announcement that the control of the Southern Pacific had been bought by Harriman. Back of that simple announcement lay the history of a battle of giants. Looking for an entrance into Chicago for the Union Pacific, Harriman had been checked by the Hill-Morgan group. Harriman bided his time. Morgan was in Italy and Hill on Puget Sound when, by a daring coup that made Wall Street gasp, Harriman jumped in and bought $65,000,000 worth of the $155,000,000 of the outstanding capital stock of the Northern Pacific. Later he secured $78,000,000 more, enough to control it. The fight precipitated the panic of May 9, 1901.

Harriman was born in 1848, the son of a poor clergyman. His early life was a time of privation and toil. When he died in 1909 he left more than $70,000,000. Yet he cared for money only as a means to an end; a pawn in the game.

The roads which he owned outright and those which he dominated had in capitalization a round $2,500,000,000 and a trackage of 40,000 miles.

THREE-MINUTE JOURNEYS

By Temple Manning

WHERE NO REJOICING MARKS THE WEDDING DAY

If there are two occasions in life when rejoicing seems absolutely expected, it is the day of a wedding and the day of a birth. All the world, it seems, rejoices at the prospect of two people joining their lives in joy and happiness and at the advent into the world of another human being.

But the inhabitants of parts of New Guinea feel otherwise about the matter. These memorable days seem to have no special significance for them. And there is no sign of mourning at a death either.

New Guinea is one of the largest islands in the world. It is 1,100 miles long at some spots and 400 miles wide. A great mountain range extends through it from east to west. There are regions of dense forests and these forests are inhabited by savage tribes.

These tribes differ greatly from each other. Some of them are pygmy races and some are of average size. They each have their own language or dialect. The languages are so different that various tribes cannot understand each other at all save in sign language.

All of these tribes agree, however, in their supreme contempt for women. To them women are simply slaves and nothing more. A man buys his wife as he would buy any other commodity.

Before his marriage, the man builds a hut on the outskirts of the village and after the ceremony he lives there with his bride for several weeks. Then they return to the village and assume the normal life of the tribe.

One of the strangest phenomena of marriage among the natives of New Guinea is the fact that the bride must demonstrate her condition of abject slavery at the time of her wedding. She must crawl on hands and knees to the home of her lord and master. If she comes from some distant tribe, she will probably make the journey by canoe.

The Bride Crawls to Her Home.

But as soon as she lands on the soil of her husband's tribe, she must fall to her hands and knees and make her way to his home in that fashion.

HINT FOR MORE NAVAL GRANTS

Dominions' Aid Welcome—Might Be Larger in Some Instances.

IN BRITISH HOUSE.

LONDON, March 12. — Canadian Press Cable. — W. C. Bridgeman, the First Lord of the Admiralty, in moving the navy estimates in the House of Commons on Thursday, said he would not deny that Great Britain had taken risks which would not have been taken in times of danger or in times of greater affluence, but the risks had been taken on those items which least affected the efficiency of the navy and which could be rapidly replaced in the event of danger in the future.

With reference to the Singapore naval base the position of the government was similar to that of last year, the First Lord of the Admiralty said, and as the floating dock there approached completion the government would decide the extent and rate of progress in the further scheme of establishing a graving dock after the government had an opportunity of consulting the representatives of the dominions at the forthcoming Imperial conference.

Mr. Bridgeman enumerated the overseas contributions towards the naval expense, and said India would continue to contribute 100,000 pounds annually towards the expense of the ships in Indian waters.

The Australian naval estimates provided for expenditure of £2,421,000 Mr. Bridgeman continued, in addition to $1,500,000 towards the construction of two new cruisers and two submarines; New Zealand's naval estimates provided for 500,000 pounds; Canada's naval estimates 280,000 pounds, and South Africa's 140,000 pounds.

The First Lord added that while the government was grateful to the Dominions for so generously contributing towards naval defence, "we would be very glad if in some directions the contributions could be increased.

FIVE ARRESTED IN HOOTCH ROUND-UP

Alcohol Ring in St. Paul, Minn., Alleged.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 12. — (Canadian Press).—Federal operatives from Cleveland continued their clean-up of St. Paul's alleged alcohol rings members yesterday by arresting three men here, bringing the total number of arrests in the twin cities in the past two days to five. The men arrested were: I. Saxon, Arnie Gilbraith, a car checker for the Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Omaha Railroad, and Earl L. Otto, clerk for the Omaha. The two previously arrested are Thomas Brown, St. Paul detective, and John Eseer, of Minneapolis, superintendent of a warehouse company.

The warrant under which all five were arrested is "blanket," naming about 25 persons, many of whom are already under arrest. Several other new names are on the list, and additional arrests are expected. The warrant charges conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

TO BROADCAST CHOIR CONCERT

Arrangements Made By Male Voice Choir With Star Station.

SECOND CONCERT.

Peterborough, through circumstances of one sort or another, has achieved a reputation in other portions of the province as a place where almost anything may happen. Although its sportsmen have a habit of going out and winning honors which reflect credit upon themselves and upon their home town, there are other things which occur here from time to time which do not redound overmuch to the good of the city in which they take place. An opportunity to put Peterborough on the map in a very much more satisfactory way is being offered just now in a proposal under consideration of the Peterboro Male Voice Choir, that they shall broadcast their forthcoming concert over the radio, and thus let people far and wide know just what this city stands for in the way of musical achievement.

The sixth annual concert of the Peterborough Male Voice Choir takes place this year on March 26th in the Grand Opera House, and indications point to an event which will surpass that of any other year. The choir's programme has been arranged with an eye to diversified effect while giving the public the full benefit of the seventy-five voices, an increase of nearly fifteen singers over last year's total. Sacred numbers, interpretative selections and popular favorites will be interspersed by renditions of harp music and vocal solos by the two visiting artists from Toronto. An all-Canadian concert has been planned for this year, with an all-Peterboro personnel in the Choir itself.

The Choir has been working for some time past on a proposition to broadcast their concert, and have made arrangements with The Star Station in Toronto. It will be impossible to broadcast the first concert itself, as arrangements cannot be made for that night, but a second concert is being planned, to be held under the ausnices of some society, several of which are under consideration, and for this concert, The Star has offered to send down an expert who will install the necessary equipment and look after the broadcasting, free of charge. Local artists would be asked to assist as vocalists for this event.

In connection with The Star's generous offer to broadcast the concert, the Radio Engineer in charge of the work remembered that the Choir had won second prize at the Ontario Musical Festival's choral competitions in Massey Hall two years ago, and mentioned this fact as having a direct bearing on his willingness to assist with the broadcasting of this year's programme.

Although The Star does the work gratis, the telephone tolls for such an undertaking would be in the neighborhood of $150, and the Choir is asking the music-loving and civic-minded citizens of the city to make contributions to a campaign to raise this amount. If the proposition goes through, it would mean that the concert given by the Peterborough Male Voice Choir would be heard by radio fans within a radius of three or four hundred miles of Toronto, extending to most of the big eastern cities of the United States.

The Peterborough Male Voice Choir is quite a unique organization. It is manned by singers who receive nothing for their work, and who practice hard for six months in the year for one big event. The funds derived from the annual concert and the city grant are only enough to keep up the large supply of music necessary for such an organization, and to pay the director's modest fee. The singers in the Choir themselves get no publicity from such a broadcasting proposition, but Peterborough would get a very large share of a place in the musical world by such a feat. Very few cities, outside of the large centres, have choirs of such magnitude, and it should be a matter of civic pride to citizens to interest themselves in this undertaking.

Contributions may be sent to Mr. W. F. Skitch.

TRINITY CLUB PLAY PLEASES AUDIENCE

Sunday School Class Puts on Delightful Three-Act Comedy.

A capacity audience greeted the members of the Trinity Club in the presentation of a three-act comedy in the Trinity Sunday School Hall last night. The play, "Kicked out of College," was the story of a boy at college who preferred inventing to studying, and his father, who got furious when he thought that his son was wasting his opportunities. He threatens to disinherit the son but relents on condition that his son will marry and settle down. In comes Sandy McCann, a friend of the boy's, who informs the father that the marriage has already taken place, and introduces the son's room-mate, who is the leading lady in the college play. The scheme worked successfully for a while, until the colored wash-lady calls to collect a bill and discovers the true state of affairs. Sandy, his room mate, not to be outdone, produces another wife. The father is informed that the son has joined the Mormons, but does not believe it, and hires a detective to find out the truth.

The whole play went off with precision, and the manner in which the various actors enacted their parts showed that considerable time had been spent in rehearsing. The whole play reflects great credit upon the directors, Mrs. M. W. Lyle and Mrs. B. McLeod.

The show will be repeated tonight.

The characters were as follows:
Bootles Benbow—Wilf. Derry.
Tad Cheseldine—Max Freeman.
Leviticus—W. T. Fanjoy.
Scotch McAllister—Ralph Cox.
Shorty Long—Howard King.
Slivers Magee—H. Rebill.

COMMITS SUICIDE.

Resident of Richmond Hill Left Note Telling Where to Find Body.

AURORA, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Jonathan Winger, aged 37, whose home is near Richmond Hill, was found dead yesterday afternoon on his uncle's farm. The dead man had previously left a note in the post box of his uncle, George Baker, saying he was going to do away with himself, and telling where his body would be found. Baker hurried to the spot and found the body hanging by a rope from a tree, with a 22 calibre rifle grasped in his hand. He also discovered a bullet wound in the dead man's right temple.

BRITISH ENVOY LEAVES TURKEY

Action Creates Air of Pessimism—Protested To Foreign Minister.

ABOUT SCHOOLS.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 12 (Canadian Press). — Anglo-Turkish relations took an unsatisfactory turn yesterday when Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, suddenly departed for London. This created an air of pessimism in foreign circles.

Ambassador Lindsay returned only on Wednesday from Angora, whither he had gone to protest against the recent action of Turkey in closing the English high school and threatening a similar move against the British Bank. It is understood that Sir Ronald told Rushdie Bey, Foreign Minister, that Turkey had violated the Lausanne treaty and that he was unable to resume the Mosul negotiations unless the authorities discontinued action which was considered inimical to British interests.

SUPREME OFFICERS VISIT PETERBORO

Heads of Knights of Pythias Assist Local Lodge in Drive For Members.

C. P. Davis, Supreme Representative of the Knights of Pythias, H. C. Lewis, Grandmaster of Arms, James Labett, District Deputy Grand Master, and William Harcourt, Past Chancellor of the Amicus Lodge, Toronto, are in the city to-day, assisting the local lodge, Marathon No. 29, in the drive for new members.

The Knights of Pythias have a membership of 1,000,000 in Canada and the United States. The growth in Canada in the last year or so has been very rapid, the chief reason being their activity in community work.

The order is based on friendship, and has three degrees. It is a modern order, being only 62 years old on Feb. 19th of this year. Because of the outcome of the war the membership age at which applicants were received, was lowered to 18, as the members considered that if a man was old enough to fight for his country he was old enough to belong to the order.

The local lodge has a membership composed of young men of excellent standing in the community.

MAY BE APPOINTED.

Hon. P. J. Venoit, former Prime Minister of New Brunswick, is likely to be appointed to the International Waterways Commission, it is reported.

NEW LIGHTING WAS INSPECTED

Fire, Water and Light Committee Expressed Approval of System.

TO ASK TENDERS.

The members of the Fire, Water and Light Committee departed from their usual routine last night when on the invitation of the Utilities Commission they inspected the temporary lighting system that has been installed on Water street. They proceeded from Water street to Hunter street East and inspected the new lighting there; also the extra standards that have been erected on the bridge. Many remarks in approval of the lighting sysem were vouchsafed by the different members.

On the motion of Alderman Fife, the committee decided to have the chairman of the Utilities Commission bring in a report on the cost of the new lights before proceeding to put in the poles.

Alderman Fife moved that the committee get a report from the Utilities Commission regarding the cost of lighting the Kiwanis Club "Welcome" sign on the gravel road.

The matter of placing lights at the bridge crossing the creek on Stewart street, also King Edward street, and at the King's Hotel, was left with the chairman of the committee.

Moved by Aldermen Fife and McDonald that a committee composed of the Mayor, Chairman, and Fire Chief have power to act regarding the disposal of the striker on the town clock, and also the disposal of the old hose to the Board of Works.

It was decided to call for tenders on fire hose, alarm boxes, chemicals, foamite, clothing and nozzles, and that local firms be given the opportunity of tendering on the same.

The chairman was authorized to procure quotations on the cost of public liability and property damage insurance for the motor apparatus of the fire department.

Toronto-Hamilton Radial Plans Not Endorsed, Says Statement.

TORONTO, March 12 (Canadian Press).—That the latest proposal to build a radial railway between Toronto and Hamilton has not the endorsal of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario became known last night. In a statement issued to the municipalities affected, it is said that the purpose of last Tuesday's meeting was simply to obtain an expression of opinion and the representatives are requested to place the minutes before their respective councils, and to obtain authority to act in the matter of disposing of the expenditure already incurred and the bonds now held as collateral security in connection with the scheme.

NEW CUT FLOWER.

Celeryantis Used in City on Wednesday For First Time.

Something novel and entirely new to Peterboro in the way of cut flowers was used here for the first time on Wednesday in the preparation of an elaborate bouquet. This variety is nown as the Celeryantis, and no doubt gets its name from the very close resemblance to our domestic plant, celery.

It is very heavily leafed, and extremely fragrant, and its introduction to Peterboro is attributed to a recent visit to Florida by Mr. Cecil Williamson of the Peterborough Floral Company, and Mr. F. C. Hungerford of the Woolworth Company. While in Florida, they made arrangements for a small supply of seed, which it is claimed will grow in this district to advantage. For best results, it is understood that the seed should be planted as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

Anyone interested in experimenting with this new variety may obtain sample gratis by applying to either of the above named gentlemen.

SALE OF COOKING.

The Ashburnham Patriotic League Held Very Successful Affair.

The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham held a very successful tea and sale of cooking yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss E. Scott, 109 Hunter street east. Decorations were carried out in a charming manner, appropriate to the season. The table was centred by a harp arranged with springeri and narcissus, flanked by green candles in silver holders, and surrounded by quantities of dainty St. Patrick's Day novelties in cut-outs and green fancies. Spring flowers also decorated the living room, where the guests were received by Miss Scott and Mrs. R. H. Parsons, president of the League. Tea was poured by Mrs. Harry Adams and Miss Margaret Calcutt, assisted by Mrs. F. Sedgewick, Mrs. N. D. Kelly, Mrs. George Perks, Mrs. A. S. Couper, Mrs. Gleeson and Mrs. H. Dodds. The ladies were ushered into the tea room by Mrs. Carleton Perry and Mrs. T. H. Glover. A table for the home-made cooking sale, also decorated with a harp and shamrocks, was in charge of Mrs. J. Butcher, assisted by Mrs. H. Morgan, Mrs. James Bryce and Mrs. B. Lawrence. Mrs. Wm. Mackenzie acted as treasurer.

CAPITAL NEEDED SAYS MUSSOLINI

Is Complement, Not Antagonist of Labor, He Says.

BILL APPROVED.

ROME, March 12. — (Canadian Press).—Declaring that capitalists really are captains of industry and that capital and labor are not necessarily antagonistic entities, but that one is the complement of the other, Premier Mussolini yesterday obtained the Senate's approval of a bill introduced by the Fascist Government establishing labor magistrates, compulsory arbitration between employers and works, and other labor reforms.

The vote on the bill was 139 to 27.

SOLDIERS' WORK WAS EXHIBITED

Interesting Display From Christie Street Hospital Shown Here.

SOME FINE EXAMPLES.

A very interesting exhibit of the work done by soldier patients in the Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, was held in the G.W.V.A. Hall yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Thursday Club. The president, Mrs. G. S. Cameron, and Miss Edwards, had charge of arrangements, and were assisted by the members of the club. Afternoon tea was served at a table prettily arranged with bright bronze calendula and yellow candles. Tea was poured by Mrs. E. Munro.

The exhibit was in charge of Miss Carolyn McDonald, one of the instructresses in the field service section of the Occupational Therapy Department of the Christie Street Hospital. It included some very interesting examples of the work of the men who were seriously incapacitated in war time and who use this means to divert their attention from the condition in which service to their country has left them.

Some of the work was extremely artistic and all of it was done with a thorough type of workmanship that reflected much credit on the instructors and the careful workers themselves. The hammered brass and pronze pieces, in desk sets, candlesticks and trays, were especially good and there were two pieces that were evidently the work of a master craftsman, a small cedar humidor lined with copper, and a cedar-lined cigarette box of walnut. There was also a lady's scarf with ends in conventional pattern, executed in colored dyes, and several silk and woollen scarves, carefully worked. A shopping bag of Hardanger was worked in soft colored wools, and others were made of suede leather in dark shades, ornamented with gilden leather flowers.

A powder puff holder was colored with rose pink sealing wax painted there were bridge scores and telephone lists with flower-ornamented leather covers, a soft brown leather motor cushion, skipping ropes with wooden soldiers as handles, bead encrusted lamp shades and fire screens, book ends and old-fashioned candle-holders in bronze snap-shot albums and coin purses of soft leather, beaded fobs and sautoir and dog collars, and a quantity of embroidered things that included linen towels and dresser scarves and card table covers.

A number of pieces that excited much interest, as they were done by a former local man, Mr. Lyburn now a patient in the Christie Street Hospital, included a very pretty black and red leather "under-the-arm" bag, and two carefully-executed telephone lists, with leather covers and leather flowers.

MEASURING PARTY.

Ladies' Aid of Mark Street Church Held Successful Function.

On Tuesday afternoon and evening March 9, the Ladies' Aid of Mark Street United Church held a "measuring party" in the basement of the church. The basement was very tastefully decorated, the color scheme being carried out in green and white. The programme rendered at various intervals during the afternoon and evening was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The following contributed to the success of the programme: Misses Howland, Morgan and H. Throop, Mesdames Smith, Speer, Weir and Morton, and Messrs. A. Mills, V. Boorman and R. T. Richards. The Greene Music Co. very kindly loaned a splendid grafonola, which added to the musical numbers. The receipts of the party amounted to $65.

GOING BETTER SAYS BRIAND AFTER MEETING

Conference To-day With German Delegation About League Crisis.

DOMINION COUNCIL.

Chamberlain and Empire Delegates Discuss Situation in League.

GENEVA, Switzerland, March 12.—(Canadian Press.)— "Things are going better," replied Premier Briand of France said to newspapermen this morning as he left a private conference with Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresemann, of Germany, regarding the League of Nations crisis. M. E. Paul-Boncour and Louis Louchuer, of the French delegation, were also present at the conference, which lasted an hour. The Germans declined to talk for publication after the meeting, but proceeded to Sir Austen Chamberlain's hotel, where a conference of all the Locarno ca hine pact signatories began at li 1.20 o'clock. An unexpected in- le dent to-day was the meeting of Sir Austen Chamberlain, British m foreign Secretary, and representa- tives of the British Dominions, including Ireland, for an exchange of views regarding the situation.

Dominion delegates refused any information as they came out, but it was learned yesterday on reliable authority that the Dominions and Downing street have been working in complete harmony, the Dominions agreeing with the fundamental British policy that nothing must be allowed to interfere with Germany's entrance into the league.

PLANS FOR PAGEANT ARE WELL ADVANCED

Committee at Y.W.C.A. Give Reports on Work Done.

A special meeting of the general committee of the Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium Pageant was held in the green room Wednesday afternoon, March 10.

The sewing committee, composed of Mrs. H. Beal, Mrs. H. Wightman, Miss A. Wood, Mrs. E. E. Harvey, Mrs. Oke, Mrs. D. Drummond, Miss C. Large and Miss H. Hamilton, has responded splendidly with the results that every afternoon for the past two weeks various groups of ladies have sewed. Costumes of every color and shape are materializing, and the sewing room has a touch of the tropical.

The ticket committee composed of Mrs. Waddell, convenor, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Wightman, Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Seels, Mrs. McNabb and Miss M. Elliot, will approach various organizations of the city. It was reported that the association would receive co-operation from the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs. Prizes will be given the juniors and seniors selling the largest number of pageant tickets, also any pupil selling 25 tickets will receive one free ticket.

Mrs. T. Cruikshank, Mrs. R. Turner, Mrs. E. E. Harvey, Mrs. LeClaire and Mrs. G. Wood, representing the advertising committee, will take charge of the distribution of posters, dodgers, etc. Small Y triangles will be given to the junior pupils.

The car committee, composed of Mrs. W. Oke, Miss M. V. Jory, Miss Lillian Green and Miss Jean Eastwood, will assist the advertising committee.

WRESTLER LEAVES RING.

Steecher, Title Claimant, Refuses To Meet Utica Wrestler.

BOSTON, Mass., Mar. 12 (Canadian Press)—The world's wrestling championship has had another complication added to its status. Joe Stetcher, who claims the title, has been declared to have forfeited it because he would not meet Joe Malchewicz of Utica, N.Y.

A near riot accompanied a sudden development of last night at the Arena when Stecher, slated to meet an "unknown" was confronted with the Utica man and leaped from the ring.

NEW NURSES' HOME BEING CONSIDERED

More Accommodation Is Needed at Nicholls Hospital.

When interview this morning regarding the proposed nurses home for Nicholls Hospital, Mr. Eastwood said:

This institution and its management is of the first importance to the citizens of Peterborough. It is accordingly unfortunate that it is generally somewhat difficult for the rank and file of citizens to acquire anything like a sound and liberal knowledge of its operation in detail and of the problems as to keeping abreast of requirements and opportunities for development.

At this moment much better accommodation for the nurses is urgently needed and has been for a lengthy period. To meet this necessity it is now proposed to either build an addition to the present house next to Jordan's Greenhouse or to erect a new building on the fine site owned by the Board north of the hospital, the distance and level being in favor of the latter.

"In view of the great importance and value of a good hospital and its equipment," said Mr. Eastwood, "I particularly wish to be placed on record as being opposed to any additions to an old building of small value.

"In matters of this kind the public is entitled to the best and if they do not receive it their approval is generally just as skimped as what they receive."

GEORGE STREET W.M.S.

Ladies Chose Officers For Ensuing Year at Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of George Street United Church was held Tuesday afternoon, March 9, Rev. J. E. Todd presiding. Officers for the year were elected as follows:

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Thursday evening a recruit was invested into the 3rd Peterboro Troop of Boy Scouts. The recruit, Douglas Fraser, was brought forward by the Patrol leader of the Wolves and repeated the Scout oath, "I promise on my honor to do my duty to God and the King."; "to help other people at all times," and "to obey the Scout laws."

Assistant Scout Master Mr. Taylor then gave the recruit his hat and staff, and invested him into the 3rd Troop by presenting him with the 3rd Troop neckerchief, gray and navy blue in color. He was then invested into the Wolf Patrol of the 3rd Troop by the Patrol leader of that Patrol. Then the recruit was led back, and three rousing cheers, followed by two "tigers," followed. After some games and instruction, the meeting closed.

A court of honor was held after the meeting, all Patrol leaders attending.

The competition now stands: Hounds 123, Wolves 122, Chickadees 116½ and Hawks 109.

PHILANTHOPIST DEAD.

Leopold Schepp Passed Away Before Culmination of His Plans.

NEW YORK, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Leopold Schepp, financier and manufacturer, who gave away millions in philanthropies and then appealed to the world for advice on how to give away more for the betterment of humanity, died last night in his 85th year. His various philanthropies, many of them so quietly done that they are unrecorded, reached a total of fully $7,000,000. At the time of his death he was still head of the cocoanut importing firm from which he had announced he intended to retire.

Tough Oakes Leads List At the Mining Exchange

TORONTO, March 12. Canadian Press. — Tough Oakes was the feature of this morning's session of the Standard mining exchange. Advancing 3 points to 60½ at noon colse on turnover equal to half morning's total of trading. Dome Mines firmed 10c at 19.45, and Noranda recovered 15 at 13.55. Beaver strengthened 1½ at 77. Few changes were recorded. and the volume of trading was very light. The weaker issues were Kirkland Lake down 2 at 110 and Teck-Hughes, down 1 at 320.

Assets and Liabilities Of Banks Has Decreased

OTTAWA, March 12 (Canadian Press).—The total assets and total liabilities of Canadian banks contracted by over one hundred and twenty million dollars during the month of January. The decrease in each case, according to a statement issued to-day, is reflected in a number of items covered. Both savings and current deposits held by the banks decreased during the month. The total of current and call loans held in Canada was also appreciably less at the end of January than at the end of December, 1925. The note circulation of the banks fell off by approximately thirteen millions.

General Advance In Value Toronto Stock Exchange

TORONTO, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Under the leadership of Consolidated Smelters, a general though moderate advance took place on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Smelters was the strongest as well as the most active issue, closing the morning 3 1-2 higher at 205 1-2. Abitibi was active and 3-4 higher at 80 1-4, while Brazilian firmed a half at 92 1-2, and Brompton advanced 1-4 at 34 1-2. C.P.R. gained 1 at 157 and Porto Rico 3-4 at 45. Massey Harris, newly listed, sold at 40 for common and 97 for preferred, latter two points higer. Steel of Canada softened 1 3-4 at 100 3-4.

Prices Take Upward Climb Pools Are Again Operating

NEW YORK, March 12. Canadian Press. — Despite intermittent profit taking and bear selling stock prices forged steadily ahead to-day with practically all groups participating in the advance. Early gains of 1 to 7 points were recorded by scores of rail and industrial shares, with pool operations again playing an important part in the day's trading. Delaware and Hudson led the rail group by soaring over 6 points to 172 7-8, the highest price since 1912, on buying influenced by reports that coal properties would be segregated before end of the year. Other rails were bid up on prospects of increased dividends which appeared justified in many cases by the high rate of current earnings.

U S Steel Common crossed 127 on reports of trade improvement and Republic Steel was accumulated on belief that dividends would be re-

Quotations At Liverpool Gives Wheat New Strength

CHICAGO, March 12.— (Canadian Press.)—Unexpected strength of quotations at Liverpool afforded the basis to-day for an early upturn in the wheat prices here, influenced by late action of wheat values in Chicago and Winnipeg yesterday. Liverpool market was due for only a fractional advance to-day, but instead showed gains of about three pence before to-day's opening at Chicago. Foreigners appeared to be buying here on fairly good scale to-day, Chicago opening prices, 5-8c to 1 3-8c., May (new) 163 1-2 to 164 and July 142 to 142 3-4, were followed by a further rise after a transient dip.

Corn and oats were lower, owing to the sympathy with wheat. Rural offerings of corn to arrive were light and commission houses were buying future deliveries but mostly in small lots. Corn opened 1-8c. to 5-8c. higher, May 78 3-8c. to 78 1-2c. but tended to keep near to the initial range. Oats started unchanged to 1-4c. higher, May 40 1-4c. to 40 3-8, Subsequent fluctuations were small, in line with the hog market provisions held about steady.

A feature of the meeting was honoring of Harry Rush, Justic the Peace, and veteran in many activities, by making him an ho ary member of Kiwanis Club. was introduced by John J. Tur who said there is none more wo of the honor.

President John Craig, who pre ed, welcomed Mr. Rush.

Growth of Compensation.

Workmen's compensation is accepted part of the social sys of any civilized country, Mr. Mo said. Before the industrial there were not many accidents, machinery brought accidents principles were set up that nece tated careful legal definition.

In 1875 and 1876 bills were in duced in the British Parliament do away with the assumption risk doctrine. In 1884 the Gern Government introduced and car an industrial accident compensat bill. Austria, Hungary, Norw Finland and Great Britain follow and by 1910 practically every cou in Europe had such a law. the steady march of progress, condition of the workers has gre improved.

I think that so far as competi tion is concerned, it is right just that the cost should fall on dustry. Compensation will b a material reduction in accid and accident losses, and indu will do something to prevent ha to pay.

The eleven years in this Pro under compensation have show well for the worker and empl Settlement by a board—if the b is good — is satisfactory, and Ontario there is a very comp worker.

The speaker explained at le the provisions of the Ontario ministration, describing the On Act as the most generous com sation act in the world.

Eighteen of the 24 classes organized for accident preven and the association has on its about two-thirds of the payro the plants. The work is ca on through efficient inspectors propaganda.

There is a great responsibilit the employer to prevent accid but the employee must reme that he loses through injury should put a guard upon car habits.

In 1925 there were 60,012 acci reported, nearly 200 every wor day, and of these there were death cases.

Accident prevention is one controversial subject in industr day. It is one subject on which ployer and employee can get gether.

The vote of appreciation moved by Ernest Smith.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE IN "HER SISTER FROM PARIS."

One of the interesting dual role ictures that call for a great deal of eal acting is that of "Her Sister rom Paris," starring Constance Talmadge, and the feature for the last alf of this week at the Capitol heatre. It has a rather attractive tle that looks like the last minute esperate attempt of the writer to hristen his or her mind-creation, but it is an entertaining picture, although somewhat untrue to life and quite artificial.

Ronald Colman, the hero, is as handsome as ever, but his little moustache does not become him. He is Joseph Weyringer, and Constance Talmadge plays a double role as his wife and as La Perry from Paris, the famous dancer, who is his sister-in-law. The picture is mainly Constance Talmadge, but she is quite equal to the task of occupying the centre of the stage at all moments. Her work as the fascinating Parisienne, bent on capturing the man who is really her husband, but who thinks that she is his sister-in-law, is extremely good and her gowns and general get up are marvellous exhibitions of the latest word in feminine attire. They are daring and extreme and fit in admirably with the up-to-date, modern atmosphere of the story, which portrays the trials of a neglected wife, who leaves her husband in a fit of rage over his negligence. Her twin sister arrives from Paris and the resemblance of the two is used to enable the wife to captivate her husband once more. The work of Constance Talmadge in this difficult role is exceptionally good, although she has an odd habit of using her eyes to too great an extent.

The short reels are as good as usual and include an extra-clever animated cartoon.—Jeanette.

A COLORFUL PICTURE.

"The Million Dollar Handicap" Proves Big Success.

Flashing colors, beautiful women, hard riding jockeys, fun and thrills go hand in hand in "The Million Dollar Handicap," a new Metropolitan production which was shown with great success at the Regent Theatre yesterday.

For the first time in screen annals the old-fashioned idea regarding a race track story has been thrown in the discard and a new idea developed and presented in a human way on the screen.

Vera Reynolds, the heroine of the production, proves herself quite an adept at riding race horses and is seen in a role which suits her to perfection. Her dash and courage are genuine and she makes her role exceptionally appealing.

Edmund Burns, Tom Wilson, Ralph Lewis, Clarence Burton and a dozen jockeys augment the work of Miss Reynolds and make the production one of unusual interest. There are many enjoyable comedy touches. It affords many moments of happiness and entertainment — due to the human qualities of the story and the manner of its telling.

WONDERFUL TEAM.

To Head Office Staff,

Sincere sympathy sad defeat of London team. We knew it.
Peterboro London Life Staff.

March 10, 1926.

Mr. C. W. Mealing,
District Manager,
Peterboro, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Mealing.— Just received your wire, and wish in return to warmly congratulate Peterboro on having such a wonderful goalkeeper. You will remember what the people of Ireland said when William of Orange beat King James at the Battle of the Boyne. They said: "Change your kings and we will fight you again and beat you." If Peterboro will exchange your goalkeeper with London, Peterboro wouldn't have a look in. Our boys on the ice had the edge on your lads, but our young man in the net had never had such an experience, was nervous, and played the two worst games of the whole season, in so far as he was concerned, while appearing before the Peterboro team.

Be this as it may it was a glorious fight, cleanly won, and Peterboro certainly has a wonderful team.

Yours very truly,
J. G. Stephenson.

Please extend our heartiest congratulations to the hockey club of St. Peter's School who, through winning the championship, come into possession of the cup donated by our house.

BANQUET MARKS END OF SEASON FOR CITY LEAGUE

Cups Presented Amid Speeches of Congratulation in Happy Occasion.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

Balance in Treasury After Schedule of Splendid Games.

A fitting windup to a successful season was the banquet held by the Peterborough City Hockey League last night at the Empress Hotel. Cecil Wolfe, president of the league, presided, and there were present the two champion teams, De Lavals and St. Peter's, with representatives of the other teams of the league.

In his remarks after the repast had been disposed of, President Wolfe congratulated the winning teams on their good showing. He spoke of the great efforts they had to make to win the championships and on the sportsmanship which they showed. He mentioned the harmony that had existed among the players and the managements of the teams, with every member of each team giving his best, whether regular or sub. The strong finish of the junior winners, after being apparently hopelessly out of the running, was also stressed. Mr. Wolfe spoke also of the hard fight which the losing teams had put up, referring with regret to the loss sustained by St. Andrew's when Marshall was hurt just before the final game.

Harry Dickin, through whose good offices the Hobberlin Cup was obtained for competition in the junior series, made a neat speech in presenting the trophy to L. W. LeBarr senior, manager of the winning team. Mr. Dickin congratulated the officers of the league on their good work, and the winners on their success.

In receiving the cup Mr. LeBarr promised that he would be back next year in an endeavor to hold the cup.

President Wolfe presented the senior trophy to the De Laval team, speaking of their hard games to win it. Walter Perks received the cup and spoke of the competition offered by the Brintons, with whom the winners had played five games, finishing one goal up in the total scores. He congratulated the junior champions and the other teams of the league on the good play during the season.

Mr. Robinson of the De Laval told of the satisfaction the victory had given even the highest officers of the company and spoke of the clean game that had been played and the benefits that would accrue to the players from their participation.

J. W. Batten, secretary-treasurer of the league, presented the financial report, showing a good balance after all expenses had been met. On behalf of his own team, St. Andrew's, the junior runners-up, he congratulated the winners. He prophesied that the league next year would be bigger and better than ever.

Jimmy McMartin, manager of the Brintons, and Jim Coursey, manager of the Raybestos team, congratulated the winners and promised to be back in the game next year. C. Curtis reminded the gathering of the good players who had come from the City League in former days and said that the boys in the league now would be the stars of the Peterborough team in years to come.

In this connection it was remembered that when Bogardis was ordered out of the game the seniors sent for Mel McDougall of the De Lavals, and when it was found that he was unable to play because of a technicality, "Chuck" Kennealey of St. Peter's juniors was called on.

Vincent O'Connell was the final speaker. He spoke of the fine games played by the teams of the league.

The final act of the gathering was to move that a telegram be sent to Captain Bailey of the seniors congratulating the team on winning the Senior O.H.A. Championship and expressing the hope that it might go on to win the Allan Cup and the championship of Canada.

PREVIEW OF WEEK END SOCCER

LONDON, March 12. Canadian Press. — The League race in English soccer has now reached the three-quarter's post and the eligibles have settled down to a gruelling run in the home stretch. The odds are heavily in favor of Huddersfield town, who are performing with every prospect of coming in easily, but such is the uncertainty of the game that the championship is not likely to be established until the curtain is finally rung down. At the moment Huddersfield have a clear lead over all competitors, being six points ahead of Sunderland, seven in front of Bury and eight in the lead over Arsenal. The Yorkshiremen, who were long since deprived of any chance in cup honors, are already consoling themselves with the thought that at least the league is once more theirs; but with another ten more games to go, strange things are liable to happen.

On Saturday Huddersfield entertain Manchester United. Despite the ranking of the old Trafford club in the league, they are not by any means out of the running, for due to the fact that they have been obliged to play all cup ties, they are four games in hand over Huddersfield, and victories in all would bring them to within a couple of points of the leaders. In view of that the United are still to be regarded as dangerous contenders in the league fight, as well as in the cup contest. They have shown remarkable form and although it is too much to expect that they will carry off both cup and league, they may nevertheless be relied on to present a very good showing in both.

Sunderland, who have not been engaged since the last Saturday in February, meet Liberpool on the former's ground. Their league prospects are not particularly bright nor have Liverpool any hopes in that direction. As a game however it will be interesting.

Chance for Bury.

Bury's performance this season has been one of the pleasant features of the league, and on Saturday they have an opportunity to push themselves still further ahead by entertaining Leeds United.

Bury and Leeds United came up from the second string a couple of years ago and under these circumstances their meetings have always been invested with special interest.

The other league games are not particularly interesting except for the possible changes towards the bottom end of the table where Burnley and Manchester City are threatened with relegation. Burnley travel to Blackburn in the remote hope of being able to accumulate sufficient points to strengthen an already feeble grasp of First Division membership, while Manchester City play host to West Ham. Manchester City are in the semi-finals of the cup, and they may be concentrating on the honor that would be theirs should they win that trophy. But to win the cup and be dismissed from their division would be Dead Sea fruit, and it is up to them to stage as powerful a rally in the league as they have put on in the competition.

Other scheduled encounters are: Newcastle United (1) at Birmingham (3); Aston Villa (0) at Cardiff (2); Arsenal (4) at Everton (1); Notts County (2) at Sheffield (0); Leicester City (5), at Tottenham (3); and Bolton Wanderers (2) at West Bromwich (2).

The figures in brackets indicate the score at the previous meetings this season between the teams concerned.

Moviegraphs

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 12.—Ricardo Cortez, who once bore the less euphonious name of Jack Crane, a cabaret dancer, walked out on the studio set, the day following his marriage to Alma Rubens. A number of "extras" rushed forward some with extended hands, to offer congratulations to the newlywed.

Cortez shunned the extended hands and, turning his back on the well-wishers, hurried to his director, William Wellman. Then the movie-sheik, labeled after the name of a couple of cigars, complained to the director about the "extras" annoying him, and asked that they be restrained from even speaking to him.

The day after Cortez' role in "The Pony Express" had been widely acclaimed by critics and the news had reached the actor, I had lunch with him at the Montmartre. He was very democratic then. He took his cinema honors very modestly.

"'Bird old fellow,' he said to me. 'I will never forget that I am just a mere human being. I know I shall never become a little tin god unto myself like a lot of other fellows, I know, have.'"

Cortez has failed to establish this distinction . . . the distinction of not becoming egotistically-phased by overnight film fame and fortune.

Richard Headrick, only a year or so ago was a noted child actor of the screen. Then the awkward age set in and the prodigy no longer was in demand. Now he has turned evangelist and is known as Hollywood's youngest preacher. The old inborn theatrical trait—out of the show-world, but never out of its spotlight.

Few know, even in Hollywood, that Charlie Chaplin passes up more money than most producers make in a lifetime. It was Charlie who discovered Jackie Coogan, who turned out to be the million dollar kid. The famed comedian had a contract on Jackie for five years after "The Kid," the picture which made him overnight, was released.

Countless producers offered Jackie millions a year. . . . offered Charlie more than a million for the contract which he held on the child wonder. Charlie wouldn't sell. He tore up the contract he held on Jackie and told the kid's father to grab off the best contract he could.

Charlie also held a long term contract on Georgia Hale, the heroine of his "Gold Rush." The comedian learned that many producers were seeking the girl's services and he released her.

Editorial: William Fox Film Company is preparing to make "The Music Master"—a part of stage history because of Warfield's incomparable characterization. Warfield has never succumbed to movies and it isn't likely that film gold will now entice him even to play his pet role. In that event there is only one man who can transmit to the silent screen the poignant charm and tragedy of "The Music Master." He is Henry B. Walthall. If "Hank" isn't cast in this role, motion pictures will have many alibis to make.

After learning that Madam Elinor Glyn writes all of her stories while a phonograph is hurling musical capsules into her ears, I turned on the Victrola and awaited results. Finally, my fingers fashioned these words: "Wonder who'll read this stuff, anyway?"

NEW CHAMPION.

For the first time in the history of pugilism, the middleweight class is bossed by a negro fighter.

Tiger Flowers of Georgia and other points south, is the new champion. Somehow I do not think the Tiger will be in possession of the crown any great length of time.

Despite his defeat of Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, I am inclined to think that Greb is still his master.

I note the experts insist that Greb has come to the end of the trail, that he is through. I have my serious doubts about that.

Greb didn't take the Flowers match seriously. In 90 days the new champion will defend his crown. In all probability his opponent will be Greb. I look for the decision to be reversed.

IRELAND PLAY SWANSEA NEXT

Victory Means International Championship—Rugby Team Strong.

SATURDAY GAME.

LONDON, March 12. — (Canadian Press). — Saturday's International Rugby game—the eighth of the current season's series—is perhaps the most critical, inasmuch as there will determine whether Ireland is to be champion of the five countries: England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales and France, or whether one more chance is to be given to Scotland, Wales and the Irish. That Ireland is the trimmest powerful International Rugby team this year is admitted. Rugby fans, and the manner in which they have ridden roughshod over all opposition up to the present gives the Hibernians hope that Greb will be able to crush Wales on Saturday with equally as much ease as they have already subdued England, France and Scotland.

Political identity is lost in the Irish team, for it represents all Ireland. That is to say, International Rugby, like science, in the bounds of Lord Haldane, "knows no borders," and the customs bounded every between Northern and Southern Ireland does not exist in the realm of athletics. Loyalists and Republicans vie with each other for the honor exclusively of United Ireland, and their co-operation has been so far particularly successful.

Ireland already sees the international honors in the hands of the fifteen that carry the country's Rugby reputation with them. At Swansea on Saturday, the Irish feel their valiant efforts will be clinched.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

By Special Arrangement With Colliers' Magazine.

JIM BARNES—MIDIRON

If you will watch most any number of good golfers, you will observe that when they lash out for extra distance they are more than likely to be off the line to the left. This is because in trying to put extra force into the blow, the right hand, which delivers the bulk of the punch, assumes proportionately too much command of the stroke.

The secret of getting distance lies in proper timing of the stroke; that is, to have the club-head traveling at its highest speed just as it comes into the ball.

Possibly you may find a good tip in what is frequently referred to as hitting through the ball, by which is meant an attempt to attain the maximum speed with the clubhead at a spot an inch or two in front of where the ball lies.

I believe the player who tries to hit the ball very hard as a rule instinctively slacks off a little too soon; by that I mean the player who is conscious of a hitting attempt rather than a swing.

So it might help you to try to give the club-head its maximum speed at a point just beyond where the ball lies.

ST. PATS WON FROM CANADIENS

Defeated Last Year's Champs 5-3—Maroons Beat New York.

SICK TEAM WON.

TORONTO, March 12.— (Canadian Press.) — St. Patricks' new front line got away to a flying start against the Canadiens last night in the second game of the local professional season and in less than five minutes after the second period had started were leading last year's champions by 4 goals to 0. But from then on the Canadiens forgot that they were out of the running and made a great game out of the fixture. The game ended with St. Patricks having a 5 to 3 victory to their credit.

MAROONS 5, NEW YORK 1.

MONTREAL, March 12.—(Canadian Press.)—Montreal Maroons added to their margin in second place in the National Hockey League when they trimmed New York Americans here last night 5 to 1. With Holway and Dinsmore ill, and Benedict, Munro and Seibert out of sick beds to enter the game, the Maroons were conceded no chance against the Americans after the Gotham team's recent win over Boston.

CLERKS PUT OUT BY HYDRO TEAM

Town League Semi-Final Game Provided Good Hockey.

SCORE WAS 3-1.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 12.—The Hydro put the Clerks out of the running for the Town League championship by defeating them 3 to 1 in a semi-final sudden death game at Covert's Arena last night. The Hydro will meet the Outlaws in a series of two games, goals to count on the round; the first of which will likely be played Monday night.

The Clerks showed a complete reversal of form over their game with the Outlaws Tuesday night, and had much the better of the play all through the game, but they couldn't get the puck past Saunders in the Hydro net. The Clerks worked the best combination seen at the Arena this winter, and in the first period, the front line were right in on Saunders, time after time, but the newest addition to the Hydro gang made sensational saves, and the teams went to the dressing rooms at the end of the first period without a score. With any luck at all the Clerks should have been nursing a lead of a goal or two.

The second period was more even. The Clerks were still working in close before shooting, while the Hydro were shooting at all distances and going in fast for the rebounds.

The Hydro took the lead when Lucham, trying a clear a rebound, batted the puck into his own net. It was a bad break against the Clerks, and was followed by a soft goal by Jack Cowell, when he camped in front of the Clerk net unchecked, and picked up the loose puck, when Badgley was checked along the rail. Fox was at the other side of the net for Badgley's shot, and had no chance to get over for Cowell's hoist. And the Clerks were two down at the second rest.

The Clerks had the upper hand in the final period and kept the Hydro hemmed in their own end of the rink the better part of the period but were only able to beat Saunders once, Lucham slamming home the rebound of Woods' shot, and Cowell got that back with three minutes to go when he got the rebound of his own shot, and beat Fox from close in. The Clerks continued to press and had every body but Fox up on the attack, but they couldn't break the Hydro defence.

It was a wonderful game by two fast, clever teams and the Clerks were just as great in defeat as the Hydro were in victory.

Saunders was outstanding for the Hydro and turned back the Clerk snipers many times when a goal looked certain. Johnston turned in a grand game up front and was particularly brilliant in the third period. The rest were not far behind but Johnston and Saunders had a slight edge over their teammates.

The Clerks didn't flash any particular stars; all the boys played fine hockey and they gave unselfishly of all they had but luck was against them.

March 10, 1926.

Mr. C. W. Mealing,
District Manager,
Peterboro, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Mealing.— Just received your wire, and wish in return to warmly congratulate Peterboro on having such a wonderful goalkeeper. You will remember what the people of Ireland said when William of Orange beat King James at the Battle of the Boyne. They said: "Change your kings and we will fight you again and beat you." If Peterboro will exchange your goalkeeper with London, Peterboro wouldn't have a look in. Our boys on the ice had the edge on your lads, but our young man in the net had never had such an experience, was nervous, and played the two worst games of the whole season, in so far as he was concerned, while appearing before the Peterboro team.

Be this as it may it was a glorious fight, cleanly won, and Peterboro certainly has a wonderful team.

Yours very truly,
J. G. Stephenson.

CONGRATULATIONS

Please extend our heartiest congratulations to the hockey club of St. Peter's School who, through winning the championship, come into possession of the cup donated by our house.

Famous Painting Suggests Title for Typo Movie

2. Dollman's oil painting, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?"
3. Showing contrast between treatment of disabled printers and the fate of derelicts seen in painting.

Dollman's famous painting, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" supplied the inspiration for the recently released motion picture, "His Brother's Keeper," produced by the International Typographical Union, which will appear on the screen at the Regent Theatre in Peterboro next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Sight of a group of derelicts shivering in a cold London rain on a bench beside the Thames Embankment so impressed the famous artist that he made it the subject of his best-known painting. In the background of the picture gleam the lights of a great hotel where men and women of wealth and fashion are indulging in feasting and gaiety, heedless of the city's poverty and want.

The motion picture draws a parallel between the lot of the destitute outcast, overtaken by illness or old age, and that of the union printer, who is guarded against misfortune by the sanctuary of the Union Printers' Home in Colorado Springs, the old age pension system, burial benefit fund and other protective institutions maintained by the International Typographical Union.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Mar. 12.—Ricardo Cortez, who once bore the less euphonious name of Jack Crane, a cabaret dancer, walked out on the studio set, the day following his marriage to Alma Rubens. A number of "extras" rushed forward some with extended hands, to offer congratulations to the newlywed.

Cortez shunned the extended hands and, turning his back on the well-wishers, hurried to his director, William Wellman. Then the movie-sheik, labeled after the name of a couple of cigars, complained to the director about the "extras" annoying him, and asked that they be restrained from even speaking to him.

The day after Cortez' role in "The Pony Express" had been widely acclaimed by critics and the news had reached the actor, I had lunch with him at the Montmartre. He was very democratic then. He took his cinema honors very modestly.

"Bird old fellow," he said to me. "I will never forget that I am just a mere human being. I know I shall never become a little tin god unto myself like a lot of other fellows, I know, have."

Cortez has failed to establish this distinction . . . the distinction of not becoming egotistically-phased by overnight film fame and fortune.

* * *

Richard Headrick, only a year or so ago was a noted child actor of the screen. Then the awkward age set in and the prodigy no longer was in demand. Now he has turned evangelist and is known as Hollywood's youngest preacher. The old inborn theatrical trait—out of the show-world, but never out of its spotlight.

Few know, even in Hollywood, that Charlie Chaplin passes up more money than most producers make in a lifetime. It was Charlie who discovered Jackie Coogan, who turned out to be the million dollar kid. The famed comedian had a contract on Jackie for five years after "The Kid," the picture which made him overnight, was released.

Countless producers offered Jackie millions a year. . . . offered Charlie more than a million for the contract which he held on the child wonder. Charlie wouldn't sell. He tore up the contract he held on Jackie and told the kid's father to grab off the best contract he could.

Charlie also held a long term contract on Georgia Hale, the heroine of his "Gold Rush." The comedian learned that many producers were seeking the girl's services and he released her.

Editorial: William Fox Film Company is preparing to make "The Music Master"—a part of stage history because of Warfield's incomparable characterization. Warfield has never succumbed to movies and it isn't likely that film gold will now entice him even to play his pet role. In that event there is only one man who can transmit to the silent screen the poignant charm and tragedy of "The Music Master." He is Henry B. Walthall. If "Hank" isn't cast in this role, motion pictures will have many alibis to make.

After learning that Madam Elinor Glyn writes all of her stories while a phonograph is hurling musical capsules into her ears, I turned on the Victrola and awaited results. Finally, my fingers fashioned these words: "Wonder who'll read this stuff, anyway?"

BILLY EVANS SAYS

NEW CHAMPION.

For the first time in the history of pugilism, the middleweight class is bossed by a negro fighter.

Tiger Flowers of Georgia and other points south, is the new champion. Somehow I do not think the Tiger will be in possession of the crown any great length of time.

Despite his defeat of Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, I am inclined to think that Greb is still his master.

I note the experts insist that Greb has come to the end of the trail, that he is through. I have my serious doubts about that.

Greb didn't take the Flowers match seriously. In 90 days the new champion will defend his crown. In all probability his opponent will be Greb. I look for the decision to be reversed.

Greb figured he could beat Flowers regardless of coindition and paid the penalty by losing a close decision.

GREB'S DEFEAT

For two months Greb has been touring the country, exhibition his wares on the coast. He engaged in something like a half dozen fights, winning them all.

He did little or no training for any of the bouts, doping it that he could fight himself into condition rather than get ready by gymnasium and road work.

Ten days before the Flowers fight Greb was no nearer New York than Chicago. He arrived there only a few days prior to the bout.

Greb trained for the Flowers fight seeing the sights on the coast and sleeping in Pullmans most of the time. What's more, no one sleeps in Pullmans.

* * *

As a result of his haphazard training methods, Greb falied dismally to show the form expected of him. His judgment of distance was terrible, there was no sting to his punches and his marvelous legs failed to keep him out of hailing distance of the many wild punches launched by Flowers.

LAX TRAINING METHODS

I saw Greb give Mickey Walker a trimming last summer in one of the greatest battles I have ever witnessed.

That evening Greb looked like the great fighter he is, when right. Realizing Walker's remarkable ability, Greb was in perfect shape. He was class all over against Mickey.

No one can tell me that a fighter could slip back so rapidly in six months as to fall a victim to Flowers, who has twice been kayoed by Jack Delaney.

Can Greb come back? That will be the subject of many a story in the next few months. I dont' think he ever went away.

* * *

I am of the opinion that Tiger Flowers is going to have the busiest evening of his life when he again consents to take on Harry Greb.

True, Greb has no doubt sapped some of his vitality by his mode of living, but I still think he is plenty good enough to beat Tiger Flowers in their next meeting.

CURLING

COBOURG, March 12. — Four rinks of Belleville curlers were in Cobourg on Tuesday afternoon and evening for a return game with local curlers, and were defeated on the day's play by a score of 111 to 87.

The visiting curlers were met by a local reception committee and after luncheon began play.

A pleasant feature was the visit to the curling rink of Hon. Mr. Justice Wright, who was here for the spring sittings of the Supreme court.

Upon invitation from Mr. F. M. Field, K.C., and with the consent of the opposing skip, Col. Allen of Belleville, Mr. Justice Wright skipped several ends very satisfactorily for Cobourg. He is a former president of the Ontario Curling Association, and goes to his home town, Owen Sound, on Friday to present the Wright trophy to a winning club.

After the afternoon game the visitors were entertained by the Curling Club to a supper at the Asylum, given by the ladies of King Street United Church, and after the evening game coffee and sandwiches were served at the club rooms.

All That Remains is Posting of Forfeits For Labor Day Bout.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 12 (United Press).—Jack Dempsey and Floyd Fitzsimmons, fight promoter, after a lengthy conference here, announced that the final articles of agreement looking toward a Labor Day bout between the heavyweight champion and Harry Wills had been signed.

All that remains to bind the deal, they said, is the posting of guarantees, and they promised that before nightfall $550,000 in cash will have been deposited in Los Angeles banks.

HOCKEY

The Hydro Wildcats and L. Anthony's Aristocrats played a great game of hockey at Brock Street Rink last night. There is great rivalry between these two teams, so the crowd was sure of a great game. The Aristocrats showed their superiority early in the game, and added another win to their string by defeating the Hydro by 9-0. The game was fast and few penalties were enacted. The line-up:

Hydro—Goal, H. Spargo; wings, McCullough and P. Calladine; defence, J. Johnson and Hewitt; centre, Muir; sub., Frenchy.

Anthony's—Goal, V. Anthony; wings, L. Anthony and M. Fowler; defence, H. Legros and Nullis; centre, Mein; sub., D. Miller.

ASKS FANCY FIGURE

Goose Goslin, whose chief claim to fame is a large batting average, also a beak of even greater proportions, it at present busy worrying Owner Clarke Griffith of the Washington club.

In other words, Goslin is unsigned for the season of 1926 and is demanding a contract that makes Clarke Griffith believe he seeks to gain controlling interest in the club.

For the last two seasons the Washington club has paid a 40 per cent dividend. The reason — two American League pennants and one world championship.

It seems Mr. Goslin believes that his trusty bat has been largely responsible for much of the success by the Washington club. He is anxious that he be allowed to share in some of that 40 per cent dividend.

Griffith says he will play left field before he accedes to Goslin's demands. However, it is a pretty good bet "Goose" will again be playing the outfield for Washington this season.

Theatre AT THE CAPITOL

CONSTANCE TALMADGE IN "HER SISTER FROM PARIS.

One of the interesting dual role pictures that call for a great deal of real acting is that of "Her Sister from Paris," starring Constance Talmadge, and the feature for the last half of this week at the Capitol Theatre. It has a rather attractive title that looks like the last minute desperate attempt of the writer to christen his or her mind-creation, but it is an entertaining picture, albeit somewhat untrue to life and quite artificial.

Ronald Colman, the hero, is as handsome as ever, but his little moustache does not become him. He is Joseph Weyringer, and Constance Talmadge plays a double role as his wife and as La Perry from Paris, the famous dancer, who is his sister-in-law. The picture is mainly Constance Talmadge, but she is quite equal to the task of occupying the centre of the stage at all moments. Her work as the fascinating Parisienne, bent on capturing the man who is really her husband, but who thinks that she is his sister-in-law, is extremely good and her gowns and general get up are marvellous exhibitions of the latest word in feminine attire. They are daring and extreme and fit in admirably with the up-to-date, modern atmosphere of the story, which portrays the trials of a neglected wife, who leaves her husband in a fit of rage over his negligence. Her twin sister arrives from Paris and the resemblance of the two is used to enable the wife to captivate her husband once more. The work of Constance Talmadge in this difficult role is exceptionally good, although she has an odd habit of using her eyes to too great an extent.

The short reels are as good as usual and include an extra-clever animated cartoon.—Jeanette.

"The Million Dollar Handicap" Proves Big Success.

Flashing colors, beautiful women, hard riding jockeys, fun and thrills go hand in hand in "The Million Dollar Handicap," a new Metropolitan production which was shown with great success at the Regent Theatre yesterday.

For the first time in screen annals the old-fashioned idea regarding a race track story has been thrown in the discard and a new idea developed and presented in a human way on the screen.

Vera Reynolds, the heroine of the production, proves herself quite an adept at riding race horses and is seen in a role which suits her to perfection. Her dash and courage are genuine and she makes her role exceptionally appealing.

Edmund Burns, Tom Wilson, Ralph Lewis, Clarence Burton and a dozen jockeys augment the work of Miss Reynolds and make the production one of unusual interest. There are many enjoyable comedy touches. It affords many moments of happiness and entertainment—due to the human qualities of the story and the manner of its telling.

BOWLING

AT K. OF C. ALLEYS.

At the Knights of Columbus bowling alleys last evening, ladies' teams, playing scheduled games were the Tuilps (Miss Josephine Hunt, captain) who won three games from the Owls (Miss Katherina McDonald, captain), and the West Ends (Mrs. J. J. Doris, captain) who took two games out of three from the Roses (Miss Mamie Archambault, captain.)

On the tulips' team, Miss A. Grant had scores of 206 and 152, and Miss G. O'Connell, 162. Miss K. McDonald of the Owls made 164 and 167 and Miss D. Bogue, of the same team, 169. Mis. A. Doris, of the West Ends, made a score of 160, and Miss M. O'Brien of the Roses' team, 150.

KIND SYMPATHY IS NOT ACCEPTED

London Life Head Office Staff Says "Exchange Goalkeepers."

WONDERFUL TEAM.

To Head Office Staff,
London Life Insurance Co.,
London, Ontario.

Sincere sympathy sad defeat of London team. We knew it.
Peterboro London Life Staff.

March 10, 1926.

Mr. C. W. Mealing,
District Manager,
Peterboro, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Mealing.— Just received your wire, and wish in return to warmly congratulate Peterboro on having such a wonderful goalkeeper. You will remember what the people of Ireland said when William of Orange beat King James at the Battle of the Boyne. They said: "Change your kings and we will fight you again and beat you." If Peterboro will exchange your goalkeeper with London, Peterboro wouldn't have a look in. Our boys on the ice had the edge on your lads, but our young man in the net had never had such an experience, was nervous, and played the two worst games of the whole season, in so far as he was concerned, while appearing before the Peterboro team.

Be this as it may it was a glorious fight, cleanly won, and Peterboro certainly has a wonderful team.

Yours very truly,
J. G. Stephenson.

CONGRATULATIONS

Please extend our heartiest congratulations to the hockey club of St. Peter's School who, through winning the championship, come into possession of the cup donated by our house.

VOL. LVII., No. 61

MRS. MARY DWYER COMMITTED TO STAND TRIAL ON CHARGE OF NEGLECTING TWO CHILDREN

Strong Appeal For Discharge on Ground That She Did Her Best.

MAY GET BAIL.

Crown Contends Accused Neglected Obvious Channels of Help.

Mrs. Mary Dwyer was yesterday evening committeed to stand trial on a charge of culpable neglect of John and George Dwyer, her stepsons, during the months of December, 1925, and January and February, 1926. She pleaded "not guilty."

Mrs. Dwyer was arraigned on Thursday afternon on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of John Dwyer, but after all the evidence had been presented the Crown Attorney agreed that there was not sufficient to support the charge. Magistrate O. A. Langley, who presided, found in accordance with this, but followed the precedent of the previous day when he committed George Dwyer for trial on a lesser charge. Both trials will probably open in June.

Possible Three Years.

A punishment of imprisonment for three years is provided for on conviction under the section of the Criminal Code under which Mr. and Mrs. Dwyer are now awaiting trial.

Mr. Kerr's Plea.

Mr. Kerr remarked on the newspaper publicity that has been given the case, indicating, he said, the sympathetic heart of every man, woman, and child in contemplation of the plight of John Dwyer. "If it had not been for the lamentable death of this unfortunate child," he continued, 'instead of this woman facing a charge of neglect, every charitable organization, every tender-hearted woman, and every kindly man would be coming forward to do what they could for the woman and the children."

Mrs. Dwyer had done her utmost, Mr. Kerr asserted, under conditions of abject poverty. "How could she provide these children with the necessaries of life? She hadn't the necessaries of life to give them. Could she do more than go out into the woods and work to help earn them?"

Mr. Kerr described vividly the conditions under which he said Mrs. Dwyer lived, and suggested that there should be no charge against her.

Referring again to the publicity given the case, he said: "In view of an inflamed public opinion. . ."

"I am not swayed by that," His Worship interrupted, "or by what people say."

"I know that," Mr. Kerr replied, "but I am merely mentioning it in calling upon Your Worship for an example of the sterling qualities that, for the most part, mark the judiciary of this country."

Could Have Done More.

The Crown Attorney, in summing up, said Mrs. Dwyer could have done much more than she did to aid the children. She could at least have seen that the boy's health was not impaired, or, being impaired that his life was not menaced by lack of attention. "She says she was afraid of her husband, but that is a poor excuse. She didn't do a single, solitary thing until shortly before John was taken to his bed, and then all she did was tell her father something must be done. She could have gone to the authorities."

Mr. Hatton contended that there was a divisible responsibility in caring for the children, which put part of the duty upon Mrs. Dwyer and not all of it on George Dwyer. She should have at least seen that the essentials of life were not omitted by the father.

In reply Mr. Kerr said the accused is not the parent of the children, and the children are essentially in control and custody of their natural father, in law and in fact.

After arguing for half an hour on the question whether the Criminal Code includes a step-mother as a guardian in this section, committal was made at 4.30. Magistrate Langley said: "This woman was living in this house with her husband, and had to some extent, to my mind, custody of the children. Not to any great extent; but I think she comes within the meaning of 'guardian'."

Bail was agreed upon, and the necessary formalities for Mrs. Dwyer's release are proceeding today.

NOW, HONESTLY—

I guess all of us, at some time or other, have been peeved at folks over the radio.

But that's to be expected. We never really grow up, and that feeling harks back to the days when we wanted all dessert and no ordinary dinner.

We forget that if it weren't for the mediocre songs, music and such, that come sailing through the loud speaker, we wouldn't really appreciate the better class.

And we also forget that radio entertainers can't be expected to bat a thousand all the time.

At least they are trying to entertain you. Give 'em a chance, and take the bad with the good.

DR. WEST DOES NOT YET REALIZE THAT WIFE AND SON ARE DEAD; IS STILL IN A DAZED CONDITION

Doctor Orders That News of Fatalities Be Kept From Him.

OFFICERS DEPART.

After Interviewing West—Doctor Was Buying His Home.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, March 13—Dr. Stewart West does not yet realize that his wife and young son perished in the fire which destroyed his home here on Tuesday morning and he remains in the same mental daze he was in when found by his neighbors at the burning house. Dr. Haight, who has been attending Dr. West has given orders that he news of the double tragedy be kept from him for the present as the result might be serious in his present conlition.

Dr. West is now staying at the home of his brother, Charles West, who lives on a farm about two and a half miles from Warkworth. Inspector E. C. Gurnett of Belleville, who arrived here Thursday to investigate the affair, went to the home of Charles West to see the doctor. He was accompanied by Provincial Constable Cousans of Cobourg and Constable Phillips of Warkworth. When the three officers returned here they refused to give any information with regard to the nature of their investigations but they seem to have concluded these for the present at least and Officers Gurnett and Cousans have returned home.

The father of Dr. West, who is also a veterinary surgeon at Campbellford, came here Friday to visit his stricken son.

The house which was destroyed by fire was the property of Dr. West who purchased it from Mrs. F. W. Garbutt of this village some time ago, the sale having been made by Mrs Garbutt's brother, Wilbert S. Nelson, the cattle buyer. Dr. West had the place leased for some time before he bought it. The price paid for the home was $1800 and the owner carried a small amount of insurance. Mr. Nelson says that the doctor was a model tenant and that the late Mrs. West was an excellent housekeeper. Both she and her husband worked hard to meet the payments on their home as they fell due. For some time past the relations of husband and wife, Mr. Nelson says, appeared to be perfectly satisfactory. The doctor had built up a large practice and was successful in his work.

When the neighbors first gathered at the burning house they found the doctor in a fit on the rear porch and some of the neighbors are of the opinion that he, too, would have perished if they had not come to his rescue. It seems to be settled that the fire started in the room that was occupied by Mrs. West and her child upstairs, the doctor sleeping on the lower floor. It is also said by the neighbors that Mrs. West kept a lamp burning in her room all night and there are some who believe that the origin of the fire can be traced to this light.

The West baby was a cripple when born, both feet being deformed. Mrs. West took the child to Toronto seevral times for expert treatment and was planning to go again in a short time, having been assured by the Toronto surgeons that after one more treatment the child's physical condition would be normal.

The members of the jury that will hear the evidence at the inquest are: W. A. Kelly, foreman, John Leonard, William Smooker, George Walker, A. B. Armstrong, Oscar Phillips and Elgin Edgar.

Statement in Legislature By Hon. Geo. S. Henry Acting For Premier.

Members Apologize For Strictures on Provincial Constable at the Soo.

TORONTO, March 13.—Hon. W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General, when the House opened Friday, took some time to explain that a wrong had been recently done to a man of the Provincial Police operating at Sault Ste. Marie. Early press reports stated that the man had been wearing a returned soldiers' button to which he was not entitled, and that he has used the button for purposes not in line with proper ethics.

Mr. Nickle explained that he had looked up and verified the war record of the man concerned. The man endeavored to enlist in Canada in 1914. He had done barrack duty at Stanley Barracks, and early in 1915 got to Scotland, where he enlisted with a Scottish unit with which he saw long service in France. The man was twice wounded. He was issued with a returned soldier's button quite properly. Mr. Nickle thought the explanation necessary in the House as Z. Mageau, M.L.A. Sturgeon Falls, had mentioned the matter in the Legislature.

Mr. Mageau was quickly to his feet, expressing regret that he had said anything about the man. "I wish to withdraw anything I may have said about the man, as the circumstances are entirely different from what I took them to be. My information was based on the newspaper despatch which I read at the time and which it now turns out was wrong," said Mr. Mageau.

Mr. Raney remarked that about 8 per cent. of the Provincial Police were returned soldiers, and he thought the force compared favorably with any on the continent. Mr. Nickle also expressed appreciation of the Provincial Police.

Bills Introduced.

Several important bills were introduced by private members. W. C. Weichel (North Waterloo) introduced a bill, whereby Kitchener will reduce its municipal council from 15 aldermen to 10. This means that two will be elected from each ward instead of three. The ratepayers by a vote, decided in favor of the smaller council. He also introduced a bill giving the Evangelical Lutheran Synod power to appoint the board of the Evangelical Lutheran Seminary of Canada. Present members of the Board will remain through the terms for which they were originally appointed.

J. A. Pinard (East Ottawa) introduced a bill for the creation of a police benefit fund for the police of Ottawa City. He also had another bill allowing the City of Ottawa to change the assessment on certain hotel property there.

W. S. Haney (West Lambton) introduced a bill giving the city of Sarnia the right to buy stock to hold part of a first mortgage on the street railway of that city, providing that the ratepayers vote in favor of such a scheme. The Sarnia street railway has never received a bonus from the municipality, and its taxes and obligations are all paid up.

Peterboro Radials.

The Government answered a good many questions from the order paper. Hon. Geo. S. Henry, leading the House in the absence of Premier Ferguson, said that the province still owned the Peterboro railway, and that the net deficit amounted to $218,000, of which $36,000 was for last year. A sinking fund amounting to $30,000 was now set aside. He also stated that the Hydro Commission still owned and operated the Campbellford Pulp Mill, but was negotiating for its sale. Mr. Henry told the House that the Hydro Commission operated railways as follows: Sandwich and Windsor, Guelph Radial, Toronto and York radial and the Peterboro electric railway. There was a surplus of $64,000 on the first, and deficits of $18,000, $247,000 and $36,000 on the others respectively last year.

Mr. Nickle informed the House that during the latter part of 1925 twenty-four persons were convicted in Toronto for selling strong beer, four in Hamilton and three in Windsor. These were all places which had permits to sell 4.4. One 4.4 permit was cancelled.

Mr. Price said that amounts collected on race track wager taxes were as follows: 1922, $2,212,280; 1923, $1,821,963; 1924, $1,794,032; 1925, $1,703,768. The taxes on race courses was $998,694 in 1925.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Christ's Last Words

Let not your heart be troubled ye believe in God, believe also in me.

In my Father's house are many mansions if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.

And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself that where I am there ye may be also.

And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest and how can we know the way?

Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me.

If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.

Philip saith unto him, Lord, show us the father, and it sufficeth us.

Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father and how sayest thou then, Show us the Father?

Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself but the Father, that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.

Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me or else believe me for the very works' sake.

Verily, verily, I say unto you ,He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also and greater works than these shall he do! because I go unto my Father.

And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

If ye love me, keep my commandments.

And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever

Even the Spirit of truth: whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

CHRIST'S LAST WORDS.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 14. Christ's Last Words With His Disciples. John 14:1-7.

By Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D., Editor of The Congregationalist.

Probably few words ever spoken or written have brought more comfort to troubled hearts than the words of Jesus that are recorded in this 14th chapter of John. "Let not your heart be troubled." What an appeal that exhortation in itself make to troubled humanity!

Jesus not only says, "Let not your heart be troubled," but he justifies this exhortation. He bases the hope of comfort in himself. "Ye believe in God, believe also in me." He is the way and the truth and the life; the way to lead us to God the Father. He is as sure that there is a heavenly Father and a heavenly home as that he himself constitutes the way.

What did Jesus mean by these words? He was a man born within the knowledge of some of those who listened to him, who had lived his earthly life in their environment from babyhood to manhood. Is it not striking that we are not in any way repelled by the greatness of such claims?

These Words Accepted.

Where some other might rouse our disgust or resentment by making great pretensions of authority and knowledge, we feel instinctively that there is something really humble and quiet about this claim of Jesus to be the way by which men come to God.

Was Jesus speaking of himself mystically, in some such way, to use a very inadequate illustration, as a poet like Walt Whitman might incarnate in himself the spirit of democracy and the age in which he lived? We cannot say. But the lesson speaks forth with the utmost clearness the conviction of Jesus concerning the eternal things of God.

Take Christ and all that he represented out of the page of human history and how hopeless would be one's outlook over the troubled world! But on the other hand see the world through Christ, through the purity and beauty of his life, through the sweetness and richness of his words, through the conquering power of his cross, and how soon we see in this world what Jesus himself saw.

The Essentials.

Is this a myth? Nay. Can one ask it? Do we not come back to simple confidence in the ultimate essential instincts of man that create in him the conviction of the reality of the immortal life.

How beautiful are the words of Jesus, "If it were not so, I would have told you." There are certain things that can never be proven to the minds of men that the souls of men may take for granted.

It is in the practice of immortality that we find its reality. If you doubt the eternal, if you question whether there can be in this world a heavenly Father and an ultimate home of the soul, why not test the words of Jesus by living in simplicity and in trust the life he revealed as eternal?

OBITUARY.

CAPTAIN WM. LESSLIE.

KINGSTON, March 13.—(Special).—Capt. William Lesslie, pioneer lumberman and ship salvager, who passed away on Thursday, was a noted marine man. He used novel methods in his operations, and his many successes in ship salvaging operations were some of the remarkable engineering feats of the time. One of his best known salvaging feats was carried out when the liner Bavarian sank below Quebec was raised by means of special pontoons. Other remarkable successes weer the salvaging of the Scottish King off the coast of Newfoundland and of the Gallia between Three Rivers and Montreal.

CHILDREN LIKE THEM

Baby's Own Tablets Are Effective and Easy To Give.

You do not have to coax and threaten to get the little ones to take Baby's Own Tablets. The ease with which they are given, as compared with liquid medicines, will appeal to every mother. None is spilled or wasted; you know just how big a dose has reached the little stomach. As a remedy for the ills of childhood arising from derangements of the stomach and bowels they are most satisfactory.

Mrs. Rose Voyer, Willimantic, Conn., says: "I used Baby's Own Tablets in the Canadian Northwest and found them a wonderful medicine for children's troubles, especially indigestion and constipation. I have also given them to my children for simple fever and the restlessness accompanying teething and they always gave relief. I can recommend Baby's Own Tablets to all mothers."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

"ETERNAL VERITIES."

The Editor, Peterboro' Examiner.

Dear Sir—Having for the present come to this city, I had lost touch of the discussion on eternal verities which I had interestedly followed. A friend sent me a cutting of a letter signed B. O. W., so again I seek to put before The Examiner readers what God has revealed. Apparently B. O. W. has not seen the last letter I wrote, because in it I quoted the Word of God in Revelation 20:10. "The beast, false prophet and the devil shall be tormented day and night for ever and ever." Some one might say, "These are not the men who have died in sin." Indeed they are not, but what did the Lord Jesus say of the rich man in Luke 16:23? "The rich man died, was buried, and in hell lifted up his eyes, being in torments," Abraham said to him: "Thou art tormented." He said to Abraham: "I am tormented." Yet men will aver that the word of God does not teach torment, whether for ever or otherwise.

Perhaps it would interest B. O. W. to know that I was not taught this from babyhood. I knew nothing of God's ways or words till I was entering life as a young man. It was not till I realized that I was a sinner, ready to perish, and needed a Saviour, that I thought about eternity at all. A little over seven years ago, I took God at His word, believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and was born again on the spot. Standing at the street corner, with no one to deceive me, I entered into the possessing of life eternal, because I was simple enough to let God be true, and every man a liar. It was then I learned that the Lord Jesus said: "Straight is the gate that leadeth to life." B. O. W. takes this, and seeks to show that it only allows a few to be saved. He only proves the words of the Lord Jesus to the Pharisees in John 5:40, "Ye will not come unto me that ye might have life." Again He said in John 14:6, "I am the way." Here we have a narrow way, and that a Person, who is the Saviour of all them that believe. In 1. John 4:14, we find that "The Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world." Here is a way whereby the whole world can be saved. Thus, John 3:17 says, "For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through Him might be saved." "He that believeth on Him is not condemned." Here then is God's only way of salvation for any and every man, faith in His Son, who died for our sins—who died for us. Paul said: "He died for me." The words which follow those quoted from John 3 are very striking: "But he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed on the only begotten Son of God." Where do men get their assertions such as: "Come forth and come to a full knowledge of Jehovah and his plan for mankind—then persist in sin," etc.? (This is quoted from B. O. W.'s letter.)

Is not God's testimony in John enough? He that believeth on the Son—not condemned. He that believeth not the Son—condemned already. There is no after consideration here. I would like to point out a few things about the way B. O. W. treats the words "death" and "destroy." He asserts that "destroy" means annihilate, or put out of existence. He quotes the scripture "That He might destroy the works of the devil." By this, he means the works of the devil are annihilated, and put out of existence. Are they? One only needs to look around, see the idolatry, sin and misery in the world to-day, to know that he is still "going about as a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour." Neither the devil nor his works are out of existence. There is a passage in the Old Testament, which says, "Oh! Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself." According to B. O. W., Israel was no more in existence at that time. Yet we have Israel with us at the present day, as a nation of which God says He is the keeper. Until the manifestation of Israel's rightful king, that nation will be kept, although now it is destroyed. That is, they have no king or country in entirety. They cannot fulfill the function of a nation, as God intended them. That is the true meaning of the word "destroy," to mar, or make unfit for any particular function. If a potter makes a vessel without a flaw, and it is afterwards cracked, that vessel cannot hold water. Thus it is destroyed, though it might look all right. The devil may seem to have the victory to-day, because of the prevalence of sin and error, but he and his works have been destroyed. They can be fully conquered through faith in the Son of God. My advice to B. O. W. and all others is, "let God be true, and every man a liar." "It is appointed unto man once to die, but after this, judgment." Hebrews 9:27. God's plan is that "this man (Christ), after he had offered one sacrifice for sins for ever, sat down at the right hand of God." He was revealed then as Saviour, and God now says of man: "There is no other name under heaven whereby we must be saved," Acts 4:12.

We have a complete manifestation of the will of God now. There is no necessity to wait till after death—nor is it possible. In I. John, 5:13, God's last word to man is this: "These things write I unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life." There is no uncertainty here. Thanks be unto God, which giveth us the victory through Christ.

Bless me in deed.

Uphold me by Thy Almgihty Hand,
And make me steadfastly to stand
Strong for the right.
Grant me, to think, and speak, and do,
Thoughts, words, and works, sincere and true
As in Thy sight.

Wisdom, Strength, Grace, give me to shun,
The snares, spread by the Evil One,
My soul to win
Far from the steep, straight, narrow way,
And tempt my erring steps astray,
In paths of sin.

Keep me till on life's troublous day
Serenely falls the sunset ray
At Thy behest.
Be mine to seek Thy Face below
And then Thy Joy, in Heaven to know,
With all the Blest.

BURLEIGH COUNCIL

APSLEY, March 12.—The municipal council of Burleigh and Anstruther met in the Town Hall on Saturday, March 6th, with all membes present. An agent of the Sawyer and Massey Co. waited on the council regarding the purchase of a stone crusher, and submitted particulars as to prices, etc.

The collector's roll was extended until April 15, on motion of Councillors Hales and Tucker.

A letter was received by the Reeve from Howard E. Hendren with regard to assisting to bury a cow last summer, and Reid was instructed to go into the matter with Mr. Hendren at once. A letter was read from Rev. C. A. G. Spence asking for a grant for Mrs. Ezra McFadden, a widow whom he thought was an eligible beneficiary of the Foley Estate, and on motion of Councillors Windsor and Hales a grant from the municipality of $10 to her and also to Mrs. Grant was made.

An order for one Ignot grader blade for the road grader was passed on motion of Councillors Tucker and Hales.

R. H. Knox will be charged $1.50 for three pine logs cut on road, on motion of Councillors Hales and Windsor.

Moved by Councillors Hales and Tucker that Reeve Brown look after sale of William Clark's goods at Bruce Reid's home to be held on March 9.

A by-law appointing fence viewers, pound keepers and sheep valuators for 1926 was passed.

Moved by Councillors Hales and Reid that the auditors' report be accepted and auditors paid; also that the following recommendation of Rev. J. W. Ogden be passed "that the Reeve be requested to bring before the County Council the subject of taxes remaining unpaid either to municipality or county clerk with a view to carrying the items forward year by year on collector's roll as arrears."

The following accounts were paid on motion of Councillors Tucker and Reid:

James Downing, collector rebate on Will Whitney's taxes for road work, $4; A. M. Windsor, treasurer discount on cheques for 1925, $6.56; Municipal World, six copies and dog tags, $10.65; Examiner, printing financial statements $10.50, and election supplies, $11.36; A. M. Windsor, salary as clerk, $22.50, and salary as treasurer, $10; Dr. Shepherd, Stevenson, drawing deeds, $8; affidavits, $1; registering deeds, $4; A. M. Windsor, postage, etc., $3.50; C. A. G. Spence, auditor, $4; J. W. Ogden, auditor, $4; Simon Windsor, two locks, $1; Thos. Northey, sheep valuer 1925, $2; Andrew Young, snow ploughing, $13.50; Roland Tucker, snow ploughing, $11.25; Zack Tucker, ditto, $16.90; Hugh McColl, shovelling snow, $4; Mrs. Grant, $10; Mrs. McFadden, $10; John Rickles, cutting wood for Wm. Jones, $16.

TOO LITTLE BLOOD

The Cause of Nearly All the Everyday Ailments of Life.

Too little blood — that is what makes men and women look pale and sallow and eel languid. That is what makes them drag along, always tired, never real hungry, unable to digest their food, breathless after even slight exertion, and often feeling that life is scarcely worth living. The doctors tell them they are anaemic—the plain English being too little blood.

More weak, anaemic people have been made strong, energetic and cheerful by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills than by any other means. The case of Mrs. A. P. Foster, Bowden, Alta., is excellent proof of this statement. Mrs. Foster says:—"Some years ago I was very badly rundown. My doctor attended me for several months and then told me I had better go South to spend the winter as my blood was so poor that he feared I would not stand the cold of our winter. I took his advice and went to my mother's, and soon as she saw me she said, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are what you need." She got the pills for me and I began taking them. I had intended staying three months, but at the end of the second month I came home a well woman. When the doctor saw me he said, "You are all right now, but don't let yourself get rundown again or nothing will save you. Then last winter I had influenza, which left me as weak and pale and miserable as before. Again I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and again they made me well and strong. I can gratefully recommend the pills for I feel that they have saved my life."

Weak, ailing men and women should begin taking Dr. Williams Pink Pills today and note the speedy improvement that follows. You can get these pills from medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockvile, Ont.

"The ENGINE is particularly interesting, because it runs at a comparatively slow speed, being geared 4.18 to 1, which is 15 to 25 per cent. slower than might be expected.

"The higher gear and the shorter stroke combine to reduce piston travel from 30 to 40 per cent., as compared to what might be called orthodox construction for a car of this size.

"Piston, ring and cylinder wear is therefore reduced 30 to 40 per cent., while wear of other working parts, due solely to the higher gearing, is cut 15 to 25 per cent.

"With a short stroke and a high-gear rear axle exceptionally smooth running of the engine, coupled with silence of operation, would be expected, and a demonstration proves this to be true."

"The cylinder block and upper half of the crankcase are cast in one piece, with the centre line of the crankshaft well up in the casting. This is an unusual feature on low-priced cars and has several advantages: Stiffer support of the main bearings and crankshaft and a greater degree of oil-tightness.

"The cylinder bores are finished to a high degree of accuracy and have a glass-like surface."

HUMAN CREDULITY.

In spite of the boasted advance in what we call school of education, there does not seem to be any visible or recognized limit to human credulity. It is estimated by a writer in an American paper that the people of the United States lose a billion dollars a year in stock frauds perpetrated by crooked salesmen. In such cases the element of human greed is undoubtedly an important factor. The natural safeguards of caution are overcome by the desire for speedy gain.

But there are other forms of credulity which cannot be explained by human greed. Why is it that there is such an appetite for stories and rumors that seem to come out of the air? And why is it that this appetite seems to be especially keen for the stories and rumors that are damaging to the characters and reputation of their victims? All news-gatherers know what it is to be plagued by the necessity of attempting to verify such rumors. Sometimes it is found that they have been distorted beyond recognition from simple beginnings; often enough it is impossible to trace them to any original source. Many people find it impossible to repeat a story so as to convey its original meaning. Either it is added to, or its first significance is lost or changed in the process of passing from mouth to mouth.—Sentinel Review.

THE NEW MINISTER OF LABOR.

Canada's new Minister of Labor, the Hon. J. C. Elliott of London, Ontario, will be favorably remembered in those several parts of Peterboro County which he visited during the Federal campaign of 1921.

Mr. Elliott is a lawyer, and although he cannot boast a trade union card as could his immediate predecessors, Hon. James Murdock and Senator Gideon Robertson, he will not likely worry over that deficiency in his qualifications for the office.

Indeed, the lack of a union card, other than his membership in the Canadian Bar Association, may prove a help rather a hindrance. Hon. Mr. Elliott may be regarded in certain circles as lacking that inspiration and sympathy toward Labor which, it has been so often proclaimed, can be engendered only by active participation in Labor's affairs.

On that assumption Tom Moore and his associates of the Dominion Trades Congress may hardly expect much from the lawyer-Labor Minister (providing he is elected) when they present their annual legislative petition. Anything he may accomplish in the interests and advancement of Canadian Labor would probably be magnified because of its unexpectedness.

And much seems to have been required and looked forward to by various Labor organizations from both the Hon. Mr. Murdock and Senator Robertson, judging by the degree of disappointment conveyed in criticisms of both of them during their administrations.

The records of these former Ministers, trade unionists both, will hardly embarrass the Hon. Mr. Elliott, who perhaps does not qualify for the proletariat, if his elevation to the Federal Cabinet is confirmed by the electors of West Middlesex.

WHERE CHARITY BEGINS.

A striking statement made at yesterday's session of the court hearing the case of Mrs. Dwyer is deserving of more than passing consideration. It had nothing to do with the merits of the case, for or against the accused, but it carried a challenge to the good people of Peterboro.

If the condition of the family had become known, one of the counsel said, every charitable organization, every tender-hearted woman, and every kindly man, would have come forward to do what they could for the woman and the children.

If the condition had become known! If the mothers of Peterboro had known that there, thirty miles away, children were going hungry and cold to bed; if the fathers of Peterboro had known that pressing poverty was driving young boys to work in the woods at daybreak; if the children of Peterboro had known that other less fortunate children had not milk for their porridge or butter for their scanty bread.

These "ifs" cannot be recalled. John Dwyer is dead; the other children of this family are well taken care of; this particular case is closed so far as the public is concerned.

But what of the rest? Are there more families in Dummer, or anywhere in Peterboro County, in a similar condition? Are other children hungry and cold? Are other women driven to work in the bush to eke out the scanty existence that is their lot?

And if there are these things, can the call be disregarded while so much is being done to succor those in foreign lands?

It is, the Examiner believes, a question that demands and deserves conscientious consideration by every man and woman in the city and county, and there can be but one answer. Action should be promptly and whole-heartedly taken through churches, charities and associations to find these cases of distress, if they exist, and thus prevent a recurrence of the tragedy that has darkened the county during the past fortnight.

BOOST PETERBOROUGH

There is nothing more contagious than enthusiasm, unless it be pessimism. And if there is enough enthusiasm, well nurtured, it will overcome any incipient tendency toward down-heartedness before it has room to grow.

Peterborough is a city that has wide possibilities. It is said that it is isolated; that it is away from the water front; that it is this that and the other thing that is holding it back. Well, there are a great many towns and cities along the shores of Lake Ontario that are no great advertisement for the virtues of having a water frontage. It might be a good stroke of business to take Peterborough and set it down on a wave-lapped shore, but if its foundations had been laid there, would it have grown any faster than Port Hope—or Cobourg?

The Examiner says, without any fear of contradiction, that if Peterborough people "talked up" the city when they are visiting, and ceased to knock it when they are at home; if they patronized the city's products and its merchants; if they invested their money in the city; if they laid down the telescope through which they are viewing the green of distant fields and looked at the splendor of their immediate environment; then Peterborough would go ahead with leaps and bounds.

It is a common enough trait to belittle the place from which one hales. To do otherwise is to appear conceited. But the "smoke screen" should be lifted when the common weal demands, and everyone met with in other cities should be told of the advantages of this city and its surroundings. As for buying at home, no man can call himself a home city booster who spends his money in another town. It appears almost dishonest to make one's living in a city and then refuse to support it by spending in it the money its industries yield.

Citizens who build cities are the ones who know where they are going and what they are doing. They arrive by keeping their money circulating in the home city. They know that it comes back to them.

But the fellow who sends his good money out of Peterborough kisses it good-bye for ever. He is helping to build some other city, pay some other city's taxes, and raising his own.

Peterborough has achieved much in the past. The past is dead; the present is here; the future is ahead.

Start planning and building now so that your future, wrapped up in the success of the city, shall be assured.

THE BAD USE OF GOOD HABITS

Good habits are sometimes as bad for us as bad habits.

If it had not been for my friend Jones I might never have learned this useful truth.

For a long while Jones made me very unhappy. He had so many good habits that I lacked. Every now and then I have made futile and discouraging attempts to imitate him. It is only lately that I have broken the spell he once cast over men.

Jones is the most orderly man I have ever known. His life is planned down to the smallest detail. He arises at exactly the same hour every morning. He has reduced bathing and shaving, to the ultimate efficiency. How often has he boasted to me of the exact and small number of minutes to which he has reduced these operations! He sits down to breakfast at exactly the same hour every morning. He eats exactly the same things every morning: a small glass of orange juice; two poached eggs; three slices of bacon, very crisp; two slices of dry toast, cut thin; and one cup of coffee, black, without sugar or cream. He walks to his office every morning by the same route and in the same number of minutes. He enters his office at exactly the same time every morning. He hangs his coat and hat on a rack located near the door so he will waste no steps crossing the room. He drinks two glasses of water from the water cooler that stands efficiently near his desk. As he sits down at his desk, his finger automatically touches the bell that calls his secretary. He dictates his correspondence with practical swiftness and standardized phrases. Each item in a standardized programme for the day is taken up in turn. He eats the same sort of lunch at the same table in the same club with the same crowd year in and year out. He reaches his home at exactly the same hour every evening, eats dinner at the same hour, reads the paper at th same hour, and retires at the same hour, except on Tuesday and Thursday evenings ,which he has set aside for social engagements and the theatre.

He is never hurried, never flustered, never nervous. He is the last word in that "efficiency" which may be learned by mail in ten lessons.

For a long time I envied Jones. He made me feel that I was a slovenly worker or a time waster, and altogether inefficient. But I have changed my mind about him.

I now think that Jones is the most inefficient man I know.

His orderliness enables him to get a lot of work done in a day, but he has murdered his mind and allowed his soul to stagnate in the process.

Jones has managed his life as a home is managed by a good housekeeper," who thinks more about keeping the house in order than about making the family comfortable and happy.

Jones has come to love order in his opinions as he loves order in his office. He does not want any disturbing new ideas coming around to upset his neatly arranged scheme of life.

I know exactly what Jones will say about the political situation, the latest labor trouble, or the current religious controversy. He has reduced all of his opinions on public affairs to a few pat phrases, just as he begins his letters with "Yours of the 14th inst. received and contents noted. Will say in reply, etc."

Most of his habits are good, but he has used them badly.

He has not learned that order and system are meant to be our slaves, not our masters; that order and system are meant to take care of the less important things of life so our minds can be free to adventure among the more important things.

Jones is the sort of man who must seek variety on the golf links because there is no variety in his job.

And I am not so sure that Jones is really efficient in business. At the office they call him "Good Old Jones," but they pay him the same salary they paid him fifteen years ago.—Glenn Frank.

MILLBROOK NEWS.

MILLBROOK, March 12. — Miss Francis Turner, student at Toronto University, spent the week-end with her parents, Dr. H. A. and Mrs. Turner.

Dr. H. A. and Mrs. Turner were visitors to Peterboro on Monday.

Re-opening services in the United Church, after the improvements now in progress, will take place on Sunday, March 28, when Rev. Mr. Holling of Cambridge Street Church of Lindsay will preach morning and evening. It is expected that the work of lowering the organ and choir loft will be completed this week, and after cleaning the decorators will be in charge during next week.

Mrs. Jas. Dawson of Peterboro is visiting her son, Mr. B. B. Dawson.

Miss M. E. Allen, B.A., of Tokio, Japan, who spoke in the United Church on Sunday morning and evening, was the guest of Rev. F. H. and Mrs. Howard at the parsonage during her stay here.

Miss E. Paul, for thirty years a missionary in British Columbia, who spoke at a public meeting on Tuesday, and addressed the W. M. S. on Wednesday afternoon, was the guest of Mrs. E. S. Burnham during her stay here. Miss Paul left on Thursday for Trenton and Picton to deliver addresses.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, March 12 — Only about 600 cattle were bought for export this week, but double that quantity will be wanted next week. All the packers were in need of butchers' cattle this week and there was more than the usual competition. Monday's run of around 4,000 head was nearly all weighed up that day. Choice handyweight butchers were $7.50 a cwt. and in cases a littl more, good butchers brought upto $7.25 and mediums up to $6.75 a cwt. Common butchers in a few cases made as high as $6.25 a cwt. The trade apparently could have taken care of more butchers' cattle this week.

The demand for butchers cows continues as good as it has been and prices remain definitely steady. Choice fat cows are selling at $6 to $6.50, good cows up to $5.75, medium cows up to $4.75 and common cows $3.50 to $4. A few Holstein springers sold this week from $70 to $100 each. Ontario stockers, 900 lbs. each, sold from $5.75 to $6.25 a cwt. Baby beeves sold better again, with a range of $8 to $10.50 a cwt.

Calves were down $1 to $1.50 a cwt. on the Buffalo market this week, but this had no effect here as the supply was none too large. Chonce calves are averaging 14 cents; good calves 13 cents and mediums 11 cents a pound. Light thin calves are 8 to 9 cents a pound.

Lambs are up 25 cents a cwt. to 14 cents a pound on choice handyweights and common lambs are 12 to 13 cents. Choice sheep are 8 to 9 cents a pound. Spring lambs are now quoted $14 to $16 each for the fat kind.

Hogs have gradually receded 50 cents a cwt. in a week with the week-end price $12.75 a cwt. f.o.b. Buyers are suggesting a possible further drop next week.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Ont., Mar. 12 (Canadian Press)—The volume of business being done is fairly large, there being a steady demand for supplies to meet immediate requirements. United States markets are firmer and higher.

Toronto: wholesale fresh extras 39 to 40, firsts 35 to 36, seconds 30 to 31.

Quebec: paying country points extras 33 to 35, firsts 28 to 30, seconds 25.

Winnipeg: receipts increasing. Prices to consumers, extras 50, firsts 45, seconds 32. Poultry receipts light.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Mar. 12 (Canadian Press)—The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was again fair today. The demand from millers for Manitoba grades of wheat was steady and sales of some round lots of No. 1 northern were made at the May option.

A stronger feeling developed in the local market for spring wheat grades of flour and millers generally and prices were marked up 20c per barrel which is the first change in this direction this year to date. There was an improvement noted in the foreign demand and a fair volume of business was accomplished in this commodity at an advance of one shilling, but the domestic trade remains rather quiet. First patents were quoted at $8.60, second patents at $8.10 and strong bakers at $7.90 per barrel.

A fairly steady feeling prevailed in the local egg situation and prices showed no important change. Supplies were ample and an active business was done. Receipts today were 1410 cases.

The tone of the market for potatoes remains very firm owing to the continued small receipts and the fact that supplies on spot are pretty well cleaned up. An active trade was done in Quebec varieties and these sold for $2.70 to $2.75 per bag.

The trade in beans was reported steady, prices being unchanged with sales of choice hand-picked at $2.45 per bushel in car lots, and broken lots at $2.65 per bushel.

The trade in butter was more active, there being an increased demand for supplies and sales of Townships No. 1 Pasteurized creamery butter were made at 47c per pound. Receipts today were 29 packages.

There was no change in condition.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 12 (Canadian Press)—Wheat prices went sharply upward today, accelerated by export purchasing on a broad scale. It was estimated that in the last 24 hours 2,000,000 bushels of North American wheat had been taken for prompt shipment to Europe. Foreign buying of future deliveries here was also in evidence. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 3-8 to 2 3-4c net higher, May (new) $1.65 1-4 to $1.65 1-2 and July $1.42 7-8 to $1.43, with corn 1-2 to 3-4c up, oats at 1-4 and 3-8c to 1-2c gain, and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a rise of 7 cents.

Fellowship of Prayer

Read Jn. 13:16-26. Text 13:18. He that eateth my bread lifted up his heel against me.

Meditation—The 41st Psalm chants the disloyalty of a familiar and trusted friend. As the Master faced his cross the mocking of the multitude for whom he must needs suffer was bitter, but the dregs of the cup was in the treachery of a trusted disciple. Here again he must be tried at all points. If the man you loved can betray you in such an hour, can you be sure of loyalty anywhere? We are betrayed in the house of our friends in the very fellowship of the Church. Jesus kept his faith in the Father and in the loyalty of his disciples, though the darkness of Judas' deed was over Him.

Prayer—O Eternal Father, we are spoilt by prejudice, so blinded by pride, so dense to the simplest things. We are so burdened by things that do not matter that we easily are disloyal to Thee. Thou has trustd us and blessed us, but in the hour of discipline we are ready to deny Thee. Pardon our littleness, our folly, our fickleness of spirit toward Thee and those who love us. Give us breadth like the sea, with constancy like Christ's. Amen.

SUNDAY.

The Test of Discipleship.

Read Jn. 13:31-18. Text: 13:35.

By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

Meditation—This is the acid test by which our real religion is finally determined. Others sit with us in services of worship, as we repeat creeds, offer alms and say prayers but they are not quite sure that we are animated by the Spirit of Christ, without which we are none of his. Let them be convinced that love and not selfishness is the motive of our deeds and they begin to believe in us. Men are converted from the evil and selfish lives by those who so act as to be "living epistles" of Christ. Not self-preservation but self-giving is the first law of eternal life. As soon as we show that we have love one to another our discipleship is attested to all.

Prayer—O Thou Judge of life and the standard by which we are judged help us not to be deceived. Let not the evil in the heart darken the windows of the soul. Help us this day to love one another as Thou has first loved us. Amen.

EVOLUTION.

My mind is little disturbed about the way the universe was awakened from its sleep. The eon-old evolution idea is of no importance to me. To try to peer into the past and see the first stir on the face of the deep is beyond my mental vision. The evolution of my soul is what intimately interests me.

LEMIEUX PROUD AS CITIZEN OF THIS PROVINCE

Accorded Privilege of Seat on Floor of Legislature—Addressed House.

FRENCH GREETING.

Speaker of Commons Cordially Welcomed — His Address in English.

TORONTO, March 13 (Canadian Press)—For perhaps the first time in history and certainly for the first time in the last thirty years the Ontario Legislature listened to speeches in French yesterday. The occasion was a visit by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Speaker of the Canadian House of Commons. Neither side of the House had a monopoly on the French language, A. Belanger (Russell) speaking from the Liberal group and H. Morel (Nipissing) from the Conservative side. Previously Hon. Geo. S. Henry, acting House leader in the absence of Premier Ferguson, W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, and W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, had spoken in reply to the address of Mr. Lemieux, who was accorded the privileges granted to distinguished visitors and took a seat on the floor of the House near Speaker Thompson. All the House leaders and Mr. Lemieux spoke in English.

M. Lemieux, who was enthusiastically received, graciously accepted the honor to address the House. He declared that it was a source of great pride with him to be a citizen of Ontario. "I am glad even to be governed from Toronto," he declared. "I have travelled around the world many times and have seen litl difference in any of the governments under the British flag. It is a great thing to be a British subject. We have one King, one flag and one system of government admitted to be the best in the world.

Refers to Closure

M. Speaker, I have of late been obliged to use a weapon invented by the mother of Parliaments — I have been forced to use the closure. I hope it is not used in the good Legislature of Ontario. I would not like to have your Speaker use it on me here now. My heart is with Ontario, the seed plot of statesmanship, for here Confederation was made."

Mr. Lemieux said that Canada had set an example to the world through confederation by which men of different creeds, different languages and different mentalities were united to make sure a proper system of government for such a composite country. He welcomed any of the members to come to Ottawa.

Speaker's Tribute

Speaker Thompson replied briefly, thanking Mr. Lemieux for his visit and stating that he looked upon him as one of the great Speakers of Canadian Parliaments past and present.

Hon. Geo. S. Henry extended a cordial welcome to Mr. Lemieux reminding him of a visit last summer to Orillia where he had unveiled a monument to Champlain.

"There was a feeling there of bon entente which meant a strengthening of the cordial relations between the two provinces," said Mr. Henry.

W. E. N. Sinclair also said a few words of welcome. W. E. Raney said he was glad there was no closure in the Legislature and he hoped there never would be. He regretted that Mr. Lemieux did not speak in French as it would have been a reminder to the English speaking provinces that they were not putting themselves in a position to meet their French speaking fellow citizens on an equal footing.

Mr. Belanger stated that it was not often that the Ontario chamber resounded to French accents. "We are only a small group here, we who speak French, but we know what we owe to you," said Mr. Belanger addressing Mr. Lemieux in French. "We have a great pride in having you here. You have illustrated the nationality that is yours. We know the part you have taken in support of the rights we are combatting for here and we know that your way, that of persuasion, is the best. Your visit here will be abundant in its consequences. Come often and you will always be welcome."

Mr. Morel said, in French, that asa French Canadian he wished to welcome Mr. Lemieux to the Legislature.

Mr. Lemieux was the guest of Speaker Thompson at dinner.

COAL DEAL REVIVED.

Discuss Ontario Plan To Buy 50,000 Tons.

OTTAWA, March 13 (Canadian Press).—After an apparent collapse in the negotiations to bring Alberta coal to Ontario, last night there appeared to be some ground for anticipating a new arrangement between the two provinces, the Federal Government and the National Railways.

It is understood here that Premier Ferguson of Ontario has stated that he is willing to have 50,000 tons moved at the $7 per ton rate with the understanding that the three parties interested in the movement will contribute whatever amount is shown to be the actual cost of movement if in excess of $7. Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of Mines, is to be in communication with Sir Henry Thornton to-day to ascertain the railway's attitude. Previously, the railway management insisted on a $9 per ton basis.

CRITICAL WEEK FOR THE LEAGUE

Solidity Established If It Survives Present Diplomatic Strain.

PRAISE FOR UNDEN.

LONDON, March 13 (Canadian Press).—Nothing could more prove the solidity of the League, says the correspondent of the Westminster Gazette in a despatch from Geneva last night, than that it should survive the smash for which, save during brief intervals, it has been heading most of this week.

"If it survives the astounding revival in most unpleasant form, of the worst phases of that secret diplomacy and pushing of national interests, which the League was created to kill, then," he adds, "it should be able to confront almost any other crisis with diminished risk."

The correspondent then enlarges upon the rumors that Sir Austen Chamberlain and M. Briand tried to coerce the Swedish Foreign Minister, M. Unden, whose courageous bearing, he says, is the subject of fervent admiration by the liberal thinkers of all countries, and will be remembered for generations. "The more that leaks out about Thursday's secret council meeting," he observes, "the more it is realized how courageous was the bearing of M. Unden, and no amount of subsequent official explanations will remove the impression created."

WINNIPEG FUR PRICES.

New York Buys 4,500 Beaver Pelts.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13. — (Canadian Press). — Buyers from the United States showed belated activity at the concluding session of the fur auction here Friday.

Keen competitive bidding developed with the offer of several lots of beaver. More than 4,500 of these pelts were acquired by New York buyers at prices ranging from $12.50 to $30.

Mink was in fair demand, the better grades averaging about ten per cent. higher than prices realized at the previous sale. Mink brought from $9 to $11 for coarse Manitobas to $17.25 for Mackenzie River pelts. Lack of demand for lynx resulted in a reduction ranging from ten to fifteen per cent., with quotations between $12 to $21.50.

WOULD TAX BIG MEALS.

Quebec Proposed To Aid Hospitals.

QUEBEC, March 13. Canadian Press. — Hereafter every meal costing the consumer more than one dollar ordered and eaten in a restaurant anywhere in the Province of Quebec, will be taxed five per cent, and the money raised from this source will be applied to the funds available for the hospitals. That is, provided the bill fathered by Hon. Athanse David, Provincial Secretary, is adopted by the Legislature, and as the move is a governmental measure, its adoption is most probable.

Men's minds are too ingenious in palliating guilt in themselves.—Livy.

NOVA SCOTIANS DRAFTS CLAIMS

Resolution Says Pledges at Confederation Were Not Fulfilled.

ACTION APPROVED.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 13. — Canadian Press. — The attitude of the Nova Scotia government toward the proposed commission of inquiry into the economic status of Nova Scotia, in its relation to the Dominion of Canada under confederation, was indicated in the following resolution of which Premier Rhodes gave notice in the house Friday:

"Whereas Nova Scotia in entering Confederation, made possible the unification and consolidation of a British Dominion on this continent;

"And whereas, at that time certain pledges were given that such measures would be undertaken and such policies pursued as would ensure for the future a satisfactory economic position for this province;

"And, whereas, the pledges given have been disregarded, as a result of which Nova Scotia has not shared in equal measure the prosperity enjoyed by the Dominion, as a whole;

"And, whereas, the government is now engaged in preparing a memorandum setting forth in detail the claims of the province with the object in view of seeking such adequate redress as will ensure a return of contentment and prosperity to our people;

"Therefore, be it resolved that this House approves the action now being taken by the government.

"And be it further resolved that such memorandum be presented by the government to the Federal government with the assurance that the people of this province believe that adequate remedies exist and must be applied."

TRIAL TOO COSTLY.

Expense Piling Up in Winnipeg Case.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13. — (Canadian Press). — The cost of conducting the prosecution of Joseph X. Hearst, former music publisher, on charges of fraud, has aroused the Opposition in the Provincial Legislature. It is proposed to bring the matter before the House in an effort to speed up the hearing which started on December 15 last.

Some evidence, critics point out, may have to be taken by a commission, necessitating extension of the hearing well into next fall. The trial to date has cost the Government thousands of dollars.

One of the charges against Hearst is the alleged wrongful conversion of $385,000 of the company's funds and stock.

LYE POTION FATAL.

Woman Ended Life Because of Temper.

DRUMHELLER, Alta., March 13 (Canadian Press).—A week of intense suffering ended for Mrs. S Cheroy Friday, when she died in hospital here. A week ago she drank a mixture of lye. There will be no inquest.

In a statement to the police, Mrs. Cheroy said she took the poison because she was "continually swearing at her husband," and could not control her fiery temper.

THE STORY OF JOSEPH MARTIN

FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN SINCE TAKING "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MR. JOSEPH MARTIN

The story of Mr. Joseph Martin of St. Ursule, P.Q. reads like a modern miracle. His was an unusually bad case of indigestion. In his own words he writes. "For about ten years I could not digest my food. For a year I could not work, I had no strength and I could hardly eat, I was like dead. Now I work and eat as much as I like and feel like a new man. Your "Fruit-a-tives have relieved me completely, and I would have died without your remedy. I was under the care of a doctor for a year without getting any relief. I am thankful to you, as you have saved a martyr of dyspepsia." (Signed) Joseph Martin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are different from any other medicine, being made of the intensified juices of fresh apples, oranges, figs and prunes combined with tonics. They will give you prompt relief. 25c. and 50c. a box—at all dealers.

SPANISH MECHANIC GOING HOME RICH

Purse of $40,000 For Mechanician of Airplane.

BUENOS AIRES, March 13. — lowest ranking member of the crew of the seaplane Ne Plus Ultra, which Spanish airmen brought across the Atlantic ocean to Argentina recently, was Pablo Rada, the mechanician. He embarked with the other members of the crew of the Ne Plus Ultra on Thursdady, a comparatively wealthy man. His countrymen in Argentina collected and made for him a purse of about $40,000. This sum in Spain will permit Rada to live in comparative ease with his family. In Spain awaiting him are other gifts, including the labor gold medal, which carries with it a pension and the right of his children to receive free tuition in the schools.

CENTREVILLE W.M.S.

March Meeting Held at the Home of Mrs. Larmer, Cavan.

The March meeting of the W.M.S. of Centreville Presbyterian Church was held at the home of Mrs. R. O. Larmer, Cavan, with the vice-president, Mrs. Jas. Hutchinson in charge. After the opening devotional exercises the study book was reviewed by Miss Vera Bradshaw. Miss Evelyn Johnson gave an instrumental and a vocal duet was ably rendered by Misses Huggins and Wood. Mrs. Jas. Lang favored the ladies with a reading.

After the meeting lunch was served by the Centreville ladise, the hostess, Mrs. Larmer, providing ice cream.

At the conclusion a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Larmer for her kind hospitality in opening her home for the occasion.

Among those present were: Mesdames Larmer Sr., Earl, Berry, Lang, Young, McGill, Dodds, McRoberts, Rutherford, Morrison, Isbester, Eagleson, Skitch, White, Moncrief, Harper, Greer, Tate, Johnson Hall, Deyell, Bradshaw, White, Hutchinson, Bonner, Armstrong; Misses Huggins, Wood, Johnson, Berry, Tate, Donaldson, Francey, Bradshaw. Those who brought sleighs for the conveyance of the ladies were Messrs. Dodds, Bradshaw, Eagleson, Armstrong and Hutchinon.

Crows and Mosquitoes Are Reported At Warsaw

WARSAW, March 13.—Several people have seen and heard crows since Wednesday of last week, and one killed two mosquitoes.

The mail couriers had a rest on Wednesday as one of the stage horses was ill and could not leave Peterboro with the mail on Tuesday afternoon.

The United Farmers and United Farm Women postponed their meeting from Wednesday evening, partly on account of the condition of the roads, and partly because of Mrs. Stephen Miles' sale.

Allan C. Payne has been working at his saw mill and expects in a few days to have the full gang on.

Roads are in a very bad condition for heavy load hauling, and there is still a good deal of teaming to be done.

RED LAKE RAILWAY OFFER TO THE C.P.R.

No Action Until Mineral Wealth is Proved.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13. — (Canadian Press).—An offer to sell a short construction railway running from Lac De Donnet, Man., to Great Falls, has been made to the Canadian Pacific Railway, by the Manitoba Power Company, it was announced here Friday by F. H. Martin, chief engineer of the electric utility. One hundred miles of new steel, he said, would carry the line into the Red Lake goldfields and the Bulldog mining district.

D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, declined to comment on the company's intentions. "Until the value of the deposits in the districts now under development has been fully established, it is too early to speak of extensive railway construction," he said.

ORDERS SCHOOL SOLD.

Debt Must Be Paid By October.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 13. — Canadian Press. — To satisfy a judgment recently given in favor of a creditor in Quebec City, public schools in West Kildonan, Man., will be sold 1 October 1st next, unless a settlement is made in the interim. An order was issued in the Court of King's Bench yesterday declares the municipality liable. The claim against the school district amounts to $898.

NORHAM NEWS

NORHAM, March 10.—The Mission Band met at the parsonage on Saturday afternoon with an attendance of ten.

Mrs. Norman Gummer returned home on Saturday after spending a week visiting friends at Picton.

Mrs. Mary Palmateer has returned home after spending the past three months with friends in Buffalo, Rochester and Toronto.

George McAllister and family have moved into the new home which they purchased from Mrs. C. Palmateer.

Francis Jones has moved into the tenant house on the farm of Wilfred Valleau, and intends helping Mr. Valleau this summer.

Barnum Vanblaricom of Morganston returned home on Thursday from Toronto, where he had been receiving medical treatment for the past ten days.

Prices at farm sales are better this year than for some time previously. Work horses have sold from $100 to $157 and hens as high as $1.65 each. One farmer realized $228.00 for his flock.

Arnold Poole, auctioneer, of Castleton, has taken on the business formerly conducted by the late Benjamin Dusenbury, salesman for the International Harvesting Company, and expects to move to Codrington in the near future.

Mrs. Arthur Bertrand and family have moved into the house in the village owned by Robert S. Mitchell.

Last week two more cases of small-pox developed in the village, but the patients are nearly well again.

The social evening held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McNaught last Thursday evening was poorly attended on account of the severe cold and bad roads. A sleigh load of twelve, however, ventured over from Meyersburg.

"The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted"

BY S. GERTRUDE DE WENTWORTH-JAMES

SYNOPSIS.

Jerome Wallace has an unexpected call from Eileen Mannering, wife of the district attorney. Wallace is now a candidate for that office against Mannering. He has told Eileen that if elected he can aid her son, Bob, who is in jail charged with manslaughter. Eileen wants to know how she can help to accomplish her husband's defeat. Wallace suggests that for a candidate's wife to appear to figure in a scandal is always effective, and she agrees.

CHAPTER IX—Continued from last week.

"What could I do, what would I have to do?" she demanded, her nerves on edge.

Calmly removing his cigarette from his lips, he considered it meditatively. He might have been giving thought to a matter upon which he was loath to extend advice.

"For instance, let us suppose you were caught in compromising position with someone," he suggested tentatively.

"No, no," she cried with repugnance.

"Oh, nothing dreadful," he protested hastily, "just in enough of a situation to build a rumor upon, something that the newspaper could make a story out of and print. Well—Mannering would be done for."

"With you?" she demanded sharply.

Wallace shook his head and laughed. "A lot of good that would do. No, not with me. You forget that I am the opposition candidate."

"With whom, then?" she persisted.

"Oh, with nobody in particular," he said, caring for his cigarette ashes with the utmost care.

She heaved a great sigh of relief.

"Well, then——"

"There is no particular difficulty about the matter. Such things are easily arranged. There are people who make their living that way. You are seen at a roadhouse, a raid is pulled by the police and the newspapers tipped off. It is all very simple—no more than that."

"I couldn't," cried Eileen, with a protesting gesture. "I couldn't bear to be mixed up in such a thing."

"Very well. You are the best judge of that," he said with a great air of indifference, but there was nervousness in his manner as he sat there, his fingers drumming softly upon the table.

A full minute seemed to pass, then swiftly came her decision.

"And if I do this thing will you put a promise in writing that should you be elected you will free my son?"

"Certainly not. I couldn't think of it," he declared with an impatience much at variance with his usual poise.

"Very well," said Eileen, turning towards the door.

"Well, if you insist," he conceded grudgingly as he sat down at the table and reached for paper and pen. "I hardly see the use of it myself."

Yet upon this point Eileen seemed to differ with him. Drawing closer, she watched every word he wrote. Then, as if satisfied, she reached for the paper.

But, rising, Wallace faced her and till retained it. When he spoke a note of finality, almost of command, crept into his tones.

"You want me to help you, Eileen, and you say you will go through with this thing. Very well. You have but to meet the man I will send to Calkin's Inn at ten o'clock tomorrow night. Everything else will be arranged."

"But that paper, I want it," she insisted.

"This," he said deliberately, "will be delivered into your hands tomorrow night by the man who will meet you at Calkin's Inn. It will identify him to you."

"Calkin's Inn tomorrow night at ten, I will be there," she murmured as if repeating a lesson by rote, and, seemingly glad that the interview was ended, she turned abruptly and made for the door.

"By the way," Wallace called after her, as though another thought had struck him. "The man I will send to Calkin's Inn tomorrow night will not know you. Suppose you send me one of your late photographs in the morning so that he can be sure to identify you."

Once more Eileen hesitated, then, with a wearied gesture of complete surrender, she was gone.

As for Wallace, he watched her go calmly. But hardly had she crossed the threshold than that inscrutable smile played across his face, and, opening the drawer, he drew forth that old photograph of Eileen.

In the adjacent room Slick Jenning's voice was upraised. There was exasperation in its tones and great weariness, as if tired of repeating the selfsame words.

"Can't I get it into your bean there's nothin' to it? I tell you he's only seein' her on business—tryin' to get her to sell out her husband."

Yet Wallace was not greatly disturbed. For an instant he raised his head to listen to the altercation, then in that cool, indifferent way of his gave his attention again to the old photograph in his hands. Perhaps such was his confidence and trust in Slick that he felt he could rely upon him to meet any emergency which might arise.

At least, quickly losing himself in the thoughts engendered by the photograph, Wallace displayed no disposition to summon Greta to his side to make explanations.

And this was hardly necessary either, for suddenly, at the end of her patience, Greta bounced into the room of her own volition, a wild, infuriated thing.

"Where, where, where is she?" she screamed, her eyes searching the room for any trace of Eileen.

Wallace might have been in church for any heed he gave to what was occurring about him. With his eyes fixed upon the picture of Eileen he never moved.

Then Greta caught sight of the photograph, and quick as a flash she seized it, holding it scornfully towards Slick.

"Just a business acquaintance, eh? You called her a business acquaintance, you old toad." And such was her fury that she would then and there have destroyed it had not Wallace snatched it back.

CHAPTER X.

John Mannering gave his hat and coat to the maid and turned slowly towards the living-room. An unutterable weariness seemed to have replaced his old vigor and alertness. Hours of mental stress and strain had left their mark, almost aged him in a day.

He paused on the threshold, but did not enter. Always had the beautiful room before him been a haven of comfort. Always had it meant home in its sweetest sense. But now it seemed deserted and forlorn. Home with Bob—his boy—in jail; with Eileen grown reserved and silent when he most needed her support, and those great eyes of hers filled with an accusation of cruelty plainer than any words. Ah, what a world! A man might do his duty, must do his duty, but—

"Please, sir, it's the managing editor of the Star," said Mary, a moment after the shrill sound of the telephone had interrupted the somber train of his thoughts. "He's been calling all evening."

With a tired sigh John seated himself at the instrument and responded.

"Thank heaven, I've caught you at last, Mannering," came a crisp voice over the line. "Say, rumors have been coming in here all afternoon that you intend to resign."

In his mind's eye John could see the speaker. Resolute of feature, keen of intellect and ever a mighty force for good in the community, he had been one of Mannering's most enthusiastic supporters from the first. But now John answered him shortly.

"What of it, Dryden?"

A firecracker beneath the editor's chair could have brought no prompter reaction.

"What of it? Good Lord, John, I want to publish a formal denial from you which will put a stop to that rot. You're enough of a politician to know such rumors will not help you on the eve of election."

"I don't know that I care to deny them, Dryden."

A firecracker before, it was now a bomb which appeared to have exploded in the editorial sanctum.

"Not deny them! See here, Mannering, are you asleep or just plain crazy?" shouted Dryden, excitedly. "You can't throw down your party like that. Don't you realize that it would be political suicide; that your resignation would be your political death warrant? Is you have no thought for yourself, think of us. Surely you owe some gratitude to the men who for years have staked their time, brains and money, on your political fortunes."

John sank back in his chair. There was a hunted look upon his face and he was so moved he could not speak.

"And what's more, Mannering," Dryden's excited tones continued to echo in his ear like an accusing conscience, "you have come to stand for something more than yourself. You took an oath to administer justice without fear or favor to the sound of a brass band. So far your record is stainless. But anybody can make good when it's all easy sailing. And while I don't blame you for your feelings as a father, remember, you are not only being tested, but our party is being tested. As District Attorney of this county you represent us, do you get me, and our representative cannot be—yellow."

Miserable, shaken to the depths of his being, John might have been gripped by a chair of torture as he sat there.

"And listen, Mannering," continued Dryden, brokenly, "I feel for you, but don't you dare make a move without at least having it out across the table with the old crowd. Those who have backed you through thick and thin—dammit, those who love you."

There was a suspicious moisture in John's eyes when he made his way back to the living-room to sink into a chair and bury his face in his hand.

But John Mannering was not one to long despair. Soon he was up, and, resuming his hat and coat, went out. Out into the darkness, where far away a big electric sign blinked on and off above a door as if inviting first the good and then the bad to enter those portals. And were this true, it succeeded admirably, for all sorts and conditions of men, as well as women, disported themselves to their heart's content at Calkin's Inn. A gay place, this. So gay, indeed, that the excessive gayety of its patrons sometimes led them beyond the law and into consequent embarrassment.

But there was nothing gay or frivolous about a rat-faced youth who sat alone in a dingy private dining-room on the second floor. As Simmie puffed upon a cigarette and scanned an evening paper, he appeared to have weighty matters upon his mind. And there was the crafty watchfulness about him of one not easily caught off his guard.

Now, a waiter knocked, entered and stood aside to admit none other than that master mind of politics, Slick Jennings. His social graces had been laid aside and there was a most business-like air about him. Perhaps, the election drawing near, he was upon the point of doing that which would bend the will of a sovereign people to his way of thinking. Anyway, having favored Simmie with a knowing wink, he retired to the door.

"It's all right; come on in; nothin' to worry about a-tall," he said, reassuringly, as if speaking to a child.

Eileen, shrouded in a great cloak, entered and glanced timidly about.

"Sit down; there's no sense in standin' up when you can sit down," said Slick, indicating a chair.

"Mrs. Mannering, meet Simmie," said Slick, graciously.

"Hello," said that worthy coolly.

"Well, now, seeing Simmie is the gent you got business with an' two is company, while three is a crowd, I guess I'd better beat it," continued Slick, edging towards the door.

As heedless of Simmie's presence as if he did not exist, Eileen leaped to her feet and started after Slick.

"Wait. Mr. Wallace promised me a paper. Where is it?"

Slick seemed much embarrassed.

"That paper? Lady, I'm certainly glad you reminded me of it. I'd a hated to have forgotten it." Ostentatiously he produced the document in question. But when Eileen reached for it he smiled at her as if she had been a wayward child and coolly passed it over to Simmie. "I guess I'd better let Simmie take care of that for you," he said, playfully. "But don't you worry; you got nothin' to worry about a-tall. He's goin' to give it to you later on an' everything is comin' out fine."

"I'm perfectly able to take care of it myself," she began when she was interrupted by the entrance of the waiter with the menu.

And ever ready to take advantage of an opportunity, Slick took advantage of the open door to slip out of the room and thence to a telephone which gave him convenient access to the ear of Mr. Wallace, who no doubt was much pleased at the progress of his kindly plans in Eileen's behalf.

Furthermore, at the very instant of Slick's departure, Eileen was so harried by certain gestures and winks of Simmie's enjoining silence in the waiter's presence that she could do nothing but sink back into her chair and sit there, tense and expectant—waiting—

Then in the instant the waiting was over. The quietness of the place was broken by a rush of advancing footsteps on the floor below and on the stairs. Gruff voices sounded in commanding tones, and the waiter flung open the door and cried excitedly, "Police!"

"Police," repeated Simmie, and galvanized into action. He sprang to his feet and drew the trembling and terrified Eileen through another door just as the police rushed into the room.

As though held in the clutches of a horrible nightmare, Eileen found herself hurried along a dark hall, down steps, through another door and on into a dimly lighted back yard, to finally pause squarely before a group of men who waited there.

Shrinking from their bold gaze and so shaken by emotion that she could hardly stand, she heard a voice. It sounded far away, detached, a voice speaking in a world in which she had no part.

"The chief told me someone had tipped the paper off that there was a story here tonight. Give me a line on it somebody."

It seemed that Simmie could laugh in that other world, and it was an exultant laugh, too.

"A story! I thought you newspaper boys could scent one a mile away. I've got to get Mrs. Mannering away from here before they see her. It would be a rotten thing if the wife of the District Attorney was caught in this raid. Hot stuff just before election, eh?"

Still in a daze, Eileen caught a glimpse of bits of paper hastily produced and of scribbling pencils. Then hurried on, she found herself on a dark road with the clean, fresh odor of the country about her.

It was as a reviving tonic to her after all of those horrors. Herself once more, she instantly remembered Bob and turned frantically upon Simmie.

"The paper! Give me that paper!" she gasped, clutching at him.

But eluding her, Simmie rushed away into the shadows. Away to where the thoughtful Slick had a taxi waiting that they might speed back to Wallace, and during a pleasant journey he might congratulate himself upon the successful outcome of his masterly strategy and share with Simmie the just rewards of so notable a project.

Duped, deserted, alone in the darkness of that unfamiliar spot, Eileen was almost beside herself as she realized her plight. Had she been upheld merely by thoughts of self she might have swooned, surrendering helplessly to her woes. But now, the remembrance of Bob, the mighty stimulus of mother love, buoyed her up, and that hope which springs eternal in the human breast thrust back her secret fears. Wallace was an honest man, who would be no party to so despicable a trick. It was a mistake. It must be a mistake of his too zealous assistants. Could she but get to Wallace all would be well.

Moved by this thought, she started along the road, half running and stumbling blindly in the gloom. Careless of direction and heedless of her surroundings, she was soon breathless, footsore and aching in every muscle. Yet, in the glory of her martyrdom, uplifted by the divine miracle of mother love, she drove her delicately nurtured body to ever greater effort.

Then all in a moment a blinding light enveloped her as might the heavenly fire, some saint. Brakes squealed, and a gruff masculine voice was raised indignantly, to quickly die as she limped forlornly towards him.

With a great gasp of relief, Eileen recognized that it was a taxicab. A taxi which would bear her swift as the wind out of this nightmare of horrors. Bear her wearied limbs and her bruised feet to the soothing solace of a bath, her tired body to the grateful comfort of a soft bed. Ah, never had home seemed more delightful, more inviting.

But at the thought of Bob she steeled her yielding spirits. As she sank, with a sight that was almost a sob, into te soft cushions of the taxicab, it was Wallace's address she gave the driver.

CHAPTER XI.

John Mannering sat alone in his office at the County Court House, while without the shadows of midnight enshrouded the city. He sat at the desk of the District Attorney, in a seat to which he had been called by a vote of his fellow-citizens and which he had graced with honor and distinction. Yet there was no pride in his bearing. Rather, as he sat there under the glare of the electric lights was it that of a man unutterably weary by intense feeling. But of a strong man, unbeaten, who, having for a time trodden the path of indecision, has finally chosen the road he proposes to follow regardless of any obstacle.

With a sigh he straightened himself in his chair and made a movement as if to arise when the telephone held him. He drew the instrument towards him, and as he placed the receiver to his ear the voice of Dryden, managing editor of the Star, reached him.

"But, Mannering, you can't withdraw at this late hour—it's impossible."

Was he about to return to the fray? No. His tones rang clear.

"There has been a raid at Calkin's Inn, Mannering. The Chronicle was tipped off. They say your wife was there with some man."

A look of incredulity spread over John's face. Imagine Eileen at a roadhouse. He smiled at the thought. Imagine her there with another man. His Eileen—impossible! He laughed aloud at the thought.

There was a note of apology in Dryden's voice, but years of newspaper work had hardened him.

For a few moments he sat there, staring straight ahead. Then he reached for the receiver, withdrew his hand, reached again and hesitated. Finally he calmly unhooked the receiver and called his home. Moments passed, moments that seemed interminable, and he fell to drumming nervously upon his desk. At last a voice answered. It was that of Mary.

"Ah, Mary, do you suppose you could get Mrs. Mannering to the phone without startling her?"

"Eh, don't you know where she is, sir? Mrs. Mannering is not home. Oh, sir, she has not been home tonight."

Ashen white, John hung up the receiver and sank back into his chair. It was as if he had been stuck a blow. But in an instant he straightened up. Eileen, it was impossible. And Dryden's message—the rumor? Ah, but his years with her, his knowledge of her, branded the thing as a lie, a damnable black lie for which some one should pay. But she was not home? A mistake, a circumstance for which there was a proper explanation. She had never—

Again the telephone sounded. Its very shrilliness seemed portentous. This time it was an unfamiliar voice, a woman's voice, harsh and strained with feeling. It was Greta.

"Would it interest you to know that your wife is visiting her lover, Jerome Wallace, at his apartment?" she said and was gone.

Dazed, but unbelieving, he replaced the receiver. Then, seemingly lifted to his feet by a wave of passion, he sprang up, and running blindly into a chair, he sent it crashing across the room.

"Eileen," he burst forth in hoarse tones. "God, Eileen!" and pressed his hands to his face, as though so he might shut out some horrid vision. Then suddenly he reached for his hat and made for the door, his face terrible in its intensity.

At Wallace's apartment Eileen waited, her face death-like in its pallor. When the Japanese servant appeared she followed him mechanially but unfalteringly.

Wallace's reception of her was characteristic. Although startled at her coming, his manner was easy, that of a man most agreeably surprised.

"Eileen, this is indeed kind of you."

With her big eyes resting accusingly upon him she went directly to the point.

"That paper—I want that signed paper," she insisted.

"Didn't Jennings give it to you?"

"No; he kept putting me off," she cried wildly, and then with a flash of intuition, "as you are doing now."

"I?" He seemed amazed at the suggestion.

"Yes," she insisted hysterically. "I've done my part—I've sold out the man I love. Now I want my reward — your signed promise to free my boy."

"There, there, Eileen," he said gently. "No harm has been done. It is all easily remedied. I have only to write you another."

OAKLAND SIX

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

THE mechanical excellence of the new Oakland Six expresses itself in a spirited performance and an abundance of power for every demand. It rides more smoothly and with less vibration at any speed than cars selling for a thousand dollars more—this is due in part to the Harmonic Balancer, a device built into the crankshaft which effectually eliminates torsional vibration, but more particularly to the advanced design and construction of the entire motor and chassis.

The Fisher-built body finished in lustrous, durable Duco, always commands a second glance of admiration, while the handsome interior and comfortable seats belie any previous conception you have had of Coach construction.

And, too, you will be amazed—when you have seen and ridden in it—at the new, much lower price which singles out the Oakland Coach as the logical motor car investment—a demonstration will convince you of this.

PLANING . BUILDING . FINANCING
DECORATING . FURNISHING . GARDENING

The average city lot is about twenty-five by one hundred and twenty feet and it may be thought that such a small area does not lend itself very well to embellishment. On account of the proximity of buildings much of this small area is shaded and it may also be thought that flowering plants and shrubs will not flourish in semi or dense shade. These seeming difficulties, however, are not difficulties at all, for there is no average city lot, no matter which point of the compass it faces which cannot in great measure be beautified.

The lawn area on the average lot is not a large one at the best. When the law has been made, which is the first step towards beautification, great care should be taken that the plantings which are effected do not tend to fill up its centre; by such a mistake the size of the lawn will be reduced, its beauty impaired and its dignity almost utterly destroyed. Your lawn in shade or shine comprises a beautiful picture and where the frontage is greater than forty or fifty feet it should extend from the street line and beyond the house and at its extreme end could be laid out the vegetable garden and a garage could be built. The driveway to the latter could pass the service entrance to the house, thus acting as a walk as well as drive.

To frame in the lawn by means of borders of shrubs or perennials should be the aim of the owner. Much in the same manner as a proper frame will enchance the value of a picture so will proper plantings of shrubs and perennials enhance the beauty of the plantings. It is best to frame in the rear lawn and not the front one on a small lot.

Proportional Essential.

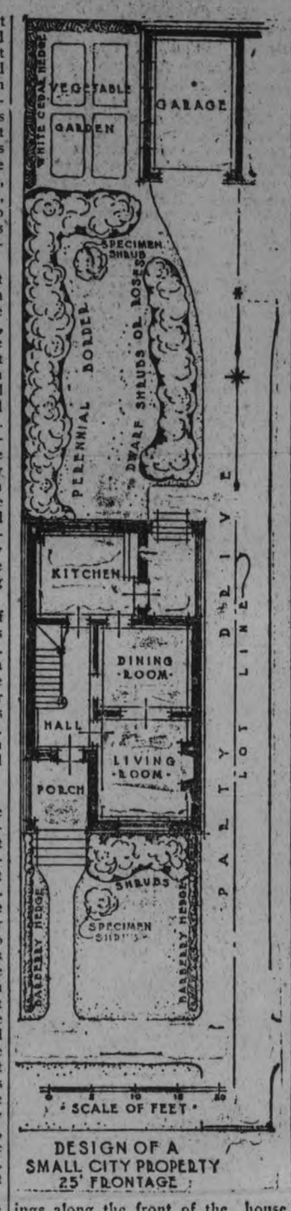
In the laying out of the home surroundings, proportion is essential in every detail, yet if a short time is spent in studying this important factor, it will be found that to effect it is a very simple matter.

The borders may be at the sides or end of the lawn and their width should be proportionate to the width of the law. This means that a narrow lawn, say twenty-five feet in width should be framed with narrower borders than one fifty feet in width. Borders six feet wide would suffice for the former and those correspondingly wide for the latter, say seven or eight feet. It is not necessary that the plantings extend in an unbroken manner the entire length of the lawn unless they are less than about 20 ft. in length, nor that the edges of the border be straight and parallel to the lot line. Borders with curving edges may at times be employed to great effect.

Proportion in another respect is also essential. The subjects, shrubs or perennials employed should be of a refined nature and not be large, coarse growing kinds. There should be a certain proportionate relationship between the height of the masses and the area they are used to embellish—the small lot. Low growing shrubs or perennials as a rule will always appear more pleasing when viewed at close quarters. Types suitable for the average lot should not exceed four or five feet in height at the most.

Base Plantings.

The use of shrubs as base plantings along the front of the house only twenty feet or less from the street is a senseless practice unless they are to be kept down by proper annual pruning. Even then it is undesirable.



DESIGN OF A SMALL CITY PROPERTY 25' FRONTAGE

If it is a question of hiding something unsightly shrubs should be employed instead of perennials as they retain their stems in winter. The herbaceous perennial being a plant whose stems died down every autumn.

Permanent Planting.

Shrubs and herbaceous perennials are permanent subjects and for results that will bring satisfaction to the owner the hardiest kinds should alone be chosen for our Canadian climate. In the border of a small lawn there is hardly an opportunity to mass tall and low growing shrubs as the area is narrow. Sometimes this will take the form of a bed along a driveway for instance. Therefore low growing kinds including roses may be used. If the border were wide and at the side of the lot, tall growing shrubs should be massed at the rear and dwarf ones in front. In any case there is room in the 6 ft. border to mass the shrubs four to the mass, allowing three or four feet between each according to their size. The plan shows a perennial border at the property line instead of shrubs. In this case the taller perennials should be massed in like masses with the lower growing ones in front. A spacing of 2 ft should be allowed between the tall perennials and somewhat less between the dwarf kinds. From the following list satisfactory shrubs or perennials may be chosen. Spring in cold winter localities and Spring and October in mild ones are the proper times to plant.

Best Shrubs for the Average City Lot.

Berberis Thunbergi. Japanese Barberry (3 to 4 feet). Beautiful bronze red color in Autumn. Splendid for hedging. Equally good for shady or open positions.

Deutzia. Pride of Rochester, (5 to 7 feet). Very hardy. White. July.

Hydangea Paniculata Grandiflora. (2½ to 3 feet). Very showy. Hardy, White flowers. August and September.

Hydrangea Arborescens. Hills of Snow, (3 feet). Very Hardy. Large white flowers.

Lonicera Tatarica. Honeysuckle. (Keep down to 4 feet by pruning). Very hardy. May be let grow tall to screen unsightliness. July and August.

Philadelphus. Mack Orange or Syringa, Virginal or Boquet Blanc. Dwarf white flowering specimens are among the best for the average city lot. June, July.

Prunus Pissardi. Purple-leaved Plum, (6 to 8 feet). Excellent where colored foliage is desired.

Spiraea Van Houttei. Large bridal Wreath. White. Must be kept down by pruning 3 or 4 feet. Kills back a little north of latitude 40 degrees. May.

Spiraea Anthony Waterer. (2 to 3 feet). Popular on account of its crimson flowers. May, June.

Syringa Persica. Persian Lilac. Light purple flowers on slender drooping branches. Keep 4 to 5 feet by pruning.

Viburnum. Arrow-wood or High Bush Cranberry, (grow 4 to 8 feet). Are largely free from lice (apides) so common to some Viburnums.

Weigelia Eva Rathke. (Keep down to 3 feet by pruning). The dark carmine red flowers are very showy. Almost a continual bloomer. Not hardy north of latitude 44 degrees.

Weigelia Rosea. (Keep it down to 4 feet by pruning). June, July. Stong grower. Good foliage.

Evergreens. Among Evergreens especial suited to base planting are Japanese Yew, Dwarf Spruces or Dwarf Thuyas.

Perennials.

Phlox Subulata. (4 inches). Moss Pink. Excellent for rockeries, border or as a ground cover. Moss-like foliage covered with masses of light lilac bloom. May. June.

Pyrethrum Roseum. Persian Daisy. Fern-like foliage with pink flowers on long stems (3 feet). Summer.

Scabiosa. 2 to 2½ feet). Blue, white or lilac. Late Summer.

Veronica Spicata. Speedwell. Long spikes of bright blue flowers. (2 feet). July, August.

Achillea. Sneezewort. (2 to 3 feet). Red and white. July, September.

Arabis Alpina. Rock Cress. Charming white flowers in dense masses, (6 inches). Early May.

Aster. Michaelmas Daisy. Among the most showy and beautiful of our late flowering plants. September, November. Purple, blue and lilac.

Campanula. Peach-leaf Bellflower. White, pink and blue. (2½ feet). June, July.

Campanula Carpatica. Carpathian Harebell. (8 inches). A pretty species. Violet blue. Fine for hedging. All Summer.

Cerastium. Snow in Summer. June Dwarf.

Delphinium. Larkspur. (3 to 5 feet). Blooms all Summer. Any standard variety good. For a succession of bloom cut off the old flower spikes immediately after blooming. Blue, violet, mauve, white.

Gaillardia. Blanket Flower, Crimson, orange and vermillion (2 feet). June, October.

Hemerocallis. Day Lily. (2 to 3 feet). Late Summer. Orange and yellow.

Iris Germanica. (3 feet). May and June. Many colors.

One night Willie Pinkerton and his family were enjoying a wonderful concert over the radio from station K.A.I.E. when all of a sudden the concert stopped and a mysterious code message came out of the loud speaker. Nobody knew what it meant. But Willie was quick enough to jot it down, and as he had been studying secret codes as used by International Secret Service Agents he soon knew what the mysterious message meant. Willie Pinkerton managed to decipher it. Can you?

HOW HE DECIPHERED IT

His Pa and Ma wanted to know what the message meant but Willie wouldn't tell them. He told them how he worked it out to see if they could do it too. He told them the message contained 11 words, each little group of letters representing a word. Start by writing the alphabet down from A to Z and number each letter beginning at Z first as number 1, Y2, X3, W4, and so on. Then change the letters of the mysterious message into numbers by finding which number each letter represents. Then you must write down another alphabet numbering it the right way A number 1, B2, C3, D4, and so on. Change the numbers back into letters by finding the letter corresponding to that number. In order to help them he told them the first word was "it". Decipher the complete message if you can and send your answer right away to compete for the big prizes.

200 POINTS WINS FIRST PRIZE

The magnificent and valuable prizes in this contest will be awarded according to the number of points gained by each entry. The entry gaining 200 points wins first prize. (See rules). Be neat and careful. Comply with the rules and be sure of a prize.

THE OBJECT OF THE CONTEST

Frankly this is an advertising contest its aim being to further the popularity of the well-known Sterling Hosiery sold from the mill to the consumer through a chain of Sterling Stores and personal service direct to the home. Thousands of people in Canada already know and wear Sterling Hosiery, but we want to reach thousands more that they may become acquainted with Sterling Quality and Sterling Values in pure silk, silk and wool, and pure wool hosiery for every member of the family.

SEND YOUR ENTRY TODAY

When your answers are received we will write and tell you how many points you have gained towards the prizes, and will ask you to allow us to send you a few sample pairs of Sterling Hosiery to show to a few friends who will gladly become Sterling Hosiery users as a result. This is a simple and easily fulfilled favor, involving little time, and need not cost you a cent of money, and will qualify your entry to stand for the highest prizes. We agree to pay you extra for every effort you put forth in furthering the sale of Sterling Hosiery.

RULES OF THE CONTEST

1. Write your answers in pen and ink using one side of the paper only. Put your name and address and the name of this paper in the upper right hand corner, stating whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss. Put anything else you wish to write on a separate sheet. Do not send fancy, drawn, or typewritten entries.

2. Contestants must be 15 years or over. Employees of Sterling Hosiery Mills Ltd., friends or relatives of employees and anyone connected with the company are not allowed to compete.

WILLIAM TELFORD, FARMER POET OF SMITH, HELPED IN FORMATION OF A REAL CANADIAN LITERATURE

Born in Scotland, He Came To Canada at the Age of 22.

LIFE WAS HARD.

Had To Go To Work as Laborer When Ten Years Old.

Comparatively short as has been the history of Peterborough, it can lay claim to have been the home of more than one of the figures that have contributed towards the formation of a distinctively Canadian literature and among those who have achieved more than a local reputation must be numbered William Telford, the poet and farmer of Smith township.

William Telford was a Scotsman, born in 1828 in the small village of Leitholm in the parish of Eccles, Berwickshire. He had many circumstances in common with his more famous contrymen, Robert Burns and James Hogg, the Ettrick Shepherd. Like both these famous poets, he was born of a humble family in the month of January, in a rural district in the Southern part of Scotland, was nurtured in a traditionally Scottish calvinistic atmosphere, began at a very early age his struggle against adversity, labored to acquire intellectual development in an unpromising environment, became a farmer, won recognition as poet and died lamented by all lovers of the Muse and by his "brither Scots."

Early Years.

At the early age of seven William Telford suffered his first reverse in his struggle for mental improvement. His father was prostrated by a long and serious illness, which indeed spared his life but left him physically incapable of working to support his family. There were no free schools in those days, and the future poet's studies came to an abrupt end. At the age of ten he set out to do his bit towards helping the household exchequer, and he worked at the digging of drains in winter and labored in a brick and tile yard in summer.

His scanty education and hard uncongenial toil failed to quench his desire for intellectual improvement. At this stage in his life he did not know even the rudiments of grammar—indeed he became a poet before he knew of the existence of the science of grammar and he did not possess a dictionary until many years later when he bought his first one in Peterborough for the use of his eldest son at school. But in the brief periods of respite from labor, he worked to improve his mind. Having neither library nor money, he had to rely on the kindness of neighbors, who sympathized with his aspiration and gave him access to the few books that lined the shelves of the humble cottages; and the long winter evenings were occupied by the gifted boy in poring over the old, much-worn volumes of such works as Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress; Baxter's Saints' Rest; Man's Fourfold Estate; Josephus' History; Harvey's Meditations; The Afflicted Man's Companion—even the poorest cottager in Scotland was then something of a theologian and such works occupied pride of place in practically every household that boasted a case of books. But there were also other works and young Telford filled his inner ear with the music of Burns, Moore, Mongomery, Tannahill and a host of lesser known poets; and the beauties of poetry unfolded themselves before him kindling the slumbering Muse within him and impelling him towards his first feeble poetic efforts. He wrote several poems in the Scottish Doric on scenes and incidents of his native village.

Life In Canada.

But the bulk of his writings had their origin in Canada. Mr. Telford came to Canada on June, 1850, settling in Peteborough and subsequently removed to Smith where he settled on the farm still occupied by his son, Robert Telford. In 1852 he was married to Hannah, daughter of Isaac Nicholson of Smith. The passing of years developed his gifts and increased his prosperity as a farmer and before he died, he had the satisfaction of seeing his sons successfully established on excellent farms.

Many of his poems were written to grace the Burns' suppers and St. Andrew's nights held under the auspices of the St. Andrew's Society of Peterborough. The titles of others of his poems,—"To A' Buttercup", "The Bill of Fare," "To A Little Bird", "The Fall of the Leaf", reflects some of the poet's capacity to see wonder in the commonplace. The installation of the first telephone in Peterborough was celebrated by the poet in a whimsical production, "The Wondrous Telephone." "Election Times" or "How the Poor Man's Money Goes," though written over 35 years ago contains numerous hits that appear quite topical today.

"The Pioneer's Retrospect", a vivid picture of life on this continent in the early days of settlement attracted great attention both in Canada and the United States and was read and commended by the Governor General of Canada, by Sir John A. MacDonald, Premier of Canada, and by a wide circle of readers in places as far apart as England and California. His poem on President Garfield, written after the assassination of the Head of the Republic was widely circulated in the U.S. and copies of the poem were presented by patriotic Americans to the widow of the martyred President.

An Important Friendship.

For the popularity of his poems in the United States, William Telford was much indebted to the indefatigable efforts of a brother poet and fellow-countryman, Robert H. Thomson, a resident of Chicago. Mr. Thomson, whose brother, W. G. Thomson, was for many years a member of the House of Commons at Ottawa fire saw one of the Peterborough man's poems in the Scottish-American Journal. He entered into correspondence with Mr. Telford, and a life-long friendship ensued despite the fact that the two men never met. "The Pioneer's Retrospect" especially captivated Thomson, and he distributed many copies throughout various States in the Union. It was largely owing to Thomson's advice and encouragement that Mr. Telford ventured on the project of having a complete edition published of his poems, and in the volume entitled "Poems by William Telford", a copy of which may be seen in Peterborough Public Library, the name of R. H. Thomcon is coupled with the officers and members of St. Andrew's Society, to whom the poems are dedicated. Thomson died on June 20, 1887, a few weeks before the poems were issued in book form.

Poetry About Peterborough.

Local history is amply represented in the poems. Two spirited pieces commemorate the return of the Peterborough members of the Canadian Voyageurs who formed part of the British forces in the Nile Expedition in 1855 and a plaintive elegy mourns five of the number who never returned. Another production describes the effects of the Dunkin Act—a temperance measure in the county and city of Peterborough. The Dummer murder relates the story of a particularly atrocious crime in the neighbouring township. "When the Scott Act comes in force" tells of the local effects of this early piece of dry legislation. Long forgotten picnics to surrounding places, balls and concerts in the city are kept alive by lines which they stimulated; and the memory of many a worthy Peterborough citizen, whose name otherwise might have been entirely forgotten, is kept green by the lines of Mr. Telford.

As is the case with the works of almost all peasant poets, the work of William Telford contain little of the dramatic. His efforts are at their best in depicting the homely scenes of every day life, in poems and songs of the affections, and in his powers of observation of nature and human life. He was one of the sincerest of men; in his life and in his poetry there was no affectation or cant.

This perfect truthfulness and healthfulness of soul, as may be marked by the reader of the poems, is nowhere more strikingly exhibited than in his choice of the subjects of his lays. He did not, as a rule, select the distant, the imposing, the great, but rather found his inspiration in what came daily within his ken, the loves and fears and hopes of very ordinary people — farmers, hired men, the immigrant, the boys and girls of the countryside and the "kirk elders." Humor, especially that species of it characteristic of his countrymen, he possessed in no small measure. Many of his poems appeared in "The Examiner", and when a local critic passed some anim adversions on the work of "local bards", Mr. Telford made an effective rejoinder in a satirical poem, "A Simple Advice" which silenced the detractor.

Last Days.

Towards the close of winter in 1895 he was laid aside by an affection of the liver, and as his ailment increased he realized his race was almost run. His wish that, in his own words he would survive to see once more

Snow all melted, green blades peeping
Early flowers, spring beauty show
Though I am in death sound sleeping
Give me bird songs and not snow, was granted or he lived until April 13. The Examiner of April 18, 1895 thus expressed the sentiments of the community:

"In the death of Mr. Telford a prominent and estimable gentleman is removed from the arena of life. Besides his many noble qualities of character as a man and a citizen, Mr. Telford had no few sparks of poetic genuis in his nature. He has been the honored bard of the St. Andrew Society since its organization and has been present at every annual gathering for 33 years. He was present at the last annual supper with his annual poem, which showed no signs of mental impairment, but was as full of fire and loyalty to his nature as well as adopted land, as any previous poem ....He was a broadminded man with great integrity of character, enjoying universal esteem among his personal friends and was recognized on two continents as a worthy member of the guild of Scottish National poets. His memory embalmed in his story verse will long remain in the community which he passed the years of his useful and honored life."

Mr. Telford's remains were interred in Little Lake Cemetery. One of his sons, John N. Telford of Bridgenorth died in June, 1924. Still surviving are two others sons, Robert Telford and W. G. Telford, both of Smith, and three daughters, Mrs. John Logan and Mrs. John Grant of Peterborough and Mr. W. Nicholls of Bridgenorth.

BANK MANAGER

Sidney H. Logan, general manager of the Bank of Commerce, who sees no significance in the recent record slump in Wall street because there has been a bull market for two years, and therefore the present reaction is not surprising. Mr. Logan points to Canada's immense volume of export commerce and great balance of trade as reasons for a most optimistic viewpoint of the stability of the Dominion today.
